On motion the following taxes and roadwork were struck off: T. Nicholls, 8 days; J. Ward, for trespass, $3; Nepear Bennett, 2 days; Mrs. Holt, $1.89.

Moved by Mr. Cairnduff, seconded by Mr. Elliott that this council do now adjourn to meet at the school house at North's Creek, on Saturday, June 27th, 1903.

In the Home of the Artisan

Malta-Vita makes the Early Breakfast the best meal of the day.

Canada's prosperity is due largely to two classes of her people—her mechanics and her farmers, and there is nothing too good in the way of food for either of them.

The old-fashioned idea that the skilled mechanic, because he labors with his muscles as well as his brain, requires a heavy food has been pretty well exploded. The mechanic, himself, has found out that Malta-Vita, the perfect food, is far more nutritious and digestible than meat, potatoes or baker's bread. It is made from the whole wheat and possesses all its nutritive qualities in the most digestible form. Malta-Vita is the ideal food for a hastily prepared meal for it is cooked ready for immediate use. Served, hot or cold, with cream, milk or fruit it is simply delicious.

FIRE FIEND AGAIN.

Ravages the Capital City of the Dominion of Canada.

THE BUSH FIRES IN QUEBEC.

Damage of $500,000 Caused in Ottawa by Fire on South Side of Sparks Street and Portion of Queen Street Both Sides—Fine Lithographing Establishment Laid Waste—Places Burned.

Ottawa, June 5.—A fire which wrought damage to the amount of nearly $500,000, raged for two hours in the central part of the city yesterday morning, and in that time some seventeen stores and dwellings were consumed. Thackray & Davidson's planing mill and the Mortimer Company's lithographic establishment are the two largest places burned. This is the third time that Thackray & Davidson's mill has been destroyed.

The fire started in the rear of either Thackray & Davidson's mill or the Mortimer Company's lithographic plant. The whole block soon went, in spite of most determined exertions. The oil, paints and other inflammable materials made the flames burn with extraordinary intensity, and the firemen for a time could make no headway.

The following are among the stores or dwellings destroyed:

Sparks Street.—No. 224, Stewart's paint store; Nos. 226-228, the Mortimer Lithogrphic Company; No. 234, the R. J. Smith Manufacturing Company, wholesale clothiers; No. 240, vacant building; No. 242, office of the Ottawa Paper Box Company; Nos. 244 to 250, Thackray & Davidson's planing mill and lumber yard.

Queen Street, North Side.— No. 221, Salvation Army Barracks; No. 223, Borthwick's fruit auction rooms; No. 227, Whitford Birch's dwelling; rear-end, Davidson & Thackray's factory.

Queen Street, South Side.— Nos. 226-228, Bryson, Graham & Co.'s workshops; No. 230, Frederick Reynolds' frame dwelling; No. 234, Michael J. McElvoy, frame dwelling, wood yard; No. 246, Mrs. Mary V. Curran, frame dwelling; Nos. 248-250, Mrs. A. Edwards, boarding-house; William B. Edwards, expressman, brick-vencered houses; No. 252, James Baker, brick-veneered dwelling.

Quebec Province Fire Swept.

Montreal, June 5.—The greatest possible alarm has been felt here over the constantly increasing area of bush fires. It was reported yesterday that St. Agathe was in danger, but reports received up to 9 o'clock say all danger is passed, although a few of the under trestles and bridges have suffered. The Three River district has also suffered badly.

A despatch from Shawinigan Falls says that, although the fire had come to within one hundred feet of the lumber piles at the siding, yet no material damage had been wrought, and the fire in the bush, though large in extent, was in a cutover area, so the financial loss is slight.

The danger is also passed at Three Rivers town.

The Richelieu boats were delayed by the heavy pall of smoke which hung over the St. Lawrence, but managed to go through. All the afternoon the atmosphere made things appear as during a total eclipse, from smoke caused by the fires in the woods.

Rumors are causing the insurance people no small amount of loss and consequent uneasiness.

The destruction of property in many cases also brings loss to wholesale merchants who have advanced goods to country merchants. The fire crippling the country merchant renders him unable to meet his obligation with the wholesalers.

Favor the Preference.

Melbourne, Victoria, June 5. — Speaking before the Federal House of Representatives yesterday, C. C. Kingston, Minister for Trade and Customs, said he felt the Commonwealth might give preference to Great Britain without an inexpedient loss of revenue, by maintaining the existing duties levied on British products, and raising them against foreigners.

Wellington, N.Z., June 5.—A conference of the New Zealand Chambers of Commerce yesterday adopted a resolution in favor of preferential trade with Great Britain.

Rev. Dr. Caven's Condition.

Toronto, June 5.—The latest report concerning the condition of Principal Caven of Knox College was that he was doing well, and as every day passed without change, adds to the probability of his recovery, the relatives are feeling much encouraged.

Nine Dead in Head-on Collision.

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

Bill Finally Reported in the Railway Committee at Ottawa.

Ottawa, June 5.—The Grand Trunk Pacific Bill was reported in the Railway Committee yesterday. There was an exciting finish to the controversy that had extended over several days. Mr. Pringle of Cornwall moved that the company be required to use rails, rolling stock and other material in connection with the construction and operation of the road of Canadian manufacture. The clause was identical with that which is inserted in Ontario's railway charters.

Mr. Logan moved an amendment that the question be left to the Government in dealing with the subsidy resolutions.

After a hot discussion, the amendment carried on a division of 55 to 53.

The bill was then reported and the committee adjourned.

THE DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Ottawa, June 5.—Departmental bills were considered during the afternoon, but the evening session was devoted to marine and fisheries estimates, which were criticized so closely that it looked like obstruction, and some of the discussion was of a stormey character. At 2 o'clock a. m. the House had every appearance of sitting for some hours.

A number of items were passed, aggregating about half a million dollars, and the House adjourned at 2.15 a.m.

Archie Campbell's bill regulating the size of milk cans met defeat in the sub-committee appointed to consider it.

TAPS FROM THE WIRES.

Collingwood.—There has been no arrest made in the Glory Whalen murder case yet.

London.—It is reported that 80,000 workmen at Oporto have struck and troubles are feared.

St. Petersburg.—The Trans-Caspian territory is threatened with serious famine, having the plague of locusts.

Saratoga, N. Y.—The drought in this section has extended over 50 days, and crop conditions are growing alarming.

Camden, N. J.—Fire destroyed the plant of the Atlantic Window Glass Company, the second largest of its kind in the country, at a loss of $60,000.

Kansas City, Mo.—It is reported here that eight persons were killed and seven injured in a collision between two Santa Fe trains at Stillwell, Kan.

Salonica.—There has been a renewal of trouble on the frontier. A band of 1,200 Bulgarians crossed and encountered Turkish troops and fighting ensued.

Hastings.—Thursday evening William Armstrong, who lives two miles south of this place, died from injuries received by being thrown on a pile of stones by his runaway team.

Brockville.—A light engine running on the Brockville, Westport and S. S. M. Railway ran into a rig which was crossing the tracks near Forfar. Three men were in the rig, and they narrowly escaped death. The rig was smashed and one of the horses killed and the other badly injured.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists, price 75c per bottle. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Chickamauga and Chattanooga.

The word Chickamauga means "dull, sluggish stream," says the Chattanooga Times, and it is from the waters of the creek that the Indians, who were among the most daring and warlike of all the tribes in east Tennessee, got their names. The original interpretation of Chattanooga has long been lost. The general acceptation of the meaning of the word is "hawk's nest," said to have been suggested by the valley nestling in the shadow of the ridges and mountain. Others say that the word is derived from the name Cianowah, given by the Cherokees to small, warlike hawks that made their nests in the cliffs of Lookout mountain.

LORD MINTO'S WELCOME AT PETERBOROUGH

Was a Triumphant Success in Every Detail.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S REPLY

The Vice-Regal Party Presented With an Address.

Those Present at the Reception—Route Taken—South African Veterans and Other Soldiers.

Perhaps only once before in all the 77 years of Peterborough's life has it witnessed such a royal spectacle, and perhaps only once has the town been so honoured as it was to-day when it was visited by the Governor-General of the Dominion, Lady Minto and party consisting of Lady Eileen and Lady Ruby Elliott, the lovely daughters of the Earl and Lady Minto. They were supported by two Aide-deca-mps, Captain Graham and Captain Bell.

The announcement of the Vice Regal party created a stir, and every citizen it is felt did his or her best to welcome Their Excellencies and make them feel that there was no more patriotic progressive and attractive town, not only in Ontario but in the entire Dominion.

It was not without considerable forethought that the municipal council arranged the basis upon which the reception to Their Excellencies should be held, a basis so sound that when fully developed showed how much time and thought had been used in preparing for Lord and Lady Minto a reception, which, taking into consideration the short notice given, was as patriotic and successful in every detail as has perhaps ever been tendered to Their Excellencies.

The streets and buildings were beautifully decorated with flags and bunting in answer to th ehonour which the Governor-General bestowed upon the municipality.

The day was bright and clear and the time of year excellent as Canada's emblem, the Maple, was unfolded in all its beauty and every tree, lining the route which the Vice Regal party took, was a solid mass of rich green foliage.

It is important to observe that the military, both cavalry and infantry, highly distinguished themselves and went far to make Lord Minto's visit a triumphant success.

The special train on which the Vice Regal party travelled drew into the G.T.R. station, precisely at the hour named, and the town clocks were chiming th ehour of eleven when Lord Minto alighted from the coach. He was met by His Worship Mayor Roger and others, who welcomed him to Peterborough amid the strains of the national anthem, excellently played by the 57th Regimental Band, while the military saluted. In the first carriage were their excellencies Lord and Lady Minto, His Worship Mayor Roger and Captain Bell, A.D.C. They were guarded by an advance guard of 12 troopers of the 3rd Prince of Wales' Dragoon's under the command of Lieut. George Hall. In the second carriage were Lady Eileen and Lady Ruby Elliott, His Honour Judge Weller and Captain Graham, A.D.C., while Lieut.-Col. J. W. Miller, J. Z. Roger, E .B Edwa rds.nd Mr. Hughes Charles, President of the Board of Trade drove in the third carriage.

A guard of honour consisting of 100 men of the 57th Regiment, under the command of Lieut.-Col. Miller was drawn up at the station, while the South African veterans in Kakhi uniforms were very conspicuous.

The Vice Regal party took the route as previously published.

When passing Mrs. C. B. McAllister's house, Ashburnham, the carriages were brought to a stand, while Lady Minto and Lady Eileen Elliott were each presented with a lovely bouquet of flowers by Mrs. McAllister's two little boys, Neill and Charlie.

Thsir Excellencies expressed great surprise after viewing the lift lock and great pleasure at having had the opportunity to do so.

A special canopied platform had been erected immediately before the door of the Court House. It was beautifully decorated by Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons. On the arrival of the Vice-Regal party everyone cheered while the band again played the National Anthem. Mayor Roger then read and presented their Excellencies with the following most excellent and appropriate address:—

To the Right Honourable the Earl of Minto, G. C. M. G., Governor-General of Canada.

May it Please Your Excellency,—On behalf of the Corporation and citizens of Peterborough, I desire to extend to Your Excellency and the Countess of Minto, a most cordial welcome to Peterborough, and to thank you for the honour and pleasure which you have conferred upon this community by this visit, all too brief though it is. With all Canada we appreciate the deep interest which you have manifested in the country and the devotion to duty which you have brought to bear upon the discharge of the duties of your high office, and we rejoice to hear that the term for which you were first appointed has been extended.

We welcome you as the representative of our beloved King, for whose person and throne we, in common with all Canadian citizens, entertain the strongest feelings of loyalty and devotion. We welcome you as the Governor of this the foremost of His Majesty's Dominions beyond the seas, and we congratulate you and ourselves in that your term with us has fallen upon times of such unparalleled progress and prosperity for Canada, when the world seems at last awakened to some conception of the vast resources which here await development, and when capital and population are flowing into the country as never before. It is seventy-seven years since a Governor of Canada first visited Peterborough and took part in the ceremony of giving a name to what nothing but the strongest faith in the future would venture to call a town. There are those with us to-day whose memories go back to the time when a single house stood in the midst of the unbroken forest where now stand comfortable homes, large mercantile houses and busy factories. These and similar evidences of growth which you have seen throughout Canada have no doubt caused you to share our unbounded confidence in the future of this young country. We feel assured that the interest which Your Excellencies have ever shown in the affairs of the Dominion will not cease with your term of office, but will continue to bear fruit in future years, and we trust that your Canadian experience may always remain a pleasant memory.

Peterborough, June 15th, 1903.

In reply the Governor-General expressed his regret that his time was so very limited and that his visit to Peterborough was such a short one. He said that he could not sufficiently thank His Worship Mayor Roger, the Aldermen and the citizens of the town for their cordial and excellent reception, and continued by saying that it gave him very great pleasure to be able to say that he had been so cordially welcomed as he had been to-day. He remarked that all around in Peterborough he saw signs of progress and prosperity and continued by saying that this was not only evident in Peterborough but in the entire Dominion. Lord Minto then remarked on the wonderful lift lock and the Trent Valley Canal, both of which, he felt, would make known the name of Peterborough far and wide. In conclusion he again remarked that he could not sufficiently express his pleasure at visiting such a progressive town, being presented with so flattering an address and so cordial a welcome.

His Worship the Mayor then said a few words thanking His Excellency for his very pleasing remarks, after which the presentation of officials and some citizens of the town took place. The Aldermen were first of all presented. They were all present:— Aldermen H. Best, Jos. Batten, R. Chinkscale, J. Corkery, R. F. McWilliams, J. Finnie, D. O'Connell, H. Rush, M. A. Morrison, Jas. Edgcumbe and B. Shortly.

The following were among those presented:—Mrs. (Hon.) J. R. Stratton, Mrs. H. M. Lloyd, Mrs. J. G. Potter, Mr. W. H. Moore, Mr. J. A. Hall, Mr. J. B. McWilliams, Rev. W. L. Armitage, Mr. R. P Watt, Mr Geo. Stewart, Mr R Innes, Rev. A H Brace, Mr E Hall, Miss A A Brace, Mr J J Hartly, Rev. J C Davidson, Mrs W S Macdonald, Miss Maude G Edmison, Mr Geo. Edmison, Mrs J A Hall, Mrs E B Edwards, Miss Roger, Miss A M Hall, Mr R Fair, Mr R. M Denistoun, Dr R P Boucher, Mrs R E Wood, Mr Wm Scott, Rev and Mrs J Bastow, Mr R Wood, Mrs Wm Yelland, Mrs Joe Mills, Mr J Green, Mrs Moore, Miss C F Bell, Mr Wm Faint, Miss Edmison, Miss H Peck, E A Peck, Geo Fitzgerald, W K Hill, S R Armstrong, John Carnegie, Mrs Carnegie, Mrs Blackwell.

Lady Minto wore a beautiful gown of black lace over white taffeta silk and a picture hat of black trimmed with white plumes and white applique.

Mrs. (Hon.) J. R. Stratton looked charming in a linen crepe de chine rtimmed with cream applique and black ribbon. She wore a lovely white ostrich boa, and a toque of toque of cream chiffon trimmed with white violets.

Little Miss Alberta Gooding presented Her Excellency with a lovely bouquet of pretty flowers.

After the ceremonies outside the court house were concluded the Vice-Regal party drove to the station amid the cheers of the thousands of persons who witnessed the scene. They went by way of Brock, George, Simcoe, Aylmer and Charlotte streets.

The Mayor and Council are to be congratulated upon the excellence of the arrangements, which, it might be mentioned, were favourably commented up by Their Excellencies. It might be mantioned that Lady Minto observed that the cavalry escort was the second one which had been provided for them.

Their visit was in every way a great honour, not to say pleasure, to Peterborough citizens and it is felt that Lord and Lady Minto, as well as the other visitors, were highly delighted at having visited one of the most progressiva towns in the whole Dominion.

FATALITY IN A GRAIN BIN.

Child Tumbles Into a Campbellford Elevator and is Smothered.

Campbellford, June 5th.—(Special) —Smothered in a great bin of wheat, 11-year-old Garfield Fraser was removed from the Fowlds elevator yesterday dead. The boy was employed at the elevator driving a horse, which supplied the power to carry the grain into the chute. He must have climbed a high ladder and fallen into the bin. The force of the grain moving by gravity carried him into the chute. The workmen were apprised of the accident by the grain ceasing to flow. They made an investigation and discovered the legs of the victim protruding from the chute. The side of the building was hastily chopped away, but life was extinct. He had been smothered by the six hundred bushels of grain.

EXEMPTION OF PIANO FACTORY

Dear Sir,—I notice at the last meeting of the council that a by-law was passed exempting the Martin, Stanley Piano Company from taxes. I would like to know, Mr. Editor, if your council have not exceeded their authority in this matter and also if this is fair to our other manufacturers in town that are doing a much larger business than this company and employing a great many more hands. If our council have the authority to grant this exemption which I, for one, doubt, then they should treat all the manufacturers fairly and alike.

Thanking you for your valuable space, I am

ONLOOKER.

OLYMPICS' OUTING WAS A SUCCESS.

Beauties of Stony Lake Enjoyed by a Large Number.

Fine Weather—Perfect Arrangements and Congenial Companionship Make an Enjoyable Day.

The annual excursion of the Olympics of Peterborough, took place yesterday, the objective point being Stony Lake. The attendance may not have been quite as large as on former occasions of the kind, and the generally good humour of the members may not, for certain reasons, have been exhibited to such an extent, still the day was fine, the arrangements complete in every particular, and the Olympics' excursion for 1903 will pass down into record as a distinctly enjoyable affair.

As the hour for the departure of the Lakefield train drew near, there were doings about the Grand Trunk station. Manager Lech, of Olympic fame, welcomed his f ock as one by one they swooped down upon the platform and members who have grown grey in the service of the club kicked their heels as they impatiently awaited the departure of the train. About 8.30 o'clock found the party whizzing up Bethune street on the cannon-ball express, the greater portion of them pulling leisurely on a delicious Havana, kindly donated by Mr. R. J. Munro.

Upon the arrival of Conductor Haskill's regular at Lakefield, the party was augmented by the addition of a number of Lakefield gentlemen, and soon Captain Scollard blew his whistle to announce the departure of the Majestic. The trip up to Stony Lake was most delightful. There was a regular procession of steamboats—the Empress, Majestic and the Alert, all in line. The band of the 57th Regiment played, and all went well. At Young's Point the Olympics were received with characteristic kindness, although only a brief stay was made at that point. McCracken's Landing was the next stopping place after which the Majestic steered her nose for Mount Julian. After being convinced that all was well at Mount Julian, the Olympics headed for Burleigh, which was reached at one o'clock.

A splendidly prepared supper awaited them. Mr. Darcy and his associates who have made the name "Burleigh" familiar throughout the land ,were the recipients of many congratulatory remarks for the excellance of the dinner provided and the despatch in which it was served, considering the extent of the crowd.

Burleigh looked its prettiest. Little flags from every window floated in the breeze, and the decorations throughout were attractive to the eye. The points of interest were visited throughout the afternoon and amusements of various kinds were provided. The band discoursed excellent music and vocal selections of no inferior quality were rendered. Supper was partaken of at about 7 o'clock and the party started for Lakefield at 8 o'clock. The trip down the lake in the evening was one of the most enjoyable features of the trip. There was not a ripple on the water and the shaddows were deep and clear. There were signs of habitation about many of the cottages and an occasional canoe or skiff indicated that the summer season was commencing. From the pavilion at Juniper, however, come not the merry laugh of young people nor was there here the melodious strains of music from that quarter, which is a feature during the summer season —all was quietness. Lakefield was reached at 20 minutes to 10 o'clock and the Olympics arrived in Peterborough at about 10.15. All were well satisfied with the outing and all were gratified to Manager Lech for the entertainment provided, and the Olympic outing of 1903 passed into history.

THE LATEST NEWS OF LOCAL SPORT.

FOOTBALL.

The game last night in which the principals were Y.M.C.A. II. and Auburn was an interesting one in many respects, being a good exhibition of the game, as it should be played. The Auburns were considerably weakened by the absence from their team of Fitzgerald, Renton and Parnell, but in spite of this handicap they put up a good stiff game; their goal tender playing a particularly brilliant game, stopping many shots which were considered sure scorers. The score at the close of the game stood 3-0, the cipher being credited to the Auburns. The game throughout was very clean only one man being ruled off, the Y.M.C.A. suffering the loss, and it was while thus playing one man short that the Auburns were within an ace of scoring. After their defeat of this team the "Ys" feel confident of being able to win out in their group, and with more practice will even prove a hard proposition for the seniors.

ST. ANDREW'S GUILD ENTERTAIN CHOIR.

Banquet in St. Andrew's Lecture Hall Last Evening—Was Enjoyable Event.

The last regular meeting for the season of St. Andrew's Young Men's Guild held last night was one of especial interest. The meeting after the regular business had been disposed of took the form of a banquet at which the members of the choir were guests of the Guild.

Mr. H. H. Edmison, Vice-President, occupied the chair and announced a very interesting programme, the first of which was a toast to the King, received in the usual way. Mr. Potter was called upon for a speech and responded, speaking of the happy relation existing between the choir and Guild. This was followed by a song rendered very effectively by Mr. McAdams. A toast to "Our Guests" proposed by Mr. R. M. Glover in a neat speech was ably responded to by Mr. Lloyd, organist and choirmaster of the church, Miss Miller who was in excellent voice sang a very pleasing solo, after which the ever popular toast "The Ladies" was proposed by Mr. C. Anderson who coupled with it the names of Mr. McAdams and Mr. Jackson who each made a speech characteristic for its gallantry. Mr. J. Girrard then proposed the last toast, that of "The Guild" which was heartily responded to. The attendance which was about 70, was confined to members of the Guild and their guests, the choir, who are much pleased with the appreciation of their efforts of which this entertainment was the evidence.

STOLEN PROPERTY RECOVERED

Mr. Tinney Found His Buggy at Fowler's Corners.

After making diligent search and numerous enquiries for three weeks for the horse and buggy stolen from him, Mr. Jas Tinney has recovered the buggy which was found at Fowler's Corners, about eight miles west of Peterborough.

Mr. Josiah Tinney, father of Mr. Jas. Tinney, last week received a letter from Mr. Joseph Tulley, at Fowler's Corners, saying he had a buggy in his possession which corresponded with the one stolen from Campbellford. On Thursday morning Mr. Tinney started off to look up the missing property, and on going to Mr. Tulley's residence he at once identified the buggy as the one belonging to his son. Mr. Tulley gave up possession, and it was put aboard the train on Thursday and arrived here on Friday afternoon.

Mr. Tulley had made a trade with three men, giving them a heavy rig in exchange for the buggy which they said they needed. They were strangers to him, but it did not occur to him that they were thieves. They said they had traded a horse the day before.

A few days after the trade which took place on the 13th of May, Mr. Tulley read an article in the paper that a horse and buggy had been stolen, and noticed furthermore, that the buggy he had received in the transaction corrsponded with the description of the one missing. He at once sent word to Campbellford, which led to its recovery.

While in conversation with Mr. Tinney, Mr. Tulley said he saw one of the men in Peterborough at 4 o'clock on Thursday afternoon. The police of Peterborough think two of the gang have been residents of that town for some time, but just then could not be found.—Herald.

A PRESBYTERIAN SUMMER SCHOOL.

Considerable interest has been elicited by the announcement of a Summer School of Sunday School and Missionary Methods, to be held in Knox College, Toronto, July 6th to 16th. It will be under general charge of Professor Ballantyne, and amongst the well-know teachers and speakers to take part are Principal Caven (New Testament Study); Rev. J. A. Turnbull, LL.B., (Old Testament); Professor Murray, Dalhousie University, Halifax, and Dr. Tracy, Toronto University (Pedagogical Principles and Practice); Professor Beattie, Louisville, Kentucky (Missionary Methods); Rev. Drs. R. P. Mackay and E. D. McLaren, Mission Secretaries; Rev. Dr. Warden, Dr. Johnston, London, J. A. Macdonald, The Globe. The cost is nominal, $1.00 for registration. Those from out of town, whether ladies or gentlemen, will be accommodated in Knox College, $5.00 being the entire cost of board and lodging for the ten days. Rooms in the College will be assigned in the order of application. An early application to Rev. R. M. Hamilton, Secretary, Weston, Ont., is advised, as names are coming in rapidly.

SEPARATING THE STORE.

Henry & Co's store is open again for business. Having been closed for a few days in consequence of changes entailed in arranging for a separation of the Grocery and Liquor departments. Complete changes will be effected in a few days. Full stocks of new groceries and liquors are being received, and the firm is now prepared to supply its customers and the public better than ever. Same premises, opposite the Opera House, George street.

Is Your Piano in Tune?

HOME GATHERING AT PETERBOROUGH.

Prospects Good for a Successful Re-union.

Examiner Coupons Prove Very Effective --Many Enquiries Being Received From Old Residents.

That the poet gave expression to a sentiment which, in its universality, is absolute, when saying, "There's no place like home," is attested to by the fact that to one away from the parent roof the mere mention of home brings to his eye a more mellow look, and to his heart fond memories, so it is little to be wondered at that the various organizations formed in all parts of the country, having for their object the periodical return to the home of their birth, to associate with old-time friends and exchange reminiscences, should have met with such immediate and complete success.

The first annual Home Coming of the Peterborough Old Boys will occur on July 25th and 26th, and in connection with it Alderman B. Shortly has received from his son, Orville, Corresponding Secretary of the Executive Committee, Toronto, a letter which speaks in very complimentary terms of the good results derived from the coupon advertisements appearing in the Examiner. Dozens of coupons have been been cut out, filled in, and forwarded to the Secretary in Toronto., Mr. Shortly urges the other newspapers in town to do all they can in the interests of the Old Boys first Home Gathering. As the Examiner has already announced, sets of circulars and blank forms may be procured from any member of the committee, which is composed of the following Aldermen: B. Shortly, chairman, Henry Rush, secretary, H. Best, J. Edgcumbe and R. F. McWilliams, as well as at the Examiner office. To become a member of the association one must have been born in the county, or have dwelt in it at least three years, or be interested with its people, so as to consider it their home county.

The fees for the current year are fixed at 50 cents, which may accompany the application for membership. Associate membership, for those who are relatives or friends of members, and who desire to participate in the re-union, will be granted upon the payment of a nominal fee of 25 cents. These will be furnished special badges.

Special rates are being arranged for on all railway lines, but these cannot be announced until it is known with a degree of definiteness how many will be in attendance from the different points.

Handsome souvenir programmes are in course of preparation, containing historical information, biographical sketches, list and photo-engravings of officers, and full programme of proceedings. This will be a work of art, and one which all will wish to preserve as a memento of the event.

It is the wish of those having charge of this Home-Coming that there may be a general co-operation of all who are at all interested to make the occasion one long to be remembered, and with this end in view they ask all to make use of the circulars which the committee will be glad to supply.

NEWS NUGGETS.

—Piano tuning promptly attended to. Satisfaction guaranteed. A. F. Hoover. 'Phone 199.

—The number of theories as to the identity of the perpetrator of the murder of Glory Whalen, and the motive for the deed, seems to be limited only by the number of those expressing these theories.

—The Kawartha Lakes Navigation Company is making a bid for the excursion business of this season, and already several societies have arranged for an outing by this route. During July the Charlotte street Sunday School will hold their annual excursion and picnic, going by train to Lindsay, where the K.L.N. Co's steamer Kenosha will be boarded for a sail through the lakes. The local lodge I.O.O.F. will also hold their annual outing in August by the same route.

—An elocution recital of unusual interest was given in the College of Music, Toronto, by Miss Myssie Newton, of Lindsay. Miss Newton is a clever, versatile reader, possessed of excellent talent. A humorous selection composed by Miss Newton, entitled "Thady Rooney," kept the audience in peals of laughter, while the dramatic reading was well appreciated. Assistance was rendered by Miss Angela Edwards, who sang with pleasing effect "The Flower Song," and was enthusiastically recalled. Miss Adele Barnard's piano solo was warmly applauded. Miss Landell acted as accompanist.

THE JUDGE'S FINDING.

The report of Chancellor Boyd and Chief Justice Falconbridge on the charges made by R. R. Gamey against Mr. Stratton, the Provincial Secretary, was presented to the Legislature yesterday. This full, fearless, and dispassionate document is to be found in many columns of this issue, and, we feel sure, will be read with interest by people of every degree. It is perhaps a fact that the amplitude with which the evidence was published, made it difficult for the average man, who has not much time to devote to such things, to gain a clear conspectus of the case. This service the Judges' report admirably performs. We get a connected summary of the significant evidence, drawn by two eminent jurists of unimpeachable integrity and impartiality, trained in the marshalling and weighing of testimony. We have in addition to this, their judgment on this evidence. It may be briefly stated as affirming that Mr. Gamey's charges fall to the rground, and the Provincial Secretary is freed unreservedly from the accusations that were made so brazenly against him some ten weeks ago.

In the course of their judgment, as will be seen by reference to the report, the Judges, in the measured language that befits the Bench, leave the public in no doubt as to their estimate of the member for Manitoulin. The glaring contradictions involved in his sworn statements are dealt with, and a probable explanation of the mental and psychical contortions in which he indulged in the brief period between his election and his appearance in the House is furnished. This passage in the report is well worthy of careful perusal, for it supplies the only interpretation of the doublings and turnings of this now notorious personage which agrees with all the known facts. That problem of the case which proved such a stumbling block to many good people, namely, the improbability that any one would make such charges if they were false, was easily understood when the investigation showed us that in the chief actor in the case we had to deal with a moral monstrosity. It is not often that the commotions of public life heave such a nature to the surface. The qualities that made the name of Titus Oates infamous for all time are happily seldom reproduced, and it is certainly astonishing that they should find their incarnation, not in the forcing-beds of crime in a great city, but in a clean and quiet countryside. He has done more, however, than befoul his own name. He has cast disgrace on the body of which he is a member and injured the fair fame of the Province. He will remain in the Legislature as a living lesson of what happens to the man who allows his conscience to be extinguished by greed, and by the falsehood that rapacious greed engenders.

We are not at all disposed to charge the Opposition with any responsibility for this man's conduct. They fought for a reference to a committee instead of a commission, a course which they had every right to take. Any fear which they may have entertained, however, that a commission would be abortive must have long since vanished. Mr. Blake, the counsel for the people, in the course of his speech paid his tribute to the efficiency of the tribunal, and testified that the commissioners had not rejected any evidence that was proffered. The commission, therefore, had all the freedom that a committee could have had, and was conducted with a decorum and sanity that it is to be feared a mob of superheated party men would have lacked. And as the crown to the inquiry we have the sober, weighty, and impartial deliverance of two of the most highly respected Judges in the land, instead of the discounted report of a committee divided as with a knife on party lines.

That portion of the press which took Mr. Gamey to its bosom may well be left to its own reflections. It should be said, however, that seldom has there been such an exhibition of the principle of hanging a man first and trying him after. Nor was the avowed Conservative press the chief offender. Papers that would describe themselves as independent were distinguished above all others by the furiousness of their prejudgments and condemnations. Seldom have the public experienced such a mixture of crude reasoning and violent language. As a reply to the oceans of misrepresentation with which the public have become familiar since Mr. Gamey made his charges, it may be said, and it cannot be successfully controverted, that in general the public life of this Province is as highminded and as unselfish as that of any State or country of which we have any knowledge; that pure administration and clean-handed administrators have characterized it for a generation, and that the men who say otherwise, whether from the rostrum or the pulpit, belie the unassailable records of thirty years.

ENNISMORE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

On Tuesday last a very pretty wedding was held at St. Martin's church, when Miss Mary Cavanagh was united in marriage to Mr. Jas. Kearney. The marriage was performed by Rev. M. F. Fitzpatrick, in the presence of the immediate relatives of both families. After the marriage the usual sumptuous wedding breakfast was enjoyed by all present at the home of the bride's mother. In the evening the happy young couple took their departure for Toronto and points west, accompanied by the best wishes of their numerous friends.

The funeral of the late William Scollard took place on Wednesday, June 3rd ,from his late residence, to St. Martin's church and thence to the Roman Catholic Cemetery. The funeral was one of the largest ever seen in Ennismore, a visible proof of the high estimation in which Mr. Scollard was held by all who had the pleasure of knowing him. A more generous soul, a kinder friend, or a better neighbour, it would be hard to find.

The Misses Quinlan, daughters of Mr. David Quinlan, who have been attending the convent in Kingston, are home for their holidays, looking well after their hard term's work.

Mr. Nat. Carew, our esteemed village blacksmith, is doing a land office business in selling new buggies.

Rev. Father Fitzpatrick has decided to hold his annual picnic on Monday, June 15th, instead of on June 16th, as at first contemplated.

See the large posters for the valuable prizes to be contested for at the Ennismore picnic on June 15th.

Ennismore cheese factory is going ahead with leaps and bounds. Last Monday alone Mr. John Flood turned out over 1900 lbs. of cheese. This is a record breaker.

The many friends of Mr. Joseph Carroll will be glad to hear that he is completely recovered from his recent illness and able to be at work again.

Fatal Runaway Accident.

A Hastings despatch dated June 4th says: Mr. William Armstrong, who lives about two miles south of this place, was returning home when his team ran away. Mr. Armstrong was thrown out upon a pile of stones, and received very severe injuries, from which he died this afternoon, having never regained consciousness.

CAPT. SULLIVAN MAD

Col. Matheson Imputed He Was Not Telling the Truth.

TAYLOR WAS ONLY A FRIEND.

Was Actually of No Assistance in Securing the Limit—Witness Declined to Answer Any More Questions Put by Col. Matheson, and Brought Down His Fist Emphatically in Saying So.

Yesterday morning the Public Accounts Committee of the Legislature continued the examination of Capt. Sullivan.

To I. B. Lucas, of Centre Grey, Capt. Sullivan said he had been employed as a forest ranger by the Ontario Government from 1890 to 1898 for eight or nine months in each of those years. He had not been in the employ of the Government since 1898. It was pointed out that the accounts showed that he had been employed for 153 days in 1899, and the Capt. said if the accounts showed it it must be right. Since then he had been a general speculator.

Questions as to what he thought of the Government, what he approved of and didn't approve of were asked.

"It seems to me," said Chairman Graham, "that that is going beyond the limit. A witness has rights as well as anyone else."

"The chairman is getting anxious," said Mr. Lucas.

"We charge," said Col. Matheson, "that Captain Sullivan has been the confidential agent for the Government, and we're entitled to the information."

Capt. Sullivan Questioned.

Capt. Sullivan, resuming, said he was a warm supporter of the Government, had done considerable election work, and had been reported for bribery in South Ontario.

Then the examination turned on the captain's turnover of $9,000 out of $250. He was questioned as to Mr. Taylor.

"You can call it partners if you like; he put up the money after I made the inspection," he said.

"The limit sold for $9,000; it cost $250; there was a discount of $500 on the note. Leaves $8,250 for division, or $4,125 each. Taylor would have been entitled to $4,875, allowing for his $250. He only got $4,012.50. The witness couldn't explain why Taylor held the cheque and only got it marked. Then there was $200 to Mr. Grant for making the transfer to the Traders' Bank and Mr. Grant returned $100.

Taylor Was of No Use.

Taylor came into the deal in May and was to put up $200 if the limits were good. Taylor was of no use in putting the deal through. His son Frank and Mr. Grant knew Taylor was in it, at least the latter knew before the wind-up. There was no reason why this should be kept quiet and none why it should be made public anyway. The witness denied having anything to do with the inception of Shannon's application. He said that Shannon had told him the limit was small and out of his way, so he took it up. He said he thought Mr. Grant's evidence before the Royal Commission was wrong where Mr. Grant said that Sullivan said Shannon might buy those lots in question.

Witness denied that $5,000 was to be paid for Mr. Gamey's endorsation to obtain McGregor Island. He had arranged for money to pay for that Island. The reason he paid 12 per cent. to discount the $4,500 note from the Charlton's was that it was a twelve months' note and he needed the money. The witness identified half a dozen cheques amounting to $790 given to him by his son Frank.

"It was mean of Frank," he remarked jocularly, "to lend $1,200 to Gamey when he was getting the money from me."

The Captain Gets Angry.

Then Col. Matheson took up the cudgels.

"You mean to say that Mr. Grant, a reputable lawyer, helped you to get $8,750 out of the people of this province, for yourself and Taylor alone, and not for any bribery or corruption or campaign fund?"

"Of course," the witness answered, "he didn't help us for that purpose, for the money wasn't intended for that. It was our legitimate profit."

"And you expected the country to believe that absurd and stupid story?"

Uproar ensued.

"This is where I say a witness has rights," the chairman managed to say.

"In the lowest police court the vilest criminal is entitled to the protection of the law," Mr. Latchford interjected.

"And I," roared the captain, "won't answer any more questions until Col. Matheson apologizes."

The mariner slammed the table with his fist, and more than one member loudly applauded.

Mr. St. John entered a hot protest against the lack of order.

Calm After Storm.

Col. Matheson said the witness had not understood his question, but did not otherwise apologize, and the Hon. F. R. Latchford took up the questioning.

To him the captain said he had seen in the newspapers that the committee wanted him, and that he had not considered this a subpoena. He had lost three weeks over the Gamey enquiry and had to mind his own business. He denied that he had been sent away or asked to go away. He simply had to attend to his own affairs.

The captain repeated that he had thought the limit worth $1,200 or $1,500, and would have taken a great deal less for it, but the Charltons wanted the logs.

"About those cheques," said Mr. Latchford, "They were given to your son during the period when one person at least says he was lending considerable sums?"

"Yes, from August down to the present time. I can't understand him lending money and getting it from me."

Another Row.

"I'll make myself clear outside," said the captain, after a protest from Col. Matheson.

"Col. Matheson's got a right to examine the witness," protested Mr. St. John, "and the witness has no right to make threats as to what he'll do outside of this room. The chairman had better keep order and make him take it back."

"I am keeping order," the chairman observed.

"But it's all on one side," Mr. St. John said. "Frank Sullivan's got no business to stand there clapping his hands."

"He didn't," said the chairman.

"Yes, he did," Mr. St. John protested.

No Bribery Fund Here.

Mr. Latchford finally asked whether the profit from the deal went for political purposes. The captain answered "No."

To Mr. Latchford, he said he had no knowledge that any of his money was used for political purposes.

To Mr. Davis, witness repeated his first estimate of the value of the limit $1,200 to $1,500, but he could not remember whether Capt. Fraser told him not to sell it for less than $10,000 or not, when Mr. St. John asked him.

Thomas Sheppard, of Waubashene, valued the lumber cut on the limit at $17.50 a thousand to-day or $16 at the mill a year ago. W. T. Toner of Collingwood valued the lumber at $1.50 less. W. R. Smyth, M.P.P., put in that he could get $18 a thousand for worse lumber, and Mr. Hooper of Collingwood valued lumber at $15 or $16 a thousand.

The enquiry will be continued to-day.

About Drainage

You know the deadly consequences if a house is badly drained. Only a madman or a criminal would himself incur the risk, or subject others to it, for one unnecessary minute.

But do you realize the danger of a badly drained body? Are you aware that it poisons the blood, the very fountain of life?

A HISTORIC SCHOOL.

It Was Established at Dorchester, Mass., in 1639.

The first public school in America to be supported by direct taxation "upon the inhabitants of a town" was established at Dorchester, Mass., in May, 1639.

In 1636 David Thompson had settled upon Thompson's island, off the coast of the colony town, and in 1638 he gave the island to the town on the payment of 12 pence yearly rental. Having transferred the island to the town council met May 20, 1639, and adopted the following order:

It is ordered the 20th day of May, 1639, that there shall be a rent of £20 a year imposed forever on Thompson's island, to be paid by every person that hath property in said island, according to the proportion that any such person shall from time to time enjoy and possess there, and this toward the maintenance of a school in Dorchester. This rent of £20 a year to be paid to such schoolmaster as shall undertake to teach English, Latin and other tongues, also writing. The said schoolmaster to be chosen from time to time by the freemen, and it is left to the discretion of the elders and the seven men for the time being whether maids shall be taught with the boys or not. For the levying of this £20 yearly from the particular persons who ought to pay it according to this order it is further ordered that some man shall be appointed by the seven men for the time being to receive this, and on refusal to levy it by distress and not finding distress such person as so refuseth payment shall forfeit the land he hath in propriety in said island.

Here the first teacher was the Rev. Thomas Waterhouse.

Camera Shows Twins to Be Unlike.

"It is a curiosity of photography that two persons who look alike in the flesh look entirely unlike in a picture," said a photographer. "I saw that peculiarity of the human countenance strangely exemplified in the case of two girls whom I photographed a few weeks ago. The girls were twins. Each was the dead image of the other, and I felt positively uncanny when posing them, for I expected the result to be two pictured faces startlingly alike. But they did not turn out so. The features were the same, to be sure, but in the photographic process the underlying expression had been brought to the fore and had given to each girl an individuality of her own which diminished the resemblance wonderfully.

"I have noticed the same peculiarity in other cases of photographing doubles, although never in so pronounced a degree. In some faces expression counts for much more than feature, even in photography, and, although the cheeks, nose and mouth may be cast in the same mold, the camera gives results widely different."

Thackeray Didn't Wear Spurs.

Thackeray was not a vain man, and he disliked vanity in others and made it the subject of his ridicule and sarcasm.

After long pleading his family induced him to have his portrait painted, and Lawrence, a famous London artist, gladly undertook the task.

Soon after the picture was completed Thackeray chanced to be dining at his club when a pompous officer of the guards stopped beside the table and said:

"Haw, Thackeray, old boy, I hear Lawrence has been painting your portrait."

"So he has," was the response.

"Full length?"

"No; full length portraits are for soldiers, that we may see their spurs. But the other end of the man is the principal thing with authors," said Thackeray.

When Squirrels Were Numerous.

Accounts of early writers show that squirrels must formerly have been amazingly numerous. Godman says that the gray coat was a fearful scourge to colonial farmers and that Pennsylvania paid £8,000 in bounties for their scalps in 1749 alone. This meant the destruction of 640,000 within a comparatively small district. In the early days of western settlement regular hunts were organized by the inhabitants, who would range the woods in two companies from morning till night, vying as to which band should bring home the greatest number of trophies. The quantities thus killed are almost incredible now.

Our Field Sports.

Field sports attract a large number of our people, says The Mail and Empire. If lacrosse is not in such a condition as its best friends could wish, it is still the greatest of outdoor games, and occupies first place in the hearts of true Canadians. Baseball appeals to the masses with irresistible force. As a sport the wheel is as dead as the discus, but hardly less of a necessity than the sewing machine. This country is none the worse for its love of sport. So long as our games and those who play them are clean they should be protected and encouraged. Education is not more important to Canadians than their outdoor life.

Great Canal System.

Canada's canals and waterways are perhaps unequalled in the world, and far ahead of anything possessed by the United States, the canal system of Canada permitting ocean steamers of large size to penetrate to the head of Lake Superior, or nearly one-half the distance across the continent, so giving Canada, with the St. Lawrence River and basin, an inland coast line unequalled by any other country, and of immense advantage in the way of cheap transportation between all parts of the country.

Canada's advantages from her waterways have not been taken sufficient advantage of in the past, but are now coming to the front, and it is amongst the probabilities of the future that through Canada will flow the bulk of the trade in grain and other produce requiring cheap transportation, not only from the Canadian west but also from the western States of the United States.

A glance at the map will show, writes Mr. Robert Reford of Montreal in The Globe, that the great grain depots are situated on Lakes Superior, Michigan, Huron, etc., and that the shortest and most direct route of shipment to Europe is through the Canadian ports of Montreal and Quebec in summer and Halifax and St. John in winter.

Three of our great railways have come to recognize the fact that, with proper facilities, the trade of the west with Europe is in their hands, and they are now making arrangements for the cheaper and quicker carriage of grain by large freighters on the lakes to depots on the Georgian Bay, whence the grain is transported by rail to Montreal and Quebec, greatly shortening its transit to port of shipment, and decreasing cost of same.

Passengers and the Icebergs.

The comments of the passengers when an ocean steamer passes an iceberg are often curious. If the weather is fine and the distance sufficient for safety, while convenient for the observation, the sight is taken as a spectacle arranged for the edification of the onlookers. Some are disappointed. They expected something more dramatic, turrets perhaps when flat surfaces are seen or ragged edges where the waves may be sliding over smoothness. Others go into ecstasies of delight over the ever changing pictures presented to their view. But the master of the ship

ATTACKS EVERYBODY.

Dyspepsia no Respecter of Persons—Proof That There is one Sure Cure—Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Dyspepsia is no respecter of persons. It attacks rich and poor alike and gradually though painfully reduces them all to the same stage of misery and despondency.

You can avoid it sometimes by regulating your diet; but only sometimes, for those foods that relieve one stomach only bring additional trouble to others. But you can avoid it always by using Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. They digest all foods and bring comfort to all. Of course you want proof of this. Here it is. Ademard Coderre, of St. Jacques de L'Achigan, Quebec, writes:—

"I certify to having suffered two years with Dyspepsia caused by inflammation of the stomach. I took three medicines without any relief. I became discouraged until one day seeing an account of cures performed by Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets I bought two boxes of them.

"By the time I had finished taking them I was cured and I have had no Dyspepsia since."

Thousands of others tell the same story. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cure it permanently.

THE JEWS ARE ARMING.

They Plan to Offer Resistance If Again Attacked at Kishenoff.

Berlin, June 4.—The Tageblatt, yesterday printed a despatch from St. Petersburg, announcing that a law was published there yesterday, giving a list of 101 towns in Russia, in which Jews are allowed to acquire land and live without restriction. Jews are temporarily forbidden to buy land outside these places, where they will be legally settled.

Advices from Odessa say the Jews have imported several thousand revolvers since the Kishenoff massacre, and every Jew, man or woman, is armed. Those who were unable to buy weapons received them as gifts from the Defence Committee. A system of communication has also been agreed upon, so as to spread a warning throughout the city if there is an outbreak in any quarter. Families residing near each other will concentrate for defence, and every second man will join what might be called an expeditionary corps, to take part in aggressive defence where rioting is actually going on.

The Best Physic

"I have used Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets myself and in my family and think they are the best on the market to-day. They are exceedingly popular in our community," says Mr. J. G. Page, of of Alberton, Ala. Give these Tablets a trial and you will never wish to take another dose of pills. They are easier to take and more pleasant in effect, as they never gripe and leave the bowels in a natural condition, while the use of pills is often followed by constipation. c

A Successful Trapper.

It would appear that the name of the king of local trappers is Thomas Henderson, who lives in Omemee and operates on Pigeon Creek. We have it on good authority that in less than three weeks this spring he trapped 406 muskrats, 8 mink, and 3 raccoons. In addition to this fine catch he secured 36 mink between fall and spring. He sold the mink pelts at $3 apiece, the raccoon at $1.25, and the rats at 25c. each, making a total of $277 40 for his catch. In this connection it would be interesting to know the total value of the small fur secured in this county every year—it must amount to a very considerable sum. That there is need of better protection every trapper is ready to admit. Take muskrats, for instance, it is an open secret that kittens are slaughtered in the fall, when only 5c. or 6c. can be obtained for the pelts. The fishery overseers should be empowered to act as game wardens.—Omemee Post.

An Abstract Idea.

At a card party at Charles Lamb's Hazlitt and Lamb's brother got into a discussion as to whether Holbein's coloring was as good as that of Vandyke. At length they became so excited that they upset the table and seized each other by the throat. In the struggle Hazlitt got a black eye, but when the combatants were parted Hazlitt turned to Talfourd, who was offering his aid, and said: "You need not trouble yourself, sir. I do not mind a blow, sir. Nothing affects me but an abstract idea!"

Dogmatism.

A pretty snub delivered by a professor to a very young and very dogmatic undergraduate is refurbished in a work of fiction. "Dogmatism," said the don sadly, "is puppyism which has reached maturity." It may similarly be said of dog Latin that it is chiefly used by pups.—London Globe.

Pains in the Back Hips and Spine.

Great Suffering and Loss of Weight—Doctors Could Not Help Him — A Splendid Tribute to

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

When you read such letters as the following from well-known and highly respected people in all parts of the country, you need no longer wonder why the sale of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills is so far in advance of any similar remedy. When the people find out the virtue of this great medicine they tell their neighbours about it, and so the good news spreads.

Mr. Jas. Clark, Consecon, Prince Edward county, Ont., states: "Eleven years ago I was taken with pains in my back, settling in my hips and extending up my spine. The pain was very severe and at times almost unendurable, and many days I was not able to do an hour's work. My weight was reduced from 190 to 160 pounds, and although I had consulted many first class physicians and tried several advertised remedies I could get no relief.

"At this time my father in law told me to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and said he knew they would cure me. I secured a box and great was my surprise when I began to feel better after using only the one box. I had taken about four boxes which made me a sound man, and I also regained my usual weight, 190 pounds. I cannot say too much in favour of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which have done so much for me. I have recommended them to a number of my friends and have never met with one case where they did not meet with good success. My daughter, Mrs. Chas. Phillips, has also been cured of a severe stomach trouble by the use of these pills."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box. 5 boxes for $1. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

NAVY 200 YEARS AGO

BRITISH MERCANTILE MARINE IN THE YEARS 1696-97.

How Vessels Were Stolen From the Harbors—Some of These Cases Were Attended by Special Aggravation—Curious Helplessness of the Admiralty to Protect the Ships of Those Days.

In the latest volume of the "Manuscripts of the House of Lords," just issued, relating to the years 1696-7, it is stated that a session of Parliament at this period would hardly have been complete without an inquiry into naval administration, and the two sessions under consideration were no exception to this rule. In that of 1695-6 it was the insufficient protection afforded by His Majesty's ships to the mercantile marine that came under investigation.

The papers show how well-founded were the complaints made by the merchants. No fewer than 108 ships seem to have been actually taken by the French, while the loss of 25 more was indirectly caused by the failure of the Admiralty to provide convoys and cruisers. Some of these cases were attended by circumstances of special aggravation. Thus one vessel was carried off from an Irish harbor, where her owners may well have thought that she was safe, while another was rendered so defenceless by the impressment of almost the whole of her crew that she fell an easy prey to the first French privateer that attacked her. And the East India Company came to the committee with a sad story. On June 18, in view of the expected arrival before long of several of their ships, they made urgent application to the Admiralty for cruisers to be sent out to look after them. The Admiralty replied that they would do what they could, but a month later the company learned that the number of cruisers, instead of being increased, had been reduced. Early in August the company, having received intelligence that the French Admiral, De Nesmond, was about to sail from Brest with a considerable force for the express purpose of intercepting their ships, renewed their application for more cruisers, but were met with the reply that the Admiralty could send out no more. The ships were now arriving. One was attacked by two French privateers, but made so good a defence that she was able to escape from them. Her captain reported that he met with no men-of-war till he arrived off Portland. Two others were taken by De Nesmond. A fourth was forced ashore by a privateer on the Irish coast.

These occurrences, as news of them arrived, were reported to the Admiralty, who, however, held out no hope of any effectual steps being taken for the protection of the rest of the expected shipping. The company now, in their distress, petitioned the Lords Justices, by whom the Government was being carried on in the King's absence abroad; and on 14th September the Duke of Shrewsbury acquainted them that a squadron had been ordered to go as far as Ushant to look after their ships, and oppose De Nesmond. But, notwithstanding this order and a further memorial from the company to the Admiralty, three more ships were taken by the enemy 20 leagues off the coast of Ireland. The company estimated their loss at £1,500,000. Other bodies of merchants also suffered severly. Formidable lists were handed in by the Barbadoes Merchants and the African Company, the losses of the former being put down at £387,100, those of the latter at £199,540; and further lists were presented, showing an aggregate loss of £845,600.

The answer made by the Admiralty to these complaints amounted to this—that they had not ships enough. They had done the best they could with those they had, but the navy was not large enough for what was required of it. They gave a detailed account of the way in which they had disposed of the force at their command, and brought a countercharge of rashness and foolhardiness against the masters of the merchantmen, accusing the merchants of trading during the war with almost the same freedom as in time of peace. In the month of September 74 cruisers had been employed out of a total of 176 available ships in His Majesty's service. Incidentally they laid some of the blame on the Marquis of Carmarthen, whom they represented as having been dilatory in putting to sea and slow in finding the squadron which he was to command. When he did eventually come in sight of it engaged in convoying a number of merchant ships, he took it for a French fleet and ran into Milford Haven for shelter. Lord Carmarthen indignantly repelled the reflections passed upon him, and much of the committee's time was devoted to an inquiry which could have been carried out more properly and efficiently by the court-martial which he had demanded, and not the time of the committee only was thus taken up, but that of the Commissioners of the Admiralty also, as they complained with some bitterness: "The service suffers infinitely by our being here," they said.

In the next year, 1696, the Admiralty were called upon to furnish detailed accounts of the navy, showing the number, condition, and stations of the King's ships; the Navy Board were required to give particulars of the stores; and Sir George Rooke was ordered to lay before the House copies of all orders, letters, and papers received by him relating to the conduct of the Cadiz expedition. The Commissioners said they were confident that the naval power of this country was much greater than it had ever been before.

The complete list furnished by them shows a total of 277 ships, either at sea, or preparing to put to sea, while 18 more were on the stocks. Nor were they at all content to submit without protest to the imputation of having neglected the interests of the country. Here is the note which they appended to their answers to certain questions addressed to them: "And having now answered the several questions sent to us by their lordships, we beg leave to observe that we thought we had little reason to expect being called in question for our proceedings of the last year, after having so happily got together, in four days' time, such a considerable fleet for the preservation of the kingdom, so visibly and so imminently in danger." This refers to the expectation of an attack by the French fleet on the English coast. The Admiralty Board were not responsible for the return of the fleet from Cadiz, which was carried out in obedience to the King's orders, issued at the end of January, and not communicated to the Admiralty till two months later.—London Globe.

BRAIN FOOD.

Not long since there was a great run on the fish markets because it was announced that fish was food for the brain. Of course the fallacy of the fad was soon exploded. Normally the food we eat nourishes brain, nerves, muscle, bones, etc., each part of the body assimilating phosphorous salts, lime, according to its need. When the brain begins to show weakness or the nerves become sensitive it is a sign that there is a loss of the nutrition contained in the food eaten, and this loss is in general due to disease of the stomach, and its allied organs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food, which is the source of the strength of both brain and body.

"I was troubled with very frequent headaches," writes Miss Belle Summerton, of San Diego, Duval Co., Texas., "often accompanied by severe vomiting; bowels were irregular and my stomach and liver seemed continually out of order. Often I could eat almost nothing, and sometimes absolutely nothing, for twenty-four hours at a time. I was entirely unfit for work, and my whole system seemed so run-down that I feared a severe sick spell and was very much discouraged. I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and did so with such satisfactory results that before finishing the third bottle I felt perfectly able to undertake duties attending public school life."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser in paper covers is sent free, on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Had to Give up and go to Bed.

Several Doctors Attended But Did No Good.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills CURED.

Read what Miss L. L. Hanson, Waterside, N.B., says: "I feel it my duty to express the benefit I have received from Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. A year ago last spring I began to have heart failure. At first I would have to stop working and lie down for a while. Then I got so bad I had to give up altogether and go to bed. I had several doctors attend me but they did me no good. I could get no relief until urged by a friend to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. Before I had used three quarters of a box I began to feel the benefit and by the time I had taken three boxes I was completely cured."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills cure nervousness, sleeplessness, palpitation of the heart, skip beats, and all troubles arising from the heart or nerves.

LONDON AMBULANCE SERVICE.

Only City in Europe Lacking This Great Public Need.

One of the most urgent needs of the metropolis is a properly organized and well-equipped municipal ambulance service.

London is the only great European city which is lacking in an effective service of this kind, and there is no European city in which it is wanted more, for, according to the latest returns, there is an average of 500 serious street accidents every week in the year, and of these the police ambulances can only deal with some 200 at the outside.

The Metropolitan Asylums Board has a complete horsed-ambulance service in existence, maintained in a high state of efficiency in order to meet sudden outbreaks of infectious disease. Under normal circumstances however, the service is far larger than the requirements, and the board is accordingly circularizing all the London local authorities on the subject of extending this into a regular municipal service.

In London there is no uniform system for dealing with street accidents; no central authority controlling ambulances and keeping close touch with the hospitals. Even the telephone is unknown as an adjunct to the haphazard systems which exist. Thus the London Hospital receives twice the number of accident cases in cabs and carts of those conveyed in antiquated ambulances. What lives have been lost, what pain and misery inflicted, by the present methods, no one can say.

Dr. Perry, the Superintendent of Guy's Hospital, says: "It is very painful to watch the arrival of accidents at hospitals under the present system. What London wants are horsed ambulances, and a telephone system in conjunction."

The Metropolitan Asylums Board offers six ambulance stations in telephonic communication with the head offices on the Victoria Embankment. There are situated at Homerton, Hampstead, Fulham, Stockwell, New Cross Road, Shooters Hill, and in each station are the most modern carriages, with horses, drivers, and nurses ready day and night to proceed at the whirr of the telephone to any destination to which they may be called.

Cordial Shakes and Others.

"When you have money," says the Manayunk philosopher, "there are men who will shake you effusively by the hand, and when it's gone they will shake you altogether."

In a Nutshell.

"Success" is spelled with seven letters. Of the seven only one is found in "fame" and one in "money," but three are found in "happiness."

"EDWARDS DE KING."

Canadian Lumberman's Mistake About Victoria's Successor.

Senator and Mrs. W. C. Edwards and Miss Edith Wilson of Ottawa were the recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Robinson. Senator Edwards is Vice-President of the Robinson-Edwards Lumber Company, and has extensive lumber interests in Canada. He was appointed Senator last winter and has been prominent in political affairs in Canada for years. The following story about Senator Edwards is circulating in the lumbermen's papers:

W. C. Edwards of Ottawa, one of the newly appointed Senators, is a lumberman who operated far up the Gatineau River, and he tells this story of a shantyman who had spent a couple of seasons working for him in the bush, and was coming out again shortly after the death of Queen Victoria:

At Maniwaki the shantyman made his first stop on the way down, and in a chat with the hotelkeeper asked what was the news since he had gone to the woods.

"Oh, there's nothin' much new. I s'pose you heard up there that the Queen was dead?"

"No, you don't tole me de Queen was dead! I'm sorry I hear dat; I'm sorry. She was a good woman, de Queen, and a good Queen, too. Well, we'll all die some tam, even de Queen."

After a short, respectful pause, he asked, "An' who's got de job now? Who's de head now?"

"Oh, Edward's the King now. It's King Edward for the last three months."

"Edwards de King! Well, well, you don't tole me Edwards' de King! He's a beeg man in de lumber beeness, but I never expect to hear of him be de King. What a pull dat man Edwards mus' have with Laurier!"—Burlington (Vt.) Free Press.

The Reason Why.

Heals the throat, cures the cough, makes breathing easy,—that's why Angier's Petroleum Emulsion is prescribed by physicians for bronchitis, acute or chronic. It is pleasant to take, agrees with the stomach, and is better than emulsions made from fish oils or other fats. 10a

S.S. Picnickers Drowned.

Quincy, Ill., June 4.—The steamer Flying Eagle and a barge struck the draw of Hannibal Bridge yesterday morning and sank in 40 feet of water. The Hannibal Methodist Sunday School excursion occupied the vessels, and several children are said to have been drowned.

Let Others Experiment.

There is always something new in the way of medical treatment and you are constantly invited to try new-fangled, unproven remedies. Let others experiment and so lose time and risk health. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have been tried in the crucible of time, won the approval of public opinion and demonstrated their right to a place in every home as a family medicine.

Serving the Table.

A few simple rules may be laid down for serving the table. As a general rule the maid removes the large service plates used under the soup plates at the same time she brings the filled plates. Sometimes when the service plates are unusually handsome they are allowed to remain on the table until the dessert is served, so that the guests may always have plates before them. The maid passes the larger dishes and plates by hand; the smaller dishes, holding olives, bonbons and sugar, are passed on a tray. She serves all of the dishes from the left. Tea, coffee and beverages are served from the right. The guest may never take the plate from the waitress, but must permit her to place it on the table before him. Finger bowls should be used only with fruit courses. When the dish is a bit out of the ordinary, it is quite the thing for the hostess to cause herself to be first served, when she begins to eat, thus demonstrating to the guests the proper way to eat it. When the hostess is not served first, it is the rule to begin with the lady next to her on the right and begin with a different guest with each course, so that no one shall be always last.

Wages and Cost of Living in the Transvaal.

Some interesting facts regarding the present industrial and social situation in the Transvaal are contained in a "handbook" to the new Colony published by the Emigrants' Information office of London. The following are enumerated as current rates of pay for skilled workmen:—Bakers, £4 to £6 per week; blacksmiths, 20s per day; carpenters, 22s 6d to 25s per day; bricklayers, 22s 6d to 25s per day; masons, 22s 6d to 25s per day; fitters, 20s per day; traction-engine drivers, 20s and 22s 6d per day; painters, 20s and 22s 6d per day; plasterers, 22s 6d per day; plumbers, 20s per day; upholsterers, £5 to £6 per week; cobblers, £5 per week; watchmakers, £25 to £30 per month; hairdressers, £20 to £22 10s per month; tailors, £20 to £30 per month; butchers, £25 to £30 per month. As a set-off to these high wages, it must be remembered that "it is practically impossible to rent a cottage of any kind under £10 a month," and that groceries can only be purchased at such prices as these.—Fresh farm butter, 2s per lb; tinned milk, 7s per dozen; candles, per 3lb packet, 2s; breakfast oats, per packet of 2lb 1s.; golden syrup, per 2lb tin, 11d; biscuits, 1s 3d per lb; English hams, per lb., 1s 4d; bacon, per lb, 2s; Australian bacon, 1s 3d; groats and barley, 1s 6d per lb; peas and beans, dry, 1s 6d per lb; peas and beans, tinned, per three tins, 2s; flour, 3d per lb; white sugar, best, per lb, 3½d; tea, per lb, 1s 6d to 3s; coffee, 1s 9d to 2s 6d per lb; jam, 1s per tin.

The Man of Sokoto.

M. A. P. says:—Brigadier-General George Kimball, D.S.O., Royal Artillery, who led the West African troops into Sokoto the other day, is a man, say those who know, who has a rosy future before him. Fair, with blue eyes, clear-cut features and a well-proportioned figure, he gives one the idea of great mental and physical strength disguised under an extremely calm, well-bred manner. A typical Scotchman in his tenacity of purpose, capacity for hard work, foresight and level-headedness, he has been called "as keen a soldier as any of the highly-vaunted German officers." General Kimball was, in the best sense, "a marked man" early in his career. He served on Lord Roberts' staff in India, has seen a considerable amount of active service, and commanded the Bida and Kontora expedition in 1901. After this he was "mentioned" and decorated. Subsequently Mr. Chamberlain appointed him Inspector-General of the West African Frontier Force—a post which necessitates his being half the year at the Colonial Office. He is a notably popular "chief" with his subordinates.

Messrs. McMillan & Maguire have received the following despatches:—

New York, June 5th.—Montreal market opened weak, some strong liquidation of local issue on Toronto rumors. Before 11.00 a. m., C. P. R. went off from 123 to 120 3-4, Twin to 95 1-2, coal from 82 to 74. The Toronto failure caught some Boston houses and doubtless they have had to sell stocks in New York. Crop reports were very discouraging yesterday and helped depress the entire list. On the other hand the labour news brought out that the country was better and practically. As regards the Anthracite situation there are rumors of the Standard Oil Co. securing control of various properties and doubtless they are after something. The market cannot go up till they get what they want and until then the list is a sale on all rallies.

ALL CHARGES AGAINST MR. STRATTON FAIL.

substance a charge of conspiracy on the part of all the members of the Government with the persons referred to in Mr. Gamey's former statement, and others, to induce Mr. Gamey to "leave his party and to throw in his lot with the Liberals."

THE CHARGE OF CONSPIRACY.

The chief result of the added charge of conspiracy was to enlarge the area of inquiry, and to justify the reception of all apparently relevant testimony that was tendered by either side, and thus the greatest latitude of investigation was permitted.

The evidence relied upon to substantiate the charges made in both statements was obtained by means of examination and cross-examination of the many witnesses called by counsel who appeared for both sides, a full report of which, as taken from day to day by stenographic reporters, is set forth in the appendix to this report.

At the close of the evidence the commissioners thought it desirable to call for addresses by the counsel for and against the charges, so that the salient points relied upon by either side might be exhibited in strong relief, and skilfully enforced, and thereby all possible assistance given for the ultimate disposal of this impeachment.

THE COMMISSIONERS' CHARGE.

The commissioners have been invited by counsel to explore and report upon a wide field of ethical investigation, which appears to them to be beyond the reasonable limits of the charges as submitted to the House. The main controversy turns upon the alleged bribery by the payment and receipt of money, as to which there is a great mass of testimony involved in considerable contradiction. In regard to the Provincial Secretary, and his connection with Mr. Gamey, there is evidence, which, in the case of an ordinary trial, would be submitted to the country, represented by the jury, upon such directions from the court as might seem suitable in the circumstances. Approximating to this method, as the nearest analogy to the present inquest, in which, however, "the country" has not heard the testimony or seen the witnesses, the undersigned have deemed it expedient to set forth as briefly as possible, consistent with intelligibility, a summary of the situation in its various aspects, leaving out the less important details, but emphasizing those which appear to be of determining significance. As in all cases of appraisement of contradictory testimony, regard must be had to the interests at stake of the parties, the preponderance of evidence, the credibility of witnesses, and the clearness of proof somewhat proportioned to the gravity of the accusation. Of the witnesses something more will be said later in this report.

MR. GAMEY AND FRANK SULLIVAN.

The first definite proposal between Mr. Gamey and Frank Sullivan as to making profit out of the election was early in August (7th to 12th) as to which both Mr. Gamey and Sullivan agree, viz., that they might get a timber limit from the Government, and put forward some outsider whose name could be used, and who would supply money needed for the purchase of the limit. The limit, in fact, was apparently McGregor's Island. (Pages 43, 1,188, 1,199,1,201 and 1,353.)

This led to the interview with Mr. R. A. Grant, when the matter was broached under the guise of a stock proposition, according to Mr. Gamey; but the more likely view, and one in accordance with the facts, is as stated by Mr. Grant and Frank Sullivan, that it was presented as a timber proposition, for which $5,000 was needed in cash, and Mr. Grant was asked to find a client to supply the need. (Pages 43 and 1,026.) This ended in nothing and does not appear to have much real importance when divested of the colouring which Mr. Gamey supplies.

THEIR AGREEMENTS.

According to Mr. Gamey, there were two agreements signed on the 25th or 26th of August, which showed the relative position of himself and Frank Sullivan. By one, Mr. Gamey agreed to support the Government. By the other Sullivan was to pay Mr. Gamey $3,000 in cash between the 3rd and 5th September, and $2,000 after the session; and he was to get Mr. Gamey the patronage of the riding, the expenditure of public moneys, and the withdrawal of the election petition. These papers, Mr. Gamey says, were afterwards destroyed, but Sullivan denies their existence. The Provincial Secretary never saw them nor heard of them. (Page 2,440.)

Both Mr. Gamey and Sullivan agree that this timber proposal came to nothing, though they disagree as to the reasons. Mr. Gamey says that on this account the original arrangement was changed, so that money to the extent of $3,000 was to come to them direct from the Government. (Pages 66 and 67.) But there is nothing written as to this, and it is denied by Frank Sullivan. Mr. Gamey is uncertain as to the date of these alleged transactions.

FIRST MEETING WITH MR. STRATTON.

Affairs were in this shape when the Provincial Secretary and Mr. Gamey, strangers before, met for the first time. Sullivan and Mr. Gamey differ as to who brought about the interview, and they differ as to its date. Mr. Gamey puts it (doubtfully) on the 10th September, and gives his account thus: — Mr. Stratton said he understood Gamey was talking of supporting the Government, and that he should get the patronage, and election protest withdrawn, and consideration was spoken about, not money in terms, but something of value to be given, and the Provincial Secretary was wondering who would handle the parcel. Some discussion as to appointments on the island, and a stipulation that Mr. Gamey was to sign a letter agreeing to support the Government, and one was tendered for his signature by the Provincial Secretary.

Mr. Gamey then proceeds to tell how he was taken to Mr. Aylesworth's office on the afternoon of the same day, and there signed the letter of that date, 10th September, addressed to G. W. Ross. Mr. Aylesworth proposed to keep the letter, but Frank Sullivan interposed and said, "There is a question of stock consideration to be dealt with before the letter is given up," and Mr. Aylesworth said he knew nothing of that; so they took the letter away.

THE SMOKING-ROOM PAYMENT.

Then, according to Mr. Gamey (doubtfully,) on the 11th September they called at the Provincial Secretary's office. He said everything was ready, and, taking an envelope out of his pocket, said, "This parcel will be brought down to the smoking-room for you, and any appointments you want made, write, and I will attend to it." The letter, signed, was left with the Provincial Secretary about noon, and the two went below and divided the contents of the envelope which amounted to $3,000. Mr Gamey took his share, $1,500, to the Traders' Bank on the afternoon of the 11th September, and had it deposited, so as to be at his credit at Sudbury, and he afterwards used it in his business. As he made the deposit he said to Mr. Crossin, his partner, "I got this in a deal it is not all closed yet, and further will be heard from it." (Page 654.) It is to be noted that Mr. Gamey deposited $900 in the forenoon of the 11th September (page 1,076) in the Ontario Bank, and both sums, $1,500 and $900, were in Ontario Bank bills, of which nineteen were of the denomination of $100 each.

THE EVIDENCE AGAINST THIS.

With this compare the version on the other side. On Tuesday, the 9th September, Mr. Gamey met Frank Sullivan with the request that he be introduced to a Minister of the Crown, not knowing any of them, and he was brought to the Provincial Secretary, to whom he was introduced by Sullivan as the member for Manitoulin. After unimportant talk, Mr. Gamey said, in substance, the policy of the Government was satisfactory to the people; the fault was rather with the administration of the policy by some of the officials; that he had been thinking over the political situation, and had come to the conclusion that he would best serve his constituency by supporting the Government; that he had been conferring with many of his friends, and they had endorsed the course he was going to pursue. (Page 2,596-7.) That his contest had been conducted in such a way as to enable him to take this position in the House, and that he was going to do so. He said that, apart from half a dozen who assumed to be the Conservative party, the rank and file of the people on both sides would be pleased to know of the course he was taking. He said Manitoulin was his politics, and he was going to do as Mr. Beatty of Parry Sound had done. (Page 2,420 and 2,421.) Frank Sullivan says the Provincial Secretary laughed as Mr. Gamey stated he would support the Government; he may have been incredulous at first, but, persuaded by Mr. Gamey, have been willing afterwards to have a letter signed for what it was worth.

MR. GAMEY'S PROTEST.

Mr. Gamey said he had spoken in this way, not only on the platform, but to many of the Conservatives who had voted for him, and the great majority had endorsed it. He then said, "Now that I am a supporter of the Government, and have decided to take that stand, what course will the Government take as to the protest?" The Provincial Secretary said, the Government have nothing to do with the protests, nor had he; they were being conducted by Mr. Grant and Mr. Aylesworth. (Page 2,423.) Mr. Gamey suggested that it should be made easy for him that he did not care to see Mr. Grant, but he was willing to see Mr. Aylesworth, and wanted to know if he could see Mr. Aylesworth the next day, and the Provincial Secretary said he would see Mr. Aylesworth about an appointment for 1 o'clock the next day. Then Mr. Gamey asked about patronage, and the Provincial Secretary told him when he was a supporter of the Government there was no doubt the Government would give to his recommendations the same consideration as was given to any other supporter.

That afternoon the Provincial Secretary met Mr. Aylesworth and told him Mr. Gamey was going to see him to-morrow, and that Mr. Gamey said he was going to give his support to the Government, and wanted to see Mr. Aylesworth as to his protest. (Page 2,426.)

This report will be continued in to-morrow's issue of the Examiner.

HOUSE PROCEEDINGS.

Leader of the Opposition Wanted an Adjournment.

Mr. Whitney, after the report had been laid on the table, said that at the beginning of the session the Government had asked for and obtained an adjournment because the Government did not feel like doing business while the charges were standing. The Cabinet had been discussing the report, and its contents were known to other members of the House, but he thought that in such an important matter the House should adjourn to allow the members to acquaint themselves with a matter so important.

Mr. Ross said the House had been in session part of the time during the sitting of the commission. It was intended to have the report printed immediately for the use of members, and it would be in order for any member to move its adoption or to discuss it for one, two, three or four weeks. The House could pronounce judgment on the report, accept it or reject it. He did not see any necessity for any adjournment at this stage. They could proceed with business leisurely, and not create the impression that they wanted to adjourn without giving members a chance to discuss it.

Mr. Whitney said the question of the report far overbalanced and overwhelmed any petty question as to whether they should sit there or not. He was not certain that his hon. friend was correct that the proper course would be in any event to adopt the report. It was not a report of the House or of any committee belonging to the House; it was merely the report of certain individuals who were ordered to do certain things for the House. In the investigation in 1884-5 the report of the commissioners was merely received, leaving the House to take any substantive action they chose.

Mr. Ross said he did not know that the House would have to adopt the report. In the Parnell case, however, the report was adopted by the House. In reply to Mr. Foy, he said the evidence would be submitted as an appendix to the report.

Regulating Loan Companies.

Col. Gibson introduced an amendment to the loan corporations amendment act to meet the objections made by Mr. Downey a few days ago about the class of business done by some companies in issuing terminating shares. The registrar of loan companies is given power, if he finds any company's bylaws unjust, to order them to be withdrawn, and in case of non-compliance to strike the company's name from the register.

Several bills were read a second time.

Mr. Gallagher moved for a return of the correspondence touching the request of the County Council of Frontenac for the dismissal of Sheriff Dawson from office.

Mr. Gallagher knew Sheriff Dawson and would say he was not a very desirable officer. He took an active part in the last provincial election, and did things that were not very honorable. He issued fifty-two certificates to men who were not entitled to vote in the county. Mr. Gallagher thought the matters complained of by the Council should be investigated.

Not Sufficient Ground.

Col. Gibson thought that, so far as the friction between the County Council and the Sheriff was concerned, it was out of the question to comply with the request of the Council. There was friction in other counties. It would not be ground for dismissal, even if the Sheriff was wrong on a matter of that kind. If there was correspondence in any of the departments it would be brought down. If there was a grievance, the election law provided for redress. This was not the way to get an investigation.

The papers will be brought down.

Col. Matheson's Objections.

Col. Matheson moved for a return of correspondence between the Metropolitan Power Company and the Government for a grant of land under the waters of the Ottawa River. He objected to the fact that Mr. J. Lorne McDougall, Jun., a partner of Hon. F. R. Latchford, had been employed to seek a grant from the Government for which he had received a fee of $1,000 or $2,000.

Mr. Davis said that if Mr. McDougall did act it was to defend rights which his clients thought they had previously possessed. The Minister of Public Works never consulted with him in any way on the matter; it had been argued out wholly on its own merits. There was no objection to the motion.

The motion was carried.

The House advanced a number of private bills and adjourned at 9.40 p. m.

CONSPIRACY CHARGE HAS UTTERLY FAILED.

Report of Commission Clears the Reputation of Mr. Stratton and Government.

NO EVIDENCE WHATEVER TO PROVE CHARGE

In the Judges' Opinion the Corrupt Charges Stand Disproved by a Great Body of Evidence Which Appears to be More Accurate and Creditable Than That Adduced in Support Thereof.

Below will be found the continuation of the report of the Royal Commission from yesterday's Examiner:

MR .AYLESWORTH'S EVIDENCE.

Mr. Aylesworth gave the conversation with the Provincial Secretary thus: "He said Mr. Gamey is going to support us and that he was anxious about his protest. I said I did not suppose that would be strongly pressed, if Mr. Gamey was going to support them, and said how do you know he will? and the Provincial Secretary said that is it, what guarantee have we? I think I suggested writing a letter. He asked me to do it. I said you know what you want, better do it yourself, and we separated. (Page 678.) I think I said let him write a letter to Mr. Ross. (Page 682.) The Provincial Secretary said further, Mr. Gamey will probably go to you to-morrow about his petition, and if he does get such a letter. I said very well, draw it up, and I will see what he has to say." (Page 768.)

The Provincial Secretary followed this suggestion, and the next forenoon on the 10th September, at about 11 o'clock, when Mr. Boland was in his office, he dictated the body of a letter to his secretary, Myers, containing the pith of what Mr. Gamey had said the day before, (page 2,429) along the line of this conversation. (Page 2,431.) It was not addressed to anyone or dated. (Boland 2,369.) This form of letter was given to Mr. Aylesworth at Osgoods Hall about 1 o'clock on the 10th, without any further instructions. (Page 2,432.)

AT MR .AYLESWORTH'S OFFICE.

Sullivan and Mr. Gamey came to Mr. Aylesworth's office after 1 p.m. on the 10th September, and introduced each other. Mr. Gamey said he was the member, and there was a protest against him, and he asked Mr. Aylesworth to act for him. Mr. Aylesworth said that he could not do so if he was elected to oppose the Government. Mr .Gamey said, "Well I am going to support the Government." Mr. Aylesworth said if that is so, he would not need counsel, as it would not be pressed. Mr. Gamey said, "How do I know they will not?" Mr. Aylesworth said, "There is no use talking with me unless you are as you say, an avowed supporter of the Government. Will you put that in writing?" Mr. Gamey said, yes. Mr. Aylesworth said, "I have a letter here if you are willing to sign it there is no reason why I should not act for you." Mr. Gamey read it twice, and said, "All right," dated it and signed it and addressed it to the Premier.

THE LETTER TO THE PREMIER.

Mr. Aylesworth then asked whether he should keep or mail the letter, and after hesitation Mr. Gamey said he was wanting a small loan. It turned out to be $3,000 or $4,000, with security offered of goods or stock or chattels in Manitoulin. Mr. Aylesworth, remarking there would be difficulty in lending on such security, pushed back the letter to him and said he would have no more to do with the matter. Mr. Aylesworth thought the man was in the market. Mr. Gamey took the letter and put it in his pocket and walked out with Sullivan. (Page 689.) Sullivan says the last he saw of the latter was when Mr. Gamey put it in his pocket. (Page 1,342.)

That letter of date 11th September, was afterwards received by mail in the office of the Premier, but on what date, does not appear. Miss Jeffries, his stenographer, says early in September. (Page 2,728.) It did not come to or pass through the Provincial Secretary's hands, nor did he see Mr. Gamey or Sullivan on the 10th or 11th September.

THE CONSERVATIVE CAUCUS.

Mr. Gamey admits that on the 10th September at 4 p.m., he was present at a Conservative caucuc in Toronto, and made a speech commending the leader and the policy of that party. (Page 218.) The report of this meeting appeared in the next morning's newspapers. This report was read by the Provincial Secretary on the morning of the 11th while at breakfast with some of his colleagues and they discussed the attitude of Mr. Gamey taking part in this Conservative gathering on the 10th and professing to be a supporter of the Government on the 9th. (Page 2,613.) It was on that day, however, the 11th of September, that Mr. Gamey says that he and Sullivan received the parcel of $3,000 from the Provincial Secretary about noon.

Frank Sullivan was present on these occasions, on the 9th and 10th September and his account accords generally with that of the Provincial Secretary and Mr. Aylesworth. (Pages 1,169 to 1,173, 1,177 to 1.185. 1.372 to 1,377, and 1,381.) The Provincial Secretary denies having any agreement with Mr. Gamey, and swears that he did not approch him to get him to support the Government, and offered him no inducement in that behalf—(pages 2,471 and 2,517)—and no promof patronage. (Page 2,466.)

MR. GAMEY'S INDEFINITE DATES.

The account of this transaction, when Mr. Gamey first met the Provincial Secretary, is given with some detail, because, according to Mr. Gamey, it was then that he secured all he sought: self, protest, patronage—all were involved in this negotiation. He swears this letter of the 10th September was given on account of the protest, and the whole arrangement: "patronage and other things, and cash," that is his expression. (Page 243.) This is the core of the whole accusation.

It is of no small significance that Mr. Gamey is uncertain as to important matters in this transaction. First, as to time; second, as to the person by whom the $3,000 reached him.

In the statement to the House, which he says was prepared with great deliberation and care, and with access to a book in which entries were made as to the receipt and payment of money—(page 316)— he fixes the days as being the 9th and 10th September. In his sworn evidence he changes these to the 10th and 11th September. (Pages 68, 77 and 78.) But at the close of the cross-examination he says: "I will not swear positively which day I got the money." (Pages 290 and 220.)

INDEFINITE AS TO THE MAN.

The reason given by Mr. Gamey for changing his dates from the 9th and 10th September in the statement to the 10th and 11th in his evidence is this: That it was only when he got production of the Aylesworth letter, and saw its date to be the 10th September, that he recalled that the payment was the day after the letter, but in his statement to the House he says that the exact duplicate of the letter of the 10th September was given to him on the 23rd October and taken home with him. (Page 69 of the book of exhibits.)

Again, in the statement to the House he says the parcel of money came from the Provincial Secretay to Myers, and from Myers to Chase, and from Chase to the smoking-room. He says in his evidence his own recollection was that Myers brought it down, but changed this to be in accordance with Frank Sullivan. (Pages 410 and 414.)

He says further the parcel was sent to us through two or three different hands. (Page 405.) And, ends with: "I cannot swear to the man who left the parcel in the smoking room." (Page 10.)

MR. STRATTON'S EVIDENCE.

The Provincial Secretary says he saw Mr. Gamey on but one day in September, that is the 9th, and he gives an account of his movements on the 10th and 11th September, showing he was elsewhere than in this office with Mr. Gamey as Mr. Gamey alleges. Mr. Gamey fixes the time of the interview with the Provincial Secretary on the 10th of September for about three-quarters of an hour, from twenty minutes past 10 until half-past 11 o'clock, and on the 11th Mr. Gamey says he was there from about half-past 10, and waited until about half-past 11, and saw the Provincial Secretary and left about noon. (Pages 221 to 228.)

Mr. Boland swears he was with the Provincial Secretary on the 10th September from about 11 a.m. until half past 12, when the Provincial Secretary left in a cab for Osgoode Hall. (This was to meet Mr. Aylesworth.) It was on this occasion, says Mr. Boland that the Aylesworth letter of the 10th September was dictated to Myers, the Secretary, who wrote it and brought it back (without date or address, ready for signature.) (Pages 2,367 to 2,370.)

SEPTEMBER ELEVENTH.

On the 11th September Mr. Boland was with the Provincial Secretary from about 10 a.m. and walked down town with him at 11, and accounts for him until 1 p.m. (Pages 2,371 to 2,374.)

Mr. Buckingham proves that he saw Mr. Boland and the Provincial Secetary together at the Trust Company's office on the 11th September at about 11 a.m. (Page 3,126.) And he left them there.

That Mr. Gamey and Frank Sullivan were not at the Provincial Secretary's office on the 10th or 11th of September is sworn also by Frank Sullivan, Myers and Costello, the messenger, as well as by the Provincial Secretary himself.

In regard to the statement as to the parcel of money any such payment or carriage of the parcel as alleged by Mr. Gamey is denied by the Provincial Secretary, Myers, Chase, Costello and Sullivan.

It is also to be noted that Mr. Crossin, partner of Mr. Gamey, swears that Mr. Gamey was at the Ontario Bank in the forenoon of September 11th, making a deposit of the $900 (page 2,)978 though Mr. Gamey says this is a mistake, and that it was in the afternoon. True, the inference from the entries in the bank books would make it appear to be in the afternoon (pages 3,184 and 3,186) yet the bank officer will not contradict Mr. Crossin.

According to Mr. Gamey this letter was all ready and tendered to him for signature on his first visit in September to the Provincial Secretary.

According to the Provincial Secretary and others the letter was suggested by Mr. Aylesworth, K.C., and was the embodiment of the language and ideas of Mr. Gamey communicated on the first and only occasion when they met in that month. (Page 2,515.)

As to whether or not this first interview between the Provincial Secretary and Mr. Gamey was on the 9th of September, light is thrown by Dr. Struthers. On this day Dr. Struthers, as Mr. Gamey admits, occupied the same bedroom (during Exhibition) and being long-standing friends they talked upon this subject on the night of the 9th of September. This in brief is Dr. Struthers' account:—"Mr. Gamey asked my disinterested advice. He said there was a protest against him and he was not in a financial position to fight it. It would cost $1,200 to $1,500, and in case it went against him if he wished to re-enter politics it would cost him $400 or $500 to fight a new election; that the matter could be arranged and the protest be withdrawn; that he would receive the practical patronage of the riding, and that he would become to all intents and purposes an independent supporter of the Government. My advice was against it. I said people would say he was bought. He indignantly repudiated the idea of money consideration. (Page 2,009.) He said it could be arranged that he could have the patronage. (Page 2,017.) The difficulty was, he was unwilling to incur the additional expense upon a protest and new election. (Page 2,020.) He repudiated there being anything more in the deal than the dropping of the protest and the giving of patronage in his riding; he said that patronage came to Government supporters." (Page 2,022.)

MR. GAMEY'S ADMISSIONS.

According to the weight of testimony, this conversation took place on the night of the day on which Mr. Gamey had his first interview with the Provincial Secretary, and it confirms what took place in the Minister's office. Mr. Gamey admits having a conversation with Dr. Struthers in September. He said I had a talk about my supporting the Government, I told him there was a deal on, an arrangement, part of which was to get my protest wiped off, and patronage of the riding, and that sort of thing, and he did not like that kind of deal. (Pages 301 and 302.) He goes on: I then had the promise and the agreement signed and all that sort of thing but before I had seen the Provincial Secretary. (Page 303.)

The only promise and agreement signed as to these matters was, by Mr Gamey's own evidence, destroyed about, if not on, the 1st of September, and it was out of existence on the 9th September. (Pages 394, and 395.) There was no other promise, except that which Mr. Gamey says was made on the first interview with the Provincial Secretary, that Gamey should get the patronage, the withdrawal of the protest, and other consideration. The conclusion is very persuasive that the conversation with Dr. Struthers was in the evening of the day when Mr. Gamey first saw and spoke with the Provincial Secretary.

MR. ARMSTRONG'S EVIDENCE.

Two witnesses were called to prove the contrary of what the Provincial Secretary alleges as to the visit of Mr. Gamey to his office on the 9th September and as to his whereabouts on the 11th September. Armstrong says Mr. Gamey was at the Fair ground with him from some minutes after 10 until after lunch time on the 9th September. His evidence is not accurate, and he may be mistaken by about an hour, which would give ample time for Mr. Gamey's visit that morning. He qualifies his estimate of time by a peculiar phrase, "Possibly, about," repeated over half a dozen times. He also contradicts himself, saying he was about an hour at McCormick's, and then denying it, saying that he wandered about an hour or two, after leaving McCormick's before going to the Fair, and then denying it. (Pages 2,923-2,925 and 2,926.) Besides this, on the morning of the 9th occurred a thunder storm, and from 7 to 9a heavy rain, so that it is unlikely he left home as early as he says, at 7 or 8 o'clock in the morning. (Pages 2,923 and 3,194.) The other witness on Mr. Gamey's part was a lad called Green, who says he drove the Provincial Secretary and two ladies in a cab on the morning of the 11th of September from 9.30 to 11.30, and the contemporaneous entry in the book of the cab owner given in by Green is "shopping, McConkey's and home." Green appears to be lacking in intelligence, confuses Stratton with Strathy, calls going to visit plumbers and foundrymen "shopping," does not remember going to McConkey's at all, does not remember where he drove from the foundry, cannot say he went back to the Parliament Buildings, or when the Provincial Secretary left the cab, but will swear that he did not drive the Provincial Secretary to McConkey's. This sort of confused recollection cannot weigh against the precise statements of such witnesses as Mr. Buckingham, and Mr. Boland, not to speak of others.

THE INTERVIEW OF OCTOBER.

Of rather minor importance is another interview on the 23rd or 24th October. Mr. Gamey says he saw the Provincial Secretary about rumours around the country, and the Provincial Secretary said he would see the Premier and see what could be done. The Provincial Secretary went away and came back, and said that the Premier decided that it was better to do nothing, not to publish a statement of any kind.(Page 103.) Mr. Stratton then said that they wanted him to sign another letter, a duplicate of that dated 10th September. This he was to sign at Gore Bay and address to the Premier. The reason assigned was because the protest was being disposed of in court on the 26th October, and they wanted this signed and mailed at a later date, to show that there was not any deal on in regard to the protest. (Page 108.). This letter, dated 27th October, was mailed to the Premier with some changes in it, and it was signed by Mr. Gamey's son, to draw out some letter from the Premier on account of the difference in signature. (Page 241.) They were to return the first letter when they got the second but they did not. (Page 110.) Mr. Gamey said the letter which his son signed was shown to him the first day. (Page 423.)

MR. STRATTON'S VERSION.

Again there is a conflict between this and the version given by the Provincial Secretary. This is his recollection of it: Mr. Gamey came in the morning of his own accord, and asked for the letter of the 10th September, sent to the Premier. He wished to withdraw that letter and send one of a date later than the Conservative caucus, which he had attended on that day, the 10th, in Toronto. He asked for the original letter, but this could not be taken from the Premier's office. (Page 2,563.) Mr. Gamey suggested to have the letter dated about 27th October, and he would be home and would send it from Gore Bay. In consequence of Mr. Gamey's urgency, the Provincial Secretary procured a copy and had it mailed to Mr. Gamey. Mr. Gamey said that he was going to call a meeting of his constituents and announce the course he proposed to take. The Provincial Secretary approved of that. Mr. Gamey said he did not doubt they would endorse his giving support to the Government. (Page 2,452.) The Provincial Secretary got the letter of the 10th September from the secretary of the Premier and had a copy made, which was mailed to Mr. Gamey by Myers, and he told Mr. Ford to date it the 27th October, as Mr. Gamey wished. (Page 2,464.)

The written statement made before the House is different from Mr. Gamey's evidence and when it states that the exact duplicate of the letter of the 10th was given to Mr. Gamey, and held by Frank Sullivan for a day, and taken home with Mr. Gamey, it is contradicted by Myers, Frank Sullivan and the Provincial Secretary.

THE GLOBE INTERVIEW.

The next overt act charged respecting money is the payment of $1000 on the 29th January, 1903, apparently as the price of the Globe interview. But Free Medical Advice to Women.

All Letters Are Strictly Confidential

Every sick and ailing woman,
Every young girl who suffers monthly,
Every woman who is approaching maternity,
Every woman who feels that life is a burden,
Every woman who has tried all other means to regain health without success

Every woman who is going through that critical time—the change of life—is invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., in regard to her trouble, and the most expert advice telling exactly how to obtain a CURE will be sent absolutely free of cost.

The one thing that qualifies a person to give advice on any subject is experience—experience creates knowledge.

No other person has so wide an experience with female ills nor such a record of success as Mrs. Pinkham has had.

Over a hundred thousand cases come before her each year. Some personally, others by mail. And this has been going on for twenty years, day after day, and day after day.

Twenty years of constant success—think of the knowledge thus gained! Surely women are wise in seeking advice from a woman with such an experience, especially when it is free.

Mrs. Hayes, of Boston, wrote to Mrs. Pinkham when she was in great trouble. Her letter shows the result. There are actually thousands of such letters in Mrs. Pinkham's possession.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been under doctors' treatment for female troubles for some time, but without any relief. They now tell me I have a fibroid tumor. I cannot sit down without great pain, and the soreness extends up my spine. I have bearing down pains both back and front. My abdomen is swollen, I cannot wear my clothes with any comfort. Womb is dreadfully swollen, and I have had flowing spells for three years. My appetite is not good. I cannot walk or be on my feet for any length of time.

"The symptoms of Fibroid Tumor, given in your little book, accurately describe my case, so I write to you for advice."—MRS. E. F. HAYES, 252 Dudley St. (Boston), Roxbury, Mass.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wrote to you describing my symptoms, and asked your advice. You replied, and I followed all your directions carefully for several months, and to-day I am a well woman.

"The use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, together with your advice, carefully followed, entirely expelled the tumor, and strengthened the whole system. I can walk miles now.

"Your Vegetable Compound is worth five dollars a drop. I advise all women who are afflicted with tumors, or any female trouble, to write you for advice, and give it a faithful trial."—MRS. E. F. HAYES, 252 Dudley St. (Boston), Roxbury, Mass.

Mrs. Hayes will gladly answer any and all letters that may be addressed to her asking about her illness, and how Mrs. Pinkham helped her.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letter and signature of above testimonial, which will prove its absolute genuineness.

LAKEHURST.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Lakehurst, June 2nd.

The Presbyterian church opened again for the summer. Rev. Mr. Pickup, our student of last year, has charge of the work. The attendance last Sunday was very good. Miss Lizzie Smith sang a solo.

Mr. Wm. Renwick, of California, who has been visiting his sister, Mrs. John Smith, left for Otonabee on Saturday last.

Mr. Harry Smith, game warden, of Belleville, spent a couple of weeks with his brother, Mr. John Smith, returning home on Saturday.

Mr. James Coons is erecting a new straw barn with stone stables beneath. Work has already begun.

Mrs. W. J. Northey, who has been ill, is better.

The families who have been in quarantine on account of the small-pox, expect to be liberated on Tuesday of this week.

Mrs. Isaac Johnston was unfortunate enough to fall and dislocate her shoulder on Saturday. Dr. Bonnell, of Bobcaygeon, was summoned.

Rev. Dr. Metzler preached a very able sermon on Sunday evening last on "Watchfulness." Dr. Metzler leaves next week for conference and expects to be absent next Sunday.

School No. 3 has not yet been re-opened. It was closed about two months ago, but in the meantime Miss Simpson, the teacher, is holding school in the old school house.

Many new gowns and hats were seen last Sunday at church. Harvey farmers are prosperous.

Mr. Henry Coons, we understand, has recently purchased a fine, new horse and buggy.

Two new members have been added to the Methodist choir, Miss M. Shaw and Miss E. Shearer.

Jack the Choker Sentenced.

Bridgeport, Conn., June 6.—Swift justice was dealt out by Judge George W. Wheeler yesterday afternoon to David Farrell, known as Stratford's "Jack-the-Choker." On Sunday evening he attempted to assault Miss Alice Chase of Stamford. He was captured on Tuesday, admitted his guilt yesterday and was sentenced to not less than three or more than six years in the Penitentiary. Farrell has terrorized the women of Stamford for three months.

Paralyzed on Right Side and Helpless for Six Years.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Opened up a New and Happy Life for a Lady Who was Considered to be Incurable.

As summer advances, we are too prone to neglect the little ills and the warning symptoms of disease, simply because we are not suffering acute pain. It is a well known fact that in summer we too often neglect the necessities of the system. Never forget that sleeplessness, nervousness, poor circulation, rheumatism, back and sideaches are very forcible reminders of fatal diseases. We should therefore at this time grapple with the trivial aches and pains by using Paine's Celery Compound, the great blood purifier, nerve bracer, digestive regulator and system builder. To-day, tens of thousands are using Paine's Celery Compound with marvellous success, fortifying the system for the weakening effects of the hot weather. Mrs. L. Pelletier, 56 Bridge street, Quebec, says:

"I have derived great good from Paine's Celery Compound. I was paralyzed on my right side for six years and was unable to write or do any work. I also had pains in my stomach, back and head and suffered with inflammatory rheumatism. My attention was directed to the almost miraculous benefits that resulted from the use of Paine's Celery Compound. I decided to try three bottles and have from the use of the remedy experienced grand results. The pains have all disappeared and I feel a great deal stronger. I fully believe that I have at last found the precious remedy. Paine's Celery Compound has no equal as a reliever of pain."

this interview is to be connected with and is explained by a prior conversation between the Provincial Secretary and Mr. Gamey on the 13th January. Mr. Gamey gives this account: saw the Provincial Secretary, and he wanted me to sign an interview which he had prepared for the Globe, and he wanted me to name the License Board for the riding. Sullivan said the other Ministers had been gibing the Provincial Secretary about his deal with me, and he wanted this as a public announcement from which I could not get away." (Page 119.) This Sullivan denies. (Page 1,389.) "It was prepared in advance, typewritten. I made some changes. I told him it would never do to publish it as it was at first, the public would not stand it. I took the document away to look at it, and came back in the evening. Sullivan told me that if I would sign it I would get $1,000 cash. (Page 125.) I went back after 6 p.m. and the Provincial Secretary said he guessed the interview would do, and told me to give it The Globe reporter and he would fix up the money. Sullivan came in and said, 'I am ready now, and as Mr. Gamey started out with him, the Provincial Secretary said, 'I have given Frank so many fifties and twenties and tens, making up $1,000. (Page 127.) Outside Sullivan said, 'They have a good deal of money round here; that the Provincial Secretary had said he had $750 of that at his own office, and had got $250 at the Attorney-General's department.' (This Sullivan denies.) (Page 1,381.)

"At the door outside Sullivan tore off the envelope and gave me $500. The Provincial Secretary suggested that Gamey should write Whitney as to his taking an independent stand." (Letter 29th January, page 128, of the evidence.) (This the Provincial Secretary denies.) (Page 2,406.)

Mr. Gamey says he kept the money in his pocket continually until the 11th March, when it was produced in the House. (Page 130.)

Mr. McGregor of Manitoulin, the Conservative organizer, who had come down with Mr. Gamey to assist him, was with Mr. Gamey that night, and they discussed the situation, but Mr. Gamey did not tell him of this money or show it to anyone in the city. (Page 487.) He thinks he showed it to McGregor at the island. (Page 185.)

MR. STRATTON'S EVIDENCE.

The Provincial Secretary casts light on the matter of the Globe interview by reference to an earlier interview between him and Mr. Gamey on the 13th January, when Mr. Gamey, of his own motion, came to the Provincial Secretary's office, and Dr. Chamberlain was present. The conversation turned on the lock-up at Little Current, and the license commissioners, and about an appointment for Mr. Gamey's brother. The Provincial Secretary said that nothing would be done as to the appointments until after the session opened, and that the Government would have to confer with their political friends. Mr. Gamey said then you do not consider me a supporter of the Government, and the Provincial Secretary said, "you take a peculiar way of showing your support, you came to me early in September and said you were going to support the Government, you sent a letter to the Premier verifying what you said to me, you at the same time attended a convention of the Conservative party, and denounced the Government, then you come back in October and desire to withdraw the letter sent to the Premier, and substitute another of a later date, and now you have just come from North Perth where you took part against us in the bye-elections. We propose to consult our friends as to these appointments." The Provincial Secretary said further: "Now, the only course for you is either to call a public meeting, write a letter to the press, or publish an interview, stating the course you intend to pursue; the only frank and square way is to announce it in that way." (Page 2,457.)

PREPARED AT GAMEY'S REQUEST.

Mr. Gamey said he had spoken to a great many constituents, and they had endorsed the course he was pursuing, and he said I think it best to place myself before the public by an interview. The Provincial Secretary said why don't you do it, and he agreed to do so, and give his reasons. He asked the Provincial Secretary to prepare one for him and urged that course. (Page 2,458.) The Provincial Secretary took down notes in pencil of what Mr. Gamey said, and while this was being done Mr. Gamey remarked, "I had better confer with my friends a little more fully as to this, and I will come down later and announce it then." (Pages 2,458 and 2,597.)

On the 28th January Gamey telephoned the Provincial Secretary to him (so Myers also) (pages 2,062-2,) and an appointment was made for next day at 2 p.m. Mr. Gamey asked if he had the interview ready, and the Provincial Secretary said no, but he would have it ready by then. Mr. Gamey said that would do. (Page 2,-456.) Then the Provincial Secretary dictated from his notes the interview, practically as it was published, to a long-hand writer, who had it struck off by Myers on the typewriter (so Myers also, page 2,068.) On the 29th January Gamey came to the Provincial Secretary and asked if the interview was ready; it was given to him. He thought it a little too strong going further in support than he would care to announce, and he said he would take it and make alterations, and let the Provincial Secretary have it later. It was brought back in such shape as it appears in the exhibits, and was with some introduction by The Globe writer published next day. (Page 2,461.) No money was given to Mr. Gamey or Frank Sullivan, whom the Provincial Secretary did not see. (Pages 2,462 and 2,466.)

AGREEMENT WITH DR. CHAMBERLAIN.

Dr. Chamberlain is in accord with this version of the convention of the 13th January, and his evidence may be thus abstracted. 13th January 1903, Dr. Chamberlain saw Mr. Gamey at the Provincial Secretary's office. Myers was there when he came in, a little after 10 o'clock. (Page 2,230.) Mr. Gamey spoke of the lock-up, and license commissioners, and made recommendation, or wanted appointments made. The Provincial Secretary said they would have to consult their friends as to the appointments. Mr. Gamey said, I am a supporter of the Government. The Provincial Secretary sharply said, "you have said so, but it does not look much like it," and spoke of his action in North Perth. He said, "if you are a supporter of the Government, why don't you declare your position publicly?" Mr. Gamey said. "I am prepared to do so." The Provincial Secretary said, "well, do so at once." Mr. Gamey asked him to prepare some kind of interview for the press. The Provincial Secretary said, "what do you want to say?" and Mr. Gamey repeated over in substance what he wished to say to the public through the press, and the Provincial Secretary had paper and pencil making notes. The Provincial Secretary was to prepare the document and Mr. Gamey was to call again. (Page 2,242.) The Provincial Secretary said to Mr. Gamey when he supported the Government his recommendations would receive the same consideration as those of any other member supporting the Government. (Page 2,246.) Dr. Chamberlain was there until Mr. Gamey left. The Provincial Secretary suggested nothing to go into the interview that Dr. Chamberlain heard. (Page 2,261.) Mr. Gamey said he would support the Government on votes of want of confidence. (Page 2,231.) Myers negatives Frank Sullivan's presence in the Provincial Secretary's room on the 29th January. (Page 2,066 and 2,069.)

Frank Sullivan says he was waiting outside on the evening of the 29th, but got no money from the Provincial Secretary. (Page 1,368.)

MR. GAMEY'S VERSION DIFFERENT.

Mr. Gamey gives a very different version of what occurred on the 13th of January. He admits that his conduct as to the North Perth election and license board appointments and lock-ups was discussed, and that Dr. Chamberlain was called in, and that he promised to come down some time later on. (Page 117.) Mr. Gamey says that on his return home he had a talk with Mr. McGregor as to the course he was pursuing, and that McGregor was to come with him to the city on the next occasion, which was the 29th of January. (Page 117.) Mr. Gamey did not return on the 29th in consequence of Sullivan's telegram of the 27th of January, though that inference is suggested by the place it has in the statement. Mr. Gamey's evidence leaves the impression that the text of The Globe interview originated entirely with the Provincial Secretary, which is contrary to the evidence of Dr. Chamberlain and the Provincial Secretary. In further corroboration of what the Minister says as to this interview, Dr. Arthur tells of a conversation that day, January 13th, with Mr. Gamey in Toronto, in which Mr. Gamey said he was in a hurry to get back to the island before the roads were bad, for there was trouble brewing, and he wanted to see some of his country constituents. He showed Dr. Arthur a paper which he was going around to get his friends, the Conservative farmers, to sign endorsing his position, and then he could laugh at the organization, the professional politicians who lived in towns. (Gore Bay.) (Pages 2,303 and 2,337.) Mr. Gamey said he had been up at the Provincial Secretary's to try to get the license board appointed up there, but the Minister had not fallen into line with all the nominations he made. (Page 2,304.)

MR. GAMEY'S INDEPENDENT COURSE.

This interview as and when published was no surprise to several witnesses who thus refer to it, and Mr. Gamey.

After The Globe interview was published Mr. Gamey was asked by R. Thorburn whether he was not carrying out what he had been advocating through the country in his campaign and he answered: Yes, he was taking an independent stand, that he would support the Government in power in bringing forward any good measures in connection with the island and new Ontario. (Page 1,702.)

J. Scott says that during a speech he heard Mr. Gamey using phrases made familiar by The Globe interview, and that he thought his course in perfect accord with the statements he had made when the report came out in The Globe. (Pages 1,818 and 1,822.)

Charles White says he talked with Mr. Gamey after The Globe interview and he seemed like a double-minded man. (Page 1,826.)

See also evidence of Martin (page 1,960,) Bowen (page 2,279,) and Dr. Chamberlain (pages 2,243 and 2,245.)

To Dr. Struthers on the day The Globe interview was published and apropos of it, Gamey spoke and said he had followed the only course practically open to him. He was satisfied the Government was going to remain there, and it was necessary from his point of view that his riding should be represented on the Government side of the House. (Page 2,005.)

GAMEY'S DENIALS REGARDING MONEY.

To complete the evidence on the money part of the case, which we have sought to condense accurately, reference may now be made to the admissions of Mr. Gamey.

1. In October, 1902, The Algoma Conservator, in Mr. Gamey's name and with his sanction, contradicted the rumour that he had sold out for a considerable sum to Mr. Ross. (Exhibits, page 104.)

2. After The Globe interview in January, 1903, Mr. Gamey stated to Neil McGregor that he had never got a dollar or the promise of anything. (Page 1,726.)

3. And to W. J. Brooks, that he had got no money for agreeing to support the Government. (Page 1,-856.)

4. On 13th January Mr. Gamey denied indignantly to Dr. Arthur that he had been bought and said that he had never looked for anything, nor been promised anything. (Page 2,-302.)

5. And on 10th February, 1903, he writes to Mr. Bellwood, "The question of me getting a timber limit or any other concession is all pure nonsense, as time will prove to you." (Exhibits, page 165.)

6 and 7. In addition, there are the two written admissions, in the letter of 10th September, and repeated in letter of 27th October, "Not a hasty conclusion I have come to, it has been considered fully by me, without any other motive influencing me than the best interests of my constituency." (Exhibits pages 5 and 17.)

It is a wholesome, working rule, of common application in legal proceedings, to hold that a man who has affirmed a matter by writing under his hand freely and deliberately given shall not be held to disaffirm it by his own uncorroborated oath to the contrary. That is a rule needful for the protection of people in the intercourse of life, and in this inquiry not less worthy of being considered.

PROTEST AND PATRONAGE.

The commissioners now proceed to consider in the light of the evidence already summarized, and other evidence to be adverted to, the next division of this inquiry, that is, as to the protest and the patronage, and both may be treated together.

Eliminate the element of corrupt payment of money and consider whether, apart from that, any imputation can be cast upon the Provincial Secretary. The whole trend of the evidence (apart from the statement of Mr. Gamey) goes to show

D&A Corsets

Are the Correct thing.

To get that appetizing, brown appearance and outside crispyness on roasts of lamb, beef, etc.—to keep their goodness in them they must be basted. In the old style stove this necessitated reaching into the hot oven and moving the hot, heavy pan and holding it in the front of the oven while it was basted. A tedious performance with unsatisfactory results. The draw-out oven rack of the makes basting a simple and successful operation. Draw the handle in front of the oven forward and the rack brings the pan and its contents out of the oven where it may be thoroughly basted with the greatest ease. The Imperial Oxford Range lessens the labor of cooking and insures the most successful results.

that the matter of his supporting the Government in power was first broached by him, and stated as a settled thing on which he had long made up his mind. The letter of the 10th September, signed by Mr. Gamey, was a correct expression of his sentiments in writing, in accord with his many early utterances on the same line. It is in these words, dated, addressed and signed in his handwriting:—

"Toronto, Sept. 10, 1902.

"To Hon. G. W. Ross, M.P.P., Toronto:—

"Dear Sir, — I have recently been thinking over the political situation of the Province of Ontario, and I have seriously come to the conclusion that I would be best acting in the interests of my constituency and new Ontario, by giving my support to your administration.

"In view of this I have decided to write you frankly and to say that I have decided to give you my support during the present Parliament. I believe that you will be able to administer the affairs of the province during the present Parliament, and in the carrying out of your development policy there will be an impetus given to trade and to settlement in new Ontario that will absolutely justify the course that I have decided to pursue. Therefore upon all questions considered by you as a vote of want of confidence that arise in the House, you may rest assured that I will give your Administration my hearty co-operation, support and vote.

"The course that I have determined to take makes me practically a supporter of your Government, and all that I would ask as the representative of the riding which I have the honour to represent is that my recommendations receive reasonable and fair consideration at your hands, and that I will be considered and treated as if I had been elected to support your Government.

"This is not a hasty conclusion that I have come to. It has been considered fully by me without any other motive influencing me than the best interests of my constituency.

"Yours truly,

"R. R. GAMEY."

MR. GAMEY'S DELIBERATE ACT.

This letter was signed deliberately and without any attempt at alarming or coercing him. It was the expression of his own mind as communicated to the Minister.

He repeats the assertion of the same political attitude in the subsequent letter sent by him to the Premier of the date of October 27th, marked "Strictly private and confidential, which is in the same terms as the letter of the 10th of September, (with this variation, that the Premier is assured of his support: "If you have a reasonable majority when the House meets."

He felt free then to add to or modify what was expressed in the first letter, and if he had chosen he could have struck out the last part (as to his motive), but he leaves it in, and again asserts that there was no other motive than the best interests of his constituency, and therein effectively negatives any money consideration.

Then (if not on the 10th of September, when the first was signed) he had by his own confession received $3,000 as a bribe—but over his own signature that he denies. He gets his son to sign in his name the letter of the 27th of October in order to draw out a letter from the Premier because of the strange writing in the signature, but had he deleted the last words (so making it more comformable to what he says is the truth) the omission would have been more likely to draw forth some of the evidence from the Premier which Mr. McGregor and Mr. Gamey are said in the statement to be in search of. (See exhibits (ante) page 2.)

A TOKEN OF GOOD FAITH.

The letter of the 10th September was suggested by Mr. Aylesworth to be signed as a token of good faith on the part of Mr. Gamey. If Mr. Gamey, was really, as he stated, a supporter of the Government, he needed no one to inform him that the protest against him would not be pressed. That was common knowledge, not only as expressed to him by the man learned in law, Mr. Aylesworth (page 2,531), but by Mr. Conmee, his friend, and member of Parliament, and Mr. Jones, his uncle, and handler of "franchises," by Frank Sullivan, and adopted by Mr. Gamey himself. (Page 1,201.) Thus after the protest was spoken of in July, Mr. Gamey told Mr. Conmee that he had fully made up his mind to support the Government, and asked his opinion as to whether the protest would be pressed against him in view of that. Mr. Conmee said that he thought not. (Page 2,649.)

A like conversation took place with his uncle after the protest and Jones told him that it would not amount to much if he was going to support the Government. (Page 3,024.)

Mr. Gamey said to Sullivan, "What is the good of the Government pressing my protest when I am a supporter of them?" (Page 1,201.)

Mr. Gamey claimed to be a supporter, and was willing to acknowledge himself a supporter of the Government, with the expectation that he would not be molested in his seat.

"MADE A FOOL OF HIMSELF."

Having signed the letter of the 10th September, he retained it, and after wards, so far as appears, it was forwarded by Mr. Gamey to the Premier by post early in that month. It may be that, having failed to get any satisfaction in the first application to Mr. Grant, and in the second application to Mr. Aylesworth having been rebuffed, he uttered the words given by Frank Sullivan, "That he had made a fool of himself in Mr. Aylesworth's office," and then sent on the letter unconditionally to the Premier.

It is noteworthy that in the statement to the House the disposition of the protest is not even mentioned as a part of the "deal."

However, so far as the evidence goes, this protest shared the fate of many others by being set off against one on the other side, through the conferences of the solicitors, Mr. Bristol for the Conservatives, and Mr. Grant for the Liberals on the 19th and 26th September. (Page, 1,035.)

True it is that Mr. Conmee told Mr. Grant in June about it being said that Mr. Gamey was going to support the Government. (Pages 2,680 and 2,715.) But the protest was filed after this, and little, if any attention, paid to it.

LITTLE GROUND FOR PROTEST.

Mr. Grant says that the detailed report of the result of the investigations as to corrupt practices in Manitoulin received by him on the 16th of September, was discouraging to his hopes of success, so that he was willing to make adjustments to get rid of this protest. (Page 1,036.) Mr. Grant says he had not then heard of the Aylesworth letter of the 10th September, and had no communication with any member of the Government about this "settlement by saw-off." He says it was dealt with as others, and in no exceptional way. (Pages 1,063 to 1,065.) And herein he stands uncontradicted.

It may be noted that the Provincial Secretary says he did not know that the letter of the 10th September was signed by Mr. Gamey until he was so told on the 23rd October. (Page 2,623.)

However undesirable may be this method of suppressing election petitions, it is one in which both political parties concur, and it is not forbidden in terms by legislation, though it might well be, as election judges have at different times recommended.

But to return: There is nothing in the evidence to lead to the belief that Mr. Grant acted in these election protests any less fairly than Mr. Bristol, whose conduct has not been impugned. Nay, the statement read in the House itself, exculpates Mr. Grant, who is referred to as a lawyer "prominent in Liberal ranks," and it proceeds, "No question was made in his presence of supporting the Government, and no question of trial was spoken of; we had only a short talk, and he went out, and I have never heard of him in any way in the deal since." (Exhibits, page 62.)

WHO FIRST MADE APPROACHES.

Proceeding now to deal with the matter of patronage: Though it is mentioned in the statement, yet it is so in no emphatic manner, as compared with the alleged money payments, but to appreciate the value of what is mentioned in the statement as to patronage it is necessary to begin some time before the interview with the Sullivans and the 7th of August.

The statement to the House suggests, and the evidence of Mr. Gamey affirms, that he was first tempted to stray from the paths of party allegiance by the overtures of Frank Sullivan in August, 1902. He emphasizes the distinction which he says exists between his conduct prior to 7th August, and his subsequent conduct in these words: "Before the 7th of August I did not talk independence." (Pages 296 and 315.) "From the 7th of August until the statement in the House my position was to lead the Government and all the friends of the Government to believe that I would support the Government." (Page 458.)

Frank Sullivan's account is that Gamey approached him and between the 7th and 10th of August told him that he, Mr. Gamey, intended to support the Government; his constituency needed a man to support the Government and he said a number of Grits had voted for him. (Page 1,349.) He said he supposed if he did support the Government he would get the patronage, and Sullivan said he thought so. (Page 1,350.) And then Mr. Beatty's name was discussed. (Page 1,351.)

MR. GAMEY'S OWN IDEA.

Now the evidence shows by the testimony of several witnesses that what was communicated to Frank Sullivan had long been pondered over by Mr. Gamey. The thought of support, or independent support, to the Ross Government, was familiar to him, and had been expressed by him before August.

Statements made by Mr. Gamey to his uncle, D. A. Jones, are of importance, because the evidence of the latter was fairly given and should be depended on rather than Mr. Gamey's version, where the two are at variance. Mr. Jones swears as far back as 1898 Mr. Gamey told him that his friends wanted him to run for the Legislature, and if he did so he would run as an independent, so that if the Ross Government was returned to power he would give them independent support, similar to Beatty of Parry Sound." (Page 2,996.)

In June or July after the elections they met at the Walker House, and Mr. Gamey said that he did not propose to sit in opposition and get nothing for his constituents. He would give the Ross Government independent support, like Beatty of Parry-Sound. Mr. Campbell, the former member who was in opposition, was also named, and Mr Gamey said he would not do anything in that line. (Page 3,002.) Mr. Gamey assured Jones for the last three years that he would support the Ross Government, if they were in power. (Page 3,058.)

WHAT HE SAID TO OTHERS.

And again to Dr. Arthur of Sudbury, (with whom Mr. Gamey was in friendly and business relations), Mr. Gamey said on the 3rd July that he had no desire to sit four years in Opposition, to be a second A. F. Campbell, he had made up his mind to give Whitney the first vote, to demonstrate to him that he had not a majority, and after that he was going to support the Government. (Page 2,289.) But had found out in Toronto they were going to protest his election, and spoke about it, and then went on to say, "It would be easy for him to support the Government, because he had repeatedly said on the platform during his campaign that he would support the Government in power." (Pages 2,290 and 2,333.)

So to Mr. Conmee, M.P.P., with whom Mr. Gamey was on terms of intimacy, he spoke early in June (4th to 11th) (page 1,903,) and said he preferred the Ross policy in mining matters to that of the Opposition, and if it could be carried out he would give support to the Government. He repeatedly said that if the Ross Government would carry out their policy he would give them an independent support. (Page 2,647.) This was repeated in July (with reference to the protest,) when he said he had fully made up his mind to support the Government. (Page 2,648.)

Mr. Gamey in his last statement to the commissioners sought to cast discredit on Mr. Conmee, speaking of the protest in June. Mr. Conmee's evidence is that the conversation was at the end of June or the beginning of July, and Dr. Arthur's testimony shows that Mr. Gamey had knowledge before the 3rd of July that his election was to be protested.

HIS CAMPAIGN SPEECHES.

A great number of respectable witnesses were called to prove that Mr. Gamey in his campaign speeches took a position of uncompromising hostility to the Government in power and its policy, and said nothing about independent support to any measure that might be brought forward by the Reform party. The names of these are Mr. Hearst (2,775,) Dr. Fell (2,790,) J. W. Kinney (2, 799,) J. A. Kinney (2,806,) S. Ping (2,813,) A. A. Riley (2,820,) Thomas Ellis (2,862,) William Vincer (2,877,) W. H. Clark (2,869,) Geo. Strain (2,896,) Mr. Atkinson (2,957,) James Carter (2,902,) L. Galbraith (3,060,) R. J. Armstrong (2,909.)

On the other hand, a fewer number of witnesses, but apparently equally respectable, were called to prove that the following expressions were used by Mr. Gamey in his speeches and during his election campaign:—

1902, May; During the election campaign Mr. Gamey, in speeches, stated that no matter what Government was returned, he would support any good measures that were brought up for the benefit of his constituency; he was not going to the House with his hands tied behind his back like A. F. Campbell of Algoma. (Neil McDougall, S. C. Berry, Lehman; pages 1,714, 1,838 and 1,751.)

He at times appears to have spoken ambiguously, thus, saying he would support any Government in power, and then that he would support any good measures the Government would fetch up. (W. J. Berry and S. C. Berry, pages 1,735 and 1,758.)

WORKING FOR MANITOULIN.

During his canvass he spoke to individuals or groups, saying he was paying his own way, and that he was more of an independent than a party man. (L. McDougall and M. McDougall, pages 1,745 and 1, 748.)

That he was going to work for the people of Manitoulin; that his politics was the Manitoulin Island, and that Manitoulin was his politics. (Mr. Guigan, 2,361; D. Orr, J. Lehman and J. Scott, pages 1,757, 1,838, 2,361 and 1,817.)

D. Orr says he understood that if Mr. Gamey was elected he would be with whichever side was in power, and was independent. (Pages 1,759 and 1,761.)

Jesse Lehman puts it thus: "Mr. Gamey said if the Ross Government was sustained he would give sufficient support to get something for the constituency; he was not going to be against the Government." (Pages 1,841 and 1,843.)

To Bowser (page 1,843) Mr. Gamey said he would support any Government in power in the development of new Ontario.

And, finally, see the extract from Mr. Gamey's own report of the meeting of 17th February, 1903, when T. Robinson is reported to have said that Mr. Gamey had promised to take an independent stand during the campaign last spring—if the Government were sustained, and that he had received a great many Liberal votes on that account. (Exhibits page 107.)

SAID HE WOULD SUPPORT ROSS.

But in the consideration of the patronage aspect of the accusation, the question is not so much what was actually said by Mr. Gamey in his constituency, as what he afterwards represented that he had said during his candidature, and what he represented his position to be at the time he was elected, in his conversations with the Provincial Secretary and others. Many of these people to whom he spoke (e.g., those at Toronto) had no guage to apply as to his party standing and political freedom except his own assurances. For instance, 16th August, 1902, Mr. Gamey spoke to J. F. Boyd at the former's house, and said he had made up his mind to support the Ross Government, and that he did not think he could accomplish any good by pursuing an opposite course. He complained of his treatment by his own party, and that they did not help with his protest. He spoke of Beatty of Parry Sound as one who had taken a course similar to that which he proposed to adopt, who became independent, after being elected a Conservative. He claimed also to have polled many Liberal votes. (Pages 1,881 to 1,884.)

On the 1st of September Mr. Gamey and S. J. Martin roomed together at the Walker House, and Mr. Gamey then said he would have to support the Ross Government, as that Government gave legislation to suit Manitoulin. (Page 1,958.) He said it would not pay him to sit in Opposition, and that he would support the Ross Government. (Page 1,975.)

HIS WALKER HOUSE BEDFELLOWS.

THE AVERAGE BABY.

The average baby is a good baby—cheerful, smiling and bright. When he is cross and fretful it is because he is unwell, and he is taking the only means he has to let everybody know he does not feel right. When baby is cross, restless and sleepless, don't dose him with "soothing" stuffs, which always contain poisons. Baby's Own Tablets are what is needed to put the little one right. Give a cross baby an occasional Tablet and see how quickly he will be transformed into a bright, smiling, cooing, happy child. He will sleep well at night, and the mother will get her rest too. You have a guarantee that Baby's Own Tablets contain not one particle of opiates or harmful drugs. In all the minor ailments from birth up to ten or twelve years of age there is nothing to equal the Tablets. Mrs. W. B. Anderson, Goulais River, Ont., says, "My little boy was very cross and fretful and we got no rest with him until we began using Baby's Own Tablets. Since then baby rests well and he is now a fat, healthy boy."

You can get the Tablets from any druggist, or they will be sent by mail at 25 cents a box by writing direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont.

Succession Dues.

The province will probably benefit to the extent of half a million from the estate of the late Alexander Fraser, which is said to be worth $10,000,000. The province gets in succession dues about $15,000 from the Wood estate in London.

The Inspector of Factories has issued his report on child labor. He says violations of the law are frequently met with, owing to false birth certificates being furnished the employer, but he has arranged to have the employers witness personally the parents' or guardians' signature.

Mr. Richards, the Popular Train Dispatcher in the Canadian Pacific Railway Windsor Station, Montreal, is Saved From Death by

Dr. Pettingill's Kidney-Wort Tablets

After Ordinary Medical Treatment Had Failed to Cure a Long Standing Case of Kidney Disease, the Marvellous Tablets Accomplished a Happy and Wonderful Work.

It is a well-known fact that Kidney troubles are terribly prevalent in our midst, and cut down thousands every year.

The best efforts of physicians thus far have failed to stay the ravages of the deadly disease, and the medicines usually perscribed by practitioners only afford temporary relief. The strong and oft-repeated statement that "medical men utterly fail in the curing of Bright's disease and general kidney troubles," is true and incontrovertible.

Are you now experiencing any of the symptoms that mark the various forms of kidney disease? Are you sensible of a growing weakness, backache, fugitive and obscure pains in the lumbar region, drowsiness, emaciation, shortness of breath, dizzy feeling, disturbed sleep? Do you note brick dust deposit, or mucous or milky discharges and gravel in your urine? Has your skin a dry and harsh feeling, burning night? Have you unusual thirst and scanty flow of urine? Are you losing in weight and strength.

If you are experiencing any of the symptoms referred to, you cannot afford to hesitate another hour. Be assured of the fact that deadly kidney disease has laid its iron hand on you. To banish the awful disease you must begin with Dr. Pettingill's Kidney Wort Tablets, which immediately arrest the gradual weakening of the kidneys that goes on from day to day. It is the only medicine that heals and builds up the diseased tissues that now pass away, cell by cell in the urine. One bottle of these tablets will quickly banish every warning symptom of the dread disease, restore strength to all weak and distressed organs, and give you back your former health.

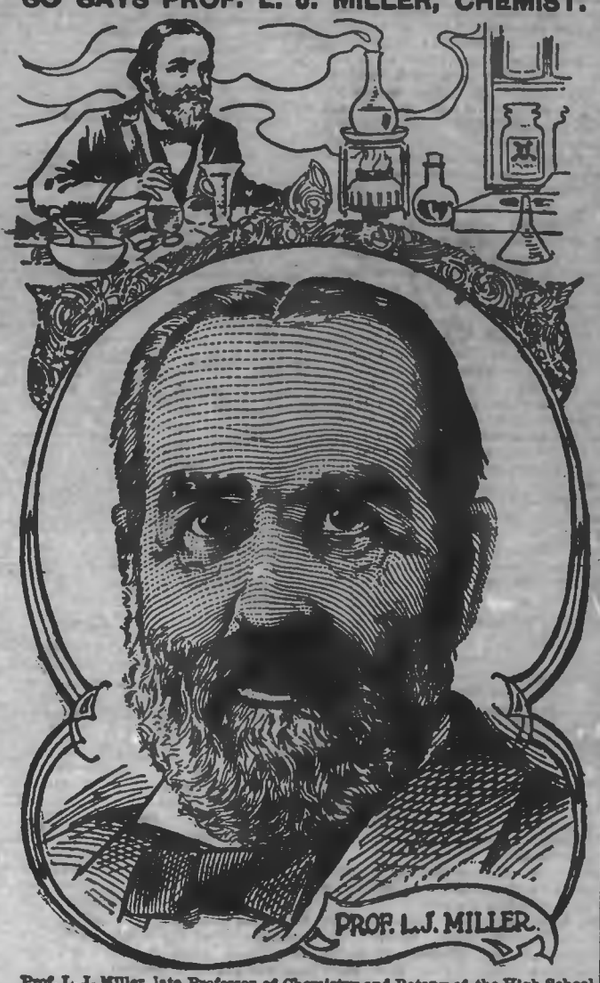
In this your time of peril and doubt, may Heaven direct you to follow the example of Mr. A. Richards, a Montreal official of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Mr. Richards who is better known to the thousands who travel than even the honoured president of our great transcontinental road, says:—

"For many years I have been a victim of kidney trouble which caused me great suffering and much mental anxiety. Ordinary medical treatment failed to cure the distressing and dangerous malady, and day and night I continued to suffer, and was almost convinced that my cure was impossible. In the midst of despondency and suffering I was advised by a friend to use Dr. Pettingill's Kidney-Wort Tablets, and I bless the day they were brought to my attention. I have used two bottles of these marvellous tablets and can truly say that I am perfectly cured. I find my kidneys have been healed, strengthened and stimulated to healthy action, and working in perfect harmony with other organs. I now feel as well as ever before, and owe my present healthy condition entirely to Kidney-Wort Tablets. I strongly recommend them to all who suffer from any form of kidney trouble."

CHEMICAL ANALYSIS

Reveals That "Pe-ru-na is Calculated to Tone up the System, Restore the Functions and Procure Health."

SO SAYS PROF. L. J. MILLER, CHEMIST.



Prof. L. J. Miller, late Professor of Chemistry and Botany of the High School of Ypsilanti, Mich., writes from 3327 N. Clark Street, Chicago, Ill., as follows:

"As several of my friends have spoken to me of the favorable results obtained through the use of Peruna, especially in cases of catarrh, I examined it most thoroughly to learn its contents.

"I found it composed of extracts of herbs and barks of most valuable medicinal qualities combined with other ingredients, delicately balanced, calculated to tone up the system, restore the functions and procure health.

"I consider Peruna one of the most skillfully and scientifically prepared medicines, which the public can use with safety and success."—PROF. L. J. MILLER.

"Builds up the System."

Hon. Joseph H. Ridgeway, Secretary of the American Anti-Treat Society, writes the following letter from the Grand Central Hotel, St. Paul, Minn.:

"It is with great pleasure that I endorse Peruna as an honest medicine, competent to do all it claims. I have used it several times and know of nothing that cures so completely, and at the same time builds up the system.

"I have recommended it to a number of my friends and always feel that I do them a service for I know how satisfactory the results invariably are. I only wish every family had a bottle—it would save much sickness and doctor bills."—Joseph H. Ridgeway.

"Feel Better Than for Five Years".

Mr. James B. Taylor, Roberts, Ind., writes:

"I am at the present time entirely well. I can eat anything I ever could. I took five bottles of Peruna, and feel better now than I have for five years. I have doctored with other doctors off and on for fifteen years, so I can recommend your medicine very highly for stomach troubles. I take great pleasure in thanking you for your free advice and Peruna."—James B. Taylor.

"I Enjoy my Meals as I Used to."

Mr. J. W. Pritchard, Wolf Lake, Ind., writes:

"I am pleased to say that I have been cured of catarrh of the stomach by Peruna. I could hardly eat anything that agreed with me. Before I would get half through my meal my stomach would fill with gas causing me much distress and unpleasant feelings for an hour or two after each meal. But, thanks to your Peruna, I am now completely cured, and can eat anything I want to without any of the distressing symptoms. I can now enjoy my meals as I used to do, and it is all due to Dr. Hartman and his wonderful medicine, Peruna.

"It has been one year since I was cured, and I am all O. K. yet, so I know I am cured."—J. W. Pritchard.

Dyspepsia is a very common phase of summer catarrh. A remedy that will cure catarrh of one location will cure it anywhere. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. That it is a prompt and permanent cure for catarrh of the stomach the above letters testify.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

OTONABEE MAN'S CATTLE GUARD.

P. G. Walker Invents a Guard Which Stood all Tests.

It is a remarkable fact that many of the inventions which have proven of the greatest public benefit and which have brought large returns to their fortunate owners have owed their origin to comparatively obscure men. An example of this is found in the inventor of the most successful cattle guard which has ever been put to a test. In the Township of Otonabee lives Mr. P. G. Walker to whom credit must be given for perfecting a device which will solve one of the greatest problems ever confronting railway companies, viz: some means of preventing the enormous slaughter of live stock along their lines. Mr. Walker's guard, the principle feature of which next to its effectiveness, is its simplicity, was given a thorough test at Indian River, and afterwards submitted along with hundreds of others to a special commission appointed by the government to report on the best cattle guard. Mr. Walker's invention, which stood all tests made upon it, even including the onslaughts of the famous white steer, and of which those who saw it in use expressed their opinion that it was by far the most successful one submitted for examination, is built in the form of a gate which lies flat upon the roadbed, between and on either side of the rails, but immediately a bovine, or in fact any animal attempts to cross it, the gate flies up and proves an effective barrier.

Mr. Walker has also patented other inventions which likewise have proven of great benefit and have been in successful operation for 20 years. These are a rack lifter and sleigh brake, and from them the inventor has reaped a substantial pecuniary reward.

WEDDING BELLS.

Pleasing Event of Interest to Peterborough Society.

At the Presbyterian Church, Smithville, Ont., on June 3rd at noon, a pretty wedding took place, when Miss Elizabeth Brant, daughter of J. B. Brant, Esq., was wedded to Rev. F. D. Roxbourgh, M.A. pastor of the church.

Rev. R. Martin, of Hamilton, a college, friend of the groom officiated.

The church was beautifully decorated with flowers.

During the playing of the wedding march, little flower girls appeared followed by the bridal party.

The bride wore a rich gown of white silk and carried white roses. The bridesmaids, Miss Eleanor Smith, of Hamilton, and Miss Louise Bridgeman, of Fort Erie, wore dainty cream dresses and carried pink roses.

The groom was attended by Mr. Gerald S. Roxbourgh, of Toronto, and Mr. A. J. Raddon, of Peterborough.

After the reception and wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Roxburgh left for a trip east.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Mr. Thomas Fraser, Norwood Division Court Clerk, is in town.

Mr. P. W. Reynolds, of Norwood, is in Peterborough on a business trip.

Miss Margaret Denne and Miss Lillian Rush are visiting in Millbrook.

Mr. T. J. Wallis, of Keene, was in town to-day and paid the Examiner office a call.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Williamson left this afternoon for Toronto, York, Brantford, Chatanqua.

Lady Ruby Elliott, who was in town yesterday only recently graduated from the Toronto College of Music.

Miss Jennie Hall and Miss Lena Caswell, of Orillia, are the guests of Miss Florence Hall, Simcoe street.

Lieut. Shaw, of the Kingston Military College, was in town yesterday and took part in the military section of Lord and Lady Minto's welcome.

ELECTED OFFICERS.

Sessions of Bay of Quinte Conference Ministers and Laymen.

The Bay of Quinte Conference of Ministers and Laymen met Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. The Rev. Dr. Raynor addressed the conference, stating that he had been greatly aided by the conference all through the year. Rev. T. J. Edmison, B.A., B.D., was elected president. Rev. Dr. Dyer, and Rev. J. P. Wilson, B.A., had each a large nomination for the office. Rev. D. Balfour was elected secretary, Rev. N. D. Drew and Mr. S. W. Clarke, assistants. Rev. H. V. Mounteer was made journal secretary, and Rev. W. B. Tucker, B.D., to take charge of statistics. Rev. J. C. Seyman was reported as having died during the year.

The laymen met separately in the afternoon and elected the following reserve delegates to the General Conference:—His Honour Judge Dean, Messrs. J. S. Fraser and John Hull.

—The first issue of a new publication "Resources", published in Montreal, has been received at this office. As it's name indicates, it deals with the development of the resources of Canada, and as such, is a very attractive and well gotten up journal.

—At the Police Court this morning before Police Magistrate Dumble the case against both Landlord and tenant for not keeping the sewer of the house in a sanitary condition, was disposed of. The Landlord was fined $3.80. $5.70 while the tenant was fined

In response to the Dominion Department of Agriculture's request for information in reference to the farm labour question, replies were received from 41 different places in Ontario, and in every case a great scarcity of help was reported. While a few years ago $16 per month with board was considered a fair wage, labourers are now receiving as high as $30.

—The 57th Regimental Band which the council has engaged to give a weekly concert in one of the town parks were prepared last night to begin the season's series of musical entertainments by a concert in Victoria Park, but those who went expecting to hear the band were disappointed. The electric lights were out of business, and, in consequence the programme had to be cancelled.

—Messrs. Pearson and Hull shipped a carload of horses to Montreal yesterday, among which was a particularly fine Clydsdale purchased from Mr. Dickson, of Plainsville, weighing 1,950 lbs, and was only 5 years old. A handsome price was paid for it. These buyers are leaving considerable money with Peterborough county farmers. Mr. Hull states they have bought 41 horses in 4 days.

—A couple of runaway horses caused considerable excitement outside the Post office and along Water street this morning. A horse and rig was standing in the Crown Inn yard when the animal bolted out. The wheel of the rig caught the gate post and the vehicle upset breaking two wheels and the shafts. The animal, followed by another which was standing by, bolted down Water street. They were caught some distance down the road.

—A short time ago an examination was made by the Ottawa Board of Trade into the resources of the region tributary to Ottawa. Estimates were obtained from surveyors, engineers, mill owners and others possessing full knowledge. It was found that within a radius of 50 miles there was an available power of water equal to nearly 900,000 horse power. This power is all within such easy distance of the Federal Capital that it can be centred in Ottawa over a comparatively small number of miles of wire with a loss of only 8 to 10 per cent. in efficiency.

RACES AT THE DRIVING PARK

A Very Successful Programme Last Evening.

There was a large attendance at the driving Park last evening to witness the races, which were a complete success. The grand stand was occupied by a large number of persons who seemed very pleased with the evening's programme of sport. The first event was a horse race, which resulted as follows:

Little Diamond	2	1	1
Little Fred	1	2	2
Keepbell	3	3	3
Wilfred	4	4	x

Time of heats — 1.12, 1.13, 1.15. The race was over a half mile track.

The next race was the 220 yards race, and resulted as follows:—

1. D. Belland.
2. J. Guerin.
3. Mr. Curran.

The third event of the evening was a half mile race, which resulted as follows:—

1. D. Belland.
2. J. Guerin.
3. Gauthier.

This event was followed by a keenly contested tug of war between the Quakers—not lady operators—of the Bell Telephone Co.. It was evident at first glance that oat meal was very nutritious as the Quakers were much the heavier of the two teams, and won after two successive tugs.

There was some disappointment because the 100 yards flat men's race did not come off. It is understood that men have been practising for this race, for which a very handsome prize was offered.

It is important to again remark on the complete success of the evening's programme, for which the Turf Club deserve due praise.

ROSES FOR MR. STRATTON.

Members of Branch of His Staff Express Loyalty to Their Chief.

The Toronto Globe says:—"The Hon. J. R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary, has accepted an invitation to be present at the picnic of Rev. Father Keboe, of Kenilworth, at Kenilworth Village, Wellington County, on Thursday, 25th June. On Friday afternoon, on his return from luncheon, Mr. Stratton was delightfully surprised to find upon his desk a magnificent mass of roses, literally a tree of American Beauty roses, a yard at least in height, and of proportionate circumference. An accompanying card indicated that this beautiful floral gift was sent by the staff of one of the branches of his department as a tangible expression of congratulation, and of esteem and loyalty to their chief. Mr. Stratton has had many evidences of the sympathy of his friends in all parts of the Province and Dominion, and even from across the seas, with the vindication brought by the report of the commission, but few have been so valued by him as the tree of roses coming from those whose daily contact in personal and official relations with their chief warranted so complimentary and to the recipient so agreeable a form of expression.

SEPARATING THE STORE.

Henry & Co's store is open again for business. Having been closed for a few days in consequence of changes entailed in arranging for a separation of the Grocery and Liquor departments. Complete changes will be effected in a few days. Full stocks of new groceries and liquors are being received, and the firm is now prepared to supply its customers and the public better than ever. Same premises, opposite the Opera House, George street.

RICHARD HALL AND SON TO REMOVE.

Splendid New Premises on George Street now in Preparation for the Firm.

It is already generally known in town that Messrs. Richard Hall & Son. will remove from their present premises on Simcoe street to occupy a still more central position on George street. The two stores south of the Kingan Hardware Company, viz., Nos. 355 and 357—the one formerly occupied by Bradley & Co., and the other now occupied by E. F. Mason & Co.—have been leased for a term of years. Workmen have been engaged for some time in making the changes required for Messrs. Hall & Son, and it is expected that these premises will be ready for them by the first of August. By this move greater accommodation as well as a more eligible location, according to the present trend of trade, will be secured. The two stores will give them a frontage on George street of 60 feet and a depth of 95 feet, covering three stories and basement, affording increased area and floor space for their heavy range of stocks. The remodelled buildings are to be thoroughly modern and the members of the firm are generally congratulated on their prospect of having one of the handsomest dry goods stores in the county.

In anticipation of their removal, Messrs. Hall & Son are preparing for a great reduction sale on an extensive scale, particulars of which is promised to appear in the Examiner on Tuesday next.

THE CHURCHES.

ALL SAINT'S CHURCH.

There will be a celebration of Holy Communion at 8.30 a.m. Rev. W. L. Armitage will preach both morning and evening, his subjects being "Prayer," and "Pure Religion," respectively.

ST. LUKE'S.

The Holy Communion will be administered to-morrow at 8 a.m., and not, as announced, at 11 a.m.

The Sunday school and Mr. J. J. Turner's Bible class will begin to-morrow at 10 a.m., and not at 3 p.m.

Rev. J. C. Davidson will preach at the morning service and the Rector at the evening service.

PARK STREET BAPTIST.

Rev. A. H. Brace of Dunnville, who has received and accepted a hearty and unanimous invitation to become the pastor of the Park street Baptist church, will occupy the pulpit to-morrow for the first time since accepting the call. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

MURRAY STREET BAPTIST.

In Murray Street Baptist Church Rev. Jas. Bastow will preach at the morning service on Gethsemane and administer the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. The hand of fellowship will be given to a number of new members.

Rally Day services will be conducted in the Sunday-School and all teachers and scholars are asked to make a special effort to be present.

In the evening the pastor will exchange pulpits with Rev. J. A. Wilson, of St. Paul's. All are cordially invited.

THE MAYOR IS PLEASED.

Efforts of Citizens to Beautify the Town Were Appreciated.

A pleasant echo to the visit of the Vice-Regal party is found in the following letter from Mayor Roger. It must be a source of great satisfaction to the citizens to know that the arrangements made by the town officials and other gentlemen associated with the body for the entertainment of Their Excellencies, were of such a perfect character as to call forth from them expressions of appreciation, and even stating that in no place had their visit been as pleasant by reason of the perfect arrangements for their entertainment and personal comfort. Mayor Roger in his modesty, omitted reference to Their Excellencies comments but the Examiner feels it is but justice that mention should be made of them, reflecting, as they do, great credit upon the citizens and their representatives. To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—I wish to thank the citizens of Peterborough for the support given to the council in their efforts to tender a fitting reception to the Governor-General and his party yesterday.

The town did itself credit and showed to good advantage. The taste displayed in the decorations of private homes, the general appearance of solidity and comfort of the homes, the tree-lined streets, etc., were the subject of frequent remarks by Their Excellencies, while both exclaimed with pleasure at the sight of the gay appearance and handsome stores of George street. Their Excellencies were also much impressed with the lift-lock, examined the same in considerable detail under the guidance of the engineers, Mr. R. B. Rogers and Mr. Francis. I think that the general impression upon Their Excellencies was good and that the size of our town, and the importance of its industries was somewhat of a surprise to them.

The community is also, I feel, indebted to the military for the life and colour which they lent to the scene by their creditable display, and to the various committee-men who contributed to make the occasion a success.

Yours truly,
G. M. ROGER,
Mayor.

Successful Reconciliation.

Cape Town, June 6.—The Governor of Cape Colony, Sir Walter Hely-Hutchinson, opened Parliament yesterday. In his speech he said he hoped shortly to be able to relax the remaining restrictions on liberty, in consequence of the success which had attended the policy of peace and reconciliation. All the races were settling down to ordinary life. With the continuance of the present buoyancy of the revenue necessary, increased expenditure would not involve additional taxation.

Malt Breakfast Food quickly builds up flesh, muscle, tissue and bone; it is the food par excellence for promoting good digestion. It is the most delicious and satisfying of all breakfast foods, and the weakest stomach easily appropriates every particle. Buy a package from your Grocer. Once tried, you will always want it.

HIS LIFE FOR HIS WIFE.

Captain Bean of the Avery Crushed While Trying to Save Her.

Saint Joseph, Mich., June 6.—The schooner H. M. Avery was run down at her dock by the steamer Puritan here yesterday. While trying to save his wife, Capt. John D. Bean of the schooner was crushed to death. Capt. Bean was 50 years old and known all over the lakes as Indian Bill, a sobriquet he acquired in his younger days. Mrs. Bean is nearly insane from grief and fright.

Two Arrests at Woodstock.

Woodstock, June 6.—Two men, one colored and the other white, named Porter and Ley, were arrested here on Tuesday on a charge of vagrancy and the police propose to send their descriptions to the Provincial authorities, believing that possibly they might be the parties wanted at Collingwood in connection with the Whalen murder case. The colored man, Porter, in conversation with the jailer, stated that he lived in Collingwood till a year ago, and knows the father of Glory Whalen well. They claim that they came here from London. The Magistrate committed the two of them to the Central Prison for four months.

Hurled to Her Death.

Hamilton, June 6.—Mrs. Irwin, an aged patient at the Hamilton Asylum for the Insane, was struck by an elevator yesterday morning, and hurled down the shaft to her death. It is a double elevator, and the shafts are guarded by a bar. Mrs. Irwin was leaning over the bar, and was struck by the descending car. She fell from the second storey to the bottom of the shaft, 25 feet below. Her skull was fractured. Her home is in Muskoka. She has been in the asylum several years. An inquest was opened.

U.S. Nervous About Canada.

Detroit, June 6.—A Washington special says: Senator Fairbanks has been asked to come to Washington as soon as possible to attend a conference of the Secretary of State and President Roosevelt, to discuss the effects of Great Britain's proposed tariff policy on Canadian-American commercial relations, particularly it is desired to talk over the prospects of a reciprocity treaty with Canada, and a meeting of the Joint High Commission.

Movements of Monarchs.

London, June 6.—It is officially announced that King Edward and Queen Alexandra will arrive in Dublin July 21 on their visit to Ireland.

The German Emperor and the Czar of Russia will visit Vienna simultaneously at the beginning of September. The Czar will then continue his journey to Rome by way of Trieste.

Fire at Stratford.

Stratford, June 6.—Fire broke out between 12 and 1 o'clock yesterday morning in the warehouse occupied by the Massey-Harris Company agency. The building was totally destroyed. A stock of new and second-hand implements was badly damaged, as well as a supply of Gray & Sons' buggies. Loss probably $2,000.

Big Fire in Toronto.

Toronto, June 6.—This morning between one and two Reid & Brown's foundry was completely destroyed by fire, as was the Esplanade Foundry Co.'s premises. The scale factory of C. Wilson & Son was gutted to the extent of $10,000 damage. Schooners in the slip were towed out before catching fire.

The handicap medal round which was played after tea was won by Miss Jessie Fairweather.

The regular weekly match and picnic tea will be held next Wednesday the 10th.

LACROSSE.

Boyce Hutton has refused to play with the Caps. What's behind that? He may be found wearing the uniform of a club close to Toronto.

Thomas Murray, late of the Shamrock lacrosse team, and formerly a member of the Torontos, died Thursday night, the result of injuries received in a fall from a balcony a few days ago.

FOOTBALL.

At Nicholls Oval this evening the Y.M.C.A. II. and Quakers will play at 6.15 lining up:—Quakers.—Goal, T. Grant; back, Morris, Martin, Quarin; half back, W. Paddon, W. Gaguon, W. McAuliffe; centre, F. Querin; right wing, W. Perdue, J. Sullivan; left wing, Welsh, J. Querin. The Y.M.C.A. will place the same team in the field as that which won from the Auburns last Thursday night.

The S.O.E. intend putting a team in the field which will be hard to beat.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The annual tournament of the Canada Trap Shooting and Game Protecting Association will be held in Toronto on August 12th, 13th, 14th and 15th and bids fair to rival in point of attendance the recent "Grand American Handicap" shoot at Kansas City, Mo. A large number of clubs and several individuals have already paid their affiliation fee. The club fee is $5.00, individual $1.00, and must be in the hands of Mr. A. W. Throop, Secretary-Treasurer, Ottawa, Ont., not later than June 15th. The tournament is open to Canadian amateures only, and only the members of the clubs and individuals who affiliate will be eligible to compete. The President of the Association, Mr. Thomas A. Duff, of Toronto, is hard at work securing valuable trophies for competition and hopes to outdo his efforts of last year.

The "Grand Canadian Handicap" representing the individual championship, and "Mail Trophy", representing the five men team championship, will be decided at this meeting besides many other interesting individual and team events. Valuable assistance in game and fish protection has also been rendered to the Provincial Governments. Every gun and game club in Canada should affiliate.

It Is "Toronto Slim."

Rochester, N.Y., June 6.—Detective John C. Hayden left last evening for Detroit to bring back Joseph Pinkey, arrested in that city. Pinkey is supposed to be the murderer of George Hickey in this city August 19 last. The alleged murderer was a man said to be "Toronto Slim."

Last Wanstead Patient.

London, June 6.—John Bird of Chicago, who was injured in the Wanstead wreck, left for Chicago yesterday, fully recovered from the effects of his wounds. He was the last Wanstead patient at the hospital.

Pains in the Back Hips and Spine.

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

When you read such letters as the following from well-known and highly respected people in all parts of the country, you need no longer wonder why the sale of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills is so far in advance of any similar remedy. When the people find out the virtue of this great medicine they tell their neighbours about it, and so the good news spreads.

Mr. Jas. Clark, Consecon, Prince Edward county, Ont., states: "Eleven years ago I was taken with pains in my back, settling in my hips and extending up my spine. The pain was very severe and at times almost unendurable, and many days I was not able to do an hour's work. My weight was reduced from 190 to 160 pounds, and although I had consulted many first class physicians and tried several advertised remedies I could get no relief.

"At this time my father in law told me to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and said he knew they would cure me. I secured a box and great was my surprise when I began to feel better after using only the one box. I had taken about four boxes which made me a sound man, and I also regained my usual weight, 190 pounds. I cannot say too much in favour of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which have done so much for me. I have recommended them to a number of my friends and have never met with one case where they did not meet with good success. My daughter, Mrs. Chas. Phillips, has also been cured of a severe stomach trouble by the use of these pills."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, 5 foxes for $1. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author are on every box.

NEW POWER COMPANY IN WESTERN ONTARIO.

Catarac Power Co. to Supply Hamilton With Cheap Power.

This is the day of large things; large undertakings; followed by success or failure in proportionate magnitude. A scheme which gives promise of becoming of more than ordinary benefit to the industrial life of a part of the Province is the Catarac Power Company, of which Hon. J. M. Gibson is the leading spirit. Plans which contemplate an entry into the power field on a gigantic scale, are being prepared. The Company is at present developing 9,500 horse-power at its power-house in the valley of Twelve-mile Creek, about thirty miles from Hamilton, and is supplying the power for the Street Railway propulsion and street lighting in that city. The nature of the water power property is such that it lends itself readily to a further development and it is expected that in about a year the Company will be transmitting about 50,000 horse-power to Hamilton, most of which has been contracted for. The new Deering Works will take a considerable quantity of it at a price only about half the cost of energy produced by steam.

The revenue to the province from this source will be about $30,000 per year so that the wisdom of the Ontario Government in requiring all Power Companies to contribute to the public treasury in return for the privilege of developing and selling power derived from Niagara and Lake Erie is thus being plainly exemplified.

WOMAN'S RESIDENCE

Government Will Lands to Defray Cost of Erection.

HELP FOR THE UNIVERSITY.

Hon. Mr. Harcourt Gives Notice of a Bill For This Purpose—A Short Sitting of the Legislature—Aid Extended to Charities—Gamey Debate Next Week — Hon. Mr. Stratton Congratulated.

Toronto, June 6.—It is unlikely that the Legislature will reach the debate on the Gamey report before Tuesday. There is an understanding that the ordinary business of the House is to be put forward as far as possible on Monday, and the paper cleared off before any extraneous matters is allowed to come in.

The Woman's Residence.

The little amount of business to be transacted by the Legislature yesterday was attended to in about half an hour. The announcement of the Government's intention to assist in the erection of a woman's residence for the University of Toronto was the only important feature of the sitting.

Hon. R. Harcourt gave notice of a bill to set aside certain lands for university purposes. These lands are not to be used for general university purposes, but will be ear-marked for meeting the cost of erecting a woman's residence. It is the intention to set aside enough land to pay for the erection of the building, so that the funds already raised by the Woman's Residence Society can be devoted to furnishing, etc. The location of the land and its extent have not yet been decided upon, but it is the intention that it shall be chosen with a view to making the gift immediately realizable.

Replying to Mr. Preston (Durham) Hon. E. J. Davis furnished dates showing when Samuel Johnston was in the employ of the Government at Webbwood as a culler.

Grants to Hospitals.

Mr. Stratton moved the ratification of Orders-in-Council placing the following institutions on the list of those receiving provincial aid: Royal Alexandra Hospital, Fergus; Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay; Cottage Hospital, Renfrew; Loyal True Blue Orphanage, Picton; County of Lanark House of Refuge, County of Ontario House of Refuge.

Third Readings: To amend the Land Titles Act (Gibson); respecting the Town of East Toronto (Richardson); respecting the township of Machar (Carr); to confirm bylaw 713 of the Township of Bertie (Gross).

Second readings: To amend the Separate Schools Act (Harcourt); the Municipal Amendment Act, 1903 (Davis).

Mr. Gibson introduced a bill to amend the Assessment Act.

On the motion to adjourn yesterday Mr. Whitney asked if it was the intention of the Government to have the evidence, and the addresses of counsel in the Gamey investigation printed.

The Premier replied that if there was going to be a lengthy debate on the report it might be well to have the evidence printed. The cost was the only objection. He promised, however, that the matter would be considered.

The subject then dropped.

Mr. Stratton Congratulated.

The Hon. J. R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary, has accepted an invitation to be present at the picnic of Rev. Father Kehoe, of Kenilworth, at Kenilworth Village, Wellington County, on Thursday, 25th June. On Friday afternoon, on his return from luncheon, Mr. Stratton was delightfully surprised to find upon his desk a magnificent mass of roses, literally a tree of American Beauty roses, a yard at least in height, and of proportionate circumference. An accompanying card indicated that this beautiful floral gift was sent by the staff of one of the branches of his department as a tangible expression of congratulation, and of esteem and loyalty to their chief. Mr. Stratton has had many evidences of the sympathy of his friends in all parts of the Province and Dominion, and even from across the seas, with the vindication brought by the report of the commission, but few have been so valued by him as the tree of roses coming from those whose daily contact in personal and official relations with their chief warranted so complimentary and to the recipient so agreeable a form of expression.

Taylor is Another Deal.

Before the Public Accounts Committee of the Legislature yesterday morning the suspended clerk, Theodore C. Taylor, was the chief witness. His accounts with the savings department of the Dominion Bank were examined, and Mr. J. W. St. John admitted that the Gamey $3,000 had not come from this source. Taylor admitted that he and Capt. Sullivan had each got $1,900 out of a transaction by which Chew Bros. sold a limit in Caprool Township to J. W. Munro in 1901. He had never received any money for information concerning limits, and none of his money had ever gone to party funds. Before adjournment Col. Matheson called the Ministers' attention to Taylor's conduct, and advised his arrest. Hon. E. J. Davis said the case was under consideration.

When Non-Condition of Matter Will Again Prevail.

"MODERN VIEWS ON MATTER"

New Theory Advanced by Sir William Crookes—Elements Resolvable Into a Single Form of Energy—Problems Interesting to Scientists the World Over Discussed at Chemical Congress at Berlin.

Berlin, June 6.—Professor Sir William Crookes, before the International Chemical Congress yesterday, dwelt with the possibility of reducing all the elements of matter to one and to ultimately find them resolvable into a single form of energy. The subject was "Modern views on matters — the realization of a dream." Sir William cited the utterances of Sir Humphrey Davy and Faraday as anticipating the possibility of reducing the elements to simpler bases, and sketched the significance of the Roentgen Rays and Bequerel Rays, and the experiments of Currie and others, and said:

"All these observations find internal connection in the discovery of radium, which is probably the basis of the coarser chemical elements here. Probably masses of molecules dissolve themselves into the other waves of the universe, or into electrical energy. Thus, we stand on the border line where matter and force pass into each other. In this borderland lie the greatest scientific problems of the future. Here lie the final realities, wide-reaching and marvellous. The nineteenth century saw the birth of new views regarding the nature of atoms, electricity and ether. While our views about the composition of matter are generally satisfactory to-day, will that be the case at the end of the twentieth century? Do we not again see that our investigations have only a temporary value?

"Will we be content to see the matter dissolving into a multitude of revolving electrodes? Such a mysterious dissolution of atoms appears to be universal. It occurs when a piece of glass is rubbed with silk. It is present in sunshine, in a rain drop, in lightning, in a flame, in a waterfall and in the roaring sea. Although the whole range of human experience is too short to form a parallel, whereby we can fortell the disappearance of matter, nevertheless it is possible that formless nebulae will again prevail when the hour glas of eternity has run out."

WELL EARNED POPULARITY.

J. J. Burns Says Dodd's Kidney Pills Saved His Life.

Could Scarcely Sit, Sleep or Walk when he Started to Use Them—His Trouble Gone for Good.

Darnley, P.E.I., June 1.—(Special.)—The popularity of Dodd's Kidney Pills in Prince Edward Island has been earned by cures complete and permanent. John J. Burns, lot 18, Darnley, is one of the cured, and his story is a splendid example of the work Dodd's Kidney Pills are doing.

"For over eight years," says Mr. Burns, "I suffered from what the doctors pronounced Chronic Inflammation of the Loins and Kidneys. In the year 1896 it got so bad that I could scarcely walk, sit or sleep, I was about to give up when an advertisement led me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and they did a wonderful work for me.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills saved my life and though years have elapsed since my cure I have had no trouble since I used them.

"I belong to the I.O.F. and any member can vouch for my condition and that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me."

Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to cure any form of Kidney Disease once and for all.

TORONTO MAN KILLED.

Oldest Employe of Oak Hall Found Dead on the Track.

Toronto, June 6.—The deady body of Richard G. Rutherford, one of the oldest employes of Oak Hall, was found yesterday afternoon beside the railway tracks opposite High Park. The head was severed from the body, and it was apparent that Mr. Rutherford had been killed by a passing train. Mr. Rutherford probably met his death on Thursday night. He left Oak Hall about 6 o'clock that evening, but did not go to his house at 29 Borden street. He was not seen again. Deceased, who was about 60 years of age, had been worrying a great deal recently and for some time had suffered from loss of sleep. He spent the past two summers at the Humber and intended to move out there again on June 15. It is supposed he was killed while on his way out to the house. Deceased leaves a widow and one son. He was a member of Guelph Lodge of the I.O.O.F.

Gained Forty Pounds in Thirty Days.

For several months our younger brother had been troubled with indigestion. He tried several remedies but got no benefit from them. Relatives Can't Locate Him.

Georgetown, June 6.—The utter lack of clue as to the whereabouts of ex-Postmaster Henderson is causing great anxiety to relatives. His father and brother went to Buffalo and advertised, employed the services of a detective bureau and consulted with New York, but without avail, and are at a loss to account for so complete a disappearance.

Students Drown Together.

Chicago, June 6.—Jesse Miller, a medical student at the University of Chicago, and Miss Frances E. Moore, a "co-ed" in the same institution, drowned together yesterday morning beneath the hull of the Columbus caravel in Jackson Park. Whether the affair is double suicide or an accident, the police are unable to determine.

P.O. Official Indicted.

Washington, June 6.— The Grand Jury yesterday reported an indictment against August W. Machen, formerly superintendent of the Free Delivery Service of the United States Postoffice Department, who was arrested several days ago, charged with sharing profits on Government contracts for letter box fasteners.

One Million Chinese Starving.

Hong Kong, June 6.—The estimate of Governor Wong of Kwang Si Province, that over one million natives are starving in the territory in his jurisdiction, is pronounced here to be approximately correct. The distress in certain districts is most acute. Children and women are freely offered for sale.

Women Watch Lynching.

Greenville, Miss., June 6.—John Dennis, a negro, was lynched here at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon by a mob of 200 men. The negro had attempted a criminal assault. Dennis was taken to the telephone exchange and hanged on the cross-arm of a telephone pole. Many women witnessed the lynching.

Break in Madison Levee.

St. Louis, Mo., June 6.—A break has occurred in the Madison levee, about a mile north of the Merchant's bridge, endangering the lives and property of several thousand residents of Granite City. Five hundred men have been put at work to stop the break.

The Glow of Health.

When the blood is rich and pure there is a healthful glow to the complexion, which speaks of the vigour and vitality of the system. There is no more certain way for pale weak people to attain the glow of health than by the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great food cure, which forms new, rich, red blood and creates new nerve force.

FRANK'S FIRE NIAGARA.

Began in Lumber Piles—Rock Still Falls From Turtle Peak.

Frank, N.W.T., June 6.—For the past few days a fierce fire has been sweeping up the west slope of the Livingstone range of mountains. It began in the lumber piles of an old saw mill site between Frank and Grassy Mountain. It threatened what is known as the French Camp, where the Lillie collieries are situated. Fortunately, the day was calm, but when an occasional breeze came the fire line swept through the forest with a roar like Niagara.

The falls of rock from the south peak of Turtle Mountain have been greater and more constant during this past week than at any time since the big slide. Tens of thousands of tons fall every day. The peak changes shape noticeably day by day. This peak is remote from the town, and whether it falls piecemeal or all at once will not likely do much damage.

Too Great a Risk.

In almost every neighbourhood someone has died from an attack of colic or cholera morbus, often before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. A reliable remedy for these diseases should be kept at hand. The risk is too great for anyone to take. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has undoubtedly saved the lives of more people and relieved more pain and suffering than any other medicine in use. It can always be depended upon. For sale by all druggists.

Church Dynamited.

Rochester, Minn., June 6.—The Baptist Church in Byron was blown up by dynamite yesterday. There has been a bitter feeling there between the churches ever since the Baptist minister resigned and joined the Methodist Church. No arrests have been made.

Sick Headache

If troubled with this distressing ailment, watch for the first indication of an attack; as soon as you feel it coming on take three of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the attack may be warded off.

Mr. Geo. E. Wright, of New London, New York, says: "For several years my wife was troubled with what physicians called sick headache of a very severe character. She doctored with several eminent physicians and at a great expense, only to grow worse until she was unable to do any kind of work. About a year ago she began taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and today weighs more than she ever did before and is real well." He has since recommended these Tablets to several of his neighbors, who are enthusiastic in their praise of the remedy. Sold by druggists at 25c. per box.

A LIBERAL CAUCUS.

Commons Members Meet and Consider Grand Trunk Pacific.

C. N. R. BONDS GUARANTEED.

Government's Policy For Aiding the Canadian Northern Railway — The Government in Return Secures Control of Rates and a Provision Against Leasing or Selling the Lines.

Ottawa, June 6.—A Ministerial caucus was held yesterday morning, but there was a small attendance and comparatively little interest was displayed in the proceedings. Senator W. C. Edwards' retirement from the position of Chairman was announced, and Mr. Archie Campbell was appointed in his place.

Members were invited to declare themselves on the subject of railway transportation and the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme. The Maritime Province members declared for a Government-owned line. The few Ontario members who spoke supported the Grand Trunk Pacific, aided by a Government guarantee. The position of the western members was the necessity of getting the shortest possible outlet to the seaboard for western grain. There appeared to be great diversity of opinion. The meeting adjourned at 1 o'clock after many members had spoken.

There was no announcement of Government policy, the Administration not having yet reached any definite decision.

THE CANADIAN NORTHERN.

Three Per Cent. Fifty Year Bonds to Be Guaranteed.

Ottawa, June 6.—Subsidy resolutions were brought down in the House yesterday afternoon, granting to the Canadian Northern Railway a guarantee of the principal and the interest of the first mortgage bonds, debentures and other securities of the company, to the extent of $13,000 per mile on 720 miles of railway, the bonds to be at the rate of 3 per cent., payable half-yearly, and the principal to be paid in fifty years.

This guarantee applies to the extension of the line of the Canadian Northern from Grand View, the point where what is known as the Gilbert Plains branch of the railway ends, to a point at or near Edmonton, a distance of about 620 miles, and also to the Prince Albert branch of the railway, from a point 100 miles east of Prince Albert, a distance of about 100 miles.

The mortgage is to form a charge upon all the lines of the railway in operation and property franchises of the company. It is to be a first charge only to the extent of $10,000 per mile, but to rank after a first charge for the remainder.

The Governor-in-Council, or any authority created by Parliament for these purposes, may also grant running powers over the line to other companies upon equitable terms. The Canadian Northern may not lease or sell the lines.

The rates and tolls to be charged for freight and passengers upon the lines of railway aided and upon the lines owned by the Canadian Northern, shall be under the control of the Governor-in-Council or such authority as is constituted under the act.

Twenty-Five Clauses Passed.

Twenty-five clauses of Mr. Blair's railway commission bill were passed by the House yesterday afternoon, making unimportant amendments.

It will take two or three days to put the bill through. Scrutiny of these clauses developed but little argument. The time was taken up in putting finishing touches on clauses in the committee stage. The House is most leisurely in its methods, and unless it acquires a livelier gait August will find Parliament still in session.

In the evening the estimates of the Marine and Fisheries Department were taken up. Mr. Prefontaine energetically defended the St. Lawrence route and put the blame for disaster on the pilots and captains.

May Invite Lloyds.

Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick agreed with the Minister of Marine and Fisheries that accidents in the river and the gulf are the work of inexperienced and inefficient masters, not to any defects in the route. Lines employing good crews went year after year without accidents. Mr. Fitzpatrick suggested that the Government invite Lloyds to send out a competent agent at the expense of Canada, go over the whole St. Lawrence route and make recommendations. The representative would at the same time see the work that is being done to improve the route.

The question of control of river pilots was also discussed. Both sides of the House agreed that the pilots should be under the control of the Government, instead of subject to the Harbor Boards.

FAST ATLANTIC LINE.

Dominion Line and Allan Line Have Asked Federal Subsidies.

Ottawa, June 6.—Two tenders have been made for the fast Atlantic service. They were submitted to the Senate by Hon. R. W. Scott yesterday.

The Dominion Lin offers a fortnightly service of 16 knots for $200,000 annual subsidy, with sea postage freights.

The Allan Line, for the same service, or to Halifax all the year round, $300,000; each payable half yearly.

The bill to amend the Criminal Code regarding obscene and immoral plays received a third reading and passed.

New Tenders Will Be Required.

Ottawa, June 6.—Two tenders have been received for the fast Atlantic service, but neither one fills the requirements insisted upon by the Government. New offers will, therefore, have to be called for.

CHAMBERLAIN'S VIEWS.

War Begins on His Proposals For Preferential Colonial Tariff.

London, June 6.—Replying to a correspondent who drew attention to a speech, delivered in 1881, in which Mr. Chamberlain said a tax on food would mean a decline in wages, the Colonial Secretary says circumstances have changed, and he thinks experience has shown that the view he expressed in 1881 was erroneous.

Letters were published yesterday morning from Sir William Vernon Hercourt, Lord Spencer, Lord Ripon, Lord Tweedmouth and other Liberal leaders, all vigorously denouncing Mr. Chamberlain's Imperial zollverein proposals as merely veiled protection. Sir William Vernon Harcourt and Lord Ripon contend that they would be a fruitful cause of disputes between the Mother Country and the colonies, and of conflict with foreign countries.

Principal Caven Rests Quietly.

Toronto, June 6.—Rev. Principal Caven was resting easily at midnight, and had done so during the whole day. He has taken considerable nourishment, and the doctors are entertaining great hope for his recovery.

Woman "Not Guilty."

Rochester, N. Y., June 6.—The jury in the case of Lulu Miller Youngs, charged with the murder of Florence McFarlane, brought in a verdict last evening of "not guilty."

Lost an Arm.

Belleville, June 6.—Harry Sleeper, of St. Ola, Hastings County, met with an accident Thursday morning while putting in a belt in a mill, which nearly cost him his life, and caused the amputation of his left arm. He was caught by the belt and several times revolved around the shaft. He was brought to the hospital here, where amputation took place. Sleeper is now doing fairly well.

Probably Fatally Burned.

Hamilton, June 6.—It is feared that a little daughter of Eleanor French, 99 Grant avenue, will lose her life through an accident yesterday afternoon. She was playing in the street with matches, and in some way set fire to her clothing. She was soon enveloped in flames. Her shrieks of anguish soon brought assistance, but not until she was so terribly burned that it is feared she will die.

The Best Liniment.

"I have derived great benefit from the use of Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism and lumbago," says Mrs. Anna Hagelgans, of Tuckahoe, N. J. "My husband used it for a sprained back and was also quickly relieved. In fact it is the best family liniment I have ever used. I would not think of being without it. I have recommended it to many and they always speak very highly of it and declare its merits are wonderful." For sale by all druggists.

Canadian Lacrosse Hurt.

Philadelphia, June 6.—The lacrosse team of the Toronto University defeated the University of Pennsylvania team yesterday by the score of 9 to 5. J. L. Leopard of the Toronto team was badly cut on the head and had to retire from the game.

Who Wouldn't Be a Soldier?

Berlin, June 6.—An old sergeant named Warneck, of the Ninety-Second Infantry, has been sentenced to thirty months' imprisonment, and to dismissal from the army, after having been convicted of 166 instances of abuse of soldiers.

Deadly Cowboy Battle.

St. Francis, Kan., June 6.—Eight men were killed in a battle yesterday between settlers and cowboys. Friends are rallying to the aid of both sides, and more trouble is feared. The dispute arose over a line fence.

FERROL
(The Iron-Oil Food)

An Ideal Combination

Everybody knows that Iron and Cod Liver Oil are the greatest system-builders known to medical science. Nearly everybody knows, too, that most people find it very difficult and sometimes impossible to take and digest Cod Liver Oil or Iron. This trouble is completely removed by the introduction of FERROL, which combines Iron with Cod Liver Oil and a modicum of Phosphorus in an emulsion pleasant to take and so easy to assimilate that infants digest it without difficulty.

A CONTRAST

Of the face of a healthful woman with the face of one who is sick proves that quite often a sad face is a sick face. Many a woman has credit for a sunny disposition who would soon be sad of face and irritable of temper if she had to endure the womanly ills which many of her sex have borne for years.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the diseases which are the source of so much pain and suffering to women. It establishes regularity, dries debilitating drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

Mrs. Cornelia Henson, of Coalton, Boyd Co., Ky., writes: "In October 1889 I gave birth to a baby and the treatment I received at the hands of the midwife left me with a falling of the uterus. I had no health to speak of for three years. I had another baby which was the third child. My health began to fail and I found myself completely worn out. I had so many pains and aches my life was a burden to me and also to all the family, for I was nervous and cross and I could not sleep. Had four doctors come to see me but at last found I was slowly dying. The doctors said I had liver, lung and uterine trouble. I was in bed for months and when I did get up I was a sight to behold. I looked like a corpse walking about. I commenced to take Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription, 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets,' and ever since then I have been a well woman. I have suffered all a woman could suffer at my monthly period until since I began the use of Dr. Pierce's medicines, but now I can say I have no pain. The dark circles around my eyes are going away and I feel better in every way. My cheeks are red and my skin is white, but before it was as yellow as saffron."

Accept no substitute for "Favorite Prescription" there is nothing just as good for weak and sick women.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are easy and pleasant to take. A most effective laxative.

"A SPECIAL OFFER"

HOW TO GET A

Berliner Gram-o-phone

ON EASY MONTHLY PAYMENTS.

$1

$1

"Love's Old Sweet Song."

For One Dollar Cash and Two Dollars per Month

—less than Seven Cents a day—think of it—the most wonderful talking machine of the age is yours in eight months. This offer is open to every Canadian.

The Gram-o-phone is an entertainer and an amusement producer. It sings, talks and plays all instruments, such as the Piano, Violin, Flute, Cornet, Banjo, Mandolin, and reproduces perfectly a full Brass Band, an Orchestra, a Church Choir. It repeats a prayer or it will tell you a funny story, in fact it will do everything to amuse a household.

The Gram-o-phone is better than a Piano or Organ, for it requires no instruction or previous knowledge of music to operate it. A child of four years can do it as well as a grown person.

It is loud enough to fill the largest hall or meeting house, or it can be subdued to suit the smallest room.

Thousands of Berliner Gram-o-phones have been sold throughout the Domiinon, and only words of praise are heard from the purchasers. We publish below a few testimonials from disinterested people of the highest standing, whose opinion should be of value.

Gram-o-phone Records are HARD FLAT MAROON DISCS, and are not to be compared with the wax records (with the nasal rwang) which are so easily broken.

A Gram-o-phone Record will last for years. We have nearly two thousand different records in stock to select from. Write for full catalogue and illustrated price list.

Description of the Berliner "Standard" Gram-o-phone —Type "A."

Cabinet: Quartered oak; highly finished.

Horn: Sixteen inches long, 10-inch bell; black japanned steel.

Finish: All exposed metal parts heavily nickel-plated.

Motor: Standard—will play 7 or 10-inch records.

Turn-table: 7-inch, for 7-inch records, can be used for 10-inch records.

Sound box: New automatic.

Needles: 200 free.

Records: Three 7-inch records free.

Weight: Boxed, 25 lbs.

Rev. A. T. Burke, St. Joseph's College, St. Joseph's, N. B., says: "The Gramophone was received a few days ago, and is all right; the volume of sound produced by the instrument is a surprise to all who hear it, and I feel quite sure that you will receive orders for your machine from parties living in this part of the country."

Rev. B. Kiernan, P.P., Quyon, Que., says: "Your records are away ahead of those I used to get from the States. Please send me new catalogues as issued. Wishing you every success in Montreal."

Rev. D. Matte, Hospice St. Joseph, Levis, Que., says: "I bought a Gramophone from you a few months ago, and I would say it has all the good qualities you attribute to it. It is very loud and we can hear it from a great distance. It has been greatly admired by all who have heard it. It has given me entire satisfaction."

Rev. J. A. Hanlan, St. Augustine, P. Q. writes: "I received your Gramophone all right, and I am delighted and pleased with the instrument, as the tone is clear and distinct, and I take pleasure in enclosing my cheque for the amount."

Rev. J. Vaillancourt, College de Levis, Levis, Que., says: "I beg to thank you for the promptness with which you fill my orders, and for answering all my enquiries. I am pleased to state that my Gramophone is always giving me entire satisfaction. It is very difficult for one to purchase another machine which will produce a selection more distinctly. What I especially admire in the Gramophone is the fidelity with which it reproduces all musical instruments, even the human voice. It really makes me spend many an agreeable hour."

Rev. J. P. Kiernan, P. P., Montreal, says: "The Concert Gramophone has been delighting us all since its advent, I am pleased to say. One reverend friend distinctly says that he has heard no better reproductions from any instrument of its kind, and I may add that he is a competent judge. I consider the repeating mechanism a "God-send to city and country."

Rev. J. F. Biron, St. Omer, Bonaventure, Co., P. Q., writes: "The Gramophone helps to pass many agreeable moments."

Rev. F. L. French, Brudenell, Ont., says: "The Gramophone is excellent."

Rev. J. L. A. Sarrio', St. Vincent de P. Parish, Montreal, says: "I am perfectly satisfied with my Gramophone and records which I purchased from you some time ago. The Gramophone is more powerful and distinct than the other talking machines I heard. All the persons who have heard the Gramophone have admired the neatness and fidfidelity of the sound."

Rev. S. E. Wadel, St. Joseph's Hospital, Guelph, Ont., writes: "I am glad to say that the Gramophone I bought through your agent gives great satisfaction."

Rev. E. H. Badstre, Kutawa, Assa., writes: "The Gramophone arrived safely on Saturday last and gives satisfaction."

Rev. Father Conan, Indian Reserve, Enderby, B. C., writes: "We received the Gramophone in good order and it is giving complete satisfaction."

Rev. Maj. Marchand, Cantilly, P. Q., writes: "I am very well satisfied with the Gramophone I received from you."

WHY The Standard Mines and Milling Company

Capital $1,000,000 Ten Cent Shares

Is the Best Mining Investment on the Market To-day.

It's mines are in three great mining camps in Idaho, Thunder Mountain and Trinity County, California. It has vast bodies of ore already above ground and extensive workings under ground, thus enough insight for its three plants for years. It has one-third of the stock in another company that has the biggest and richest reef of ore (all above ground) in the world. All it has to do is to wait for dividends on this stock. It has a capable honest and reliable Management. The price of stock is very low for the present, virtually ground floor.

Chonchilula Gold Reef Mining Co. owns

THE MINER'S DREAM.

(A mine above ground in California) and is selling a limited number of shares at Ground Floor Price and is paying 12 per cent. dividends, and going to par.

MERCHANTS' & TRADERS' OIL CO.

OIL FIELDS in old tested territory, producing most of the high-grade petroleum of the world.

HOLDINGS in five separate fields, in Ohio and Western Virginia.

TERRITORY already acquired will require at least five years to drill, that insures a lifetime of production.

EVERY BARREL of oil now brings $1.50 in our tanks at the wells.

QUOTATIONS ON THE WALL STREET MARKET

The Quotations of the Leading Stocks —Market Letters.

The Wall Street market was rather uninteresting this morning, there being no startling developments. The market opened at about last night's close and notwithstanding the anticipation of an unfavourable bank statement fractional advances were in evidence every issue. Towards noon, however, the market fell off.

Let Others Experiment.

There is always something new in the way of medical treatment and you are constantly invited to try new-fangled, unproven remedies. Let others experiment and so lose time and risk health. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have been tried in the crucible of time, won the approval of public opinion and demonstrated their right to a place in every home as a family medicine.

Plant Your Garden.

Mr. A. Blade, of the West-end Greenhouses, (at the residence of G. M. Roger) has ready a very fine collection of hardy seedlings and bedding-out plants. This is the time for planting your garden and flowerbeds; and the West-end Greenhouses can be depended upon for exercising the utmost care to have everything pure and dependable. Parties having baskets, hanging pots and vases to fill will confer a favour by sending their orders in early for filling. Telephone 21b., to A. Blade, Manager.

SPECIALS!

Extra fine flavoured Canadian Tomatoes, New Wax Beans, Peas, Cabbage, Beets and Carrots. Also Mixed Fruits, California Cherries, Canadian Berries, extra large Pine apples. Everything of the best quality we can buy—at OKE'S, 376 George street.

CONSPIRACY CHARGE HAS UTTERLY FAILED.

of September; This Mr. Bowen puts on the 5th September, when Mr. Gamey said the Ross Government was giving Manitoulin good legislation, excepting a few minor matters in mining law, and he would have to support the Ross Government. (Pages 2,278 and 2,288.)

Both Bowen and Martin say that The Globe interview, afterwards published, was along the same line as Mr. Gamey talked on those occasions. (Pages 1,960 and 2,279.)

The books of the Walker House, produced, show Mr. Gamey registered late on the list of September and left on the 11th of September; in the same room with S. J. Martin, 1st to 9th of September, and Bowen on the 6th of September. See evidence of T. M. Bayne (page 1,927.)

Mr. Gamey told various people at different dates (what in substance was repeated to the Provincial Secretary) the reasons which prompted him and enabled him to take an independent stand after his election. He told Mr. Conmee in July that he had accepted the Conservative nomination on condition that he should be free to exercise his own judgment, and that was well understood in his canvass, and that he had got a large number of Liberal votes (Page 2,651.) That he had seen some of his friends and discussed the matter of his policy—the course he intended to take—and told them it was his intention to give the Government support, and that they had agreed with him. That he was not bound to either political party; he was free to use his own judgment. (Pages 2,648, 2,652 and 2,672.)

WOULD BE EASY FOR HIM.

He told Dr. Arthur in July that it would be easy for him to support the Government, because he had repeatedly said on the platform during his campaign that he would support the Government in power (pages 2,290 and 2,233.) He said also to Dr. Arthur that he had got a great many Liberal votes as another reason. (Page 2,291.) He said to L. McDougall a week before the election in May, that he was brought out as a Conservative, but he was paying his own way, and he would be more of an Independent than a party man. (Page 1,745.) And this is confirmed by his son, M. McDougall. (Page 1,740.)

According to D. Orr he spoke to a number of people in the streets and said, "I am paying my own way and am independent of any party." (Page 1,757.)

To J. F. Boyd Mr. Gamey said on the 16th of August that he proposed to take the course of Beatty of Parry Sound, who became Independent after he was elected a Conservative, and he claimed to have polled many Liberal votes. (Page 1,884.)

MR. BEATTY'S EXAMPLE.

It is clearly proved from the mouth of many witnesses that Mr. Gamey as politician and candidate had long kept before his mind the names of Mr. Campbell member for Algoma, and Mr. Beatty, member for Parry Sound, as useful precedents; he was not going to sit in Opposition, a mere voting machine with the party, like Mr. Campbell. (Page 1,763.) But he approved and would follow the course of Mr. Beatty, who, though elected as a Conservative, gave support to the Government in order to advance the interests of the new district which was his constituency. These two names were thus used in conjunction in familiar conversation with his uncle, Mr. D. A. Jones in June or July, after his election (page 3,002,) and apparently before the protest (page 3,053.) As early as 1898 Mr. Gamey quoted Beatty's example to Mr. Jones (page 2,996.) It was discussed in the early August meetings of 1902 between Frank Sullivan and Mr. Gamey (page 1,351,) and again in January, 1903, after The Globe interview, when Mr. Gamey asked Frank Sullivan to write to him about petition, standing, etc., (pages 1,316 and 1,317.) It was reported to Mr. Boyd on the 16th August (page 1,883,) and again to Mr. Stratton on the 9th September (page 2,421.)

CONVINCING TESTIMONY.

There is abundant trustworthy testimony thus pointing clearly to this conclusion that before Mr. Gamey became a candidate he had resolved if elected to support any Government in power in the avowed interests of Manitoulin and new Ontario. (Pages 1,362, 3,055 and 3,059.) That he expected the return to power of the Conservative party at the general election, but accepted the situation when it was found that Mr. Ross had a majority, though a narrow one. That which disturbed him and caused him to act an earlier period than otherwise he might have done was the filing of the protest against his election. He was resolved to cling to the seat, which had cost him a considerable outlay of his own money (Dr. Struthers, page 2,220,) and he would make overtures to the dominant party and assure them that he was really in a position to be their supporter, and so stave off the protest and secure himself in his seat as member. But it was his cue not to act in any such marked manner as to draw suspicion on himself from the Conservative party in case the balance of power should by any means turn against the Ross Government. (See Jones' evidence, pages 3,055 and 3,059,) Dr. Arthur (pages 2,238 and 2,291 to 2,295,) and Dr. Struthers (pages 2,002 and 2,003.)

WISHED TO AVOID RESIGNING.

The great point with Mr. Gamey was to avoid resigning and also to avoid the protest, and remain member by professing adherence to the Ross Government even by going so far as to put a declaration to that effect in writing. But, having attained, anyhow, the withdrawal of the protest, he manoeuvred so as to keep in touch, if possible, with both parties. When remonstrated with by Dr. Arthur as to his assisting the Conservatives in North Perth, when people understood he was going to support the Government, Mr. Gamey's reply was, though he was going to support the Government, he felt free outside of the House in the constituencies so long as there was a chance for the Conservatives to win to go and fight for them. (Page 2,302.)

Mr. Gamey's plan adopted after conference with Mr. McGregor, secretary of the Manitoulin Conservative Association at Gore Bay, is thus expressed in his own words (in the statement) "We decided I would have to give the Government evidence that I really meant to go with them, and only by fully convincing them could we hope to get any evidence or attack any of the Cabinet; so far we had no evidence against anyone in authority." (Page 63 of the exhibits.) This was the starting point arranged after the 12th of August at Gore Bay. In pursuance of this plan, came the interview of the 9th September, unsolicited by the Provincial Secretary.

LETTER NATURALLY FOLLOWED.

The outcome of that interview is the letter suggested by Mr. Aylesworth, and framed on the lines of what Mr. Gamey told the Provincial Secretary as to his political freedom and predilections. His object was to convince fully the Provincial Secretary, and his words, if true, would justify the writing and the receiving of the letter of the 10th September. Mr. Aylesworth knew its contents and approved of its signature by Mr. Gamey. Only when money was sought by Mr. Gamey did Mr. Aylesworth withdraw. That is to say, Mr. Aylesworth saw nothing against such a document being given in its merely politico-legal aspect. In its ethical aspect there would appear to be nothing reprehensible, if, indeed, Gamey truly stated what he then represented as to his candidature, and approval of the Ross policy. That was a matter between himself and his conscience. The Provincial Secretary says he had not heard any of Gamey's campaign speeches or read them. (Page 2,412.) That he had heard rumours before that Mr. Gamey was going to support the Government. (Page 2,413.) And that he had been told that Mr. Gamey was somewhat doubtful in these statements, and that it was questionable that he would do all that he would say he would do politically. (Page 2,474.) But at this interview the earnest purpose of Mr. Gamey was to fully convince the Minister, as had been pre-arranged. The Provincial Secretary says, "I always understood that Mr. Gamey's course was approved by his friends outside of a dissatisfied few." (Page 2,597.) And, in Mr. Gamey's own report of his own speech to his own constituents, on February 17th, 1903, he declares that he knew from letter and interviews that the great majority of the people were well satisfied with his recent action. (Exhibits page 108.) However this letter was not acted on as to the protests, so far as appears.

The modus operandi contemporaneously spoken of was that the letter was to be handled by Mr. Aylesworth who was then to act for Mr. Gamey in the protest and make an end of it, but the letter was taken away by Mr. Gamey and was not, according to the evidence, as already stated, a factor in the withdrawal of the protest. The letter has been called a contract or an evidence of bargain and sale. It cannot be so regarded. It is a letter to the premier, defining Mr. Gamey's position as a supporter of the Government, and asking that as such his recommendations receive reasonable and fair consideration, and that he be considered and treated as if he had been elected to support the Government.

USUAL ADMINISTRATION OF PATRONAGE.

He asks that; but there is no promise to give. If in truth, Mr. Gamey was or had, for apparently good reason, become a supporter of the Government, he might expect such perquisites as attached to that position. That wouldn't go without saying, according to the usual method of administering the local patronage. The constitution of Ontario, developed on the English Parliamentary system, involves the principle of party administration. It may degenerate into mere partisan appointments but need not do so. The main thing is that public employment should be entrusted to the hands of honest and capable public servants, and the manner of choice is not of so much import.

A very good exposition of patronage in its constitutional aspect is to be found in Viscount Palmerston's words, in the English House in 1863. He said: "According to the constitution, those who are honoured with the confidence of the Crown, are responsible for the filling up of all offices, and are bound to take care that no person not duly qualified is appointed. The Government must maintain itself in Parliament by the support of its friends, and it is natural they should feel more disposed to comply with requests made by a friend than by a gentleman who is going to move to turn them out. I do not think there is anything at all inconsistent with human nature or constitutional principles in such an arrangement, and I do not see what the country would gain by changing it and giving the opponents of the Government a right to demand favours from the Government. It has however been rightly said that those nominations are often to respectable persons, and often without regard to political considerations..... ...When persons who are opposed to a Government condescend to express a wish when that wish can well be granted, their being opposed to the Government is not an absolute reason for refusing them; but then it is only right, according to the working of the British constitution, that the requests of those who are the friends of the Government should be complied with in preference to the requests of those who are not. I see nothing in that requiring to be altered in reference to the proper working of the Parliamentary constitution of the country." (July, 1865; 172 Hansard, pages 966-969 and 970.)

The report will be concluded on Monday.

RAILWAY BRIDGES BLOWN UP.

Serious Floods in British Columbia—A Rise in the Fraser River of Five Feet in Past Forty-Eight Hours—Four Persons Reported Drowned at Silverton — The Southern Floods.

Vancouver, June 8.—In all parts of Southern British Columbia, from the coast to the territorial boundary, sudden warm weather has brought with it rapid thawing of the mountain snows and such rising of the waters that in many sections the inhabitants are practically under marching orders day and night, their homes either already inundated or being worked up to foot by foot by a silent, sluggish, dirty aquatic invader. Along the Fraser the contribution is chiefly from the tributary Thompson as yet [illegible] at Quesnel a rise of five feet within the past forty-eight hours is recorded. On other points on the big river an exceptionally rapid rise is reported, and the dykes are being examined with care. All through the Kootcrays bridges have gone out, and settlements upon flat lands are washed out.

Traffic Suspended.

On the Spokane Falls & Northern line into British Columbia from the south traffic is suspended by washouts, and telegraphic and telephone communication in that locality is also ended temporarily. Throughout the Slocan floods are general. At Silverton a considerable number of residents have been compelled to flee their homes with only their household treasures. The cabins of Mr. and Mrs. Ward, Henry Moot and Bardo Anderson have been carried away, and it is reported here that these four have been drowned. Great damage has been done at Sandon, a mining town built virtually in a great canyon. The small stream there has become a raging torrent, filling the one street of the ambitious town, and railway bridges, etc., have been destroyed with dynamite lest these, damming the torrent, should precipitate a repetition of the Johnstown tragedy on a lesser scale. The C.P.R. and K. & S. Railway are having their own flood troubles, and the loss throughout the Province will already run well into six figures.

IN PERIL OF THEIR LIVES.

300 People Imprisoned by the Raging Waters of the Missouri River at Black Walnut, Mo.

St. Louis, Mo., June 8.—Like a mill race, the swollen Mississippi is surging past St. Louis, with a stage of 36.9 feet last night, making a rise of 1½ feet in the last six hours.

No word was received yesterday from the 200 people imprisoned at Black Walnut, 25 miles northwest from here, and in peril of their lives from the rising waters of the Missouri River. Word was received Saturday night that a rescue must be effected immediately or they would probably be swept away before morning. The river has spread out around the island with a swift current, and although every effort has been made to reach them, nothing was accomplished yesterday, and there has been no means of communicating with them.

The Spread Eagle, moored at Alton, Ill., was hurriedly manned and started for the imperilled colony late Saturday night, but was forced to turn back at the Bellefontaine bridge. A private yacht here was manned by a company of policemen yesterday and started for Black Walnut, as the craft sat low enough in the water to pass all bridges, but the swift current had to be reckoned with. All steam was turned on, but the boat made no headway against the current, and after vainly fighting the flood for several hours, without making 100 yards, the yacht returned, and the venture was abandoned.

Saturday water rushed through a gap 100 yards wide in the big Madison County levee, covering 20,000 acres of farm land and flooding Oldenburg, Mitchell and West Granite.

Thousands of Men With Brooms.

Kansas City, June 8.—Thousands of men armed with shovels and brooms went to the west bottom Saturday to restore the wholesale district and stock yards to their condition before the flood here.

The Dead Are 80.

Columbia, S. C., June 8.—Though the great flood of water is passing on to the ocean laden with debris of every description and the swollen streams are subsiding in the Piedmont region, the losses of life and property are increasing, and a conservative estimate last night places the number of dead at 80. At Clinton alone 100 operatives are missing from the village. During yesterday dead bodies were washed ashore here and there, and occasionally a dismembered limb would float to the banks.

Chased Brother With Ax.

Thamesville, June 8.—Ben McKeg, who lives about half a mile west of here, chased his brother Jim with an axe, and also fired a shot at him yesterday. Jim escaped and went for the police, but when they arrived on the scene, Ben had fled, and is still at large. A family dispute caused the trouble.

Bishop Machray Home.

Winnipeg, June 6.—His Grace Archbishop Machray of Rupert's Land, and Primate of all Canada, returned to the city yesterday, after a long absence in England.

HONOR TO THE DEAD.

Twelfth Anniversary of Conservative Chieftain's Death Commemorated.

Toronto, June 8.—Saturday, the 12th anniversary of the death of Sir John A. Macdonald, was commemorated here by the decoration of his monument in Queen's Park, under the auspices of the Toronto Conservative Club.

Many handsome tokens were received to be deposited on the monument of the dead chieftain. His coworkers in the House of Commons sent a magnificent wreath of white roses and lilies of the valley, and wreaths were sent by the Albany Club, the different ward associations and the Central Association of Toronto.

Speeches were delivered by Mr. F. D. Monk, M.P., leader of the Conservative party in Quebec; Mr. Whitney, M.P.P., Messrs. R. Geary, Hilliard Birmingham and C. C. Robinson.

Veterans Honor Their Dead.

In another portion of the park there was a second ceremony under the auspices of the Canadian Militia Veterans' Association. The veterans assembled and laid floral tributes on the monuments to the veterans of 1866 and 1885. Speeches were made by well-known military men.

ARRESTS AT SMITH'S FALLS.

Two Tramps Taken in Connection With Glory Whalen's Murder.

Collingwood, June 8.—New interest was created in the Whalen tragedy by the announcement Saturday that two tramps had been arrested at Smith's Falls answering to the description of the colored man and white man who have been so persistently connected with the crime from the beginning. These men were seen loitering in the neighborhood of the wood where the dead girl was done to death. Chief Wilde immediately despatched William Pelch, who saw the tramps when here, to identify them.

Should it, however, prove a false scent and nothing new develops by Tuesday, the Council will probably offer a reward of one thousand dollars. Coroner Stephen was booked to leave for England on Thursday, but he has cancelled his berth with the hope of solving the mystery before leaving. Chief of Police Wilde is still working hard, and following up the slightest clue that presents itself.

Another suspect is held at Coldwater, supposed to be the man who discarded his overcoat and sweater on the lake shore.

O.J.C. Spring Races.

Toronto, June 8.—Saturday, thirteenth and last day, weather fine, track fast.

First Race.—¾ mile, 3-year olds and up, Fortunatus 1, Healing Salve 2, Plum Tart 3.

Second Race—¾ mile, 2-year-olds, Blue Darter 1, Spring 2, Sky Blue 3.

Fourth Race.—1½ miles, Waterloo handicap, 3-year-olds and up, Merriment 1, Dubious 2, Scortic 3.

Fifth Race.—2½ miles, Street Railway Steeplechase, Woolgatherer 1, Imperialist 2, Higbie 3.

Sixth Race.—1 mile, 3-year-olds and up, Advocator 1, Magentic 2, Handcuff 3.

Seventh Race.—¾ mile, 3-year-olds and up, Benckart 1, Messina 2, La Montague 3.

Municipal Bread.

Rome, June 8.—In view of the frequent strikes and of the unfairly high price of bread, several municipalities in Italy have decided to become independent of bakers and to bake the bread needed by the community. The experiment has proved an entire success at Catania, and has now been adopted at Palermo, where the municipal authorities sell excellent bread at 3d. per 2½ lb. loaf, while a very inferior quality was formerly sold at 4d. by the bakers.

Buoys Out of Place.

Montreal, June 8.—The findings of Commander Spain, who held an investigation into the grounding of the SS. Carrigan Head in Lake St. Peter, on April 24, were announced on Saturday. The finding is that the accident was caused by the buoys having been out of place, but blame is attached to no person. Commander Spain recommends that a steam launch be procured, and used for patrolling the river to see that the buoys are in place.

Dundonald Inspected Them.

Montreal, June 8.—Lord Dundonald inspected the Montreal Brigade on Saturday. The brigade, which numbered nearly 1,500 men, were put through a number of evolutions in La Fontaine Park, and were afterwards highly complimented by the Major-General Commanding, who urged that a field day should be held on Labor Day.

Many Bulgarians Killed.

Salonica, June 8.—A band of Bulgarians, revolutionaries, was destroyed by Turkish troops on Saturday near this city, 15 being killed. Another insurgent band is reported to have been annihilated, after a six hours' fight. The insurgents last Wednesday killed 10 Greek villagers, while the latter were in church near Monastir.

Daily Grows Brighter.

Toronto, June 8.—The condition of Principal Caven has changed slightly for the better. He is taking nourishment and sleeping well, and the prospects for his recovery are daily becoming brighter.

Circus Pickpockets Nabbed.

Kingston, June 6.—Detectives yesterday colored pickpockets caught red-handed in relieving people on the Kingston and Pembroke R.R. trains, who were coming to the circus. They give their names as Harvey of Montreal, and Norton of London.

A HUNDRED DROWNED

Passenger Steamer Goes Down off Marseilles, France.

RESULT OF A COLLISION.

Seventeen Minutes After the Accident Str. Liban Sank in Deep Water—Unsuccessful Attempt Made to Beach Her in Shallow Water—Number of Passengers Rescued by Other Vessels.

Marseilles, June 8.—Over one hundred persons were drowned here yesterday, as the result of a terrible shipping disaster. The Insulaire and the Liban, passenger steamers of the Fraissenet Steamship Company of Marseilles were in collision near this port. The Liban sank, carrying down with her more than 100 of her passengers, as well as her crew.

The Liban left Marseilles yesterday morning on her regular passenger trip to Bastin, Corsica, and was run down and sank by the Insulaire off the Maire Islands. The collision was witnessed from the pilot boat Bleichamp, which was about two miles distant. The Bleichamp immediately went to the spot to give assistance.

The force of the collision cut a wide rent in the Liban's side, and she was already taking in water rapidly. Her captain saw their only chance to run the steamer aground before she sank in deep water, and the Liban was headed full speed for the shore, but within seventeen minutes of the collision, and while still some distance from shallow water the forepart of the steamer plunged beneath the waves, and a few minutes later she had entirely disappeared.

In the meantime the Bleichamp, the steamer Balkan, also belonging to the Fraissinet Company, and other vessels had drawn near the sinking ship and were making strenuous efforts to rescue those on board. The Bleichamp picked up 40 persons, many of whom were at the point of exhaustion, and were only revived by the attentions they received on board.

The Balkan also rescued thirty-seven passengers, and up to the present it is known that in addition to the passengers, seventeen of the crew were also saved.

Cause of Collision.

It is stated that the collision was due to the following circumstances:

The Liban was putting out to sea just as the steamer Insulaire was making for the harbor. Maire Island, which lies off the entrance to the port, hid the vessels from each other until it was too late to avoid a collision.

The crew of the Balkan describe the scene just before the Liban disappeared as a fearful one. As the vessel was sinking, she was inclined to such an angle that her masts struck the water, causing an eddy, which made the work of rescue most difficult. A mass of human beings were clinging to the foundered ship, and uttered despairing cries as she went down. At the same time the boilers exploded.

For a few minutes the victims were seen struggling in the sea, then the waves closed over them. Of about 200 passengers who were aboard, it is feared at least half were drowned.

The Balkan launched three boats, and the other succoring vessels did all possible to save the victims in the short time that elapsed between the time of the collision and the sinking of the Liban.

Up to 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, 80 bodies had been recovered.

Many of the passengers were badly injured in the collision. The Insulaire sustained considerable damage to her bows, but managed to reach port safely.

S.S. Iberian Aground.

Montreal, June 8.—The S.S. Iberian, general cargo, of the Leyland Line, inward, got aground yesterday morning 20 miles below Sorel. Lighters have been sent down, but no further details had been received up to three o'clock this morning.

FIFTY IN THE WATER.

Sunday School Crowd Breaks Through Rotten Wharf and Panic Follows.

Toronto, June 8.—An appalling excursion horror was what "might have happened" at Lorne Park on Saturday. Half a hundred people, men, women and children, by the collapse of the wharf, were precipitated into the water. Luckily, it was only four feet deep, but even then the escape from death by drowning or serious injury from the crushing of at least a few of the imperilled excursionists almost borders on the marvelous.

The Chalmers Presbyterian Sunday school scholars, officials and friends had picnicked at the park during the day, having taken the early morning trip on the Niagara.

Many women and children suffered severely from shock and surface wounds, and strange to say Mrs. Butters, Gladstone avenue, was the only person who received really dangerous injuries. Her ankle was sprained and she was struck so severely on the back that serious internal injuries were caused.

The wharf had been condemned, and the church authorities are taking up the question of damages.

New Canadores' Contract.

London, June 8.—A despatch from Glasgow to the Exchange Telegraph Company says contracts for the construction of the two new monster Cunard liners which are to be subsidized by the Government have been placed, one with a Clyde bank and another with a Newcastle firm.

Gas, Not High Altitudes.

London, June 8.—Dr. Knott declares that high altitudes are not fatal to balloonists. It is escaping gas from balloons that kills aeronauts.

New York's Strike Losses.

New York, June 8.—It is estimated that the strike losses in this city, due to the idleness in the building trades, amounts to $25,000,000.

Adopted Customs Conventies.

Bloemfontein, Orange River Colony, June 8.—The Legislative Council has unanimously adopted the customs convention.

Sewed Up Man's Heart.

London, June 8.—Surgeon Furnivall successfully stitched a wound in a man's heart last week in the London Hospital.

Irish M.P. Arrested.

Sligo, Ireland, June 8.—P. A. McHugh, M.P., was arrested Saturday morning under a warrant for contempt of court, issued a year ago, in connection with the political comments of Mr. McHugh's paper, The Sligo Champion.

CONSPIRACY CHARGE HAS UTTERLY FAILED.

Report of Commission Clears the Reputation of Mr. Stratton and Government.

NO EVIDENCE WHATEVER TO PROVE CHARGE

In the Judges' Opinion the Corrupt Charges Stand Disproved by a Great Body of Evidence Which Appears to be More Accurate and Creditable Than That Adduced in Support Thereof.

Below will be found the continuation of the report of the Royal Commission from Saturday's Examiner:

EARL GREY'S VIEWS.

—Touching the mis-use or corrupt use of patronage, a passage in Earl Grey's "Monograph on Parliamentary Government" is worthy of consideration: "Parliamentary government is essentially a government by party and one of the bonds by which all parties are kept together is that of the self-interest of their adherents. The power which the Ministry of the day possesses of conciliating its Parliamentary supporters by favours conferred upon them, either directly or indirectly, is one of the principal means by which the necessary authority of the Government is supported. Corruption is more apt to prevail in this form, because it is difficult in many cases to distinguish conduct which deserves to be branded with such a reproach from that which is free from blame. No just objection can be taken to a man seeking employment in the public service for himself, his friends or relatives, by honourable means, and he may fairly expect that his political as well as his personal friends will assist him in doing so. Nor can those to whom patronage is entrusted be reasonably censured for giving his preference to their own political friends in the appointments they make, so long as they neither neglect any just claims to employment on the part of others nor place it in unworthy hands. It is when men support measures or a party, which their judgment condems, for the sake of office, or when they make appointments, knowing them to be wrong, from favour or to purchase political support, then conduct is to be regarded as corrupt. The same action may therefore be corrupt, or not, according to the motives from which they spring, and these men easily deceive themselves, not less than others, as to the true character of what they do." (Pages 42 to 44 of Parliamentary Government, the new edition, 1864.)

Lord Grey's conclusion is that the system is, upon the whole, a good one, but the success of all free institutions depends far less on their particular form than on the public spirit and virtue of the people to be governed by them. (Ib. 333.)

PATRONAGE PROPER IN THIS CASE.

The statement sets forth the alleged promise of the Provincial Secretary that Mr. Gamey would have the patronage of the riding entirely in his own hands, but nothing supports such a promise. He did not direct or control any of the patronage; he asked much but got little. He might suggest or recommend names or endorse applications, and his voice would receive such consideration as might seem proper to the Executive, but the Provincial Secretary did not in any way propose to circumscribe or diminish the discretion of the Cabinet, nor could he, or they, in any way lessen their own responsibility to the Legislature and the electorate.

So far as regards the two applicants on whose behalf Mr. Gamey intervened, and who were appointed, they were both of suitable character, and competence, and to their appointment no exception is or can be taken. But as to the other persons named, he complained that the Government was not so complaisant, and in particular be told Dr. Arthur that the Provincial Secretary had not fallen in line with all the nominations he had made (page 2,304) and that he was not able to get the license board to his liking. This was in January. (Page 2,353.)

INTERVIEWS WITH MR. BRISTOL.

Mr. Bristol acted as solicitor for the Conservatives, as did Mr. Grant for the Liberals, in the election petitions, and Mr. Gamey was in touch with Mr. Bristol on various occasions mentioned in the statement and in his evidence. Mr. Bristol acted in the defence of the petition against Mr. Gamey, which was filed on the 10th and served on the 14th July. In early August Mr. Gamey came down expressly to see about the protest (according to Frank Sullivan and other evidence.) According to the statement Mr. Gamey from the 1st to the 9th of September had many talks with the Sullivans, and discussed the question of sawing-off Davis' petition, etc., and "I told our lawyer this." (Page 65 of the exhibits.) And again about the 2nd of October the same parties discussed the Davis petition and the lawyers' saw-off, etc. "I told our lawyers." (Page 68.) On October 4th Mr. Gamey says in evidence that he saw Mr. Bristol about election matters. He was on friendly terms with Mr. Bristol and was engaged in a mining deal with him which was current from September until November, 1902. (Page 2,976.) And it was Mr. Bristol who on the 19th and 26th September, proposed to put in Manitoulin as against South Wentworth, saying "Mr. Gamey is a friend of mine, or a client of mine, and I would like to get him out." And to this Mr. Grant said, "All right," and the protest got its quietus. (Page 1,063.)

It is therefore no violent inference to assume that Mr. Gamey knew the position of his protest when on September 29th he wrote the letter to the Provincial Secretary, which is set out in the statement, enclosing the petition dated 20th September, for the appointment of Mr. Flesher, as J. P., on Aird Island, and asking to have the appointment made at once if possible, as the officer was needed. This was his first approach to any member of the Government after he had forwarded his letter of the 10th September by post to the Premier.

MR SWANSON'S APPOINTMENT.

Before the protest Mr. Gamey had "condescended" (to use Lord Palmerston's word) to express a wish, while in apparent opposition, for the appointment of Mr. Swanson as J. P., and to recommend the same. (Letter of 24th June, 1902, to the Attorney-General's Department, beginning, "Dear Sir," Exhibits, page 80) to which courteous response was made on the 10th July by Hon. Mr. Harcourt in the absence of the Attorney-General. (Page 81 of the exhibits.) It seems that Flesher's name had been mentioned at the first interview with the Provincial Secretary (pages 2,419 and 1,177) and that Minister was the only member of the Government known to Mr. Gamey; and he writes to him about Mr. Flesher, though the appointment is in the Attorney-General's department. The Minister's answer is dated 2nd of October (page 11 of the exhibits,) and he writes a letter of transference of the application to the Attorney-General of the same date, 2nd of October (page 119 of exhibits.) The Minister writes a third letter of the same date to Mr. Gamey, in which he instructs his secretary to use "My Dear Sir," instead of "My Dear Gamey" (put by inadvertence in the other letter of the 2nd of October,) asking his opinion as to the appointment of the late returning officer as returning officer for the referendum. (Exhibits, page 12.) This the Provincial Secretary says he had promised to do at the interview with Mr. Gamey in September. (Page 2,468.)

REFERENDUM RETURNING OFFICER.

Upon this letter Mr. Gamey had conference with Mr. McGregor, and the statement says (page 68): "We decided to have the Sheriff appointed, or rather recommended the Sheriff instead of the old returning officer (the Registrar,) just to see proof of our deal." On this the letter of the 7th October was written to the Provincial Secretary. (Page 13 of the exhibits.) He, however, did not receive it, as he was out of the city, and it was transferred to the Premier.

In the statement Mr. Gamey further says: "I spoke to the Sheriff and he wanted it, and went to Toronto and saw the Premier." (Page 68.)

It appears that the referendum matter had been discussed by the members of the Government, and it was decided that for the returning officers, Registrars and Sheriffs should be appointed where possible. (Page 2, 416.) Before this and in September, Mr. Gamey was opposed to either Sheriff or Registrar being appointed (page 2, 536,) but Abrey the Registrar and Jackson the Sheriff being made equally eligible, it was more of a compliment than matter of substance to ask the opinion of Mr. Gamey. This patronage correspondence is set forth in the statement as supplying written evidence of the "deal." (Pages 67 and 68.) With the touch-stone "honi soit qui maly pense," are the Minister's letters to be read in the light of a corrupt bargain or as indicating a policy of conciliation? To work the downfall of a Minister and the overthrow of a Government, something of greater probative force should be forthcoming. This correspondence may exemplify the employment of personal tact or of political tactics on the part of the Minister addressed, but hardly seems to demand any graver consideration.

FRANK SULLIVAN AND D. A. JONES.

We turn now briefly to some other matters set forth or omitted to be set forth from the statement to the House:

(a) It is there suggested, if not affirmed, that D. A. Jones, Frank Sullivan and his father were in touch with the Provincial Secretary, or in some way authorized to deal in his behalf. This is explicitly and emphatically denied by the Minister (pages 2,412 and 2,440,) and is also contradicted by Jones and Frank Sullivan. Captain Sullivan, the father, was not called as a witness by either party, and it did not appear to be of importance to have him examined by the commissioners as he plays a subordinate part in the narrative. As to the other two alleged agents, Jones and Frank Sullivan, they were unquestionably acting in concert with Mr. Gamey, separately or on parallel lines.

GAMEY UNDER SUSPICION.

Unpleasant light is thrown upon Mr. Gamey's real position before and after the election by reading together and comparing the evidence of D. A. Jones and Frank Sullivan. With both these men Mr. Gamey discussed combinations of like kind. Mr. Gamey was to support the Government and befriend Jones, to do the best he could for Manitoulin, and to be in a position to secure "franchises" to be operated by Jones, with division of profits to Jones-Gamey combination. (Pages 3,003, and 3,011.) Mr. Gamey warned Jones in August to be careful about his letters, and suggested they might be tampered with at Gore Bay Post-office, and so guarded phraseology was to be used. (Pages 3,014, 3,016 and 3, 051.) After the letter of the 19th September, and before the election in the three norths (7th January) Mr. Gamey drew off from Jones, because he said the majority was dwindling and if Ross did not succeed in holding the reins of power he wanted to be in line with his own party. (Pages 3,055 and 3,059.) And, he also drew off because he expected greater gain could be got out of a new combination with Sullivan. (Pages 1,188, 1,189 and 1,323.) This, like the other, was based on Mr. Gamey being a supporter of the Government, and then he would endorse all the schemes of the Sullivans, and the result in profits would be shared. (Pages 1,188, 1,201, 1,208 and 1,349.) And these schemes were somewhat numerous. "We did not confine ourselves to one deal." "Gamey wanted about ten things." (Page 1,221.)

HIS MAIL WATCHED.

After The Globe interview, Mr. Gamey told Frank Sullivan that his mail on the island was watched, and that McGregor might take out his letters (page 1,211,) and so expedients were used ("X.Y.Z.") at Mr. Gamey's suggestion. (Page 1,210.)

These parallel combinations illustrate and corroborate each other.

It is, however, satisfying to be assured that no fruits came to any of them, from these extensive propositions in fishing, mining, pulp, and timber possibilities. The estimated profits from the various ventures were laid before Mr. Gamey by Frank Sullivan at their closing interviews in March as being about $100,000. (Pages 1,586 and 725.) But, this bulked only in the future, and Mr. Gamey was apparently after more attractive stakes, forgetting that it was out of these deals that the money was to come wherewith to pay the mysterious, if not mythical, I.O.U. (Page 2,920.)

THE $1,200 OMISSION.

(b) An extraordinary omission in the statement for the House is that no reference is made to an alleged loan of $1,200 from Sullivan to Mr. Mr. Gamey out of the $1,500 said to be received by Sullivan as his half of the $3,000, the first bribe money. The part of the statement where it ought to have appeared thus reads: "There was $3,000 in Ontario Bank bills of $100, $50, $20, $10 and $5; Frank handed me $1,500 of this. I will tell you where that money went when necessary. Frank tore up the envelope. I then left the building alone and went to dinner. I shewed that money to a Conservative in this city, and will tell his name when necessary. I went to the Crossin piano factory in the afternoon. I left for home on Thursday night, September 11th." (Page 66, exhibits.) But, in his last statement before the commissioners, Mr. Gamey said that the $900 deposited in $100 bills in the Ontario Bank on the 11th September were part of $1,200 which he borrowed on an I.O.U. out of the $1,500 received by Sullivan. (Page 2,978.) He seeks to excuse the omission by saying that he thought Sullivan would be more apt to tell the truth if he was going to get this money back. (Page 2,978.) But after Frank Sullivan had given his evidence to the commissioners and had denied that any such I.O.U. existed, the obstacle was removed which hindered this disclosure, but to the reporters who followed Mr. Gamey to Buffalo he gave a very different account, knowing that he spoke for the purpose of publications. Then the $900 was said to have been gathered up during the summer, and to have come from Manitoulin.

NEVER TO BE REPAID.

Mr. Gamey seems to have guarded very effectually any chance of Frank Sullivan getting the $1,200 back, even in a legitimate loan, by saying that "It is to be paid when all the deals are cleared up," (page 2,980,) which will never come to pass. Mr. Gamey's words are worth quoting: "It was to be paid back whenever we completed the deal, the timber and mineral, and everything that was talked about; we were to have this timber and everything; when that was cleared up he was to get his $1,200 back."

The commissioners directed that this sum of $1,200, admitted by Mr. Gamey to be in his hands as part of the bribe, should be brought under the control of the commissioners, as had been done with the $1,500 said to be his own share, but herein Mr. Gamey has failed.

(c) In the opening part of the statement it is said that Captain Sullivan on the 7th August met Mr. Gamey and said if he was in Mr. Gamey's place he would resign. (Page 61.) In his evidence Mr. Gamey states that Sullivan recommended no course to be taken. (Page 38.)

DIFFERENT VERSIONS OF CONVERSATIONS.

(d) The account of conversations with Mr. Gamey and Frank Sullivan as given in the statement (pages 61 and 62,) from 7th to 10th August, are given in a different and totally inconsistent manner by Sullivan in his evidence. (Pages 1,198, 1,209 and pages 1,351 to 1,358, and page 1,188.) Before this, on 3rd July, was the question of the protest, and resigning, with Dr. Arthur. (Pages 2,201 and 2,295.)

(e) The conversation with Mr. Grant in the statement is put very differently, and in a preferable manner by Mr. Grant's evidence. (Pages 1,025, 1,026 and 1,059.) Frank Sullivan agrees with Mr. Grant. (Pages 1,204 to 1,207.)

(f) The agreement to divide is put in the statement about the 12th August. (Page 63.) "Frank and I agreed then." According to the sworn statement of Mr. Gamey this agreement to divide was not made until after the two documents of the 26th August were destroyed—which was on or before the 1st of September (pages 43 and 66, 67, 76 and 77, and pages 388, 389, and 392-94-95.) Frank Sullivan says no such agreements were made, and all is false. (Page 1,351.)

MR. GAMEY AND MR. SMYTH.

(g) The statement as to D. A. Jones at the top of page 63 of the statement is contradicted by Jones. He turned the tables on his nephew, and says that Mr. Gamey offered to procure evidence secretly (so as not to hurt his business) against Miscampbell if he were well paid for it.

Then, as to Smyth, Mr. Gamey said he would support him (Mr. Gamey) in getting franchises, and that Mr. Gamey could get Smyth to do as he (Gamey) was going to do. (Pages 3,007-8, 3,012 and 3,041.)

Compare what Mr. Gamey said to Dr. Arthur, "That there were others who would do as he did." (Pages 2,290 and 2,235.) Jones says he did not know the Sullivans, and that he was acting entirely in his own private interest, and had no connection with, or authority from, any Minister. (Pages 3,005-6-17 and 19.)

MR. McGREGOR'S POSITION.

(h) According to the statement the consultation with McGregor began about the 12th August, and was continued throughout. (Page 63 of exhibits.) See as to 21st August conference with McGregor. (Page 64 of exhibits.) See as to 11th September, "All explained to McGregor on Gamey's return with the alleged bribe." (Exhibits, page 66.)

It is noteworthy that this $1,500 was put into Mr. Gamey's business, with the assent of McGregor, as the fruit of a legitimate deal, and so remained in profitable employment until, at the instance of the commissioners, Mr. Gamey's certificate and endorsed check for $1,500 was deposited with the registrar of the commission on the 15th April, 1903.

(j) First letter received from Jones (page 63 of statement) is explained by Jones as containing information respecting his ploting with Mr. Gamey. (Pages 3,009 to 3,011, and page 3,019.)

(k) The midnight interview with Captain Sullivan at Gore Bay on the 21st August is not contradicted, (statement, page 63,) but nothing appears to have come of it unless it be the alleged agreement of the 26th August, afterwards said to be destroyed (pages 63 and 65,) but which, according to Frank Sullivan, never existed. (See note f, ante.)

CONTRADICTED BY SULLIVAN.

(l) What is set forth in the statement on the top of page 65 as to Smyth of Algoma and Davis petition is denied by Frank Sullivan. (Page 1,382.)

(m) "About 9th September I was taken into Stratton's office by Frank Sullivan." (Page 65, statement.) This was because Mr. Gamey wanted to be introduced to one of the Ministers, Frank Sullivan swears. (Page 1,161.) And, altogether, Sullivan's account is diametrically opposed to Mr. Gamey's. (Pages 1,165-1,169-78, and 1,372.) But this whole affair, from the 9th to 11th September, has been fully considered elsewhere in this report.

(n) On telling Mr. McGregor of the transactions in September, the statement says, "We had to stick to our original arrangement, not to mention it until the House met, as we were afraid they would fix things up in some way before the House met if we told. (Exhibits, pages 66 and 67.) This original arrangement is given at page 63 of the statement. "We came to the conclusion that I should go on and get some evidence that we could prove, and see how far they would go, and whatever we did would be told on the floor of the House, and absolutely no one would know before." As Mr. Gamey shows that several other people besides Mr. McGregor were told, he admits that the word "absolutely" needs explanation. (Pages 234 and 236.)

(o) Second letter from Jones set forth in the statement is explained by him with reference to the scheming between uncle and nephew. (Pages 3,016 and 3,032.)

UNSUPPORTED STATEMENTS.

(p) The greater part of the statement on page 67 about Frank Sullivan and Symth seems not to be supported or referred to in any sworn testimony given in the inquiry. (Pages 3,016 and 3,012.)

(q) The letters as to the appointments 29th September and October 8th (or 7th) are dealt with fully elsewhere. Though there were numerous applications or suggestions made by Mr. Gamey, no action was taken upon any in the way of giving him what he asked. The only two appointments made in which he in any manner intervened were that of Mr. Flesher as J.P. at the instance of the Attorney-General, and that of the Sheriff as returning officer of the referendum, at the instance of the Ministry in the absence of the Provincial Secretary.

(r) There is no distinct evidence as to the greater part of the statement—(page 68)—about Davis' petition, but Frank Sullivan generally contradicts taking such part as is represented. The other matters on pages 69 to top of page 73 of the statement have been discussed elsewhere in this report. As to the interview on the 29th of January, 1903, it is well established that it was telephoned for to the Provincial Secretary's office by Mr. Gamey. (Pages 2,062-3 and 2,459.)

A REMARKABLE OMISSION.

(s) Mr. McGregor's intervention at the end of January, 1903, is emphasized in the statement (pages 70 and 71) "McGregor decided to go down with me next time and we arranged to go about the 7th January (26th of January.) I showed this ('phone message) to McGregor and he went to the buildings with me and saw me go into Mr. Stratton's office—McGregor and I went into the Surveys Department together—and finally he went back with me and saw me again go into Stratton's door with Frank Sullivan at the door marked "private." Then, after taking away interview, Mr. Gamey met McGregor, and "We went over the interview. I altered many words, as we both decided the country would not stand it as written. We discussed the question of refusing to sign the interview and making everything public at once, but we decided to stick to our original plan of not speaking until the House met." (Page 71.)

Then comes the payment of $1,000 about 7 p.m. "And," the statement proceeds, "went to opera house that evening with McGregor and we discussed the affair there. I left for home next morning, and McGregor remained in the city." (Page 73.)

Now, the remarkable thing is, that with all this personally-conducted supervision by Mr. McGregor, and his having a hands in the final shaping of the interview, not a syllable is whispered of the spoils in the pocket of Mr. Gamey as they discussed the affair that same night.

THE X. Y. Z LETTER.

(t) Letter of the 7th of September, Mr. Gamey to the Provincial Secretary, referred to at page 73 of the statement, as to his being called on to resign, was not answered. There was another letter of Mr. Gamey to the Minister which was also not answered by the Minister, and it is not referred to in the statement, that is one of the 4th of November, 1902, asking for a loan of $2,000. The last part of that letter referring to an application made in the spring for the appointment of Swanson as J. P. is made known by the Provincial Secretary to the Attorney-General on the 10th of September in connection with another letter from Mr. Gamey of the 5th of November to the Provincial Secretary, saying that Flesher had not received notice of his appointment as J. P. (See exhibits, pages 1,859 and 82.)

letter of 7th of February, 1903 (page 41 exhibits) emanated from Frank Sullivan as he says without reference to the Minister, and without any knowledge of the letter of February 7th, received by the Provincial Secretary. Sullivan wrote upon the previous request of Mr. Gamey (pages 1,316 and 1,317) and upon information received from Manitoulin people at the Walker House, whose names appear in the X.Y.Z. letter, and "X.Y.Z." was used at Mr. Gamey's suggestion to disguise the letter, because of McGregor and the Gore Bay Postoffice. (Page 1,211.)

ERRORS ABOUT SHORTHAND WRITERS.

(v) The matters alleged on page 74 of the statement as to the action of the Government in anticipation of Mr. Gamey's resignation by sending up agents to place a Socialist candidate in the field, while apparently talked of at the Crossin factory meeting on the night of the 10th of March, were not proved in the sworn testimony. (See pages 725-838 and 886.)

(w) The statement avers that this night interview was taken down by three shorthand writers, as if by question on Mr. Gamey's part, and answer by Sullivan, so that the answers were taken down by these three men. (Page 75.) Whereas the fact is that they were not shorthand writers, and their report consists of a written statement by one prepared next morning (exhibits, page 124) and of their recollection of a long interview which was far from being in accord as given in the witness box.

THE $1,000 NOT MENTIONED.

(x) The last statement at page 75 is that Mr. Gamey asked Sullivan "all about the money, who handed it from Stratton to me, and about everything connected with the transaction." True, it is said there was much stress laid upon the parcel said to contain $3,000 which is made, as has been already observed, the gravamen of the whole accusation, but it is equally clear that not a word was spoken about the recent payment at the end of January of the $1,000, half of which was in the pocket of Mr. Gamey during this night interview. This looks much like an admission that it was not connected with the transaction, so far as Sullivan was concerned, for if he could have corroborated it he would surely have been asked. This last meeting of the Sullivan-Gamey combination took place at night in the upper room of the Crossin piano factory, and the record of it is left in strange confusion by the divers witnesses, who tell how it came about and what is said to have been discussed during its continuance.

OF LITTLE VALUE AS EVIDENCE.

What really happened at that meeting does not appear to be of controlling value as regards the material matters of this investigation. At most it may affect the credibility of Frank Sullivan, but any admissions then made by him (after his ostensible agency had long ceased) could not be used as proving what he admits as against an absent person. This is putting the evidence in the factory at its highest, supposing any clear result could be extracted from it, but there is contradiction as to the object and the meaning of the conversation between the two. According to Mr. Gamey it was to draw corroboration from Sullivan in the hearing of the three hidden witnesses. According to Sullivan it was to rehearse a method of procedure by which they could force the Provincial Secretary to accede to their demands or suffer a disclosure which would ruin the Government, and he humoured Mr. Gamey after first warning the Provincial Secretary. (Page 1,232.) And there is also confusion in the accounts given of what was gone over as given by the three under cover. This may be in great part accounted for by the difficulty of keeping track of a discoursive talk of about an hour regarding many complicated things, the listeners being entire strangers to the matters dwelt upon or alluded to.

TOKENS OF UNREALITY.

Tokens of unreality are to be detected. Thus Mr. Gamey in his evidence-in-chief remembers but a few heads of conversation, and they are these: (1) Talk as to the Provincial Secretary being uneasy; (2) about Myers taking the parcel, etc., (not saying what it was,) (Pages 163 and 1644); () that the rest of the Ministers knew of the deal (not defining it); (page 165); (4) about profit in timber and mining properties, and (5) talk of the Davis department, and a man willing to put up a thousand dollars. (Pages 163 to 165.) That is all, though counsel (page 164) made strenuous efforts to lead him to say that money was spoken of in connection with the deal, yet it could not be elicited. His answer was (page 165) "I do not recollect." This examination in chief was on Monday and the cross-examination was not reached until Wednesday and during the interval the memory of Mr. Gamey became wonderfully refreshed and enlarged, and instead of these five topics he brought in eight or ten more, and gave information now no longer on the "parcel," but the "money transaction," and also about getting the rest of the money, and also about paying back the money to the Government. (Pages 512, 514 and 518.)

STUDIED EFFORT TO ADJUST DETAILS.

And, again, there is a studied effort to adjust details as to the handling of the parcel, bespeaking, not the recollection of an actual occurrence but of something fabricated for an occasion.

Mr. Gamey gives this account: "I asked if he thought Myers could be trusted, and he said yes; he did not think Myers knew more than about handling the parcel. He said he took the parcel from Stratton and handed it to Chase, who brought it to the smoking room. (Pages 163 and 513. I said I would take out my book and put down "Chase." He said we do not want to get mixed about that; we want to be sure of the man. (We do not want to get our stories crossed; to be sure our stories agree, as then we could hold Stratton up if he did not do right afterwards as to timber. (Pages 512 and 514.)

The version of W. H. Price: Sullivan said we want to have everything in good shape. Gamey said I could not help thinking about that Myers that took the money down into the smoking room. (Page 729.) They wanted to get everything down right; they did not want to have any difference in little things about it. (Page 766.)

Version of P. C. Price: Gamey said I could not help thinking of Myers who took the money down to the smoking room. Sullivan said, Myers did not. He says here is a thing we must get right, and said, Stratton handed it to Myers, and Myers to Chase, etc. (Page 838.) I think Gamey said we must have everything right, Frank Sullivan, (page 835) said that is a thing we must be very particular about, as to the handing of the money to Myers and Myers to Chase. (Page 862.) They only got the money as security until Gamey got something else, and they would get it back if they got the timber limits. (Page 877.)

Version of J. A. Kinney: He told how Sullivan corrected Mr. Gamey as to the handling of the parcel. Sullivan did not say you have not got it down right, you want to be careful to be right. (Page 898.) I think Gamey said you want to be careful to be right. (Page 899.) They both joined in stating they wanted to have the thing right if there was any future trouble. (Pages 900 and 901, and 914.

SINGULAR DISAGREEMENTS.

Frank Sullivan says my idea was that Gamey was playing me, as it were, and I was playing him. (Page 1,283.) We were to stick to the story that Gamey went to Stratton, and that Stratton handed the money to Myers, but at the factory Sullivan represented that the story was that Chase came in as handing the money, and then Gamey accepted that version. (Pages 1,229-30 and 1,288.)

And, further, Gamey said before this, that he had been given funds to carry this thing out. (Page 1,269,) and said if we put these deals through you can return the money to them. He led me to believe that he had received money from his own people. (Page 1,290 and 1,291.)

And, generally, on the material points about the rest of the money being paid over and about paying back the money to the Government, Frank Sullivan contradicts the others. Again singular disagreements of recollection occur such as these: The two speakers deny that any reference was made to Mr. Gamey becomming Minister of Mines, whereas two of the so-called reports assert that this was then spoken of. (Pages 1,300, 902, 842, 873, 728, and 765.)

It does appear, according to Sullivan, to have been discussed between him and Mr. Gamey the day before when the details were gone over in a preliminary rehearsal. (Page 1,284.)

If the two speakers get their stories mixed as to the parcel, is it possible the three hidden reporters have got their stories also mixed? Altogether, the conversation as reported rather adds to the confusion than solves any of the salient difficulties about the parcel of money.

Nothing was said of the alleged second payment of $1,000.

DEMEANOR OF WITNESSES.

As to the demeanor and credibility of the witnesses generally, the commissioners would report that most of them seemed to be desirous to tell the truth. Of the more important witnesses the commissioners were impressed by the evidence of Dr. Arthur, Dr. Struthers and Mr. J. F. Boyd.

Frank Sullivan and Mr. Gamey were two of the chief actors in the variety of transactions under investigation, and their evidence is contradictory and irreconcilable at most if not all important points. Both, by their own confession, practised systematic duplicity and pursued tortuous courses of dealing with self-serving interests much in view. Implicit relinnce should not be placed upon their uncorroborated statements in material points, and where those statements conflict with those of independent or disinterested witnesses the latter should be preferred.

Whatever comment may be made upon the expression attributed to the Provincial Secretary by Mr. Hammond, when recalled (page 3,105,) it seems to the commissioners unwarrantable to assign to it such exaggerated import as to overshadow the whole body of substantial evidence in favour of the Minister and against the member. The testimony of Hammond was on a comparatively minor branch of the inquiry, that is, relative to The Globe interview, which, apart from the payment of money as to its price, does not loom largely in the investigation, and the statements of Hammond are not in conflict with those of the Provincial Secretary, save as regards some variation in details, which happen very commonly in evidence of different speakers.

AN INTERVIEW PROPER.

It was a proper thing to take steps to advertise publicly the change in the political attitude of Mr. Gamey, and had greater prescience been vouchsafed, the publicity would likely have been more advantageous if made earlier. Mr. Sheldon Amos, writing of cases in which a member leaves his party on account of independent convictions, says: "As a matter of fact, very little encouragement is shown at present to defections of this sort, and when they occur the member who is guilty of them is invariably put to the utmost pains to defend his action, and, in the opinion of his own party, never does succeed in freeing himself from the imputation of disloyalty, not to say treachery. Nevertheless, if the grounds on which an individual departure from the ranks of party may be justified were clearly ascertained and publicly announced, it is probable that not only would the institution of party government be rid of much of the moral suspicion with which it is in some quarters regarded but its true nature and object would be better appreciated throughout the country." (Pages 71 and 72, from "Fifty Years of the English Constitution, -880.")

MR. GAMEY'S CREDIBILITY.

Looked at in the large, Mr. Gamey's version is, that his purchase originated with Frank Sullivan and the Provincial Secretary; that he was taken to the Minister's office, whom he did not know; that the letter he was to sign was all ready, and put before him for signature, and the information volunteered by the Minister that the protest would be withdrawn, all the patronage given to him, and unstated valuable consideration paid when he signed, but as the money was not ready, the bargain and sale was not then consummated.

Mr. Aylesworth's evidence alone, to which it was not disputed verity attached, suffices to show that this version is misleading and untrue.

The conduct and memory of Mr. Gamey, as to these bribe moneys, detract from his credibility. At a momentous point in his life, and within a few months of the occurrence, he is uncertain as to the day when, and the person from whom, the $3,000 came. Having conferred with prominent men in his party (as he says,) and arranged his methods, he employs his share, $1,500, in business, as if it were a legitimate transaction. He makes no mention in his statement to the House of how he came into possession of $1,200, part of the other moiety, said to be received by Sullivan, and of which he says $900 was paid into the Crossin business. But, when this is discovered by search in the Crossin books, the two pages containing entries for the 10th and 11th September disappear, not by the hands of Mr. Crossin—and Mr. Gamey is the only other who had access to them.

Then follows the procuring of the deposit slip from the bank by Mr. Gamey, and its disappearance.

Then the explanation given to the reporters at Buffalo, with a view to publication, that this $900 was collected during the summer in Manitoulin Island.

And the final statement under oath, that it was part of a loan of $1,200 from Frank Sullivan.

WHERE DID THE MONEY COME FROM?

The evidence on the other side precludes the conclusion that this $3,000 was received by Mr. Gamey from the Provincial Secretary on or about the 11th September, and if that be so its true source is not yet disclosed.

And, again, as to the $500 said to be received on the 29th January. Though Mr. McGregor comes expressly to assist Mr. Gamey at this stage of the enterprise, and does assist in correcting The Globe interview, and though he and Mr. McGregor meet that same night and discuss this matter, yet the money is not exhibited or mentioned. It is not shown to anyone, but carried about continuously in Mr. Gamey's pocket until produced in the House. And then, when Mr. Gamey was finally preparing for making his statement, and planning to procure all possible corroboration from Sullivan, in the hearing of three hidden witnesses, and though the $500 was then actually in his pocket, as he says, he does not make the slightest reference or allusion to it at the Crossin factory on the night before the House met.

NO BRIBE FROM STRATTON.

From these omissions the inference is most persuasive that no bribe or money was received from the Provincial Secretary on the 29th January but that the money was afterwards acquired, and if that be so, then the real source of this money is not yet disclosed.

This much more may be said about "where the money came from," that Mr. Gamey declined to make any statement under oath to the commissioners about the "deposit slips and those things" (pages 2,982 and 2,983,) ostensibly on the ground that criminal action was being contemplated in that regard. But he said further that he "cannot understand how it is relevant to his case."

WHERE A CLUE MIGHT BE FOUND.

Without pressing against him the maxim "omnia presumuntur contra spoliatorem," and though the despoiling was done "pendente lite et sedente curia," it is very reasonable to believe that if the missing pages of the Crossin book could be seen they would disclose or give a clue whereby would be discovered the genesis of the $900 and of the $1150, both coming, as Mr. Gamey now swears from one and the same source.

His explanation of the particular source is not so worthy of credence as if the books had been left unmutilated.

It is difficult to frame any consistent account of Mr. Gamey's career as member, for it was throughout inconsistent, as he played a double part, but this much appears in the evidence. His politics was Manitoulin, with Gamey as member, on the side of any Government in power, to the end that he might serve his constituency and also secure shares in the various deals supposed possible by not over-scrupulous men.

JONES-GAMEY-SULLIVAN COMBINATION.

First, was formed the Jones-Gamey combination with a view of securing "franchises." But as Mr. Gamey's friend, Frank Sullivan, by his braggart style and pretended access to the Minister (page 1,325), fostered the belief that he had more influence, the uncle was superseded and the Sullivan-Gamey combination began. As the first move, support was assured to the Ross Government by the letter of the 10th September, and on the same day Mr. Gamey takes part in the Conservative caucus at Toronto. Then rumours got abroad of his defection from party lines, and he notifies his manner of support by the amended letter of 27th October, so that, while acting as occasion required in the interests of the Conservatives, he engages to support the Government when the House meets, if Mr. Ross has a reasonable majority. Accordingly in January, 1903, he takes part in the North Perth campaign for the Conservatives, but is embittered because he was belittled by the action of the Conservative leaders. (Pages 2,008, 2,299, 2,300 2,302.) He repairs to the Provincial Secretary, and begins discussing appointments, but being confronted with his conduct in North Perth he declares his willingness to advertise publicly his real and true position. This was after the Government majority had been increased to five. The Globe interview is published at the end of January, wherein his political affiliation is still further reduced below the standard of support promised in the letter of the 27th October and only extends to support "in all matters he is satisfied with."

GAMEY HAD TROUBLE.

Nevertheless the publication brings trouble around his head from the Conservatives, and his resignation begins to be talked of. (See letter 10th February, 1903, exhibits, 163, and account of the meeting at Gore Bay, by Mr. Gamey, on the 17th February, exhibits, 107.) But Mr. Gamey is just as unwilling to resign at this crisis as he was after the protest. Dr. Struthers then advised him as a friend, knowing more of the man and his candidature than a stranger, to resign and run as an independent, but the answer, then and always, was the "expense," and the risks and the chances involved in another contest. Yet the member is growing in disfavour with both parties; he is getting to be regarded as a double-minded man, with all that suggests. He surveys the situation. The glowing prospects pictured by Frank Sullivan have failed to become facts. The prestige of directing Governmental patronage appears to be meagre and illusive. He learns that the Government, anticipating his resignation, are planning to put Mr. McMillan, a Socialist candidate, in the field. And then, it may be, comes the patriotic plan of deliverance by letting it leak out that money was at the bottom of his apparent disloyalty. The people supposed he had got a timber concession and Dr. Arthur and Dr. Struthers told him that people would say he had been bought. Let him accept and profit by the belief, or, rather, the assumption of his mercenary defection, but, by a desperate effort, turn it into success by depicting his career as set forth in the statement for the House.

The temptation appears chiefly to be the expectation, if he could get corroboration of his story, that he would become Minister of Mines in a new administration (pages 1,355, 1,383, 1,227 to 29, and 1,279. and in the Crossin factory, pages 767, 728, 763, 842 and 873.) Whether or not this is a correct appraisal of the member's erratic course will depend upon the estimate that may be made of this report with its appendices of exhibits and evidence.

ALL CHARGES DISPROVED.

Mr. Gamey had no personal intercourse with any member of the Ministry except the Provincial Secretary. With two or three of the others he had some official correspondence, but with the rest not even that.

With regard to the added charge of conspiracy, the commissioners are of the opinion that, as a matter of law, there is no evidence whatever to sustain it, as against the members of the Government, and the other persons charged. And, according to the methods of an ordinary trial, they would be discharged from the said accusations by the presiding judicial officer.

This being so, the matter of the original charge alone remains, and as to the Provincial Secretary there is the testimony that has been commented upon.

In our opinion the corrupt charges stand disproved by a great body of evidence which appears to be more accurate and credible than that adduced in support thereof.

THE MONEY NOW IN COURT.

The $1,200 mentioned hereinbefore has not been paid into the hands of the commissioners by Mr. Gamey. The commissioners have impounded two sums of money, $500 in cash produced by Mr. Gamey in the House, and $1,500 represented by his marked cheque of the 3rd of April, 1903. These sums have been lodged in the hands of the accountant of the Supreme Court, and the commissioners advise that the amounts be carried into a separate account to be paid out upon the joint order of the Chancellor of Ontario and the Chief Justice of the King's Bench for the time being, upon its being made satisfactorily to appear that any claimant has legitimate title thereto.

This inquiry occupied twenty-seven days of hearing in open and public session, during which 119 witnesses were examined, giving 3,512 pages of evidence, some 92 exhibits filed, giving 206 pages more, as embraced in a volume of exhibits and 3 volumes of evidence. The arguments of counsel appear in another volume, numbering 3.

All of which is respectfully submitted to your Honour.

THE PETERBOROUGH BOARD OF HEALTH.

An Active Discussion This Morning.

Some Heated Arguments—The Chief's Wit—Mr. Batten's Well.

A meeting of the local Board of Health was held this morning in the Town Clerk's office. There were present Messrs. R. Neill, chairman, Wm. Eyres, G. Schneider, A. Parker, Mayor Roger, Dr. McNulty, and Dr. Bingham, Medical Health Officer, and Chief Roszel.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

An account from J. J. Turner & Sons for $2.50 was confirmed.

Ald. Batten reported that if his well was closed it would "knock off" about one third of his business. He said he had to have water there every day. He asked the board not to close his well which, he said, was fed by a direct spring, and not from the creek. He said he always took precautions that no dirt ever got near the well. He said that the Chief would be after any person taking any water from the city fountain. His well water was exceptionally good.

Mr. Eyres said that he would like a little more light upon the matter. He asked where the spring crossed the street.

Ald. Batten explained to Mr. Eyres the exact position of the spring.

The chairman remarked that he quite agreed with Mr. Batten re the commercial use of the well, but he said that the water had been found to be bad, and said that if all the other wells found bad were to be cleaned out by the owner, as Mr. Batten had suggested, it would not do at all.

Mr. Batten asked if the chairman would name one person who had been taken ill by drinking the water.

The chairman did not attempt to answer Mr. Batten's sally, but again remarked that the water had been found bad.

Mr. Batten remarked that he drank half a pail of water a day. He said he would pay to have the water again examined.

The chairman said that if his was the only well the matter would be different but the Board could not make any exceptions.

Mr. Eyres said that as a Board they had no friends. He said it was the duty of the Board to guard the health of the town. He saw Mr. Batten's difficulty but did not see how it could be surmounted.

Mr. Batten offered to pay for having his well cleaned, and asked if the city water had been tested and found good to drink.

Dr. Bingham—"No."

The Chairman said he did not think the doctor's memory was very accurate in that regard for he remembered it being tested.

Dr. Bingham said it had never been tested since he had held office.

Mr. Eyres said he thought that Mr. Batten was labouring under a misapprehension. He said that the Board did not wish to favour one side or another. It simply wished to keep within the law and not favour either side. He did not wish to hurt Mr. Batten financially.

Mr. Batten asked why the Board had given persons a second chance to clean up their wells.

The Chief said that all owners had been instructed to clean out their wells each year by July 1st.

Mr. Batten—"Why didn't you notify me?"

The Chief—"I gave you another notice." (Loud laughter.)

Mr. Batten then left saying he would leave it in the hands of the Board.

Mayor Roger said that to order a well to be closed because water was found bad once, was going too far in his mind. A man, he said, ought to be given a chance to clean out the well.

Dr. McNulty said that a well should be closed at the discretion of the Board, in accordance with the surrounding circumstances.

Dr. Bingham said that on reading the Health Act he found that it was the duty of the Health Officer to advise the Board. He said he did not believe the analyses of the water had proved it to be bad.

A heated discussion then ensued between the chairman and the Medical Health Officer. In which the chairman said it was rather late for him to say: "Let us be sure that the water is bad."

On motion of Mayor Roger, seconded by Mr. Eyres, it was resolved that on evidence being furnished that an application had been made to the Water Commissioners for a service from Waterworks, the Chief be requested to take no further action until there has been an opportunity of getting the service put in, providing the well is kept from public use in the meantime.

The Board then adjourned until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

ATTEMPTED MURDER OF LIZZIE STEWART.

James Fram Was Arraigned on Saturday.

The Young Woman's Evidence—The Accused Sent up for Trial.

The case of Joseph Fram for attempting to murder and indecently assaulting Elizabeth Stewart, came up again on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, before County Police Magistrate Edmison. The young woman, Miss Edmison. The young woman who with difficulty manage to walk. Her evidence was all that was taken. For two hours she was in the witness box answering the questions of the Crown Attorney and the defending lawyer. The case was sent up for trial.

On being sworn, Miss Stewart said: "I live in Otonabee with Mr. and Mrs. Matchett. I know the prisoner, Jos. Fram, who also lives with Mr. Matchett. He has been with him for two or three years, while I have lived with him for five years. On Saturday afternoon, May 23rd, I and the prisoner were left alone in the house, Mr. and Mrs. Matchett having driven to Peterborough. I washed my hair between 3 and 4 o'clock, at which time I think the prisoner was hoeing near the house. He came in while I was washing my hair. I asked him to bring me some water, which he did. He then went out, into the cookhouse, I think. After I had finished washing my hair I went into the kitchen and sat in front of the stove to dry it. My hair was hanging in front of my face so that I could scarcely see."

The brave young woman then entered into minute details of how Fram assaulted her and how she struggled violently and broke away from his grasp. She said Fram had a gun in his hand and she thought he said he was going to shoot himself. Continuing she said: "I ran into the parlour, but the key was in the wrong side and I could not lock myself in. He followed me, so I ran into the front hall and opened the door and rushed outside. He shouted to me to stop, but I did not do so. When I had reached the front gate—only a few yards distant—he fired, hitting me in both legs, below the knee, but some grains above. I ran to where Mrs. Johnson lives. The house was locked but Mr. Geo. Stewart was plowing near by. I told him most of what had happened. He took my arm and helped me over to the house. Dr. Greer came to see me and extracted a number of shots."

During the cross-examination, which followed, the young woman did not contradict herself once.

THE PETERBOROUGH INDUSTRIAL FAIR.

The Board Met on Saturday Afternoon.

A meeting of the Peterborough Industrial Fair Board was held in the Town Council Chamber on Saturday afternoon. The president reported that he had placed cash prizes as follows:—Horses $650, cattle $512, and sheep, $270, and swine $200, amounting in all to $2500. The balance will it is understood be divided between the other classes. Mr. E. M. Elliott was appointed superintendent.

INTERESTING CEREMONY AT ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL

Rev. Father McCall Officiated at Morning Service.

An interesting ceremony took place yesterday at St. Peter's Cathedral, it being the first communion of children. There were 74 children present, 45 girls and 29 boys. They had received three days immediate preparation, consisting of religious exercises and instruction. The children received communion at 9.15 o'clock Mass at which Rev. Father McColl spoke on the blessed sacrament and the effects of the frequent reception of this communion. He also spoke of the harm of keeping bad company.

Rev. Father McColl was assisted by Rev. Father Dr. O'Brien at the afternoon service at which the confirmation candidates renewed their baptismal vows and were consecrated to the sacred heart of Jesus and promised to imitate and copy the virtues of the Blessed Virgin. They also took the Total Abstinence pledge.

FORESTERS ATTEND ALL SAINT'S CHURCH.

Eloquent Sermon by Rev. W. L. Armitage.

An Appropriate Text—Vehement Denouncement of Stocks and Shares.

The Canadian Order of Foresters attended divine service yesterday evening at All Saints' Church. There was quite a large number of members present who heard an excellent and appropriate address from Bro. Rev. W. L. Armitage who took for his text Epistle of St. James .1 verse 27: "Pure Religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit the Fatherless and Widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the World."

The preacher commenced by saying that it was very probable that the Foresters of Peterborough had heard that text on several occasions, probably as a text, but perhaps not as a motto, for which it would be a most appropriate one. He said that we call ourselves Canadians which he believed to be one of the proudest titles anyone could claim. He said Canadian claims and climate were such as were envied by the world, and that those who govern this country, govern the world. The preacher expressed his sincere hope that we as Canadians by the grace of God might set up a standard of true religion, which he, quoting his text said, was to help the fatherless and the widows in their affliction. He said this was the secret of our success as a nation. The preacher remarked on the fact that both rich and poor might alike belong to the Order of Foresters and expressed his pleasure at knowing that there was only one bar to entering this excellent brotherhood and that was an unclean character. Talking of religion Rev. Mr. Armitage said that there were many answers to the question "What is Religion," a few of which he gave but he continued by saying that true religion and undefiled before God was to visit the fatherless and the widows in their affliction and not only that alone but also to keep unspotted from the world. He said that if we wished to know who was a real Christian we must measure him by the above standard. The speaker remarked that the best church was not always the church which was large and had good seats, where the singing was excellent; it was the church which went willingly out into the world to help all those who were in trouble, more especially the weak and helpless. Speaking of keeping unspotted from the world the preacher remarked that unspotted in ancient times meant not to get attached with leprosy, nowadays it meant not to let ourselves by mastered by worldly things. He vehemently denounced stocks and shares remarking that no one should ever want to grow rich in a day. He said that out of every hundred who invested in these only two got rich, the other 98 of them were hopelessly ruined financially.

Rev. Mr. Armitage remarked that we all must try to make this world better by our living in it. To illustrate his text more fully the preacher took that One character which is our model, the character and life of our Lord Jesus Christ, He said that while in this world our Lord was mostly needed by the fatherless and the widows in their affliction. He was to the last the friend of the fatherless and the widows. The preacher implored those present, especially the brotherhood, to think of the time when perhaps any one of them might be called away from this world. He urged them to prepare for that hour so that provision might be made for their widows and children.

In conclusion the eloquent preacher remarked, that in fighting the great fight of faith let us take God for our example and let us fulfil this text which he has set down for us.

The service concluded in the usual manner.

PRESENTATION TO SANDFORD R. HALL.

Friends in Y. M. C. A. Remember Their Comrade.

At the union meeting of the Boys' Bible Training Classes yesterday morning at the Y.M.C.A., the members and leaders gave farewell to Mr. Sandford R. Hall, who leaves this evening for Montreal, to accept a similar, but more lucrative position with the Bank of Toronto there. Sandy, as he was familiarly known, will be greatly missed by that department. He became interested in Boys' work in 1897 and since that time has been chairman of the Boys' Department, as well as a leader of the Senior Boys' Training Class, which he was successful in organizing.

The manifestation of regret of losing Sandy was indeed intense and to show they appreciated his comradeship and work among them, presented him with a copy of the Book they had studied with him, accompanied by the following address:—

Y.M.C.A. Peterborough,
June 7th, '03.

Mr. R. Sandford Hall

Dear Sandy,—We, the members of the Boys' Department of the Y.M.C.A. upon hearing of your intended departure from among us, wish to extend to you our congratulations upon the promotion which you have received, coupled with the regret that we are losing a member of the association who has been foremost in bringing our Boys' Department to its present standard.

As a worker amongst us you have been untiring in your efforts all for our good, not alone as an enthusiast in games and sports, but you have manifested in no small degree your devotion to the Master's service, having served as the first chairman of the Department, and as a leader of the senior training class in Bible study for the past five years.

In bidding you farewell, we ask your acceptance of a copy of the greatest book in the world, to take as a remembrance of your work among us. Read it to be wise, believe it to be safe, and practice it to be holy. It contains light to direct you and comfort to cheer you.

Signed on behalf of the Boys' Department,

MELLVILLE M. ROBINSON,
President.

HORSE THIEVES LOSE THEIR LOOT.

Mr. Lang's Mare Succeeds in Worsting Her Captors.

Daring Robbery of Harness and Buggy Also Repeated—Constable Cochrane Secures Return of Property.

The valuable driving mare which was stolen from Mr. Lang's stable on Friday night has been found and returned to her delighted owner, thanks to the prompt, and, as the sequel shows, effective means employed by High Constable Cochrane. The animal, after being taken from her owner's stable Friday night, was concealed at some point between Springville and Bridgenorth during Saturday, and Saturday night the same thieves entered the buildings of Mr. Young, near the latter village taking a set of harness and a phaeton, to which after a great deal of difficulty, as is shown by a very much trampled field of grain, they hitched the stolen mare. Their difficulty is attributed to the fact that the mare had never been driven single, and being a very lively and high-spirited animal, objected strenuously to the attempts made to hitch her.

After succeeding in this they drove through Lakefield on their way eastward, but their troubles were not ended, as the stolen mare did not take kindly to the indignity of being driven through the country by horse thieves and in some way succeeded in getting away from her captors, making straight for the farm of Mr. Ed. Abbott, Douro, where she was well taken care of until Mr. Cochrane, who had been making liberal use of the telephone, located the stolen property.

Mr. Lang is much elated over the return of his very valuable beast which he valued at $200, and this morning Mr. Young received his phaeton and harness.

Mr. Cochrane finds Sunday business particularly brisk. A week ago he effected the arrest of young Fram.

The High Constable wishes through the Examiner to warn farmers that there is a gang of horse thieves persistently operating in this county and urges upon any farmer who loses anything which in his opinion can be traced to this source, to first ascertain if possible what direction the thieves took and then immediately communicate with Mr. Cochrane.

FARMER'S INSTITUTE MEETING A SUCCESS.

Good Work Accomplished During the Year.

Reports Received—Officers Elected—Meetings Arranged for Coming Year.

The report of the Farmers' Institute meeting which follows was crowded out of our Saturday's issue:—

The annual meeting of the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute was held in the council chamber Saturday afternoon. The President, Mr. E. M. Elliott, who was in the chair made a capital ringing speech reviewing the splendid work the Institute had accomplished during the last year and of the great benefit acruing to the farmers through its instrumentality. That this speech was well received by those present and that the work of the Institue during his term of office was of a satisfactory character, was evidenced by the fact that at a subsequent meeting of the directors, Mr. Elliott was re-elected to the office of President.

The report of Mr. Wm. Collins was then received, which was as follows:—

To the Members of the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute.

Gentlemen,—On behalf of your executive committee I beg leave to submit for your approval the annual report for the year ending May 30th, 1903.

The last year has been one of prosperity for the farmers, as far as good crops and prices were concerned. We have had a fairly successful year with our Institute work, having held thirteen meetings at which many excellent addresses were delivered by able delegates whom were:—D. Anderson, Andrew Elliott, D. Drummond, J. H. Smith, A. W. Pearl, W. F. Kidd and Miss Morris, besides some excellent local speakers of whom we might specially mention Rev. Father McColl, Rev. Father Fitzpatrick and D. Hughes-Charles, Manager of the Bank of Commerce in Peterborough, giving a total of 63 addresses to audiences aggregating 1,940. But while we have had such large attendances at the meetings and the best of order and attention to the addresses it is to be lamented that so small a proportion of those present could be induced to join the Institute, when by so doing they would receive reports, bulletins, etc., that would keep them posted on what the Agricultural Colleges and different associations were doing to improve the condition of the farmers and these reports cannot be acquired in any other way than by forming as Institutes as the members' roll is used for a mailing list and consequently every farmer should become a member. We would ask our members and directors to lend a helping hand towards increasing the membership of our Institute so that we may rank among the largest and best in the Province.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

WM. COLLINS,
Secretary.

The report of the Auditors was then presented which gave the state of the finances as follows:—

RECEIPTS.

Cash on hand	$22 71
Membership fees	46 50
Municipal grant	25 00
Legislature grant	25 00
Receipts from meetings, etc.	9 00
Total	$128 37

EXPENDITURES.

Expenses for conventions or meetings	$25 00
Officers' salaries and directors' expenses	42 00
Postage, etc.	7 50
Printing	18 90
Advertising	22 00
Lecturers' expenses	13 82
Misscellaneous	9 70
Total	$138 92

These amounts on examination were found to be correct, and after the amount due on the treasurer's salary was ordered paid there was a deficit of $10.75.

Regarding the work of the coming year, it was decided to hold meetings at the usual places except Young's Point, which on account of the small number of members at that place may be omitted from the list unless an increase is shown. On motion Mr. Jas. D. Fowler and Samuel Deyell were added to the Board of Directors which otherwise will be the same as last year.

After the adjournment the Board of Directors met and elected the following officers:—President, E. M. Elliott; Vice President, Mr. R. Q. Dench; Secretary, Mr. William Collins.

These gentlemen are all enthusiastic in their belief in the benefits of the Institute and will no doubt be able to effect a considerable increase in membership. Farmers in all parts seem to be taking a deeper interest in the work of the Institutes, recognising, as they no doubt are becoming to, their almost incalculable value. It is an undisputed fact that in no province or state are the interests of the farmers (who are well termed the back-bone of the country) as well safe-guarded, or as much effort made to help them to an intelligent understanding of their profession, as in Ontario. The government has made large appropriations for this purpose, and that it has been well expended is fully proven by the better conditions which surround life on a farm now, by reason of improved methods in agriculture.

Let Others Experiment.

There is always something new in the way of medical treatment and you are constantly invited to try new-fangled, unproven remedies. Let others exeprirment and so lose time and risk health. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have been tried in the crucible of time, won the approval of public opinion and demonstrated their right to a place in every home as a family medicine.

For the Denver C. E. Convention.

Very low excursion rates have been arranged from all points in Canada to Colorado, leaving July 6th, 7th, and 8th., good for return up to August 31st. Everybody can go, the rate is wide open and this is a splendid opportunity to spend a vacation among the Rockies at slight expense. The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway and connections will run special Standard First-Class and Tourist Sleeping Cars through to Denver, besides the regular daily service from Chicago.

For full information, time tables, pamphlets, rates and sleeping car reservation write to A. J. Taylor, Canadian Passenger Agent, 8 King street, east, Toronto, Ont.

OUTRAGEOUS ATTACK ON CHANCELLOR BOYD.

The report of the learned judges, who composed the commission to investigate the "Gamey charges," is a sore disappointment to certain Conservative partizans. It is gall and wormwood to them to see the plot that was to drive the Provincial Secretary from public life, to overthrow the Government, and, consequently, to bring the Conservatives to the sweets of power and the spoils of office, utterly discredited and exposed. It is gall and wormwood to them to see the charges against Mr. Stratton and the Government utterly disproved to see Mr. Stratton and the Government completely exonerated, to see both emerge from the snare sought to be set by the member for Manitoulin—"acting under legal advice"—unscathed and unharmed. In rabid disappointment they are running amuck — denouncing the commission, berating and accusing the commissioners as vulgar partizans, guilty of prostituting their high office, to defeat the ends of justice, in order to compass a party advantage, and practically committing perjury, in violating their oaths of office, for no advantage to themselves, but rather to their disadvantage, for if they were for one moment in the slightest degree guilty of the monstrous charge made against them, their portion would be eternal obloquy and shame.

Speaking of the report of the commissioners the day after it was presented to the House, the Mail and Empire says:

"The report of the Royal Commission on the Stratton bribery case is obviously the production of Sir John Boyd. That it was not prepared by Mr. Johnston, the counsel for the defence, is made clear by the fact that Mr. Johnston's argument in favour of his client was not nearly so strong as the 'judgment' the Chancellor has kindly volunteered to give. But it would have been infinitely better if it had come from Mr. Johnston instead of from the Chancellor. Everybody looks to such deliverances from lawyers in behalf of their clients. It is, indeed, the duty of these gentlemen to advance all the arguments they can possibly muster in support of the interest they represent. From the bench, however, something very different is expected.....We venture to say that Judge Boyd's volunteered opinion overreaches itself.....From beginning to end Sir John Boyd's report is special pleading. It suts out to pull Mr. Stratton through and to put Mr. Gamey down, and it accomplishes these purposes in so far as a written document can be effective."

Is this worthy, is this decent language, to apply to the highest and most honourable judicial functionaries in the land? Though only Sir John Boyd, Chancellor, is mentioned, the condemnation includes Chief Justice Falconbridge, who, as a member of the commission, sat with Sir John Boyd, heard the same evidence, signed, with Sir John, the report, and was, and is, co-equal with him in responsibility for its word and purport. What grounds can the Mail and Empire, which is the mouthpiece—unrepudiated—of the leading members of the party it represents, have for the shameful attacks on our judiciary it is leading? No grounds whatever, except the rancour of party disappointment. In its impotent rage over an adverse decision, it vents its spite and spleen upon the judges, and has no quarrel whatever with the inadequate evidence presented to sustain the Gamey charges — evidence whose character forces the conclusions the judges deduced, the only conclusions that could be drawn.

It is safe to assert that had the report of the judges been as strongly in favour of the Mail's prejudices, as it was against them, its applause of the righteousness of the judgment, and of the fairness of the judges, would have been as cordial as its condemnation of the judges and of their finding is now vicious. The organ has no ground for its denunciation of the judges, no excuse, but the disappointment of rabid partizanship. Looking through the spectacle of party, spattered with Manitoulin mud, it naturally sees the judges covered with imperfections. There is no ground for accusing the judges of partizanship. Chancellor Boyd was appointed by Sir John Macdonald. In his early life, it is asserted he had Conservative leanings, but never was active in politics, nor closely allied to either party. He was, and is, non-partisan. His reputation as a judge is stainless, and his private life is on a high plane. He is a prominent and honoured member of the Baptist church, and has been prominent in promoting its interests. In every way as a man, as a citizen, and as a jurist and judge, he is high-minded and honourable. The last man to whom any one, except a bigotted and shameless partizen would for a moment impute improper motives and biased or unfair discharge of his high functions. Surely his colleague on the commission, Chief Justice Falconbridge, will not be charged with partizan leanings adverse to the Conservatives. He has been a life-long Conservative and was actively concerned in Conservative party politics before he ascended the beach. His membership in the Albany Club defines his position in politics and his resignation from the Senate of Toronto University because he could not concur in the conferring of an honourary degree upon a noted advocate of Commercial Union, showed the strength of his Conservative convictions. Yet in condemning Sir John Boyd, the condemnation must include his associate on the commission. In neither of the judges is there any predilection or motive for partizan bias. Nor will anybody but a rabid partizan like the Mail & Empire dare say so. Even Hon. S. H. Blake, K.C., the counsel for the Conservative prosecution did not think so. In his argument before the commissioners he paid this compliment to the character of the judges:—

"I leave this matter in the hands of the commissioners—men well known and honoured in our community for their high position, for their honour, for their ability. I may say men with whom I have companioned all my life and know whereof I speak."

One would think that Mr. Blake, the newest acquisition of the Conservative party, with the zeal which a political pervert usually exhibits, would, of all men, find flaws in the judges appointed by a Liberal Government.

The attitude of the Mail, there is reason to believe, is the attitude its party will assume in regard to the report. Though it would hardly be though that the reckless impulsiveness of Mr. Whitney, the leader of the Opposition, would permit him to follow such a dangerous and dastardly leading as that set by the chief party organ. Will he follow the organ in singling out Chancellor Boyd for attack and with insulting indifference ignoring Chief Justice Falconbridge, and practically pronouncing the latter a mere puppet in the hands of the Chancellor, a man who would on his responsibility as a judge, sign a report he did not concur in.

It is quite evident that, as has been the case from the beginning, the sole aim of the Conservative organ and the Conservative party is to make party profit out of the Gamey matter. If the angel Gabriel himself had pronounced judgment, and that judgment had been unfavourable to Conservative ideas and wishes, the same violent objection would have been urged the abuse of the judge, the same efforts to reap party advantage, would have been forthcoming. Next week in the House the Mail's attitude followed by the Opposition, who hoped the "Gamey charges" would pave their way to power, in their disappointment they will probabuse the judges—they did it in advance and they have greater reason from their point of view to do it, now. They are after office, after the spoils and will probably count all things lawful that lead to this goal. At least it looks as if they would take this course, and omnia presumuntur contra spoliatores.

EXCELSIORS PLAY GOOD BALL.

At the Murray street grounds on Saturday afternoon the Excelsiors and Auburns played by far the best game seen on the local diamond in a long while. Both teams played good, snappy ball, the aggregate number of errors made by both teams being only four. It was essentially a pitcher's battle with honours slightly in Flaherty's favour, but McCorry pitched splendidly as he was working under difficulties, having hurt his finger in a recent game. Cassan in right field made a number of very difficult catches look easy, while Waram at shortstop for the Excelsiors played gilt edge ball having to his credit 4 p.o's, figuring in 2 assists, and having no errors.

The Excelsiors scored in the 2nd and 3rd innings. In the second Howell made a hit and stole second on a throw from the plate, which Boyd let pass, scoring on a throw in. In the third Byers was first to bat and was thrown out at first. The next man flew out to Cassan, while Sheridean with two out made a hit, stole second and scored on Waram's hit.

The Auburns were forced to play under difficulties which may account for their inability to scors. Parnell had a badly smashed thumb, and Renton was out of the game, suffering from a broken jaw. Two fast double plays were made, one being credited to each team. The score which follows shows that each team played gilt edged ball:—

Earned runs, 0; stolen bases, Belleghem, Howell; sacrifice hits, Long and Parnell; double plays, Waram to Howell to Pilling; Boyd to Derocher; struck out, by Flaherty 7, McCorry 6; bases on balls, Flaherty 2; hit by pitcher, Waram. Umpire, R. R. H. Kenner. Time of game 1.35.

The paid admissions were 168, while those who saw the game from various vantage points numbered about 968. It is to be regretted that so many are willing to take this cheap method of supporting local sporting enterprises.

BABY BURIED ALIVE.

TRAGIC DEATHS OF A DAY.

Calexte Lascelles, an Ottawa Boy, Dies a Hero—15-Year-Old Boy at Cincinnati Torn to Pieces by Hounds—Chas. Black, Brockville, Killed by a Train—Thos. Gill Smothered by Hay in Toronto.

Toronto Junction, June 8.—An infant, only three or four days old, was discovered by Mr. Johnson, sticking out of a sandbank, on his farm, near the Scarlett road, about noon yesterday. The child had apparently been there for a long time, as it was completely exhausted, and it is hardly likely to survive. The sandbank where the baby was found is in a spot where few people are apt to pass it, and it might have been there for several days without being discovered. It was buried up to its neck in sand, and could not move. The object of this desertion cannot be accounted for. Mr. Johnson is taking care of the child until it is taken off their hands by the county authorities. High Constable Ramsden has been notified.

Ottawa Boy Died a Hero.

Ottawa, June 8. — Calexte Lascelles, a ten-year-old boy, died a hero's death on Saturday afternoon. With three companions, he was in swimming in the Ottawa River, near the Rideau Canal locks. A companion got into deep water, and the brave little fellow jumped to the rescue. The remaining two boys raised an outcry, and men working nearby ran to the rescue. They managed to save one boy, but little Lascelles was too far gone when taken out of the water.

Hounds Tore Him to Pieces.

Cincinnati, June 8.—John Fisgus, aged 15 years, was fatally hurt yesterday by a kennel of 25 hounds. As he was approaching the kennel of Julius Ernst, the hounds seized him and tore him almost to pieces. Mrs. Ernst was seriously hurt in trying to rescue the boy.

Killed by a Train.

Brockville, June 8.—Charles Black, 17 years of age, lost his life yesterday morning on the Grand Trunk Railway tracks about two miles east of here. He and another young fellow were "beating" their way to Cornwall on a freight train and were riding between the cars on the drawheads. Black fell from his perilous position, and the wheels passed over him, killing him almost instantly. He was employed by the Bell Telephone Company here as collector, and was a bright young fellow and highly esteemed.

Smothered in the Hay.

Toronto, June 8.—Lying dead with his face buried in a pile of hay, in a stable at the rear of 204 Duchess street, Thomas Gill, a vegetable pedlar, was found Saturday afternoon by his employe, George Perks. Gill had been drinking for some time, and went to the barn to sleep off the effects.

A Canadian Murdered.

Whitby, June 8.—News was received here last night of the death of Percy Cole, formerly of this town, in New York. He was found dead under circumstances that point to murder. Percy Cole, 15 years ago, was a trusted accountant in the Ontario Bank here. The bank was robbed of several thousand dollars, and he was convicted of the crime. He served a term in Kingston Penitentiary.

Prisoner Suicided on Train.

Winnipeg, June 8.— A young German, named Ziebel, who was arrested in Battleford for raising cheques on the Bank of Hamilton, with no funds in bank, and was being brought here by the police, died suddenly at the Central Station on the Battleford train. An inquest will be held, as it is thought he committed suicide.

Telegrapher Cut in Two.

Rochester, N. Y., June 8.—Edward Kingston, a telegrapher, 24 years of age, of Mount Morris, was cut in two on the Pennsylvania Railroad a mile south of this city, while trying to board a slowly-moving train. His foot caught in a frog and threw him under the wheels.

Killed by a Fall.

Guelph, June 8.—Steve Barbaree, with three other men, fell with a scaffolding from the barn of Mr. Gilbertson of Nassagaweya Township on Friday and died Saturday morning.

Farmer Drops Dead.

Keene, June 8.—Mr. George Easson, a highly respected farmer in the vicinity of Keene, dropped dead Saturday afternoon.

Killed at the Soo.

Windsor, June 8.—William Lareny, an employe of the Canadian Bridge Co., was killed last week at Sault Ste. Marie.

Able to Do Work.

London, June 8.—Mr. Justice John D. Armour, who has been here for some weeks, and has been rather indisposed, was sufficiently recovered Saturday to attempt light preliminary work in connection with the Alaska Boundary Commission.

Salisbury Better.

London, June 8.—A bulletin issued from Hatfield House yesterday morning states that Lord Salisbury, who was taken with a chill on Thursday evening, passed a good night, and was better yesterday morning.

Bones of Man With Money.

St. John, N. B., June 8.—A crew of fire fighters in the wooded hills of Cranberry Brook, in Charlotte County, have found the clothed skeleton of a man with a large sum of money on it.

The Glow of Health.

When the blood is rich and pure there is a healthful glow to the complexion, which speaks of the vigour and vitality of the system. There is no more certain way for pale weak people to attain the glow of health than by the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great food cure, which forms new, rich, red blood and creates new nerve force.

HEALTH OF THE POPE.

Weakness Marked, But Aged Pontiff Not Considered in Immediate Danger.

Rome, June 8.—The attention of the world has again been centred on the health of the Pope, and again one can say that he is not ill. This has been the case for years, as a real illness would certainly carry him off on account of the weakness attendant on his old age. He has, however, periods of exhaustion which he most obstinately tries to conceal, as he does not wish people to think that he is ill, and insists, in the face of all opposition, upon continuing his daily round of duties as long as it is possible.

In his last audiences it was most painful to see him. He might almost be said not to have seen the people who were before him. When he is obliged to yield to exhaustion he sends word to the doctor not to come near him, so that the physician can truly say that he has not visited the Pontiff, and therefore he must be well.

There is no doubt, however, that these collapses are dangerous, as each one leaves the Pope weaker than it found him, and the fear is being expressed that some day he may not be able to rally.

Mrs. M. J. Dion.

"I have had Rheumatism for thirty years. My joints were swollen three or four times their natural size. Usually in the winter, in spite of the doctor's care, I have suffered terrible pain, and the physicians sometimes thought I was going to die. I took two vials of Munyon's Rheumatism Cure and I have no more pain."—Mrs. M. J. Dion, 40 Cumberland street, Ottawa.

Your druggist will recommend Munyon's Rheumatism Cure; ask him about it. Only 25c a vial.

To Prevent Marine Disasters.

St. John's, Nfld., June 8.—The Canadian Government surveying steamer Gulnare has been engaged for the past ten days in making an exhaustive series of surveys off Cape Race, with a view of determining the variability of the currents and tides, for the purpose of preventing the frequent marine disasters which occur there. It is expected that valuable results will be achieved when the full data is compiled.

Steamer Burned at Kingston.

Kingston, June 8.—During Friday-Saturday night the steamer Empire State, at the foot of Clarence street, was destroyed by fire. Two alarms were given, one at 9 p.m. and the other at 11. By the second the damage was done. The steamer was owned by the Thousand Island Steamboat Company, and fully insured.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists, price 75c per bottle. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

A Good Idea.

The co-operative wedding present is a new idea in Great Britain, where the fact that servants and tenants on estates club together and send one handsome gift seems to have suggested to somebody that friends might do the same. Thus one of the January brides was presented with a diamond ornament and friends of a bridegroom united to buy him an automobile. The Canadian bride sometimes exchanges her duplicates, but that is not always convenient, and it tends to provoke misunderstandings. She, too, will rejoice if the new fashion spreads, so that instead of pickle dishes and the like she may look forward to something substantial, such as a house and lot.

"Real Indian."

A young woman recently received instruction in the art of Indian basketry and had made several copies of Indian baskets of which she was very proud. A friend who had been living in Arizona called upon the young woman, who showed the baskets with considerable pride.

"They are really very well done," commented the visitor, "but of course they are not the real Indian baskets."

"Why, Mrs. Sawyer," indignantly exclaimed the maker, "how can you say that when I just told you that I made them myself?"

Elsie's Spelling.

One day when little Elsie came home from school her mother asked her what she had learned that day. Elsie replied:

"I learned to spell man."

"Tell me how you spell it, dear," said mamma.

"M-a-n, man," replied Elsie.

"And how do you spell boy?"

"You spell it the same way, only with smaller letters," replied Elsie after a moment's thought.

A MONUMENT TO MILTON.

Old St. Giles, Where the Poet Was Buried, to Be Honored.

Except for one rather serious drawback, it would be hard to find a more suitable location in London for the proposed statue to John Milton than that in which it is now intended to place it—directly in front of the ancient church of St. Giles, in Cripplegate, London. Milton is buried in St. Giles—where, by the way, his great employer, Oliver Cromwell, was married—and the poet wrote his "Paradise Lost" in a house near by, which was destroyed long ago. Moreover, the entire surrounding district of Cripplegate is an historic one, and one of much literary interest. Though hundreds of Canadians find and explore it every summer, Cripplegate now is a decidedly out-of-the-way quarter of London, and, of course, the proposed statue of Milton—which will be the first in the metropolis—should have, if possible, a really prominent site.

The scheme of erecting the statue has grown out of an ambition which the vestry of St. Giles have cherished for several years of making many necessary restorations to the historic church and improving considerably its surroundings.

Like many of London's oldest and most interesting churches, St. Giles, besides getting out of repair, gradually has become surrounded, on nearly every side, by rather homely and generally old-fashioned little shops and offices, and these the church's guardians have been anxious for a long time to tear down and afterward to extend St. Giles' churchyard so that the edifice itself may occupy the centre of an extensive open space.

Soon after it was decided, recently, to ask powers from the London County Council to carry out this program, one of the deputies for the Ward of Cripplegate, named Badderly, came forward with an offer to provide the funds for the statue of the great poet so closely associated with St. Giles, for which London has been waiting for so many years, and it now seems certain that the memorial will be erected.

Milton was buried in St. Giles in 1674. His remains were enclosed in a leaden coffin and there is an ugly story that when, in 1790, St. Giles was repaired to some extent, the casket was opened by ruffians and the poet's bones scattered in every direction. This tale has been denied frequently, but quite recently it has been declared by an authority to be true. St. Giles contains a bust of Milton, and the supposed location of his grave is marked by a stone. It was in 1620 that Cromwell, to whom Milton was secretary, was married in St. Giles. The old parish register also records the burial in the church of Daniel Defoe, but it is impossible to locate the grave of "Robinson Crusoe's" author.

St. Giles itself was built about the end of the fourteenth century. Near by it runs what once was the "Grub street," of Pooe and his contemporaries, but which now is named "Milton street." It was in the neighborhood, too, that the famous "Cock Lane ghost" was hunted by Dr. Johnson and Horace Walpole, and that the great fire of London finally burned itself out.

Cost of Being British Officers.

The commission which has been enquiring into the question of the private expenditures of subalterns in the British army has made its report, and with its report has made several recommendations, which may or may not be adopted. It finds that, under present conditions, the initial outlay for a subaltern in a regiment of the line averages $1,000. The annual charges which he must meet averages $780, to meet which he has $480 to pay, leaving a balance of $300 to come out of his private income. In the cavalry these figures become, respectively, $3,000, $1,406 and $800. It is pointed out, however, that in the infantry many officers reduce the initial outlay to $500, while in the cavalry it is more often $5,000. From year to year an infantry officer needs from $500 to $750 private income, and a cavalry at the most conservative estimate, $1,500. Of course, some regiments, owing to the scale in which their living is pitched, are much more expensive than others. In the "crack" cavalry regiments a private income of from $3,000 to $3,500 is absolutely essential to the subaltern. The commission has recommended that the War Office supply field kit, furniture for home stations, at a nominal rent, contribute toward mess, support the bands and in the cavalry supply the chargers. This would mean a saving to infantry subalterns of $250 in the initial expense and $35 to $40 a year. In the cavalry the Government's supplying chargers, saddlery, stable gear and groom would mean a saving of $1,500 a year in the initial expense and about $900 a year.

"Master of the King's Musick."

The London Star says that Sir Walter Parratt, who loses part of his occupation through the disbanding of the King's private orchestra, will retain his appointment as "Master of the King's Musick." He is also organist of St. George's Chapel Royal at Windsor, a professor at the Royal College of Music, and examiner in music to the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge and London. Born in 1841 at Huddersfield, Sir Walter's first organ appointment was at the small church of Armitage Bridge, and his first important post that of organist at Magdalen College, Oxford, which has long been famous for the beauty of the musical portion of its services. When not playing the organ Sir Walter plays chess. He is President of the Oxford University Chess Club, and was for two years captain of the eight chosen to play against Cambridge.

Nerve Sufferers Need Sympathy.

And More Than That, the Nerve Cells Must be Restored and Revitalized by the Use of

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Too many doctors have no sympathy with the sufferer from diseases of the nerves. They do not understand the nervous system, and when the victim of nervous exhaustion or prostration appeals to them he is told to "brace up," forget his trouble, and he will soon be all right.

Anyone who has had nervous prostration, been scarcely able to drag about, felt energy and vitality growing less, and been in constant dread of paralysis, or even insanity itself, knows how utterly useless and discouraging is such advice.

Nervous diseases cannot right themselves. Exhausted, shrivelled nerve cells can never revitalize themselves without assistance from outside. If the blood is weak and watery, and fails to afford proper nourishment, restoratives must be used. Recovery is bound to be slow, but it is none the less certain, and there is no combination of ingredients which has proven so successful as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This famous food is not a stimulant to arouse false hope, but a true restorative, reconstructing wasted cells and tissues, and instilling into the blood and nerves, the essential principles of life and vigour.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food soon wins the confidence of all who are pale, thin, weak or exhausted for by noting your increase in weight while using it you can prove that new, firm flesh and tissue are being added to the body, and realize that weakness and disease are giving way to strength and vigour. Fifty cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50 at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box. 3

MADE KINGS' WAYS EASY.

A Delightful Interview With M. Paoli, Who Has Been Exclusively Attached to All of France's Royal Visitors.

At a quiet little flat on the third floor in a quiet little street in the shade of one of the oldest churches, in an old part of Paris, a voice said, "Come in, please," in quiet, deep tones. The voice was that of M. Paoli—a little man with silvery white hair, snow-white moustache, and deep-set brown eyes, which gleam out of a face that is so typically Corsican that the name Paoli and the big bronze figure of the great First Consul in the place of honor on the mantelpiece are quite unnecessary to show that their owner is a countryman of the great Napoleon. Upon the walls, on etageres, on tables, and on every piece of furniture where there is room to place them are photographs of royal personages with autograph inscriptions—the Queen of Holland, the Shah, the King of Sweden, the Princess of Wales, the late Empress of Austria, and many others; but more numerous than any others are those of the late Queen Victoria. A big official portrait of her late Majesty is on the wall, small water-color sketches of the late Queen on her drives in the Riviera are there, and also a photograph of the Queen in the famous donkey carriage. It is not difficult to see that M. Paoli had a cult for the late Queen of England. In his memoirs, which will be published very soon, this cult will find expression, better than in mere conversation; for, as the dear old gentleman said to me, "I lost a dear friend when she died, and only to my pen can I, at all composedly, confide my feelings."

"I do not, as a rule, like to be interviewed," he said, sitting down next to me and speaking quietly and with an introspective smile. "I prefer to be what I have tried to be for the last fifteen years, the man in the shade, whom nobody notices, and whose work and privilege it is to make the King's way easy."

M. Paoli has been in the service of the French Home Office for the last thirty years, and since Her Majesty first went to Aix-les-Bains some fifteen years ago he has been exclusively attached to all the royal visitors to France—their guide, their protector, and in many ways their mentor. He is naturally proud of it—proud of the invariable smoothness with which each detail of the many royal visits which he has stage-managed has passed off, proud of the confidence placed in him by each succeeding Government of France, proudest of all of the friendship of his many royal and imperial friends.

There were tears in M. Paoli's eyes and deep emotion in his voice as he spoke of the late Queen Victoria. "I was with her at Aix-les-Bains, at Grasse, Hyeres, and at Nice," he said. "I was, to all intents and purposes, more with her than was any other man during her stays in France. Each time she left she asked that Paoli might receive her and look after her upon the coming visit. She treated me not as a servant, but as a friend, and, on the long drives out into the country, when I was practically her sole companion, she even honored me by asking my advice on many matters. Sometimes on these excursions I almost shuddered at the responsibility upon my shoulders. The Queen and Empress of a powerful country, the guest of another. Think of the weight of it! But nothing ever happened. Each time the royal yacht steamed out of Cherbourg, mingled with the natural grief of parting from kind friends, I felt a natural feeling of relief that all had passed off without accident; for you must realize that on these visits I am responsible for everything pertaining to the safety and comfort of the royal or imperial visitor.

"The royal guests of France—I very nearly said 'My royal guests,'" said M. Paoli with a smile—"always make matters very easy for me, and of all the Kings, Queens, Emperors, and Empresses that I have known (it seemed a little odd to hear this quiet statement in a third floor flat of modest aspect) the royal family of England have always been the kindest, simplest mannered, and most charming. The members of your royal family know how much I love them, and they are untiring in showing kindnesses to me. I was invited, and went over to the Diamond Jubilee of the late Queen of England, and I was present at her funeral. The King invited me over to the coronation, and honored me with a long conversation after the ceremonial. As Prince of Wales I knew him well, and he was pleased to say the friendship should continue."

"How is it, M. Paoli, that you don't talk English?"

"The fault of all my royal friends," he answered, "for they all speak French, as do the persons of their entourage. I have always meant to learn your language, but I am a busy man. One had to work hard, don't you see, to keep the signs of my work invisible."—Correspondence of London Pall Mall Gazette.

Tennyson's Uniform.

Once when Tennyson dined with Sir Arthur Sullivan his wide brimmed felt hat and long, flowing cloak greatly impressed a servant at the composer's house. At the end of the evening, when Tennyson had departed, she gave vent to her feelings after asking whether that was "really the poet" in these words: "Well, he do wear clothes?" "Yes, so do most poets," answered Sullivan, "and then you must remember he is the laureate." The girl thought it over for a few minutes, no doubt cogitating on his official position, before she remarked, with a sigh, "What a uniform!"

British Mines in 1902.

The mining industry of Great Britain employed during 1902 856,213 men, 825,401 of whom were engaged in mining coal. There were 227,178,140 tons of coal mined, 29,953 tons of gold ore, 25,062 tons of zinc ore, 6,762 tons of copper ore, 8,925,259 tons of iron ore, 23,615 tons of lead ore, 6,698 tons of tin ore and 25 tons of petroleum.

STRENGTH

Is an attribute of manhood universally desired. Few people understand that the only source of physical strength is food, and that every one who has sufficient nourishing food should be strong. But there are thousands of puny people who have plenty of good food. How is that explained? The explanation is simple. Food does not nourish the body unless digested and assimilated. Diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition hinder the proper digestion and assimilation of the nutrition contained in the foodeaten. Thus the strength of food is lost, wasted.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and its allied organs. It causes the perfect digestion and assimilation of food and thus it makes men and women strong.

"I had been suffering from indigestion so badly that I could not work more than half the time, but now can work every day and eat anything I want," writes Mr. Victor L. Hayden, of Blackstone, Nottoway Co., Va. "Why? Because I took Dr. R. V. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It has put new life and energy in me, restored my health and made a man of me once more. I used to weigh 175 but had gotten down to 144, now am back to 160 and will soon be back at my old weight if nothing happens. Your medicine has done it all."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."

Mr. R. H. Sampson's, Sydney, N.S., Advice to all Sufferers from Nerve Trouble is

"GET A BOX OF MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS."

He says: "I have been ailing for about a year from deranged nerves, and very often weak spells would come over me and be so bad that I sometimes thought I would be unable to survive them. I have been treated by doctors and have taken numerous preparations but none of them helped me in the least. I finally got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. Before taking them I did not feel able to do any work, but now I can work as well as ever, thanks to one box of your pills. They have made a new man of me, and my advice to any person troubled as I was, is to get a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills."

FLOATING SPIRAL.

Wire, Water and Soapsuds Will Make This Toy For You.

If you can get an old watch spring or a small spiral of thin iron or steel wire of any sort, you can easily derive much amusement from it by following the directions here set down. If you cannot get a spiral ready made, find a thin piece of wire and bend it into spiral shape yourself. It will answer just as well. A spiral of fine wire will float if it is well oiled and laid gently on the surface of water. Then if a drop of a strong solution of soap is applied to the center the spiral will make several turns in the direction shown by the arrow—that is, in the direction in which a clock spring turns when it is being wound up. When the motion has ceased, the application of another drop of soapsuds will renew it, and the process may be repeated many times. Alcohol or strong distilled liquor may be used instead of soapsuds with similar results.

THE FLOATING SPIRAL.

Blind Postman.

In this game you first appoint a postmaster general and a postman. The postmaster general goes round to all of the players and writes down opposite their names the names of any town they choose to represent, each person, of course, representing one town. Every one except the postman is provided with a seat. The postman is blindfolded, and the game begins.

The postmaster announces that the post goes from one town to another, and the two players who represent those towns have to change seats, the blindfolded postman meanwhile trying to catch them. If he succeeds, the one caught has to take his turn at being blindfolded.

The Bedtime Train.

When we go upstairs to sleep—
Up the stairs so long and steep—
They're a mountain climbing high
Through the clouds, up to the sky!
Though our train's not very long,
We must have two engines strong.
Harve' and I the engines are;
Mamma 'n babe are each a car.
"All aboard!" Now, here we go!
Don't you hear the whistles blow?
Puff the engines, "Choo, choo, choo!"
Blow the whistles, "Toot, toot, toot!"
See us go around the bend!
There's a tunnel at the end.
Tunnel is the bedroom door
'Cause it's dark there, just before—
"Switch a car; she'll bring the light!"
Now, we'll reach the station right.
"Toot!" We're home; our journey's done;
Bed's the station. Oh, what fun!
—Maude Whitmore Madden in Good Housekeeping.

The Small Boy And His Nose

Clarence's entrance to the kindergarten was delayed by a severe cold in the head. When he was finally able to take a fling at knowledge in her rudimentary forms, his mind was still embittered with memories of past sufferings. When the teacher showed him the picture of a man and put a few simple questions to him concerning the five senses, he could not put the painful thoughts entirely aside. Still his answers did credit to his native intelligence. He said that the mouth was to eat with, the eyes to see with and the ears to hear with, but when he came to the nose he fell down.

"And what is that for?" asked the teacher.

"To blow," replied Clarence, and he couldn't for the life of him see why everybody laughed.—New York Times.

An Obstinate Case.

"Can't you make him stop crying?"

"Nope. I've kicked him and punched him till I'm tired, but it don't seem to do no good."—San Francisco Examiner.

Another Bunko Game.

"Did you hear about Deacon Hawbuck falling from grace last week?" asked the neighborhood gossip.

"No. What was the cause of it?" asked the willing listener.

"A banana skin, so I have been informed," answered the neighborhood gossip.

"Oh, he slipped on the side walk and fractured one of the commandments, eh?" queried the party of the second part.

"No," replied the information peddler; "he purchased three green bananas of a train boy for a quarter."—Chicago News.

A Reckless Culprit.

Bertie (banished for misbehavior)—Don't you think they'll give us anything to eat, Arthur?

Arthur—I don't know, and I don't care.

Bertie—Oh, Arthur! How can you talk like that about fruit and cake and ice cream?—Puck.

A Boiled Potato.

A modern gourmet deplores the rarity of the well boiled, properly cooked potato, saying that that vegetable is almost always waxy, ill boiled and watery. The secret lies in drying the bulb after the water is poured off. This should be done by holding the saucepan on the hot fire a moment, then shaking vigorously until the "flouriness" comes, as it most certainly will if the process be kept up long enough. "I have never yet met the potato so unregenerate as to fail to respond to this treatment," said a noted housekeeper who had read the lament of the gourmet.

Don't Get Slack.

Every time a wife lets herself "look slack"—on each of these occasions she hastens by so much the approach of old age. For to be carefully dressed is to look young, and to look young is to be so. A woman's duty to her children—that is the first and greatest of the claims on her attention, and the second and next in importance is that she shall look as attractive as she can. On these hang good looks and a happy home and a remote old age.

Naming a Town.

At a town in Nevada
The citizens met
Its name to consider;
They fixed on You Bet.
But woman was scarce;
He was lucky who met her;
So the boys advertised,
And the town was You Better.
Now, brides are forthcoming
To all the distressed,
And I hear of a movement
To call it You Best.

Miss Crosby, the Hymn Writer.

Though she has been blind since she was six weeks old, Miss Frances Jane Crosby, as she is generally called, though her real name is Mrs. Alexander Van Allstyne, has written more than 5,000 hymns, many of them known all over the world. And though she is now eighty-three years old, rather feeble and totally blind, she still travels to evangelistic meetings in various cities and gives readings and lectures. Her home is in Bridgeport, Conn. Among the most famous gospel hymns written by Miss Crosby are those beginning: "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," "Pass Me Not, Oh, Gentle Saviour," "All the Way My Saviour Leads Me" and "I Am Thine, Oh Lord; I Have Heard They Voice." Save for the heavy green glasses she is compelled to wear, there is little in Miss Crosby's manner while lecturing to indicate her sightlessness. She reads her notes, printed in raised letters, with almost imperceptible movements of her fingers, and turns her head as though glancing about the audience.

"Hymn-writing is my life work," says Miss Crosby, "and I cannot tell you what pleasure I derive from it. I believe I would not live a year if my work were taken from me. A great many people sympathize with me, but although I am grateful to them. I really don't need their sympathy. What would I do with it?"

"The Wages of Sin."

If the wages of sin is death,
I do not want to begin;
If I can't get living wages,
I will not work for sin.
Then, again, if I went to work,
And the work I didn't like,
After I'd passed a pay day
I would find I couldn't strike.

CAMBRIDGE SLANG.

Queer Expressions Only Used at the Great 'Varsity—A New World of Letters for the Unlearned.

Before going to Cambridge a freshman had to know one or two elementary phrases only used at the 'varsity. For instance, he is not going "down" to Cambridge, but "up," wherever he may be traveling from. He is never "in" Cambridge, but always "up." If he is leaving college for a day or two, he will tell his friends that he is going "down." He is not asked where, says Pearson's Weekly. One does not speak of a late member of the 'varsity as having "left." He has "gone down." The first person you encounter on entering your rooms is not your landlady. She is your "bedder," which is an abbreviation of "bedmaker." In some colleges there are male bedmakers. These are known as "gyps." The custom of abbreviating words and adding the affix "er" is universal at Cambridge. One does not go to one's "lecture," but to one's "lecker." Football (Rugby or association) is, of course, as elsewhere, "footer" (rugger or socker). The early meal is always "brekker." But there is also a purely 'varsity meal known as "brunch." This takes place on Sunday. It is a combination of breakfast and lunch, and does duty for both. It is taken after chapel, at about 11.30 o'clock, and men usually dispense with any other meal until tea time.

It is well to know that you do not "live" at Cambridge, you "keep." You will be asked "where are you keeping?" when friends inquire your address. If inside your college, you tell them that you "keep in coll." You don't inquire if anyone is "dining in hall," but if they will "keep a hall." You "keep a chapel," and if you attend that of King's College, you say you are going to "keep a King's." The practice of "keeping" has passed all bounds among very slangy 'varsity men. They do not smoke a pipe, but "keep" one. If they are going to a theatre, concert or meeting, it is a case of "keeping." You even "keep" all at home, or a meeting with your tutor. If you are taking the tripos, or final examination for honors degree, you are going to "take a trip." If you hear yourself referred to as "stinks man" you might think people were speaking in uncomplimentary terms of you. It would be well to make sure first, however, for what is intended is only that you are taking the natural sciences tripose, which is known as "stinks." The laboratories are, of course, the "labs," those devoted to physiology the "phiz labs," The dissecting rooms are known as the "meat shops." Mathematics are "maths."

A man who allows himself to be suspected of too hard study and too little sport is known as a "smug." If he locks himself into his rooms to discourage callers, he "sports." To "sport" is to lock the outer door of your rooms. Men do this when they go out for any length of time or wish to remain private. Your door, by the way, is known as your "oak." Some expressions much used outside the 'varsity are never heard among its members. For instance, nobody ever talks of an "undergrad." He is simply a "man"—though his years may not entitle him to the description. If his rank has to be referred to at all, one says "undergraduate" in full. There is no such thing as a "prof," though frequent use of the word, "professor" suggests the abbreviation. You never talk of a college man or a collegian. Anyone "up" at the university is known as a "'varsity man." The names of the colleges are abbreviated, as most people know. St. Peter's College is "Pothouse," St. Catherine's is "Cat's," Magdalen is "Maudlen." St. John's is always "John's." and the boat club of that college is "Lady Margaret," while Caius College is pronounced "Keys."

A man who poses as a sporting grandee by wearing exaggerated sporting clothes, or indulging in displays of wealth, physical prowess or other showy forms of conduct, is referred to as a "blood." To be detected by proctors breaking regulations by omitting to wear cap and gown at proper times, or by going to prohibited places, such as public-house bars, is known as being "progged." The men who assist the proctors in running refractory undergraduates to earth are "bulldogs." If your offense is serious you are confined to college after 8 o'clock every night. This punishment is known as being "grated."

As to Two Evils.

Theodore Hallam, one of the most celebrated of legal practitioners, once defended a burglar, and the case gave him a story that he never tired of telling. The prosecuting attorney was fighting vigorously and had the defendant's wife on the stand.

"You are the wife of the prisoner?" he asked her.

"Yes," she replied.

"Did you know his mode of life when you married him?"

"I did, sir."

"Will you tell us, then," went on the prosecutor, surprised by this admission, "how yo came to contract an alliance with one of his kind?"

"Well," she answered ingenously, "I was getting on, the other girls had all been married, and I at last had no choice but between him and a lawyer who was courting me."

THE DROUGHT AT OTTAWA.

No Rain Since April 7, and People Are Fire Fearsome.

Ottawa, June 8.—Ottawa still bakes under a blazing sun. Everything is as dry as tinder, and fire alarms ringing with painful frequency, have thrown the citizens into a state of terror. The city has an efficient brigade, but it has to cope with abnormal conditions, and the Council is taking steps to reinforce it. A prolonged and unprecedented drought is responsible for the city's jeopardy from fire. There has been no rainfall worth noting since Tuesday, April 7. A couple of light showers, which were barely equal to a heavy dew, fell earely in May.

Later.—The prolonged drought was partially broken last night by a light shower, which fell during the hour when people were in church.

Hope For Ottawa.

Toronto, June 8.—The showers yesterday only aggregated the .13 of an inch of rain in the city and throughout the Lake Erie and Lake Ontario districts. In Essex there were thunderstorms and the Niagara Peninsula fruit farms were improved by a rather heavy downpour. It still remains dry along the Ottawa Valley, but conditions seem favorable for showers and thunderstorms in that part of the province before very long.

That Fires May Cease.

Montreal, June 8.—In accordance with instructions from Archbishop Bruchesi, prayers were offered in all the Roman Catholic Churches of the archdiocese yesterday, that the drought and forest fires may cease. The drought has now lasted since April 7, with the exception of a few light showers.

Church Badly Damaged.

Seaforth, June 8.—A very severe electrical storm passed over here yesterday afternoon; rain fell in torrents, which was badly needed. The Presbyterian Church, in Egmondville, was struck by lightning, demolishing the steeple and portion of the roof, rendering it unfit for the evening service.

Bridges All Burned.

Toronto, June 8.—A commercial traveler from St. John, N. B., says that the recent bush fires have caused millions of dollars' damage in New Brunswick. Many miles of valuable timber have been burned. The village of Musquash has been wiped off the map The New Brunswick Southern Railway has had all its bridges burned. Defective forest fire laws are the cause.

A Tragic Wedding Ring.

A tragic story of a forgotten wedding ring is told in the "Lives of the Lindsays." He should have been at church when Colin Lindsay, the young Earl of Balcarras, was quietly eating his breakfast in nightgown and slippers. Reminded that Mauritia of Nassau was waiting for him at the altar, he hurried to church, but forgot the ring. A friend present gave him one, which he, without looking at, placed on the bride's finger.

After the ceremony was over the countess glanced at her hand and beheld a grinning death's head on her ring. She fainted away, and the omen made such an impression on her that on recovering she declared she was destined to die within a year, a presentiment that probably brought about its own fulfillment, for in a few months the careless Colin was a widower.

Irritation and Pain.

A sharp definition should be drawn between irritation and pain. Irritation is not pain, but only a frequent cause of it. Thus a crumb lodged in the larynx near the vocal cords produces violent irritation and prolonged coughing, which often result in actual pain. So, too, a speck of dust in the eye sets up violent irritation and inflammation, followed by acute pain. Of the surface of the body the finger tips and the end of the tongue are most sensitive—for instance, a burn on the fingers is much more painful than one on the back would be, while one on the tongue would be more painful still. Deep wounds are not painful, as a rule, save as regards the surface injury.

Trees of Europe and North America.

Forest vegetation is much richer in North America than in Europe and comprises 412 species, of which 176 are native to the Atlantic region, 106 to the Pacific, 10 are common to both, 46 to the Rocky mountain region, and 74 are tropical species near the coast of Florida as against 158 species in Europe. Six North American species of forest trees—the Judas tree, persimmon, hackberry, plane tree, hop hornbeam and chestnut—are also indigenous in Europe, all now growing there naturally south of the Alps.

Leprosy From Brazil.

Munich, June 8.—Engineer Grimmeisen, his son and fourteen-year-old daughter, who lately returned from Brazil, had to be isolated, as all three have been stricken with leprosy. The mother and three other children, who did not go to Brazil, have escaped contamination so far.

Aged Principal Resigns.

Galt, June 8.—Principal Alexander of the Central School has resigned, after 28 years of service. He is 70.

THE GREAT DEBATE.

Mr. Chamberlain's Recent Proposals the Subject.

BRITISH LIBERAL LEADERS.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach and Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman Will Probably Speak—Expectancy as to the Government's Attitude—A Rumor That the Colonial Secretary Will Resign.

London, June 9.—The interest in the proceedings of Parliament last night was entirely secondary to that shown in the lobby discussions regarding the prospects of the finance debate, which takes place to-day.

The application for the postal service was passed with only a small attendance in the House, attention centring on Mr. Chaplin's amendment to the finance bill, opposing the remission of the tax on wheat, which will be discussed to-morrow. The debate is expected to last two days. Much uncertainty still prevails as to whether the Government will permit any extended discussion on the Government's general financial program, but it is thought likely the debate will be closely limited to the wheat tax. It is understood that Sir Michael Hicks-Beach intends to speak to-morrow, probably following Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman.

Rumor was busy in the lobbies, as usual on the eve of an important crisis, though there was little tangible as to the attitude of the numerous silent members of the Cabinet towards the Colonial Secretary's daring proposals. Mr. Chamberlain has certainly succeeded in arousing a strong opposition among the ranks of the workingmen. W. J. Davis, a prominent trades union leader, speaking at Birmingham last night, offered to contest the district on the labor platform.

A Cabinet council was summoned yesterday afternoon to consider the situation. It is understood that some Ministers take exception to Mr. Chamberlain's letter to workingmen, published Sunday, which is regarded as definitely committing the Colonial Secretary to the policy he enunciated, and thus going far beyond Premier Balfour's position as revealed in his speech prior to the adjournment of the House, which only committed him to an academic discussion on the subject of preferential duties.

There is no doubt that the situation is extremely tense, and all kinds of rumors are afloat, one which many are inclined to credit, that Mr. Chamberlain contemplates immediate resignation. It is said that he has no love for the Irish Land Bill, and would willingly precipitate a crisis before the Liberals have time to organize their election platform and free trade propaganda. Further, his health is not the best; he needs rest, and is said not to be averse to allowing the Liberals to form a Government, being confident that it would be short-lived and would enable the Conservatives to return to power stronger than ever.

FIGUIG SHELLED BY FRENCH.

Destroy a Venerated Moorish Mosque and Now Await Submission.

Beni-Ounif, Algeria, June 9.—The French artillery opened a preliminary fire early yesterday morning on Figuig, the stronghold of the rebellious Zenaga tribesmen, who recently attacked and tried to ambush Governor-General Jonart and his escort, of whom thirteen were seriously injured. Many houses were hit by shells, the mosque destroyed, and, it is believed, a great number of natives killed.

Later the French troops occupied Juive Hill and another eminence, both strategic positions, by a surprise movement. Their fire was finally concentrated on the mosque, which was much venerated, and the edifice was blown to pieces.

Finally the French guns were withdrawn to Djennaned-Dar, where Gen. O'Connor was awaiting offers of submission when this despatch left.

Ottawa Man's Peculiar Will.

Ottawa, June 9.—The obsequies of the late S. J. Major, wholesale grocer and liquor dealer, who died on Friday, takes place to-day and will be unusual in certain respects. The will sets forth deceased's request that his remains shall be conveyed to the Basilica for high requiem mass, and, afterwards, to the cemetery on a special car, to be built for the purpose. Afterwards, the car and any floral tributes which may be received are to be destroyed by fire. The body is to be taken through the streets exposed to view, and the will also directs that the dead man's residence and business place shall be draped in mourning, and all wrapping paper, enclosing parcels which may be sent out during that time, is to have crepe attached.

Not the Whitby Percy Cole.

New York, June 9.—Percy Cole, who was thought to be murdered here, died of Bright's disease, and was not Percy Cole of Whitby, as stated yesterday, but a son of Rev. Mr. Cole, one time a curate in Toronto. The young man was 33 years of age, and had been for 13 years with the Metropolitan Bank of this city.

Suing For Divorce.

Cleveland, June 9.—After eight years of married life together, Mrs. Glorin Marie Calcutt of this city has commenced divorce proceedings against her husband, James Frederick Calcutt of Toronto, Canada. The grounds stated for the action are gross neglect of duty and failure to provide.

FATAL CANOE UPSET.

Charles F. Valleau of Ottawa Drowned in McGregor's Lake.

Ottawa, June 9.—Charles F. Valleau of Ottawa, 30 years old, was accidentally drowned while canoeing in company with two companions on McGregor's Lake, about eight miles from Hull, Sunday evening about 7.30. The party, consisting of Valleau and Alex. Rogers of Ottawa and Mr. T. Brassard of Perkins Mills, went out on a fishing trip. The young men had been bathing and discovered an old canoe in which they were paddling about when Valleau fell overboard and capsized the craft. Valleau started for the shore, but when within sixty yards of it screamed and sank. The body has not been recovered.

Double Drowning.

Port Arthur, June 9.—A double drowning is reported from Cross River, about thirty miles east of Grand Marais. Two men, James Pinkerton and M. Anderson, had an altercation in a boat while under the influence of liquor and fell into the water. Pinkerton's body was located in 20 feet of water.

Duncan Fraser Drowned.

Woodstock, June 9.—Word has been received by relatives here that Duncan Fraser, aged 20 years, was drowned in the Black River near Port Huron on Saturday night. He formerly lived at Embro with his parents.

Two Drownings.

Severn Bridge, June 9.—A twelve-year-old boy named Justin was drowned while fooling on a log, and Ken. Jackson, aged 18, seized with cramps while bathing, also met death. Neither body has been recovered.

Found Drowned.

Thorold, June 9. — The body of Matthew McNamara, an old resident of Thorold, was found in the old canal here last evening. It is supposed that he fell in last Saturday night on his way home from town.

Death Followed Kicks.

Collingwood, June 9. — William Hayden died at the G. and M. Hospital Sunday from the result of injuries received in what appears to have been a drunken brawl. About midnight on May 28, Hayden and his partner, Cook, were passing the Dominion Hotel, which was closed, but they attempted to get through the window, and in doing so got into a quarrel with two drunken men, who knocked Haydon down and kicked him over the heart and fractured the fourth rib on the left side.

Coroner Stephen empanelled a jury last night, but only two witnesses were examined, and the inquest was adjourned until Monday evening next.

Civil Servant Suicide.

Ottawa, June 9.—Joseph Charette, an employe of the Public Works Department, shot himself dead in the Medford Chambers at 11 o'clock last night. Charette had threatened to shoot himself several times and attempted to borrow a pistol. Last night he secured a revolver and, entering his room and locking the door, he fired two shots. One bullet lodged in his heart and the other in his left breast. Charette came from Montreal and has no relatives known to his friends in Ottawa.

Mr. Hill on Union Delegates.

St. Paul, Minn., June 9.—President James J. Hill of the Great Northern last night stated his opinion that the walking delegates and business agent and the intermediate agencies between employers and their men should be done away with and that such action would facilitate the development of better relations.

Though a Lad, Yet a Burglar.

Belleville, June 9.—A lad named William Monahan, of this city, on Saturday night burglarized a Front street candy store. The boy though young, is old in crime, as he has twice before been connected with burglaries. Yesterday morning he was sent to the Reformatory for an indefinite period.

Lost 1,000 Bushels of Oats.

Dungannon, June 9.—During the thunderstorm of Sunday evening, the barn belonging to Thomas Anderson, with 1,000 bushels of oats and 14 tons of hay, wagons, etc., was destroyed; insurance in West Wawanosh Mutual.

Death Follows Injuries.

London, June 9.—Christopher S. Smallman of 768 York street, who was frightfully mangled in an accident in the east end yards of the G. T. R. a week ago last Saturday night, died in Victoria Hospital yesterday.

Venezuelan Revolution Ended.

Paris, June 9. — The Venezuelan Legation has received a cable message from Caracas, saying that, after a brilliant campaign, including fights at Barquisimeto and Coro, the revolution is dead.

One Dispute Ended.

Geneva, Switzerland, June 9.—The sixth convention of the World's Women's Christian Temperance Union opened here yesterday under the presidency of Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens of Portland, Maine, vice-president-at-large, in the absence of Lady Henry Somerset.

The Executive Committee announced an important change in the constitution, whereby officers will be elected by the convention, thus ending a dispute which has lasted for years.

Girl's Horrible Death.

Paris, June 9. — Constance, the young daughter of Archibald Gracie of New York, was crushed to death at the hotel De la Tremoille Sunday evening while attempting to enter a descending freight elevator. Mr. Gracie is a relative of President Roosevelt.

THE SESSION'S END.

Legislature is Working With a Definite Purpose.

MORE ENQUIRIES RE. TIMBER.

Cane Bros.' and Chew Bros.' Limits in Question — Col. Matheson Wants to Summon More Witnesses Before Public Accounts Committee—Still Hesitating on Printing of Gamey Evidence.

Toronto, June 9.—At yesterday's session of the Legislature, the Premier asked the pleasure of the House regarding morning session, and the leader of the Opposition expressed a strong dislike to morning sessions. The order paper was short and there was no need for a morning session; he thought business could be wound up this week if a session were held on Saturday. Mr. Whitney renewed his request that the evidence in the Gamey investigation be printed.

Mr Ross said the expense was great, and he did not think it would be necessary unless the House was going to sit for some time.

Before the orders of the day were called Mr. Crawford called attention to the collapse of the wharf at Lorne Park on Saturday, by which 50 Sunday school picnickers were precipitated into the water. He wanted to know whether there was any provision in the statutes for the inspection of wharves in order to prevent such an occurrence in the future.

Mr. Ross replied that the inspection of wharves came under the purview of the Dominion Government.

Loan Companies Methods.

Mr. Downey moved for an order for a return of copies of contracts or agreements issued by loan companies doing business in the province, under which weekly or monthly collections are made on shares or as deposits.

Mr. Downey regretted that the lateness of the session would preclude any legislation in respect to companies doing business on the terminating plan.

Col. Gibson pointed out that the Government were not responsible, as it was half a century since companies were allowed to incorporate under the terms complained of by Mr. Downey. People were led astray by the personal canvasser, which was a modern innovation. The motion would, however, fit in very well with the changes this year in the loan companies act.

The motion was carried.

A number of bills were given their third readings and private bills were reported from committee.

Mr. Harcourt introduced his bill to set aside wild lands in New Ontario for the benefit of the university.

Col. Matheson moved the following resolution:

"That the grant of timber limits on islands in the Georgian Bay to Messrs. Cane Bros., and the grant of timber limits in the Township of Capreol to Messrs. Chew Bros., and all matters in any way connected with the said limits and the consideration given therefore be referred to the Committee on Public Accounts for investigation, and that Messrs. Thomas Chew, George Chew, Manly Chew and Edwin Leatherby or Edward Leatherby of Midland be summoned to appear before the said committee on Wednesday next at 10 a.m. with all books and papers relating to the said limits, including the books of the former firm of Chew Bros., relating to the limits in the Township of Capreol."

The Premier objected under the rules, but consented to Mr. Matheson's motion coming up to-day.

In committee the House fixed the damage due Markham from the town of Aurora for getting away the shoe factory by a bonus at $300.

The Government will investigate a charge that a discharged employe of one of the lumber camps in Parry Sound has been setting fire to timber limits in the neighborhood of Algonquin Park.

MEASURE OF RELIGIOUS UNITY.

The Montreal Methodist Conference Passes a Friendly Resolution.

Kingston, June 9.—At the meeting of the Montreal Methodist Conference this resolution was sent to the Committee on Memorials, and is likely to be favorably reported upon: "Resolved, that we affirm our opinion that the mission of Methodism in Canada is no longer bound up with separate organization; also, that we record our willingness to accept in a spirit of reasonableness the modifications necessary to the union with the Presbyterian and Congregational Churches consistently with full and continued discharge of the distinctive mission of Methodism."

Hotel Kings in Toronto.

Toronto, June 9.—The men who manage the great hotels all over the United States and Canada met in Toronto yesterday. The twenty-fourth annual convention of the Hotelmen's Mutual Benefit Association opened yesterday morning, and, after a business session of a couple of hours, adjourned so that the members could spend the remainder of their stay in Toronto sightseeing. There are several hundred members present altogether, and many of them have brought their wives and families with them.

Alleged Murderer Extradited.

Boston, Mass., June 9.—Pasquale Parise, the alleged Italian murderer, from Canada, who was arrested by Brockton officers at Kingston, this State, five weeks ago, was extradited yesterday, in charge of Sergeant Detective Carpenter of Montreal. The alleged murder was committed in Montreal nearly two years ago.

Franchise Restricted to Whites.

Pretoria, Transvaal, June 9.—In consequence of the opposition to the municipal enfranchisement of colored men, the Government has decided to amend the municipal ordinance so as to exclude aliens as well as colored men, thus restricting the franchise to white subjects.

Embassy Moved to Newport.

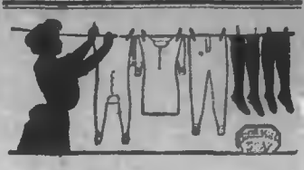
Washington, June 9.—Sir Michael H. Herbert, the British Ambassador, left Washington yesterday for Newport, where the British Embassy will be located this summer.

Will Wind Up Atlas Loan.

Toronto, June 9.—The Atlas Loan Company of St. Thomas, which closed down on account of the suspension of A. E. Ames & Co., will be wound up at once. No time has been lost in initiating proceedings, and, yesterday afternoon, Chancellor Boyd granted an order, reciting that it appeared just and equitable that the affairs of the concern should be wound up. The application was made on behalf of Florence McLachlin, a creditor to an amount exceeding $8,500. The National Trust Company was appointed t[illegible] liquidator.

Street Railway Men Ask For More.

Quebec, June 9.—The conductors and motormen of the Q., R. L. & P. Co. have asked for an increase of from 15 to 17½ cents an hour, amounting to 25c a day each.



You won't harden or shrink woolens with Sunlight Soap. The purity of the oils and fats and the absence of free alkali prevent that. 2B

Sour Stomach —Bad Breath.

The body depends on the bowels to carry off all waste and poisonous matters from the system—it is Nature's drainage. If the bowels don't perform their functions properly and become clogged up, the system gradually absorbs this poison. It is this which causes sick headache, biliousness, sour stomach, bad breath, inactive liver, lack of energy, heartburn, etc.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt will cure you by clearing away the obstruction and thoroughly cleansing the bowels. This brings healthy action to all the organs of the body and rids the system of the cause of illness.

In this way Abbey's Effervescent Salt permanently cures. A teaspoonful in half a glass of tepid water every morning.

REJOICE AT THE REPORT.

Rev. Dr. B. D. Thomas on the Gamey Case.

Satisfaction That Government Comes Clear Through the Investigation—Reprehensible Distortion of Facts and Impugning of Motives.

(The Globe.)

Before his sermon at the Jarvis street Baptist church last evening Rev. Dr. B. D. Thomas, referring to the report of the Judges in the Gamey investigation, said:—

"I feel it incumbent upon me this evening to express my personal gratitude if not indeed the gratitude of this congregation that the charges made against a member of the Government of this Province implicating the Government itself have not been sustained. We were humiliated at the thought that the gentlemen entrusted with such wide-spreading responsibilities and honoured with such high positions as representatives of the people, should have been so utterly steeped in iniquity as those charges averred. We believe that the investigation was thorough and impartial, and that the conclusions reached by the eminent gentlemen who composed the commission were such as the evidence not merely justified but demanded. We are sincerely glad for the honour of our fair Province that such a result was possible."

We are humiliated, continued Dr. Thomas, at the thought that party politics should so far forget the dignity and integrity of an honest manliness in its animadversions on this momentous procedure. I believe in keeping a vigilant eye upon those who are entrusted with the responsibility of government. I believe in honest criticism. I believe in making those who administer for the people in high places of trust alive to the fact that the public conscience is not to be hoodwinked, nor the public purse tampered with; but I also believe in giving them credit for some measure of conscientiousness, at least, in the discharge of their duties. There is room for improvement, no doubt, in the methods and ideals of political administration in our Province, but it surely must be admitted that the Government of Ontario has steered the ship of state with ability, and not altogether without regard to the public interest. The distortion of facts and the impugning motives for no other purpose than to deceive the unwary and make political capital is as despicable a procedure as could well be indulged in, and should be indignantly discountenanced by all honest men.

—Mr. Henry Nethercutt, of Fraserville, South Monaghan, is the proud possessor of a young cow which has raised nine calves in five years, including four pairs of twins. This beats the record in this district.

DEATH OF THE LATE MR. WOOD.

A Much Respected Pioneer Settler has Passed Away.

In the death of Alexander Wood, at the ripe old age of 89 years, another of the few remaining early Otonabee pioneers has passed away. The deceased was a son of the late Robert Wood, of Scotland, and was born in Roxburghshire, in November, 1813. At manhood he came to this country with his father, who, with a family, faced the many difficulties incident to pioneer life in Canada. The deceased, Alexander Wood, settled with his father, brothers, John, James and George, who still survive him, and sisters, Margaret, (Mrs. John Miller) and Isabella, (Mrs. D. Eason,) in the township of Otonabee, where he resided until his death.

In 1843 he married Mary Gillespie, a daughter of the late George Gillespie, who predeceased him in 1880. By this marriage he had a family of 14—six sons, Robert, of Otonabee; Alexander, on the homestead; James, of Texas; John, of Michigan; William of Otonabee; and George of South Monaghan. His three daughters are Isabella, Alice, (Mrs. J. Gillespie,) Katherine, (Mrs. Andrew Graham), all of Otonabee.

In religion Mr. Wood was a Presbyterian, and as such was a member of the Keene church, at the time of its organization in 1833. In 1846, together with Duncan Drummond, J. MacFarlane, Thos. Short, John Stark, and John Miller, he was a member of the building committee of the first Presbyterian church in Keene, Mr. Wood being the last of the deceased members. In the same year he was chosen as a deacon and one year afterwards was elected as an elder, which position he faithfully filled until his demise. He served under Rev. Archibald Colquhoun, Rev. R. Wallace, Rev. Dr. Andrews, and the present pastor. The interest of Mr. Wood in church matters was evident by the fact that the committee authorized to compile a history of the Keene Presyterian church, gratefully acknowledged their indebtedness to him for the accurate verbal account of the church records he gave them, as the official accounts were not available for the assistance of the committee. The deceased also gave his time and energy to other religious matters. For twenty years he was superintendent of Villiers Sunday school. As a slight token of his sacrifices the school sent a floral tribute in honour of the memory of one who had for many years laboured in their midst.

In politics Mr. Wood was a staunch and life-long Liberal, and although he took a warm interest in political and municipal matters yet he never sought the honours of office.

The remains were interred in the Westwood cemetery on Monday, 1st of June. The service was conducted by Rev. D. D. Macdonald, of Keene. The funeral was very largely attended, showing the esteem in which the deceased was held throughout the township.

His familiar figure will be much missed in Villiers, where he always had a kindly word for those with whom he met and where his friends were many.

FROM MT. PLEASANT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Presbyterians of Woodville are now enjoying the services of our former pastor, Rev. Wm. Kannawin, who for four years was in charge of Mount Pleasant, Omemee, Lakevale, three divisions of the congregation lying in three townships, Cavan, Emily and Smith. Two of these stations would be quite large enough for any minister to do his duty properly to each station. As we are now situated the Sabbath Day's journey, especially in winter, is a very heavy task taken along with the visiting that should be done in in such a large territory. The three stations are now vacant, and we hope that a sufficient length of time will be taken to hear all those who would desire a field as large as ours. We felt sad at parting with our late pastor, but he was perfectly justified in the change he made.

Mr. Abraham Webster, of Glandine, passed through the town on his way to attend the funeral of the late Mrs. Barbara Best, one of the old land marks of the Township of Cavan, who died on the 1st June, 1903, aged 99 years and 3 months. She was highly respected by all with whom she came in contact. Well might it be said of her: "Behold a Christian indeed, in whom is no guile," and it can be truly said of her,—"Happy are the dead who die in the Lord." In the early settlement of the Township of Cavan, her husband, the late Samuel J. Best, and she were noted for their kindness, their home being open to the benighted traveller, and any in distress found in them qualities equal to those found in the good Samaritan. She possessed her mental faculties to the last, and passed peacefully away to join those before the Throne. We extend our sympathies to those of her dear children who are left to mourn the loss of a kind and faithful mother. The place of interment was the Gardiner Cemetry, in the Township of Cavan. Her son, S. S. Best, Esq., came from Magnetawan to attend the funeral. S. D. Webster, of Mariposa, and others from the same place, friends of the deceased, came to have a last look at the face of one they loved so dearly.

REPORT ON THE CROPS.

Northwest Promises Record Yield and It Looks Like Average in Ontario—One-Tenth Only Dry.

Montreal, Que., June 9.—The Star published yesterday a crop report from all over the Dominion, which, being boiled down, reads as follows: The indications all point to the fact that the weather conditions prevailing in Montreal have prevailed in the district of Montreal, but not generally in Canada.

About one-tenth in area of the whole Dominion has been affected by drouth, making it certain that hay will be light in the Province of Quebec. Northwestern Canada promises a record crop. It looks like an average in Ontario. With the exception of isolated districts in the Maritime Provinces, the crops will be fair. Most people need, perhaps, to be reminded that this is one of the earliest seasons on record in Canada, as far as the ending of the winter is concerned, the spring having really commenced early in March.

If weather conditions become favorable, much of the apparent loss will be recovered, even in the worst districts, as far as the usual Montreal sources of supply are concerned, there will be a scarcity of hay and vegetables in particular, while meagre pasturage will affect the quality, and, probably, the price of butter and cheese.

TRIED AGAIN AND WAS CURED.

A. Bailey, After Repeated Disappointments, Used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

And now his old Pain is Gone for Good and he can do any Kind of Stooping or Lifting Work.

Winnipeg, Man., June 8.—(Special.)—So many deaths are now charged to Kidney Disease and ailments resulting from disordered Kidneys that the cure of Mr. H. Bailey, of 256 Patrick street, of this city, is being widely discussed. Mr. Bailey says:

"Some time ago I suffered a lot with pains across my back and in the region of the Kidneys. I had spent considerable money in England treating this ailment, but got no permanent relief.

"All by chance I read of some wonderful cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills and though my previous failures made me hesitate I finally decided to try them. It was a fortunate thing for me that I did.

"After taking three boxes, I found myself perfectly free from any pain whatever, and no matter what stooping or lifting work I do, I never have the old pain.

"It is now two years since I was cured, and I think in justice to Dodd's Kidney Pills, I have the right to recommend them to anyone suffering from Kidney Disease."

SCIENTISTS WERE THRILLED.

Demonstration of the New Element Discovered by Madame Curie.

Berlin, June 9.—At yesterday's session of the Chemical Congress Professor W. Markwald, of Berlin, showed the electro chemical and physical section a smudge of dark powder on a piece of paper, which was the first time that any of those eminent scientists had seen the metal polonium, discovered by Professor and Mme. Curie of Paris.

The latter doubted whether polonium was a primary element or related to bismuth, but Professor Markwald demonstrated that it was indeed a primary element.

Professor Markwald proceeded to give a marvelous exhibition of the powers of his speck of polonium. It intercepted a strong current of electricity passing through the air from the generator to the receiver, the air ceasing to be a conductor for the flashes. The room was then darkened and pieces of barium, platinum, and zinc blende, placed near the polonium, glowed with a bright greenish light. The assemblage of chemists was thrilled with astonishment. It appeared to be a miracle.

In the section of organic preparations Professor Proskauer of Berlin read a paper on the sterilization of drinking water with ozone and on ozone waterworks.

Nothing Like Experience.

"One truth learned by actual experience does more good than ten experiences one hears about." Tell a man that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy will cure cholera morbus, and he will most likely forget it before the end of the day. Let him have a severe attack of that disease, feel that he is about to die, use this remedy, and learn from his own experience how quickly it gives relief, and he will remember it all his life. For sale by all druggists.

Were Not Identified.

Smith's Falls, June 9.—The two tramps arrested here on suspicion of having knowledge of the murder of Glory Whalen at Collingwood were not identified. William Pelch was here yesterday with a provincial officer, but was unable to say the men were the same he had seen around the brush where the dead girl's body was found. The men were released.

Dominion Is Still Missing.

St. John's, Nfld., June 9.—The steamer Home, which was sent to search for the sealing schooner Dominion, lost amid the ice floes, with a crew of twenty-eight men, reports having seen no sign of the missing ship or crew. The bodies of two Frenchmen drifted ashore in a dory at Placentia Bay on Saturday, victims of the recent gale on the Grand Banks.

The Solar Plexus.

Is the largest nerve centre in the sympathetic nervous system, is situated just back of the stomach, and supplies nervous energy, the vital force of the human body, to the stomach, heart, lungs, kidneys, liver, etc. By creating nerve force Dr. Chase's Nerve Food directly aids the solar plexus in supplying the power which runs the machinery of digestion and so cures nervous dyspepsia, headache, dizzy spells and bodily weakness.

King Edward's Valuation of a Beard.

The King has an immense belief in the social and moral influence which can be exercised by a well-cut beard; and it is an interesting fact, especially at this important juncture, that the success of the present British Ambassador here, Sir Edmund Monson, is largely due to the King's advice to him on this subject. A singularly handsome young attache, Sir Edmund, already gray in the diplomatic service, wore when Minister at Brussels one of those big, ragged, straggling beards which Englishmen not unfrequently affect. The then Prince of Wales, who was an old friend of Monson's, remarked to him one day: "You should get that beard properly trimmed, my dear Monson. You will never reach the highest ranks of the diplomatic profession unless you do. A neatly cut beard is of enormous importance in life, believe me. It produces an extraordinary effect. Look at me. I have my beard cut regularly twice a week; and I am certain that a great deal of my popularity is due to it."

Monson took the hint. The Foreign Office instantly began to treat him with a much greater measure of respect, and he is now at the top of his profession as Ambassador in Paris, in which capacity he was able to greet his royal mentor, and doubtless to compare beards once more.—Paris correspondent of The New York Times.

FEMALE WEAKNESSES in Summer Time.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Tones and Strengthens Every Weak Organ and Invigorates the Whole System.

Paine's Celery Compound has been specially prepared for the relief and cure of the many ailments that afflict women, and it never fails to give a new and healthy tone to the female organs; it removes relaxed debility and unhealthy secretions; it purifies the blood and establishes a perfect and vigorous health. Mrs. Percy S. Browning, of Provencher, Man., writes as follows:—

"After deriving such wonderful good from the use of Paine's Celery Compound, I consider it my duty to let suffering men and women know something about the only medicine in the world that can banish female troubles and give to women that health and strength that makes it a pleasure to live. I suffered for a long time from falling of the womb, irregularities, nervousness and headaches. My doctor could not do much for me and my relatives thought that I would become a confirmed invalid. My sister induced me at last to try Paine's Celery Compound and I thank God it was brought to my notice. After the use of seven bottles I am a well woman and as healthy as any of my friends. Paine's Celery Compound is surely the medicine for every sick and suffering woman, and I recommend it with all my heart."

TO HELP ON THRIFT.

Hon. Mr. Fielding's Bill to Authorize Penny Banks.

THE PRINTING BUREAU BILL.

Hon. Charles A. Fitzpatrick Explains the Measure in Committee of the House—The Treadgold Commission—Order-in-Council Containing Instructions Filed by the Premier—Yankees Destroy Nets.

Ottawa, June 9.—Yesterday Hon. W. S. Fielding introduced in the House his bill to authorize the establishment of penny savings banks. Mr. Fielding explained that the object of the institution was the cultivation of thrift in small matters and the encouragement of the habit of saving among a class not reached by the Government savings banks. A year ago, a Toronto gentleman applied to the Government for power to establish a penny savings bank in that city. It was thought better to pass a general act, which would cover all cases of a similar character throughout the country.

There is to be a statute under which, by letters patent, penny savings banks may be established. They will not be money-making establishments, or money-lending establishments, but rather collecting agencies for the Government savings banks. They are to hold a small sum, say five per cent. of deposits, but the balance must be paid into the Government savings banks, and only withdrawn to pay depositors.

While the banks are required to have no capital, they must have a guarantee fund of $10,000, as a guarantee of good faith, as they will be chiefly undertaken in connection with benevolent and charitable institutions. The Government will allow the banks one-half of one per cent. above the ordinary rate of interest allowed to depositors in the Government savings banks. This, it is expected, will pay the cost of management. The deposits of the bank may not be invested, but must be deposited in the Government savings banks. The maximum limit of a deposit will be $300. The management would be allowed to invest the guarantee fund, but could not invest deposits in any shape or form.

Printing Bureau Bill.

Hon. Charles A. Fitzpatrick explained in Committee of the House, the bill amending the act respecting the Department of Public Printing and Stationery. One of the clauses in the act provides that printing and stationery for the Intercolonial Railway may be done outside of the Printing Bureau, providing the cost does not exceed Bureau rates. This clause has been in force since 1893, but the Auditor-General not long ago found that the certificate for outside printing did not satisfy the statute. The Justice Department upheld him, and the present amendment overcomes the difficulty by providing that outside work shall be done at customary and fair commercial rates for similar works or supplies in similar quantities.

Another clause empowers the superintendent of printing to employ apprentices, journeymen workmen, skilled hands, or others, "with the approval of the Minister."

Mr. Fitzpatrirk said that higher wages prevailed in the printing Bureau than in Toronto or Montreal. Employes in the Bureau were also particularly fortunate in the matter of holidays.

The bill was reported without amendment

Now an Open Office.

Replying to Mr. E. F. Clarke, Sir Wilfrid Laurier stated that there never had been any obligation on the part of the Government to employ union men only in the Printing Bureau. It was now an open office. The Typographical Union of Ottawa, composed of about 80 per cent. of the Bureau employes, adopted a new increased scale of wages, to come into operation on June 1, without previous demand or conference. The scale was declared to be binding on all compositors. The Government declined to adopt the new scale.

The Treadgold Commission.

The Prime Minister filed the order in Council containing the instructions to the commission who are to investigate the hydraulic concessions in the Yukon. The order in Council declares "that while it is fitting that such reasonable and proper privileges and advantages should be offered as will induce parties to construct such hydraulic works, yet it is essential that no grants or concessions should be made which will interfere with the right to water which any free miner is entitled to under the regulations governing placer mining in the Yukon; that the water so to be held and controlled by the hydraulic companies should be available on equal terms to all free miners, whose claims can be profitably worked thereby, and subject to such reasonable rates and conditions, to be fixed by the Governor in Council, as shall secure the greatest possible benefit to the district in which the works are located."

Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick introduced a bill placing the Good Shepherd Reformatory in St. John, N. B., on the same footing as the Mercer Reformatory in Ontario.

Yankee Fishing Poachers.

Mr. Bell of Pictou told of a recent case of illegal fishing within the three-mile limit by Yankee fishermen in Guysboro Bay, while Government protection cruisers were at anchor. The Americans not only caught fish illegally, but destroyed the nets of Canadian fishermen.

Mr. Prefontaine said he had no official knowledge of these circumstances.

Hon. A. G. Blair gave official notice of the guarantee of bonds, amounting to $9,000,000, to the Canadian Northern Railway. The Government is made liable for the principal and interest to the extent of the guarantee.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replying to Mr. Johnston of Cardwell said he did not know of any sons or relatives of Chief Justice Boyd in the employ of the Government.

To Stamp Out Disease.

Hon. Mr. Fisher's bill respecting infectious or contagious diseases affecting animals provoked a long discussion. The bill is designed to strengthen the old act, in excluding disease from foreign countries, and improving the machinery for stamping out disease among domestic herds. Mr. Fisher's bill provides for a compensation of one-third the value of the ordinary animal slaughtered, the amount in no case to exceed $20. Messrs. Cagrill, Gilmour, McGowan, Sherritt, Broder, Henderson, Bell, Cochrane, Pope, and the leader of the Opposition took part in the debate.

Malt Breakfast Food

Has Taken First Place and Will Continue to Hold it.

Amongst the ever increasing brands of breakfast foods sold by the grocery trade of Canada, Malt Breakfast Food has taken the first place, and will continue to be the favourite grain breakfast food in tens of thousands of homes. Not only does Malt Breakfast Food furnish the most palatable breakfast dish for young and old for the strengthening of the body and the brain, but many choice and palate-tickling dishes can be made from this popular cereal food that will aid digestive vigour.

Malt Breakfast Food is now recommended by wise physicians as the best food for the strong and weak, for the young and the old. It possesses health virtues unknown to other brands of food. All Grocers.

Canada's Sinecurists.

Canada's Parliament always carries on its rolls a multitude of helpless ones, says The Toronto News. The most that many of them ever do is to lend a hand, now and then, when some trifling service of a clean and agreeable character, like packing and unpacking documents, is to be done in the office to which they are attached, and where they spend most of their time writing personal letters, telling stories or reading the newspapers, which are subscribed to by the Department. Of course, there are exceptions to this rule. There is one man in the Public Works Department who is a very respectable citizen, and who declines to make an attempt to kill time. At one period he was the most noted man in the Department. Although the evident intention of the patron who got him his job was to provide him with a sinecure he was as regualr as the clock in reporting for duty; and, to the astonishment of everyone concerned, when a big snowfall occurred and the drifts were piling up alongside the western block, he appeared at the door of his chief's office and demanded a shovel. It was handed to him as a joke, but he was in dead earnest, and resolved to earn his pay, and a few minutes later he was up to his knees in the heavy snow, cutting paths and cleaning gutters as if he had been born to the wage-earner's estate, instead of coming from one of the best families in Western Ontario.

Story of the Late Justice Lount.

The late Mr. Justice Lount was always fond of a joke, and his good humor was contagious. An anecdote about him is being re-told. In days gone by he was a young lawyer at Barrie, where also Mr. D'Arcy Boulton had a law office. Mr. Lount, in driving home one dark night when the roads were blocked with snow, ran over a calf. The farmer demanded $10. Not having that amount in his pocket. Mr. Lount told the farmer his name was Boulton, of Barrie, and to call and see him. In due course the farmer called upon Mr. Boulton, then a candidate for Parliament, but he indignantly denied responsibility. The farmer then took legal advice from Mr. Lount in entire ignorance that he was the real delinquent. Lount undertook to "see" Boulton, to whom he addressed the following weighty arguments: That no doubt the farmer was mistaken, but an election was coming on, etc. Mr. Boulton paid up, and at the next county Bar Mr. Lount told the whole story with great enjoyment.

Ontario's Jurist.

Chief Justice Armour, Ontario's jurist for the Alaskan Boundary Commission, is now in his 72nd year, and his strong capacious intellect is as keen as that of a man of 50. He is one of the most distinguished graduates of Upper Canada College and the University of Toronto. Chief Justice Armour is in the happy position of having no political past, and possesses equally the confidence of Liberals and Conservatives in Canada. Morgan, in his sketch of the Chief Justice, declares that he holds an academic opinion that the political independence of Canada would tend greatly to its national advancement.

Weak and Diseased Kidneys Mean Suffering and Death.

Kidney-Wort-Tablets

RAPIDLY ARREST KIDNEY DECAY AND RESTORE HEALTH.

It is estimated and correctly too, that one person out of three has some form of kidney trouble.

Sound kidneys mean life and health. Weak kidneys mean suffering and death.

The majority of kidney disorders, though they begin mildly soon give persistent and painful warnings of dangers and perils.

When backache, drowsiness, emaciation, loss of appetite, swelling of limbs, cloudy urine, brick dust deposit and unnatural thirst are noted, use without delay Dr. Pattingill's Kidney Wort Tablets. They immediately arrest the ravages of kidney disease and restore the affected organs to health.

Kidney-Wort Tablets have a solid reputation for stopping the formation of gravel which produces stone or calculi.

Be wise! act to-day, if you would be rid of the deadly perils of kidney and urinary troubles! Give Kidney-Wort Tablets an immediate trial; they positively cure. Druggists everywhere.

LARGER SCHOOL USES.

Mr. Leake's Report to Mr. Marcourt Makes the Suggestion That Schools Be Open All the Time.

Mr. Albert H. Leake, Superintendent of Technical and Manual Training and Household Science, has reported to the Minister of Education the results of his observations made during his recent trip to inspect the schools of New York, Brooklyn, Jersey City, and Philadelphia.

After detailed references to the American system of education in the subjects of his department, Mr. Leake calls attention to the fact that the public schools serve the community less than one-fourth of the time, and only a small portion of the community at that. But they could, he said, be utilized not only for the education of the children, but as well for the general education of the community, and at present he believes the public school falls far short of what it might do for the public welfare.

But what can be done for the education of a community more than is now done in the public schools, he asks? This, he continues, is a proper question, and the Speyers School (Pennsylvania), will undertake in part to answer it. This school proposes to place its entire plant at the disposal of the community after school hours afternoon and evening, and all day on Saturday, holidays, and during the regular vacations. The gymnasium and kindergarten rooms are so arranged as to be easily used for public lectures, social meetings and entertainments. Boys' clubs, girls' clubs, and mothers' meetings will be encouraged. The gymnasium, baths and library, will be open to the public when not actually needed for the school. Classes will be formed to meet afternoons and evenings in sewing, cooking and housekeeping, in music, in free hand drawing and design, and in woodworking, and in other simple industrial arts. Regular night school classes will be formed if there is a demand for them. In short, the purpose is to serve the community in every possible way, and particularly to experiment in ways and means of bridging the gap between the close of the public school work and the time when young men and women settle down to permanent employment at eighteen or twenty years of age.

A BELATED SCOTSMAN STORY.

How Two Labrador Fishermen Became the Possessors of Fine Paintings.

J. A. Johnson, a business man of Halifax, N. S., who takes a keen interest in art matters, and has one of the finest collections of paintings and prints in the Maritime Provinces, was in New York recently, says Hyde's Art News, and told a friend an interesting story of how two fishermen of Labrador came into the possession of the "Portrait of the Countess of Essex," by Sir Joshua Reynolds, and the "Portrait of a Lady," by Gainsborough. As there is not a particularly strong demand along the coast of Labrador for Gainsborough and Reynolds, the fishermen denied themselves the pleasure of hanging these artistic treasures in their local galleries, but eventually turned them over to Mr. Johnson.

A few years ago the Dominion steamship Scotsman was wrecked off the Labrador coast in the Straits of Belle Isle. In course of time a packing case was washed up on the Labrador shore, and two fishermen picked it up. They tore off the outer boards and came upon a tin casing.

"This is nothing less than corned beef," said one of the fishermen, exultingly.

"Or perhaps bacon," remarked the other, smacking his jaws.

To their great disappointment they found two oil paintings. Sadly they trudged to their huts and placed the pictures alongside the woodbox near the fireplace. Hopes of corned beef and bacon were dashed. Oil paintings, even by great masters, do not count for much up Labrador way. Months later these pictures passed into the possession of Mr. Johnson, and they turned out to be Sir Joshua Reynolds' "Countess of Essex" and Gainsborough's "Portrait of a Lady." Mr. Johnson corresponded with the shippers in England, and the pictures were returned to their rightful owner, the then Governor-General of Canada. The salvage was, of course, paid, and the fishermen received their reward, which will keep them in corned beef and bacon for the rest of their natural lives.

Transmission of Electric Power.

Recently the famous electrician, Nikola Tesla, was asked his opinion by The Toronto News as to the transmission of electric power from Niagara Falls to Toronto. Tesla replied as follows:

"The problems of transmission and storage of electrical energy have occupied my attention for many years. I have given a solution of the former in my multi-phase system, which is now accepted all the world over. Through the efforts of a great many able experts of the Westinghouse and General Electric Companies the machinery forming part of this system has been brought to a perfection such as to leave little room for improvement. But the aerial lines are still objectionable, and there are decided limits as to the electrical pressures which can be safely employed with them, and consequently as to the distance, at which power can be profitably transmitted. My energies have been largely directed towards overcoming these defects, and I believe that in my new underground system, in which the mains are insulated artificially by the circulation of gas at a very low temperature, they are completely done away with. By this method electrical energy can be transmitted to the greatest distance practically without any loss, and as to cost the new system compares very favorably with aerial lines.

"In regard to the storage of electricity I am not yet prepared to make my own results public. Speaking generally, the activity in this field is bordering on high fever heat and great advances cannot but fail to come soon. In view of all this, I know of no safer and at the same time, more promising undertaking than the exploitation of large water powers."

A Lender No Longer.

"Never lend Burroughs any money!"

"Never did."

"But you have."

"No; used to think I did, but found I was making a gift every time."—Boston Post.

Slater Shoe Advertising

Identifying the "Slater Shoe"

Short talks by the Slater Shoe ad man, No. 8.

The Slater Shoe trademark is practically a quarter million dollar guarantee behind every pair of "Slater Shoes," —because measured in cold commercial parlance that is the value of the modest little mark by which "Slater Shoes" are identified.

The Slater Shoe makers have the sole and exclusive right to use any combination of words containing the word "Slater" as applied to shoes and this right is duly set forth in imposing looking legal documents with large red seals and much vermillion tape,

—but the exact wording to be found on a genuine "Slater Shoe" are the three words "The Slater Shoe" in a slate frame—no initials, no other words, no marks of any kind.

This particular and precise form of words is rigidly adhered to by the makers of the genuine "Slater Shoe" to enable the wearer to easily identify the real "Slater," though the makers have the exclusive right to use the word "Slater" with or without other words.

And to you that identification mark "The Slater Shoe," has a protective value which no other shoe without these precise words can have,— —because behind it is the commercial value of a trademark worth $250,000.00 in cold cash.

—and be it remembered that the value of a trademark is measured exactly by its ability to command trade,

—'because no matter how popular a trademark may be or how skilfully or largely it may be advertised

—'it could be robbed of its value in one short season by inferior goods made and sold under it,

—'and do you think the "Slater Shoe" makers who have for so many years been building up this valuable trademark would entertain any three-cent-saving proposition to skimp the unseen vitals of a shoe in which so valuable an asset as a quarter million dollar trademark is wrapped up?

Not likely is it?

Afternoon Excursion To-morrow.

The local Camp of Woodmen of the World will entertain the Executive High Officers of their Order by an excursion to-morrow afternoon to Idyl Wyld, per steamer Water Lily. The members and their friends expect to enjoy a pleasant outing. The steamer leaves her wharf at 1.30 o'clock. The committee have kindly reserved a limited number of tickets for those of the general public who would like a pleasant sail across Rice Lake.

Attend During the Afternoon.

The management of the Walter L. Main shows while on their tour through Canadian cities, would request that as far as possible, ladies and children visit the circus during the afternoon, rather than evening. This is to avoid the immense crowds which have thus far greeted the performances at night. The entertainment during the day is given in full, the performers are fresher and more nimble and the show is fully as fine in every respect. In Peterborough, on Tuesday, June 16th.

PROVINCIAL COURT IS NOW IN SESSION.

Catholic Foresters to Number of One Hundred in Town.

Attended Divine Service This Morning —Banquet to be Tendered To-night.

The sixth session of the convention of Ontario Provincial Court, Catholic Order of Foresters, is now meeting in Peterborough, with representatives from nearly 100 subordinate courts throughout the province.

This Order, which is a comparatively new one in Ontario, has established an enviable reputation for enterprise and sound management during its existence. The membership in May, 1895, was 2,556, and at the present time that figure has increased to 7,055, with good prospects for future growth. Not only is the membership increasing at a satisfactory rate but the financial condition of the Order is such as to merit congratulation upon the wise managemetn to which is due the present standing of the society in this important respect.

The Provincial Officers in attendance are:

P. C. Ranger, Mr. C. S. Boudreault, Ottawa.
P. Secretary, Mr. V. Webb, Ottawa.
P. Treasurer, Mr. G. W. Sequin, Ottawa.
Prov. Trustees, Messrs. O. G. Rocque, Orleans; J. Mallory, Toronto; J. McCormick, Cornwall; D. Staley, Kingston; and Rev. Father Teeney, Aston.

This morning the entire body, comprising the provincial court, attended service in St. Peter's Cathedral.

MASS AT ST. PETER'S.

The delegates to the convention of the Catholic Order of Foresters, attended Pontifical High Mass at nine O'clock this morning at St. Peter's Cathedral. The celebrant on this memorable occasion was His Grace the Archbishop of Ottawa, who, in turn, was assisted by Father Teeney and sub-Deacon Rev. Father John O'Brien of Peterborough. The master of ceremonies was Rev. Father Dr. O'Brien of Peterborough. Bishop O'Connor, who was present in the sanctuary, was assisted by Rev. Fathers McColl, McCloskey and Collins. The latter gentleman preached an eloquent and most appropriate sermon, the subject being Fraternal Charity—a subject out of which all can be benefitted especially members of a fraternal society, whose chief aim is brotherly love and charity.

At the end of the celebration of the mass Bishop O'Connor spoke a few words of welcome and congratulation to the visiting delegates. He pointed out the use of fraternal societies and delegates every success and blessing in the work which they would undertake at the convention.

After returning from St. Peter's the delegates were called to order in the Foresters Hall and received an address of welcome from His Worship Mayor Roger, who characterised Peterborough as the prettiest town in Canada and hoped the sessions of the Court would be pleasant and of profit to the order. An address was also read by a member of St. Peter's Court.

This afternoon the delegates are being shown the many beauty spots in and around Peterborough and will convene again at 4 o'clock, when the regular committees will be appointed and general business proceeded with.

The Fires of Eczema.

So keen is the suffering of many people who endure the stinging, itching sensations of Eczema that they break the skin, as long as fire. By its soothing, healing, antiseptic influence Dr. Chase's Ointment positively cures Eczema, Salt Rheum, and every form of itching skin disease. It is of inestimable valu in every home, and when once introduced becomes a household necessity. Dr. Chase's Ointment is the standard the world over, and has no worthy rival.

OBITUARY.

Death of Mrs. Joseph Hill Occurred at Orillia.

The Orillia Times speaks thus of the lamented death of a lady well known to many here: — "Mrs. Joseph Hill, Nottawasaga street, died suddenly on Wednesday morning, from paralysis of the heart. Mrs. Hill was quite well the day before, but was taken ill about midnight. Two doctors were summoned but they were unable to save her life. Her death was a severe shock to her many friends, and to Mr. Hill who was in Toronto. Mrs. Hill leaves a family of young children, two boys and four girls. Her maiden name was Eliza Mary Haggart, of Peterborough. She also leaves two brothers, James Haggart, of Peterborough, and J. S. Haggart, druggist, of Owasso, Mich. The many friends of Mr. Hill sympathize with him in his deep loss. Mrs. Hill was devoted to her family and beloved by all who knew her."

THEIR ESTIMATE "AN ALL ROUND MAN."

Sandford R. Hall is Banquetted by Admiring Friends.

High Tribute Paid to His Many Stirling Moral Qualities—Presentations Made.

Never was honour more worthily bestowed or more cheerfully given than was that of which Sandford R. Hall was the recipient last night. One boy's estimate of another is never at fault, and when some forty of "Sandy's" friends met to do him honour at a banquet held in Long's dining hall the hearty applause with which every reference made to the guest's good qualities was greeted could leave no doubt in the mind of the uninitiated as to the esteem in which he is held by them.

The banquet which was arranged by friends of Mr. Hall in the Y.M.C.A. was of a most pleasing character, and must have impressed the guest with the fact that his efforts here have been appreciated by his young friends.

Mr. Knapman made a genial Toast Master, and after the delicious repast had been disposed of, proposed the first toast, that of the King, which was heartily received by singing the National Anthem.

Ald. McWilliams was then called upon, and in tones which rang with sincerity, proposed the toast of the guest and spoke of the moral character possessed by Mr. Hall, and paid this tribute to him that he was the "All Around Man," than which there cannot be a more fitting tribute. The good fortune which has come to Mr. Hall in the promotion to a more responsible position is the reward of merit, and he would leave Peterborough carrying with him the best wishes of his hosts of friends of whom Mr. McWilliams considered it an honour to be one. On behalf of the friends gathered he presented Mr. Hall with an elegant pair of gold cuff links, which, he said but imperfectly expressed the feelings of appreciation which all entertained for the services so cheerfully rendered.

A number of speeches were then given by members of the various branches of Y.M.C.A. work with which Mr. Hall has been identified, and all reiterated the statement made by Mr. McWilliams that they had found him an "All Around Man." These speeches which sparkled with pure native wit, were given by Mr. Richardson on behalf of the "Harriers"; Mr. Merrill, for the "Maple Leafs;" Mr. Robinson, chairman of the Boys' Department, in which Mr. Hall has rendered very efficient help; Mr. Howson, for the "Colts" and Mr. Campbell told of the feelings of the "Brownies," of whom the guest had been the "father confessor." He also presented him with a beautiful gold locket on behalf of those whom he represented. Mr. Horace Ayers spoke for the Leaders, and prefaced his remarks by expressing the regrets of Messrs. Connel, Williamson and Kerr that they were unable to be present and participate in the gathering, but who joined in sending their best wishes. Mr. Ayers said of Mr. Hall that he was the best gymnast in Peterborough, and not only that but he had rendered very valiant service in connection with the spiritual part of the work.

Mr. Madill, for the Board, said they had often heard of Mr. Hall's work and were convinced that he had done much to raise the moral standard for young men in this town.

Mr. McPherson wished to thank Mr. Hall for the efficient service rendered the Athletic Lacrosse Club on the occasion of their recent concert and also paid a tribute to his prowess on the football field.

Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, who represented the hockey element, spoke of the impetus given to sport by reason of the attitude of Mr. Hall and the Y.M.C.A. He said that in his travels he had never seen a town in which the general tone of sport was as high as here and attributed it to the clean and gentlemanly character of the young men who participated in it..

Mr. Galley, for the "Lilly" Basket Ball team also made a pleasing little speech.

Mr. Knapman then called upon the guest of the evening, who upon rising to his feet, was greeted with most enthusiastic cheering, which spoke unmistakably of the esteem in which all present held him. He said he had enjoyed the evening immensely until now, and with a true, manly lack of self conceit said he felt incompetent to make a speech, but immediately proceeded to make one, the eloquence of which was not equalled by any given during the evening. After speaking of the pleasure which he had derived from his association with the sporting fraternity of the town, he said he regretted the circumstances which necessitated his departure from the scene of many pleasures. He said that he did not believe in the statement that some make that a young man has to leave his home town to have a good time. He would never enjoy himself as fully as he had while meeting with the boys with whom he had grown up. He concluded a splendid speech by thanking those present for the honour which they had done him.

The toast to the ladies was proposed and responded to by Messrs. Best and Glover, who proved that they were speaking on a subject with which they were quite competent to deal.

The last toast was that to the press and was responded to by Messrs. Norman Jolliffe and M. J. Hutchinson.

The gathering dispersed after singing Auld Lang Syne, to escort their guest to the train.

This is but another evidence of the fact that true worth is appreciated, and in this case the mark of appreciation, coming as it does from those most of whom have been closely associated with Mr. Hall from boyhood, is all the more convincing that it was well deserved.

Mr. Hall left at 12.25 for Montreal, where he has been promoted to a more lucrative position on the staff of the Bank of Toronto, and is followed by the best wishes of everyone here for a successful career, which will be sure to be me', because, as one boy expressed it last night, "he has the right stuff in him."

If its a bilious attack, take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and a quick recovery is certain. For sale by all druggists.

THE LATEST NEWS OF LOCAL SPORT.

LACROSSE.

A lacrosse match that is creating considerable interest in local sporting circles is the C.L.A. game here on June 17th between the Athletics and Belleville. The Bay City team is credited with having a strong aggregation who play a swift combination from goal to goal. They will have to travel a swift pace, however, to keep up with the Athletics, and the game ought to draw a big crowd.

• • • •

Whitty, who played goal for Copper Cliff, is playing on the home of the Belleville team, and Boyd, of Toronto Junction Shamrocks, is also on the line-up.

• • • •

Belleville's "dark horses" turned out to be three red men, who are said to be speedy.

• • • •

Lindsay club has won their district without donning their sweaters.

• • • •

The lacrosse enthusiasts on the banks of the Scugog are suffering from the effects of the warm spell. The Post says:—"The T.A.S. will meet the same Waterloo when they face the boys in green and white in Lindsay.

• • • •

"It is hard for Peterborough teams in any kind of sport to suffer defeat at the hands of a Lindsay bunch," says the Post. Vacate the piazza for a brief interval ye sporting editor of the Post, and hear the wails of the defeated ones at Lakefield as they are wafted from the shores of the placid Scugog. Beware of the dread malady expansion of the top-piece.

• • • •

Hogarth and Lewis, who at one time figured in local lacrosse circles, are holding down positions on the "Soo" team.

• • • •

Quinn, Hammond, Connors and several more players from Orillia are helping Borlow and others to bom helping Borlow and others to boom lacrosse at Copper Cliff.

• • • •

The T.A.S. play their first C.L.A. game on July 1st with Oshawa, and it promises to be a good struggle. It is understood His Worship Mayor Roger will face the ball on that occasion.

• • • •

Eugene McNichol, of last year's T. A.S. team, is in town again and turned out with the boys last night.

• • • •

The T.A.S. executive met last night and completed all arrangements in regards to the grand stand. It is expected work will commence in a day or two on the structure.

• • • •

In a game characteristic for rough play at Brantford on Saturday, in which the opposing team was the fast Tecumsehs of Toronto, the home team won by a score of 5—3, which was a surprise, as it was generally conceded that the Indians would prove an easy proposition, consequently their good showing greatly elates their supporters.

BASEBALL.

Three games were played as scheduled on Saturday in the Intermediate League. The first two were characterized by heavy hitting and not extremely brisk fielding. In the first game the Orioles greatly strengthened themselves by putting Kennedy behind the bat. It was his first venture and very little practice will make him the equal of any catcher in the League. The Quakers had an off-day and their out field must have broken little Quinlan's heart. The second game decided the leaders in the race and was anybody's game until the last man was out. Both pitchers had good control and sent very few to base on balls, both were batted freely, and as the fielders appeared to be rather shy the runs piled up. D. McCabe made a strictly impartial umpire and gave absolute satisfaction. From the standpoint of scientific baseball the last game was decidedly the best exhibition. The boys fielded with a snap that smacked of the very best senior playing. Every fly that went to the outfield was warmly welcomed and well taken care of. Curtis and McMullen for the Parkdales, and O'Brien and McKnight for the Victorias, covered themselves with glory. Mulhern of the Vics pitched a superb game and was particularly effective with men on bases.

The talk in baseball circles is the brilliant showing of both Excelsiors and Auburns in Saturday's game. It was by far the best game of ball ever played in this district.

• • • •

The fence around the T.A.S. grounds was again crowded with the cheap element on Saturday. They are all known.

• • • •

The last addition to the list of sporting organizations of the town is a baseball league represented by clubs from the Guilds of St. Andrew's, St. Paul's George street and Charlotte street churches. A meeting was held on Friday evening in the Y. M. C. A. parlours, which was attended by Messrs. Sorsoleil, Charlotte street, who occupied the chair; R. H. Elliott, C. Anderson, St. Andrew's; Alex. Gillespie, St. Paul's and Ross Dobbin, George street. The executive is arranging for a trophy to be competed for by the different teams. The following schedule was prepared:

Wednesday, June 10, and Friday, June 12—St. Paul's vs St. Andrew's, at McDonel street grounds; George street vs. Charlotte street, at the Paterson street grounds.

June 17 and 19 — George street vs. St. Andrew's; Charlotte street vs. St. Paul's.

June 24 and 26 — St. Andrew's vs Charlotte street; George street vs. St. Paul's.

This arrangement will be repeated during the last three weeks in July.

The officiating umpires appointed were Messrs. Taylor, Webb and McKeown. This organization is one which should meet with every encouragement.

FOOTBALL.

A small number of players reported for practice last night at Nicholls Oval.

• • • •

In Grop 1 of the Midland Football Association one game was played Saturday. The Y.M.C.A. went to Bethany and returned victors, the score being 6—2. The game which was clean and fast, was a good exhibition of football and was witnessed by a good crowd of Bethany enthusiasts, (all of whome, it may be mentioned, paid for their admission.) The Bethany team which is considered one of the fastest in the Association, played a gentlemanly game, and the "Y's" have only words of praise for the way they were treated on this trip. The line-up of the Y. M.C.A. was:—McFadden, goal; Simpson, Moore, backs; McDonald, Lee, McPherson, half backs; Schneider, centre; Crough, Campbell, left wing; Rutherford, Noble, right wing. Mr. Brierton, of Bethany, refereed the game to the general satisfaction of both teams. By winning one more game, the "Y's" will have the championship in their group clinched. On Saturday they play Millbrook here and as this promises to be one of the best games of the whole season, it should be witnessed by a good crowd.

• • • •

Omemee has dropped out of the running in Group 1, and in consequence the game which was scheduled to be played on Saturday in which Omemee and Millbrook were to be the opposing teams, was withdrawn.

• • • •

In group 2, two games were played on Saturday. That in town was between the Quakers and the Y.M.C.A. II team, and resulted in a win for the Quakers by a score of 2—0. The game was full of excitement and although the "Y" seemed to work the ball up to their opponents' goal quite often they lacked the force required to score. The Quakers were in the game from start to finish. Every one of their men seemed to think that they had their little act to do, and they did it, while the "Y." lacked the "ginger" that they showed against the Auburns on Thursday night.

The Quaker's goal tender, Harry Butler, showed that it was not the first time he had played the game as he stopped shot after shot, which would have slid by the ordinary man.

The "Y." were considerably weakened by the absence of McGuire and Best. Campbell and Morrow, the "Y." right wing, worked several pretty combinations, but their checks were too strong for them and soon broke it up. The "Y." halfs and full backs played a fairly strong game, though McGuire's absence told against them.

The game was a fairly good exhibition of football and lacked the roughness which frequently characterizes a game of this kind, Referee Ayers not having to rule a man off, while he gave good satisfaction to both teams. The teams lined up as follows:—

Quakers — Goal, H. Butler; backs, W. Patton, M. Guerin; half backs, M. Gaynon, W. McAuliffe, J. Sullivan; centre, F. Guerin; right wing, Lorne Brooks, N. Perdue; left wing, J. Guerin, W. Walsh.

Y.M.C.A. II. — Goal, Davidson; backs, Whitlow and Morgan; half backs, A. Scriver, I. Moore, G. Robertson; centre, J. Macdonald; right wing W. Campbell, Morrow; left wing, R. Dobbin and W. Richardson.

• • • •

The Auburns went to Bridgenorth and were defeated, the score being 7—0. The Bridgenorth team is looked upon as the winner in their group, in which event they will probably be pitted against the Y.M.C.A. I. in the finals.

In Group I., last night at Havelock the home team defeated Cordova by a score of 2—0.

CANADIANS' GRAVES.

MOVEMENT TO IDENTIFY AND MARK THOSE OF S. A. HEROES.

Seventy-four of the 246 Graves of Canadians in South Africa Have Yet to Be Found and Located—Difficulties of the Work—Governor-General Organizing a Committee in This Country.

A most interesting and somewhat pathetic document has come into the possession of the writer, Lally Bernard, dealing with the work done by the Canadian South African Memorial Association, who held the fourth meeting of their Central Committee in Ottawa on the ninth of January last.

Out of the 246 Canadians who fell during the war, she says in The Toronto News, that 230 were buried in South Africa, and 11 at sea, while five were interred in England. Out of the 230 graves in South Africa, 156 have been "definitely located" and that leaves 74 yet to be found and identified. Possibly very few people who scan these figures can have any idea of the difficulty—even at this early date after the war—of locating with exactness the graves of the men who fell in action or died on the march. In a country where distances traversed by the troops were enormous, and where climatic conditions and a thousand circumstances would render the work of identification extremely difficult. One page of the "documentary evidence" of the magnitude of the work involved may be imagined when one finds that this "one page" consists of five sheets of foolscap paper pasted together, and that it necessitates eight of these enormous "pages" being used. Particulars asked for and given to the members of the committee are as follows: No., rank, name, corps, cause of death, where buried, No. of grave or other mark, whether in protected cemetery or otherwise, in single grave or otherwise. No. of grave or other mark, name next of kin, relationship, address of next of kin, whether in sympathy with memorial associations, wishes of next of kin.

This means gigantic work, compared with the number of the graves to be identified, and fortunately from the answers under "whether in protected cemeteries or not," one finds that the majority of the graves are "protected," but occasionally one finds a pathetic note, which recalls a picture by Innes, if we are not mistaken, of a lonely grave on the veldt, and a comrade taking a last look at the rude wooden cross which marks the resting place of his chum. "Tombstone, erected by comrades, tended by Loyal Woman's Guild," here and there answers the query of "Number of grave or any other mark?" The number of relatives written to by the Memorial Committee concerning the erection of memorials have been 218, and out of this number only 126 have replied, and I find that in the addresses given of "nearest of kin," 30 are from the Old Land, showing that this number at least were not "native-born Canadians," for in most cases the relationship of the nearest of kin was the brief word "Father." Now and then a relative will express a wish for a certain inscription to be cut on the headstones, which are to be sent from Canada by ship to South Africa, the tender for the headstones being accepted from a Toronto firm and two Montreal firms. The stones are very simple but substantial, in grey granite, and each and all bear either a single maple leaf or the small bunch preferred by the committee.

There is a rumor that the present Governor-General of Canada is interesting himself in organizing a committee in Canada, whose work will be to seek out and preserve the graves of soldiers who lie buried in various parts of Canada, for, scattered through Canada are numbers of small military cemeteries very much out of repair and neglected; and there are those who believe that the work done in perpetuating the memory of men who fell in the service of their country is not only a positive duty, but one which means the preservation of the most valuable historical record of important events. The erection of one huge shaft of granite in the midst of a town, bearing the names of men who fell in action, cannot have the personal and direct influence on the human mind as the preservation of the actual grave of the individual has. One finds in several instances in South Africa that those who fell together in action were buried in the same grave. For example, Pte. Johnston, who fell at Paardeberg, came from New Brunswick, and fate willed that he should be laid in the same grave as Captain Arnold, from Winnipeg. Again, one finds Pte. Kerr, killed at Hoining Spruit, buried with Corp. Mordan, 200 yards H.S. Station." Lieutenant Borden's grave is about 200 yards from farm house; a substantial wall guards the cross erected over the grave.

The record alone is a most useful one from an historical standpoint, and the amount of correspondence which passes through the hands of the honorary secretary must be enormous. At the present moment he is in communication with Sir Percy Girouard, K.C.M.G., who is Commissioner of Railways in the Transvaal and Orange River districts, with a view to having the memorials transported free of charge to points on the railway nearest the places where the various graves in those districts are situated, and Sir Percy Girouard, who is a close, personal friend of the secretary of the Central Committee, is asked to use his influence with the commissioners in charge of the Cape Colony and Natal districts to grant the same favor on their lines.

Col. Steele and Sir Percy Girouard are both men with considerable influence in South Africa at this moment, and it is safe to say that their every effort will be used to further the interests of the Canadian committee. The Canadian South African Memorial Association is a provisional and temporary organization, which will go out of existence as soon as the raison d'etre of its existence is accomplished. Then it remains for the Imperial Order of the Daughters to perpetuate for all time the work of keeping in good order and repairing, if needs be, the graves and memorials erected in South Africa to Canadians. This, as before remarked, will be done through the co-operation of the Loyal Guild of Women with the Imperial Daughters of the Empire. And thanks to the efforts of Memorial Association, they will be able to feel assured that the graves they are tending are those of Canadians, for the work of identification has been most thoroughly carried out, and could we but know the details in full of the work it has necessitated, we would doubtless find what tremendous difficulties there had been to surmount.

In a country like South Africa, where the population is certain to augment in extraordinary strides under the new regime, the preservation of graves in the veldt, and a group of several, possibly "two hundred yards from a farm house," will make the work of the Loyal Guild of Women one of no little difficulty. The immediate erection of substantial memorials will facilitate their efforts, to an immense degree, and insure the respect of the incoming settler for what otherwise might heedlessly be desecrated.

Finally, it might be well to recall, in connection with this subject, how much we owe to the Boers, in the way of gratitude for their conduct in respecting both the sufferings of our wounded, and leaving undisturbed the graves of our dead, and with this tribute to the vanquished, we take leave of a subject of sad import to many Canadians.

A Kidney Sufferer FOR Fourteen Years.

TERRIBLE PAINS ACROSS THE BACK.

Could not Sit or Stand with Ease.

Consulted Five Different Doctors.

Doan's Kidney Pills

FINALLY MADE A COMPLETE CURE.

Mr. Jacob Jamieson, Jamieson Bros., the well-known Contractors and Builders, Welland, Ont., tells of how he was cured: "For fourteen years I was afflicted with kidney trouble which increased in severity the last five years. My most serious attack was four years ago, when I was completely incapacitated. I had terrible pains across my back, floating specks before my eyes and was in almost constant torment. I could not sit or stand with ease and was a wreck in health, having no appetite and lost greatly in flesh. I had taken medicine from five different doctors and also numerous other preparations to no purpose. I finally began to take Doan's Kidney Pills and before I had taken five boxes the trouble left me and I now feel better than I have for twenty years. Those who know me know how I was afflicted and say it is almost impossible to believe that I have been cured, yet they know it is so. I have passed the meridian of life but I feel that I have taken on the rosy hue of boyhood."

Attempt to Rob Bank.

Portage la Prairie, Man., June 9.—An unsuccessful attempt was made by burglars at 2 o'clock yesterday morning to enter the Bank of Commerce here. A junior clerk, named Lount, sleeping on the premises, hearing a noise, demanded who was there, and the answer was a bullet, which lodged just above his head. He replied with two shots from his repeater. The police are after the burglars.

Too Great a Risk.

In almost every neighbourhood someone has died from an attack of colic or cholera morbus, often before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. A reliable remedy for these diseases should be kept at hand. The risk is too great for anyone to take. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has undoubtedly saved the lives of more people and relieved more pain and suffering than any other medicine in use. It can always be depended upon. For sale by all druggists.

Days of Mizzen Masters Over.

The days of the old mizzen masters on Lake Ontario are gone. The steamship has taken the place of the sailing vessel, and the railways have gobbled up much of the work of both of them. There was not, twenty years ago, anything that the lake marine was not ready to do in the way of transportation, but to-day there is comparatively little carrying business done by the Lake Ontario freighters. It was not so a few decades back. Then the marine of Lake Ontario was a great one, and the business transacted was immense. In the early sixties the Seagull, a two-hundred-foot schooner, owned and commanded by Captain Frank Jackman, performed a feat that has never been repeated in the history of the lake marine. Loaded with a cargo of house lumber, the Seagull sailed from Browne's Wharf, in this harbor, says Day by Day in Toronto News, for Port Natal, Africa, and carried out the whole journey without accident. There was a lot of talk in those days about that expedition. There were many of the master mariners of the lakes who firmly believed that the bluff old Captain Jackman could never carry out his venture to a successful conclusion. He, they said, was a good enough lake sailor, but he would never make a success of ocean navigation. They pointed out that fresh-water and salt-water navigation was as different as chalk and cheese, but all of their vaticinations turned out wrongly, for, as has been said, the voyage was a successful one.

England's "Celtic Fringe."

There are some who profess to believe that the "Celtic fringe" of England's Government is soon to become an all enveloping mantle. Ireland, with the promotion of Sir Geo. White, has three field marshals. The adjutant-general is an Irishman, the quartermaster-general a Scotchman, the Permanent Under Secretary for War an Irishman and the Commander-in-Chief of India is Irish born. There are four Scotchmen and three Irishmen in the Cabinet, both Archbishops are Scotchmen and the Commander-in-Chief of the Channel Fleet is an Irishman.

Nerve Sufferers Need Sympathy.

And More Than That, the Nerve Cells Must be Restored and Revitalized by the Use of

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Too many doctors have no sympathy with the sufferer from diseases of the nerves. They do not understand the nervous system, and when the victim of nervous exhaustion or prostration appeals to them he is told to "brace up," forget his trouble, and he will soon be all right.

Anyone who has had nervous prostration, been scarcely able to drag about, felt energy and vitality growing less, and been in constant dread of paralysis, or even insanity itself, knows how utterly useless and discouraging is such advice.

Nervous diseases cannot right themselves. Exhausted, shrivelled nerve cells can never revitalize themselves without assistance from outside. If the blood is weak and watery, and fails to afford proper nourishment, restoratives must be used. Recovery is bound to be slow, but it is none the less certain, and there is no combination of ingredients which has proven so successful as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This famous food is not a stimulant to arouse false hope, but a true restorative, reconstructing wasted cells and tissues, and instilling into the blood and nerves, the essential principles of life and vigour.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food soon wins the confidence of all who are pale, thin, weak or exhausted for by noting your increase in weight while using it you can prove that new, firm flesh and tissue are being added to the body, and realize that weakness and disease are giving way to strength and vigour. Fifty cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50 at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box. 3

CHEMICAL RESOURCES.

Manufacturers Employing Skilled Chemists—Prof. Lang's Address Before Society for Chemical Industry.

At a recent meeting of the Society of Chemical Industry, Canadian section, the Chairman, Prof. W. R. Lang, delivered an address at Toronto on "The Chemical Industries of the Dominion of Canada." The subjects taken up were the iron and steel industries, leather and tanning, the extraction and refining of metals, sulphuric acid, acetic acid, and alcohol, soaps, glycerine, refined chemicals and drugs, fertilizers, coal-tar and asphalt, calcium carbide, carborundum and graphite, cement and plaster, beet sugar, natural gas and petroleum, pulp, paper and asbestos. The lecturer reviewed the progress in the development of these industries during the past decade, making comparisons between their position now and then. The steel and sugar industries were given special attention, being, among others, those which owed their development to the natural mineral and vegetable resources, and to the widely scattered water power of the Dominion.

In concluding, Prof. Lang said: "The attitude of manufacturers towards chemists has of late years been extremely favorable, and many have seen it to be to their advantage to employ men trained in our universities and colleges to investigate the processes and material employed in their particular industries. So far their employment has been amply justified by the results, and it is to be hoped that more may be brought to see the profit to be gained by adopting scientific methods of work. The university man, who has specialized in chemistry, can assist the manufacturer in this by bringing to bear on the rationale of the technical processes the general scientific knowledge which he has gained during his college course, and his experience in methods of research and manipulation. He can thus materially benefit his employer, by improving the quality of his products, or enabling him to turn out his goods at a cheaper rate. Let the manufacturer, be he dyer, tanner, pulp-maker or iron-master, indicate only that he is willing to find employment for men educated in the higher branches of scientific work, and the universities of the Dominion will supply them. Where chemical processes are used it is essential for the prosperity of this country that all the available scientific knowledge should be brought to bear on them in order that they may continue to improve, and to develop even more than they have done in the past decade. Canada, with its immense natural resources and its water power, should, in time and with proper management and assistance in the lines indicated, become one of the largest producers of the world's supplies."

Sunshine Furnace

OPEN DAMPERS—BACK TO BED.

The "Sunshine" consumes so little fuel during the night that plenty remains to make an instant and strong fire when the dampers are opened in the morning. The operator may then return to his warm, cosy bed while the house is heating—heats in 15 or 20 minutes.

Self-acting gas damper works automatically so that disagreeable odors always escape through the gas-pipe — never pass through registers into the house.

The "Sunshine" is simple in construction, easy to operate, requires very little attention and will produce more heat from the same amount of fuel than any other heater.

Costs no more than common furnaces.

SUSAN or KEZIAH?

By LAWRENCE PERRY

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

Judge Tunis Crane put the last shutter over the front window of his store, slung the bar across and snapped the padlock. Then he turned and gazed thoughtfully along the turnpike to where a single light glimmered through a grove of cherry trees. The judge always became sentimental at this hour of the evening. As a matter of fact he was in love and, what is more, admitted it to himself. This takes rare courage sometimes, but it takes even rarer courage under certain conditions to admit it to any one else. That was what bothered Judge Crane.

The judge was not much over fifty years old. His store, the one town store, yielded good profits. He was a bachelor, not a widower; was well preserved, a former judge in the town court and always a deacon. Oh, no; he was not ashamed of his personal assets. The trouble was that he was not quite sure with whom he was in love. There were two of them—two maiden sisters, Susan Appleby and Keziah Appleby. Both of them appealed to Judge Crane in one way or another, and for ten years he had been trying to decide which one appealed to him the more. But thus far his efforts had yielded him little satisfaction.

He paced thoughtfully up and down the porch, with his hands locked under his coattails. He closed his eyes, and the picture of Keziah drifted slowly across his mind. It was in church that he loved her most. He could see her now in her pew just in front of his. Her shoulders did not come very far above the high back seat, and a few curls straggled from under the black bonnet. One eye was hazel, the other a watery blue, and her hands were folded demurely in her lap. She wore a black waist cut down a little at the throat and edged with lavender silk and lace, and she had a humorous little simper at the corners of her mouth. On Sundays the simper was allowed to fade, but the telltale lines remained.

There was no nonsense about Susan—tall, straight, angular, her bonnet perked up straight on her head like a grenadier, blue eyes and a straight, tight shut mouth. She could say things, and she got up church sociables and missionary societies. Judge Crane sighed.

A few minutes later he unclasped his hands and transferred them gleefully to the armholes of his vest. He had come to a decision. He would consult a third party. But whom? There were two he had in mind, Zebulon, the brother, and Matilda, the eldest sister, a widow. All in all, he thought Zebulon would be the better of the two. Yes, he would go to his old friend and confess all. He would secure information as to the qualities of both from the standpoint of one who had spent his life with them, and he would also make inquiry as to which one would most likely award his suit with a favorable answer.

"Hello, jedge!" It was Zebulon himself who stumped up the steps and sat down at the top with a grunt. "Nice evenin'."

"Hello, Zeb—um—yes, a tol'able evenin'. How air ye?" And the judge seated himself beside the prospective adjuster of his destiny.

"About as well as a man kin be with a passel of women folks about him all the time," grumbled Zebulon, filling his pipe.

"What's the matter of 'em?" queried the judge, apparently unconcerned.

"Matter?" snorted Zebulon. "Matter? Why, everything's the matter. Ef it ain't one thing it's another—sewin' societies, housecleanin', visitin', church, prayer meetin', entertainin' the parson an' talk, talk, talk, nothin' but talkin' from sunrise to supper. Bah! Women is well enough in their places, but three on 'em is too derned much. Two on 'em old maids too! Why don't Providence send some one to marry 'em? It ain't right, it's ag'in natur', for one man to be pestered so."

"Um—waal, that is kind o' bad, Zeb. I'm sorry they've riled ye, because I was jest a-goin' to ask yer honest opinion which one to pick out. I'm a-goin' to git married if I kin." And Judge Crane blew his nose vigorously.

"Arrump! Huh!" Zebulon sat up. The judge sat with his jaws tight shut and his eyes stared fixedly into the road. Zebulon snorted again and regained his self control. Had heaven smiled on him at last? Had he said too much? He knew whom he wished married. Keziah would do, but Susan was the one to whose wedding he would dance all the way. He recalled her masterly ways, her trenchant tongue. Was it to be stilled for him by the bonds of matrimony? He turned to the judge.

"Waal," he said, drawing his handkerchief across his eyes, "I kin talk an' growl, but when the pinch comes, jedge, I don't see how I kin live without 'em. Keziah is good, jedge, but Susan, she is the one for ye. I know. She wants to git married. She said herself 'twould soften her, although Lord knows she don't need it. She's good an' kind an' lovin', an' she's got a good strong mind—a good strong mind. Yas, sir; I recommend Susan," concluded Zebulon.

"Well," said the judge, "ye ought to know, Zeb. Wants to get married, does she? Waal, she would 'a' been long ago had I not been afeared to ask her. I'm scared yet, Zeb, to tell the truth. What I want is the ice broken, eh?"

Zebulon was too overjoyed to stop at anything which might strengthen the judge in his quest. He actually offered to take the judge to his sister, state the case and then leave the two alone. For reply the judge rose decidedly to his feet. "Come," he said.

So they trudged along the road together, Zebulon quietly radiant, the judge stern and determined.

Ten minutes later they entered the Appleby house. A raucous, twangy voice came from the parlor.

"She's in there," whispered Zebulon, and he pushed open the door and entered with his hand reaching back holding the skirt of the judge's coat.

Both were there—Keziah and Susan.

"How d'e do, jedge?" they exclaimed, rising. But the judge made reply by pushing Zebulon forward.

"Susan," said Zebulon, flushing guiltily. He knew Susan could see right through him. "Susan," he repeated, "ah-ahem. The jedge here—well—ah"—

"Well, ah what?" exclaimed Susan, with sharp impatient inflection.

"The jedge," repeated Zebulon weakly, "waal, I brung him here—O Lor'!" and Zebulon dashed for the door. He stopped at the sill and, pointing at the judge, added, "The jedge, Sue, there he is!" Then he disappeared.

The judge was frozen into a dignified statue. He could see now that it was Susan, but he dared not. Suddenly he thought of Matilda. Ah, she would break the ice for him. Matilda! His face flushed.

"Ladies," he said in sepulchral tones, "will ye kindly inform yer widowed sister Matilda that I desire to see her? Alone," he added.

The sisters swept out of the room, confident that Zebulon and the judge had suddenly gone crazy. Then Matilda entered. She proffered her hand in welcome, and the judge seized it as a drowning man grasps at a straw. He held on. Here at least was something tangible.

And then—well, Susan was not half so tangible. Matilda!

Ten minutes later Zebulon peeked into the parlor. The judge was very close to Matilda, and he was holding her hands. Everything was very still.

"Well, I'll be derned!" said Zebulon.

Blood Disorders

are simply kidney disorders. The kidneys filter the blood of all that shouldn't be there. The blood passes through the kidneys every three minutes. If the kidneys do their work no impurity or cause of disorder can remain in the circulation longer than that time. Therefore if your blood is out of order your kidneys have failed in their work. They are in need of stimulation, strengthening or doctoring. One medicine will do all three, the finest and most imitated blood medicine there is

Burdock Blood Bitters

CURED THEM.

It is well-known to all that bad blood is the direct cause of all skin diseases and it is necessary for the blood to be cleansed before the eruptions will disappear. For this purpose there is nothing to equal Burdock Blood Bitters as the thousands of testimonials we have on hand will testify.

Mr. Willard Thompson, McNeill's Mills, P.E.I., writes us as follows: "I wish to state to you what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. Some time ago my blood got out of order and many boils appeared on my neck, legs and arms. They were so painful that I could not sleep at night. After having tried many different remedies without any success, I finally decided, on the advice of a friend, to use Burdock Blood Bitters. Before I had quite used two bottles the boils had completely disappeared, and I wish to emphasize the fact that I think Burdock Blood Bitters the best blood purifier on the market to-day."

When the story of Chinese atrocities filled the papers and shocked the world, it was the women who drew the pity and sympathy of all. Doubtless many a wife who heard her husband's words of sympathy for these women thought with a pang, of the blindness of men to the suffering under their very eyes. It is true. The suffering of women in China was severe but short. Many a wife suffers for years with a daily agony of pain, her nerves shattered, her strength almost gone, and never hears a word of sympathy.

To women such as these Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription brings the opportunity of a new life of health and happiness. It establishes regularity, dries the drains which weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

"I had falling of internal organs and had to go to bed every month; had irregular periods, which would sometimes last ten or twelve days," writes Mrs. Alice L. Holmes, of Coalspring St., Uniontown, Pa. "Had also indigestion so bad that I could hardly eat anything. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' cured me. I took three bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' and one of the 'Golden Medical Discovery.'"

Alcohol In Bread.

"You could get drunk on fresh bread if you could eat enough of it at one time," said a chemist to a woman customer.

"I don't believe it," the woman answered.

"And yet it is a fact," the chemist pursued. "It used to be thought that the alcohol which bread in its fermenting generated all passed out in the baking, but Thomas Bolas, a distinguished scientist, proved that bread after it is ready for eating still contains alcohol. I myself analyzed the other day twelve loaves of fresh bread and found that they contained on the average alcohol in the proportion of .314 per cent. When, therefore, you have eaten 100 pounds of bread, you have consumed five ounces of alcohol. That is quite as much alcohol as you would get in a pint of whisky.

"You, madam, eat, I fancy, about 850 pounds of bread a year. That is 3,500 pounds in ten years. In those 3,500 pounds there are 175 ounces of alcohol, which is the same as seventeen quarts of whisky. Think of it! Every ten years you consume seventeen quarts of whisky with your bread!"

"I don't believe it," said the woman.—Philadelphia Record.

Brindle an Extinct Color.

"Time was when no farm was complete unless there was a brindle steer in the lot and no home was what it should be unless you could find a brindle dog in the yard," said a man from the county. "At the time when I was growing up the boy who didn't have a brindle dog to chase rabbits and hunt coons with was simply not in the race with the other fellows of the countryside, and the man who didn't have a brindle steer among his lot—well, he wasn't in it either. Brindle steers and brindle dogs were a part and parcel of the countryman's outfit. Now we rarely find these creatures at the country home. What has become of the brindle steer and the brindle dog? Steam and electricity may have crowded the steer out of the business to some extent, but there are still steers abroad in the land, and they are toiling as of old, pulling wagons, dragging logs and doing other useful things. But they are not brindle steers. As for the brindle dog, steam and electricity and other things of this sort could have had no possible connection with his disappearance, but he has disappeared just the same. I do not know why it is, but he has gone, gone with the brindle steer, and I would like to know just why it is that these old friends of the country boy are counted among the things that are no more, and perhaps forever."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

PASTORAL.

A rich-toned landscape, touched with darkling gold
Of misty, throbbing cornfields, and with haze
Of softly-tinted hills and dreamy wold,
Lies warm with raiment of soft summer
rays,
And in the magic air there lives a free
And subtle feeling of the distant sea.

The perfect day slips softly to its end,
The sunset paints the tender evening sky,
The shadows shroud the hills with grey,
and lend
A softened touch of ancient mystery;
And ere the silent change of heaven's light
I feel the coming glory of the night.

Oh, for the sacred, sweet responsive gaze
Of eyes divine with strange and yearning tears
To feel with me the beauty of our days,
The glorious madness of our mortal years,
The noble misery of the spirit's strife,
The joy and splendor of the body's life!

LONDON HOSPITAL.

Largest in the World and Takes £300 a Day to Keep Running.

What the cost of keeping up a great metropolitan hospital is has been made plain by the Hon. Sydney Holland in his speech on behalf of the London Hospital on the occasion of its quinquennial appeal, says Lloyd's Weekly. This hospital, which is not only the biggest in London, but one of the largest in the world, requires some three hundred pounds a day to keep it going. In spite of princely benefactions, in order to keep up with the growing demands upon it resort has had to be had to the ruinous expedient of selling investments to the amount of twenty thousand pounds yearly. If this continues another five years may see this great institution involved in hopeless difficulty. The prospect opens up the question as to whether the London hospitals should not receive State aid. For many reasons the latter is not desirable so long as it can be avoided, but principally because it would undoubtedly involve an enormous drop in private subscriptions. The money, however, has to be found. London cannot afford to have the working powers of these great medical institutions curtailed in the slightest degree. If, however, they are to be maintained without a State subsidy that very large section of the public which does not give to the hospitals though it receives innumerable benefits from them must loosen its purse-strings. A more regular generosity on the part of those able to give would keep the London hospitals well in the van of medical science, with corresponding benefits to the community. While on this subject we are glad to note that St. Bartholomew's Hospital is to remain where it is. There have been strong advocates for its removal to a suburban position, but the Lord Mayor's Committee of Inquiry two months ago decided that its present position could not be bettered. This is as it should be, but with this decision comes an appeal for aid from the general public which cannot but be deprecated. St. Bartholomew's is a richly-endowed institution with big funds at command. With due care these might be made sufficient for its needs, and it is certain a most inopportune time has been chosen to appeal for aid, when money is so urgently required by many equally useful but poverty-stricken medical charities.

Rev. Prof. Cody Warns Them Not to Tempt the Young.

In a discourse on temperance, taken in its broadest meaning of self-control, Rev. Prof. Cody, rector of St. Paul's Anglican Church, Toronto, recently appealed strongly to hosts and hostesses to carefully consider the possible results of the free use of alcoholic refreshments at social gatherings.

Prof. Cody defined temperance as the ruling of the body by the spirit. The doctrine of Hebraism taught that certain parts of man's nature should be governed by other parts; the doctrine of Hellenism, on the contrary, taught that all should be developed alike. The Christian ideal combined the highest elements of both principles and so produced beautiful and beneficent results. The control of the mind, he said, was one important application of temperance.

Speaking of the particular form of intemperance involved in the use of alcoholic liquors, Prof. Cody said that in this matter Canada was greatly in advance of Great Britain, where the nation's industrial supremacy was actually endangered by drunkenness. The essence of this sin was in the subordination of the spirit by the flesh, and thus dethroning the proper sovereign of life. In summing up the speaker said that in the matter of drinking each individual must decide according to the dictates of his conscience. A man must think of his duty to himself, to others and to God. In the second place it was a Christian's duty to follow Paul's principle, "If meat maketh my brother to stumble, I will eat no meat while the world standeth," and in reference to this Prof. Cody warned people who entertained to take care what temptations they put in the way of the young.

WHY The Standard Mines and Milling Company

Capital $1,000,000 Ten Cent Shares
Is the Best Mining Investment on the Market To-day.

It's mines are in three great mining camps in Idaho, Thunder Mountain and Trinity County, California. It has vast bodies of ore already above ground and extensive workings under ground, thus enough insight for its three plants for years. It has one-third of the stock in another company that has the biggest and richest reef of ore (all above ground) in the world. All it has to do is to wait for dividends on this stock. It has a capable honest and reliable Management. The price of stock is very low for the present, virtually ground floor.

QUOTATIONS ON THE WALL STREET MARKET

The Quotations of the Leading Stocks —Market Letters.

The following are the principal quotations as supplied by McMillan & Maguire, brokers, Hunter street:—

The Wall Street Market opened somewhat weak and continued so throughout the morning. Dominion Steel touched as low as 18 1-4 and coal was quoted at 75 1-2. C.P.R. was firm considering the general state of the market, and throughout the morning it did not go below 120. P.O. was again weak and B. O. went as low as 183 1-2.

* * *

In the afternoon the market broke away and some of the lowest prices of the present slump were recovered.

The following despatches have been received by E. M. Poussett & Co.:—

New York, June 9th, 11.00 a. m. — Sentiment very much mixed this morning and London comes irregular and lower. Bears are inclined to be aggressive. The rally late yesterday was caused by shorts covering and some good buyers in St. Paul, Atch. Penna, Copper and Grangers. Should this support be withdrawn, we will see lower prices.

Not many stocks for sale and the shorts are the buyers.

M. & M.

New York, June 9th, 11.00 a. m. — Wheat—Situation will bear a careful watching. Any favourable news totally disregarded, and somebody is being gunned for.

CADY.

We expect to see market continue unsettled to-day. The moderate rally yesterday was due and under ordinary conditions should continue to-day, but the bears are ready to put new short lines on any recovery and the large interests seem not disposed to become aggressively bullish at present time, Rockfeller is buying U. S. Steel stocks and bonds and it is our opinion that they are a purchase. Standard Oil has been selling sugar and also a dash may be made at the large short interest. We believe it a sale on rallies. Buy S. P. on a sale down. H.V. is being accumulated by insiders and investment absorption is going on in T.W. There is a bear tip out on B.O. which we submit without comment.

THE DOMINION DAY DEMONSTRATION.

The Queen's Own Band Will Probably be Present.

A public meeting was held last night in the council chamber to arrange details for a demonstration on July 1st. There were present:—Mayor G. M. Roger and Messrs. R. E. Wood, F. A. Lount, Peter Campbell, R. Fair, A. Rountree, J. M. Brooks, MacFarlane Wilson, R. E. Layfield, A. Moore, J. O'Shea, R. M. Hamilton, J. Conroy and R. Munro.

Mr. R. E. Layfield, secretary of the committee appointed to make arrangements at a previous meeting reported that the Queen's Own Band, of Toronto, had expressed their willingness to come down on Dominion Day at a reasonable price. He stated that they would give a cook's parade in the morning, play at the Driving Park in the afternoon and give an entertainment in the New Rink in the evening. The Turf Club made a proposition which amounted to the fact fact that they would give a good programme of sport at the Park, admission to which would be 25c, they would also pay their share of the printing on condition that they had the band on the grounds.

The following committees were named:—

General—Mr. R. E. Wood, chairman; and Messrs. A. H. Stratton, Alex. Gibson, F. A. Lount, Alex. Elliott, T. E. Bradburn, A. Moore, J. E. Haggart, H. R. H. Kenner, F. Matthews, J. M. Brooks, A. Rountree, R. M. Hamilton, R. Fair and A. Hollingshead. R. E. Layfield, Secretary; Peter Campbell, Treasurer.

Afternoon Sports—Mr. J. M. Brooks, Chairman; Messrs. R. Munro, Alex. Elliott and A. Rountree.

Cook's Parade — Mr. A. Moore, chairman; Messrs. T. Rutherford, A. H. Stratton, Alex. Gibson and J. E. Haggart.

Concert—Mr. R. E. Wood, chairman; Messrs. F. A. Lount, Alex. Elliott, F. Matthews, R. M. Hamilton, H. R. H. Kenner and A. Hollingshead.

Printing—Mr. R. Fair, chairman; Messrs. T. E. Bradburn, J. M. Brooks and Alex. Elliott.

All those on committee have at some time previous said that they would do their utmost to make the celebration a success so that Peterborough persons can rely on having a good days entertainment on July 1st.

AT THE POLICE COURT THIS MORNING.

Exciting Times on Parnell Street—The Other Cases.

There was quite a large number of cases at the Police Court this morning before Police Magistrate D. W. Dumble.

A man who purchased a dog tag after being summoned had to pay $2.30 costs.

Three young men were charged with creating a disturbance on the public street. Their case was enlarged until to-morrow in order that constable Charlie McGinty might give evidence.

Mrs Murray, who lives on Parnell street did not appear in court on the charge of grossly insulting and using abusive language towards Mrs. Christopher, a resident of the same street. Several of the neighbours were called whose evidence went to show that on Tuesday morning, June 2nd, at 9.30 o'clock Mrs. Murray met Mrs. Christopher on Parnell street and used most abusive and profane language toward her. The witnesses unanimously said that Mrs Murray was a nuisance and had been a nuisance to their street for eight or nine years.

Judgment was reserved until to-morrow in order that Mr. D. O'Connel might be present. Mr. Dennistoun conducted the prosecution.

The Police Magistrate disposed of the case aainst Johnston re keeping a slaughter house bordering on the public street. He had to pay $3.55 costs.

Four cases for breaches of the health act were disposed by the imposition of a fine of $1. The accused did not appear in court.

The Best Liniment.

"I have derived great benefit from the use of Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism and lumbago," says Mrs. Anna Hagelgans, of Tuckahoe, N. J. "My husband used it for a sprained back and was also quickly relieved. In fact it is the best family liniment I have ever used. I would not think of being without it. I have recommended it to many and they always speak very highly of it and declare its merits are wonderful." For sale by all druggists.

For the Denver C. E. Convention.

Very low excursion rates have been arranged from all points in Canada to Colorado, leaving July 6th, 7th, and 8th., good for return up to August 31st. Everybody can go, the rate is wide open and this is a splendid opportunity to spend a vacation among the Rockies at slight expense. The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway and connections will run special Standard First-Class and Tourist Sleeping Cars through to Denver, besides the regular daily service from Chicago.

For full information, time tables, pamphlets, rates and sleeping car reservation write to A. J. Taylor, Canadian Passenger Agent, 8 King street, east, Toronto, Ont.

JUNE SESSION O THE COUNTY COURT

Held This Afternoon—Two Cases Down for Hearing.

The June Session of the County Court was held this afternoon in the Court Room before His Honour Judge Weller. The Grand Jury was composed of the following:—

Hugh Waddell, Foreman; F. E. Bell, Peterborough; J. B. Comstock, Asphodel; Adam Dawson, Peterborough; Michael Flood, Ennismore; J. E. A. Fitzgerald, Peterborough; W. H. Hamilton, Peterborough; Lewis Hunter, Douro; Robert Northey, Smith; and Robert Innes, Peterborough. Wm. Telfod, Smith, and Thomas D. Young, Smith, were not present.

The two following cases are down for hearing:—

Case of the King against Geo. A. Parcels for extortion and perjury. Grand Jury.

Joseph Fram, attempted murder and indecent assaulting of Lizzie Stewart on May 25th. He chose to be tried by the Judge and not Jury.

At the time of going to press the Grand Jury was hearing the case against Geo. Parcels.

INDIAN LOYALTY.

A very pleasing incident of Lord Minto's recent visit was an interview which his Excellency granted to Johnson Paudash, son of Chief Paudash, of Hiawatha, a young Indian of more than ordinary intelligence. Paudash addressed his Excellency on behalf of the Mississaugas at Mud Lake, Rice Lake and Scugog, and expressed to him the feelings of loyalty which these tribes entertained to the Great White Father, the King, to the laws of the country and also to the Governor-General, as the King's representative.

Lord Minto expressed himself as being highly pleased with the fealty of which the young Indian's words were evidence and further wished him to convey to his comrades in the Mississauga Confederacy his love for and gratitude to them for this incident which was much appreciated by his Excellency.

On account of a misunderstanding, a formal address which Paudash had prepared expressing their loyalty to the Crown and its representative, was not read, but is being forwarded to Ottawa, where no doubt it will be given a kindly reception.

VICTORIA CHEESE BOARD MEETING.

GRAND MILITARY SPECTACLE.

The grand military spectacle of savage South Africa, which forms such a fitting, if sensational, climax for the big circus, the Walter L. Main's, is meeting with a torrent wave of enthusiasm through Canada, wherever repeated thus far this season. The men who take part in the spectacle are real Boers, Canadian troopers, Zulus, Matebeles, Bushmen, and many of them fought in the South African battles for freedom. Some were opposed to Major Allen Willson, at the "last stand." No feature of any circus has ever met with such enthusiastic reception. Captain J. P. Visser, the Boer scout, who has full charge of the spectacle, has added an inch to his seven feet of stature since the season opened, he is so proud of his men's success. In Peterborough on Tuesday, June 16th.

WEDDING BELLS.

Nuptials of Mr. J. Lorne MacFarlane and Miss Clemie MacKee.

At 11.30 this morning, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. Jas. Mackie, 314 London street, Mr. Jas. Lorne MacFarlane of Deseronto, and Miss Clemie Mackie were united in marriage by Rev. J. G. Potter, B.A., of St. Andrew's.

The bride was most becomingly attired in white and carried a beautiful bouquet of daisies, the gift of her uncle in Brockville. Mr. and Mrs. MacFarlane are highly esteemed in Deseronto, and there many young friends there are arranging an informal reception for them on their arval to-night. Miss Jessie Mackie accompanied her sister and returned with the bridal party this afternoon at two o'clock.

Among the friends present were Winifred E. Burgess.

After the ceremony the company partook of a wedding dejeuner.

THE STEEL DUTIES.

Mr. R. L. Borden's Motion for an Increase Defeated.

THE TIME IS INOPPORTUNE.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Replies—The Government Requires More Information—Mr. Fielding Asks Where Are the Tory Claims That the Present Government Have Not Reduced the Tariff—Majority 44.

Ottawa, June 10.—In the House of Commons yesterday the amendment to supply in favor of increased iron and steel duties, of which Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the Opposition, gave notice a week ago, was debated for five hours, and was defeated by 91 to 47. The Government treated the amendment as a motion of want of confidence, and as inopportune, in view of the tariff resolutions being still before the House. The application of the Dominion Steel Company for increased duties, the Premier stated, had not been finally dealt with. Mr. Tarte voted for Mr. Borden's amendment, and Messrs. McGowan, Calvin and Jabel Robinson against it. Some progress was made with Mr. Fisher's estimates after the vote, and the House rose at 12.45 a.m.

Mr. Borden's Speech.

Mr. Borden, in moving his resolution, stated that it was introduced in pursuance of a policy decided upon several weeks previously, and was one of several resolutions that the Opposition proposed to bring forward. The iron industry was a very important one to any country possessing the proper resources and material for developing it. And every country possessing these resources had either first or last given the industry such protection as had resulted in its development. Even in England the iron and steel industry had obtained a firm footing under protection long before the introduction of free trade in 1847. The iron industry was important, because it afforded the materials useful and necessary to the development of every country in the world, because of the large number of men it employed, and because it laid the foundation for many other industries.

Canada, possessing the necessary resources and raw material, should give it such protection as would enable us to utilize to the fullest possible extent those raw materials and resources. There was no reason why the industry should not be made a success.

"I believe," said Mr. Borden in conclusion, "that it is the duty of this Government to take this matter into consideration if they have not already done so. I would have been glad had the Government so desired to let this motion stand over until a later day on that ground, but as no request of the kind is made to me, I feel it my duty to proceed with my amendment. It is not made with any idea of staying the hand of the Government or hampering the Government, but with the profound conviction that it is necessary in the interests of Canada to-day, in the interest of the iron industry, upon which the homes and fortunes of so many of our people depend. But we should have some greater measure of protecting that industry."

Mr. Borden then moved his resolution for an immediate adjustment of the duties on iron and steel.

Hon. W. S. Fielding's Reply.

Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, said that if he were disposed to enter into any protracted discussion on the subject he should perhaps be obliged to take exception to some of the statements, opinions and conclusions which Mr. Borden had advanced—not, however, to all. There was much in the speech to command his respect and admiration, and in that class he included the excellent quotations from the speeches of the Minister of Finance. (Laughter.) There was also another point he could thank him for and that was that his statement of statistics of the iron industry proved that there had been enormous reductions of the N. P. tariff, and that the present tariff was not now according to him stolen holas bolus from the Conservatives as they declared.

The Motion Inopportune.

But I do not propose to enter upon such a discussion, because I think it would be inopportune, and I am persuaded that no good purpose would be served by having that discussion at the present time. He seems to have expected that we would ask him to withdraw the resolution. We have no desire that he should withdtaw it. He has brought it forward, and he accepts the responsibility for it, whether timely or untimely is for him to decide. In our judgment it is not timely. Among the many sins laid at the door of this Government I for the first time now hear the charge that we have been lacking in generosity and liberality to the iron industry. I have heard it said from time to time that we have dealt too liberally with that industry: I have heard comparisons to the effect: "You have done this for the iron industry, and you will not do it for some other." It is a new charge that we have been dealing ungenerously with the iron industry. When this matter came up a few days ago I reminded my hon. friend that resolutions brought forward on the subject of the tariff were still before the House, the final stages not having been taken. I suggested that when these resolutions came up that would be the most opportune time for the discussion of tariff questions.

A Motion of No Confidence.

My hon. friend has preferred to take a different course. He was preferred, not to bring this question up in the ordinary way of tariff discussion, but to bring it forward as an amendment to supply. He has preferred to bring it up in that form which is always taken as the moving of a vote of no confidence. I am satisfied that no one truly interested in the iron industry, or with a sincere desire to promote the interests of the country irrespective of party policies, can support the hon. gentleman in precipitating this discussion to-day. But since the hon. gentleman has taken the responsibility of bringing the matter forward in this way, since he has preferred not to take the usual method and discuss tariff questions at the proper time for the discussion of tariff questions—I recognize his right, I do not question that—but as he has brought this forward at what we regard as an inopportune time, and has brought it forward in the way in which one must vote either for or against the motion, I have to ask the House to declare that this is not the time to pass judgment, to treat this as a vote of want of confidence, and reject the motion.

Messrs. Bell (Pictou), Kendall (Cape Breton) and Osler (Toronto), followed, and the latter made an enquiry as to what was the policy of the Government on this question.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who said he would not have arisen but for the inquiry of Mr. Osler, who desired to know what the tariff policy of the Government was upon this question, and upon the tariff generally, referred the Opposition to Mr. Fielding's declaration in the budget speech, that the policy of the Government was the tariff of 1897, a moderate tariff, which carried with it a good deal of incidental protection. That the tariff had been made for all time nobody ever imagined.

That is the condition in which we are at the present time; yet we are asked by hon. gentlemen on the other side of the House to rush into a change in the tariff, and come down with a different policy. I say that before we can come to any such conclusion we must look into the question. It is a time, not for action, as stated by the hon. member for Pictou (Mr. Bell), but for consideration, reflection, and study. That is the position we take. That is the duty which is imposed upon us, and it is that duty to which at the present time we are devoting ourselves. That is the reason why my hon. friend the Minister of Finance, a moment ago, said this motion comes at an inopportune time. You had better wait. (Hear, hear.) It shall be the duty of the Government by-and-bye to go into committee of ways and means, and when we go into committee of ways and means it will be for us to state the position which we take before Parliament and the country. In the meantime, as hon. gentlemen pretend not to be actuated by any desire to make political capital out of the question, it seems to me that the best thing they can do is to withdraw the motion, so that we can look into the matter and come to a conclusion. (Cheers.)

After speeches by Messrs. Clancy, Pringle (Cornwall), Tarte, Bourassa, Oliver, Heyd, Rufus Pope, the vote was taken and Mr. Borden's amendment was lost by a vote of 47 yeas so 91 nays.

Hon. Mr. Tarte voted for the amendment, and Messrs. Jabel Robinson, H. Calvin and McGowan voted with the Government.

In supply the items for civil government of the Department of Agriculture were passed.

The House rose at 12.45 a.m.

Tempting Price Inducements

In Snowy White Lingerie

About 150 doz. pieces beautiful fluffy Whitewear cleared in the nick of time.

At this season of the year many manufacturers make a grand clean up of their warehouses (in anticipation of taking their summer inventory). Big lines must be cleared out; all over-production orders that have been too late for shipment and big stock lots must go in order to make room for fall goods.

Having a resident buyer in Toronto who is always on the keen lookout for any snaps that are going, enables us to get first choice (which is always the best). For some time we have been on the lookout for large clearing lines of the above character and have now procured this desirable lot at practically our own figure, thereby enabling us to offer you big lines of Skirts, Corset Covers, Drawers, Chemise, etc., at greatly reduced prices.

A partial price list circular of the above lines is now being delivered through the town. See that you get one.

Remember that although the quantities are large, the remarkable low prices at which they are marked will cause a speedy clearance.

PRESIDENT IS OPTIMISTIC.

Lady Henry Somerset's Prediction For the W.C.T.U.

Geneva, Switzerland, June 10.—At yesterday's session of the convention of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union the presiding officer, Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens, of Portland, Me., read Lady Henry Somerset's Presidential address in which the absent President predicted that the eventual outcome of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union's fight would be a complete victory over the liquor traffic. She said modern Governments were alive to the danger and referred to the fact that Russia, France and Sweden were strenuously fighting the evil. Lady Somerset concluded with an appeal for the exaltation of the home, asserting that the work of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union could best be summed up in the words of its great founder, the late Miss Frances Willard, "to make the world wider for women, and more homelike for humanity."

THE BARR COLONY.

All Co-operative Plans Have Now Been Abandoned.

Saskatoon, June 10.—Mr. C. W. Speers, immigration agent, has returned from a visit to the Barr colony. About 300 families have located on their allotment and commenced work. Many others have gone to Painter's Settlement, Brosseylor, Battleford and Bury Lake. The colony as such no longer exists, Mr. Barr having given up all connection with it and refunded all the sums paid in to him by the immigrants. There was much lack of provisions, and, in fact, a number were so low in funds that they are being transported here, where work will be provided. All difficulties and contentions are now supposed to be at an end, and the settlers are on the same footing as any other immigrants.

A 13-Year Old Horse Thief.

Belleville, June 10.—A boy named Thomas Sullivan, 13 years old, who belongs to Frankford, is in jail in this city charged with stealing a wagon and team of horses, which he took from an hotel in Frankford on Saturday night and started for Trenton with. But he was arrested there. The boy's father says he is incorrigable, and is to be sent to the State Reformatory. The request was granted, and the boy will go there for an indefinite period.

Anglican Synod Has Convened.

Toronto, June 10.—The annual meeting of the Synod of the Diocese of Toronto convened in St. James school-house yesterday morning with a large attendance of clerical and lay representatives. The feature of the opening session was the address of the Bishop of Toronto, summarizing the work of the past year, and pointing out some of the needs of the present situation from the ecclesiastical standpoint.

Humberts Committed.

Paris, June 10.—The Chamber of Indictments holds that there is sufficient evidence against the Humberts, of "Crawford millionaire" fame, to warrant their commitment for trial, and has returned formal counts of forgery, using forged documents and swindling.

FIVE R. C. F. A. HORSES KILLED.

Guns of 11th and 16th R.C.F.A. Damaged in a Train Ditching.

Enterprise, June 10.—Train No. 5, Bay of Quinte Railway, running from Tweed to Deseronto, was ditched here yesterday morning by running into a spread frog in a switch. The 11th and 16th Field Batteries were on this train, with guns and horses, etc., on route for camp at Deseronto. Seven flat cars left the track, smashing the guns badly. Six horse cars were also ditched, killing five horses. The baggage car coaches did not leave the track and no one was injured.

The Militia Camps.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, June 10.—The weather yesterday was perfect. The regiments continued to arrive from early morn till dark. By 8 o'clock all were under canvas, the last to arrive being the 35th Simcoe Foresters, and C. and D. Companies of the G.G.B.G., which came over by the Corona. The camp consists of the second division, consisting of 3rd and 4th Brigades and the Cavalry Brigade. Every regiment is somewhat under strength. The small pay is assigned as the reason by the officers. It has been definitely announced that Lord Dundonald, G. O. C., will arrive from London on Monday.

London, June 10.—The annual camp of instruction for the London military district commenced yesterday in Carlings' Height. All the troops were under canvas by 6 p.m. Drill begins this morning at 8.30. Lord Dundonald and staff are expected here in a couple of days.

Mrs. Hall to Be Tried.

Cornwall, June 10.—Mrs. Melvin Hall, the last of the Hall gang, will be tried here for stealing clothing and jewelry.

Off For Japan.

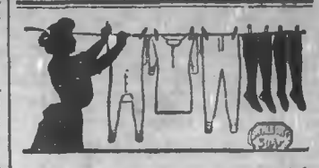
Vladivostock, June 10.—The Russian War Minister, General Kuropatkin, sailed yesterday for Japan.

Explosion of British Cruiser.

Gibraltar, June 10.—A boiler explosion occurred yesterday on board the British armored cruiser, Good Hope. An officer and six men were seriously injured.

Deadly Elevator Again.

Chicago, June 10.—Clara Nichols, society editress of The Chicago Tribune, was crushed to death in an elevator in The Tribune Building yesterday.



You won't harden or shrink woolens with Sunlight Soap. The purity of the oils and fats and the absence of free alkali prevent that. 18

Another club woman, Mrs. Haule, of Edgerton, Wis., tells how she was cured of irregularities and uterine trouble, terrible pains and backache by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"A while ago my health began to fail because of female troubles. The doctor did not help me. I remembered that my mother had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on many occasions for irregularities and uterine troubles, and I felt sure that it could not harm me at any rate to give it a trial.

"I was certainly glad to find that within a week I felt much better, the terrible pains in my back and side were beginning to cease, and at the time of menstruation I did not have nearly as serious a time as heretofore, so I continued its use for two months, and at the end of that time I was like a new woman. I really have never felt better in my life, have not had a sick headache since, and weigh 20 pounds more than I ever did, so I unhesitatingly recommend Vegetable Compound."—MRS. MAY HAULE, Edgerton, Wis., President Household Economics Club.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

Women should remember there is one tried and true remedy for all female ills, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Refuse to buy any other medicine, you need the best.

OMEMEE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Vegetation is now making good progress. The sugar beet crops show up better than the mangle or any other root crop.

We have never had such good times generally as at present. There is work for all kinds of labourers, and men can't be procured for love or money. Farmers have lots of ready cash to pay for everything and also attend all the excursions and picnics at this season of the year.

There have been two very pretty weddings here of late. Miss Edith Thornton and Mr. F. G. Sandy were united in marriage in the Presbyterian church, and the ceremony was witnessed by a large assemblage of people. They have arrived home after their wedding tour to Niagara and other points. The second wedding was that of Capt. J. McCrae of South African fame to Miss Roberts, the daughter of Rev. E. Roberts, a former pastor of the Methodist church here, but now of Lindsay. A special train conveyed the guests from Toronto and from here.

Peterborough seems now to be the favourite outing place for our young people, there being so many of our citizens working and living in Peterborough, employed in the different industries.

A large number from here will attend the Downeyville picnic in aid of the church funds, on June 14th. The programme of sports is a very extensive one.

Our real estate agent, Mr. J. D. Thornton, says that it is easy to locate farmers and settlers within a reasonable distance of Peterborough even at higher prices for land, because in that town there is such a demand for all kinds of marketable products.

The Governor-General and his party stayed one hour and a half and breakfasted at the Omemee Junction. The school children with a few of our leading citizens met them, and were received very kindly. Our reeve and councillors did not get word in time to attend.

The Presbyterians have not secured a settled pastor yet, and the usual division of opinion exists, after hearing several candidates, but the desire is to secure a man who has had experience and will be likely to remain more than three or four years. The most desirable man yet heard in the opinion of many is Rev. Mr. McPherson, late of Halifax.

Major Evans has placed a large lathe in his foundry and machine shop and will begin the manufacture of the celebrated Buck pump.

We very fortunately escaped from fires here or in this vicinity during the dry spell.

SMITH.

(From our own Correspondent.)

On Wednesday last, June 3rd, a very pretty wedding was solemnised at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George Allen, Smith, home of the bride, when their second daughter, Fanny Laura, was united in marriage to Mr. W. Lorine Braden, also of Smith.

There were present at the happy event about ninety-seven relatives and friends of both families.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Banner, of Bridgenorth.

The drawing room was beautifully decorated for the occasion.

During the playing of the wedding march by Mrs. Gervin, cousin of the bride, little Myrtle Pethic, niece of the bride, who was flower girl, appeared, followed by the bridal party.

The bride was given away by her father, and wore a rich gown of cream lustre trimmed with satin and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations.

The bridesmaid was her sister, Miss Clara Allen, who wore a dainty dress of white organdie and carried pink carnations.

The groom was attended by Mr. Arthur Fitzgerald of Smith.

After the marriage and congratulations the usual sumptuous wedding breakfast was enjoyed by all present. The presents to the bridal pair were numerous and costly, as well as useful, showing the high esteem in which both are held by their friends.

After a pleasant evening the newly married couple left for their future home in Smith near Selwyn, followed by the best wishes of their numerous friends. The bride will be greatly missed not only in her home but in the neighbourhood, where she resided and especially in Zion church, where she was a valued member of the choir, league and Sunday School, and a great helper in all church work.

LAKEHURST.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The attendance at the Presbyterian church last Sunday morning was very good. Mr. Pickup preached the first of a series of sermons on Joseph. They will doubtless prove exceedingly interesting and also instructive.

Mr. John Telford was home for Sunday.

Mrs. H. K. Smith, of Belleville, is visiting relatives in the settlement.

Mr. Robert Shaw, our worthy county councillor, was out to town on Friday last to attend the reception given to Their Excellencies, Lord and Lady Minto. Miss Jennie was also present.

Miss Jean Smith has returned home after a month's visit in town. Miss Jean has a fine photograph home with her.

The crops in this vicinity are suffering for want of rain. The roads are also exceedingly dusty.

Mrs. John Smith is visiting in Otonabee this week. Her mother, Mrs. Renwick, attained the age of 95 a few days ago and her birthday was the occasion of a family re-union at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Miller, of Otonabee.

During the time that a number of families in the settlement were in quarantine for small-pox, a kind of "Home, Sweet Home Club," was formed, consisting of not less than four members. The club held regular meetings on the fence not far from the factory. Of course that is not necessary now, but it will be strange if the four above members do not remember fondly this spot, which although not constructed for that purpose is admirably adapted for "whispering lovers."

Misses Jennie and Lizzie Fawcett have moved back home again after a six weeks visit with Madam King.

Since the small-pox is all over now it is rather difficult to keep up a conversation—that is for the women. The men of course can talk about their crops or the Gamey case, but the fact is well known that the Harvey women do not stoop to "gossip."

Nearly every other buggy that went into town on Saturday last had a large bundle of wool tied on behind. Harvey wool brings the highest price in the market.

The Presbyterian Sunday school will begin again on Sunday morning with Mr. Pickup, Miss Weir and Miss Smith as teachar. Some 16 new books have been added to the library lately.

Mr. John Smith was among the number of those who were presented to Lord and Lady Minto. Harvey boys to the front!

DAMASCUS BATAVIUS

Is the Name of the New Baby Camel With Main's Circus.

A baby camel was born to the mother, Mrs. Abdalla, of the Walter L. Main shows at Batavia, N. Y., last week. The occasion was made an event of great rejoicing, and it was deemed fitting that on such rare epoch a due and proper observance by ceremony would be the proper thing to do. A delegation of the Masonic Order was detailed, and, headed by the mayor of the city, the visitors marched to the tents. Felicitous remarks were made by the mayor, and some of the brothers relative to the coming into the light of a diminitive ship of the desert, whose remote ancestors lead the caravan which carried the great seal of Solomon over the burning sands of the mighty Sahara.

The baby was christened Damascus Batavius, complimentary to the place of her birth and her mother's family cognomen; and a bottle of wine—or the neck of the same—was broken over the tent stake commemorative of the happy happening. Colonel Dockerell, Equestrian Director, and Captain Fitzgerald, manager, and Major Hines, replied to the formal addresses of the worthy brothers of Batavia in Arabic reminescent style. Then baby Batavius was left to the gentle nurturings of its proud and happy mother; who, it is pleasing to add, "is doing well."

This little mite of camelhood will be on exhibition here Tuesday, 16th inst., she having taken her place with the baby leopards, elephant, and ostrich. It may be said, too, that the stork who regulates the affairs of menagerie curios in the Main menagerie is hovering in kindly mood over the Bengal tigers and a mother lion. Other babies of great "cuteness" are expected shortly.

MOUNT IRWIN.

(From our own Correspondent.)

It is with deepest sorrow that we chronicle the death of Mrs. Edward Sheehan. Up to a couple of weeks before her death deceased had been in good health but contracted a severe cold which settled on her lungs. All that medical aid could do was done but to no avail and on Saturday night she passed peacefully away. She leaves a husband and four children who have the entire sympathy of the community in their bereavement. The funeral took place to the R. C. Cemetery and was very largely attended. The pallbearers were Messrs. Chooves, Ed. Smith, John Owens, Cornelius Hickey, Thos. Cahill and Thos. McNamara.

Mr. Bert Craig arrived home from Minnesota.

The Fires of Eczema.

So keen is the suffering of many people who endure the stinging, itching sensations of Eczema that they speak of the skin as being on fire. By its soothing, healing, antiseptic influence Dr. Chase's Ointment positively cures Eczema, Salt Rheum, and every form of itching skin disease. It is of inestimable value in every home, and when once introduced becomes a household necessity. Dr. Chase's Ointment is the standard the world over, and has no worthy rival.

INDIAN RIVER NEWS.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A lawn social will be held on Mr. Duff's lawn on Friday evening, the 12th of June. A programme supplied by home and outside talent, will be rendered during the evening. Ice cream, fruit and refreshments will be on the list; social to commence at 7.30 p.m.

One of the deacons of the Indian River Baptist church accompanied Rev. Mr. Kelley on his pastoral calls at Warsaw.

The funeral of the late John B. Powell, took place on Thursday, the third of June. Rev. Mr. Kelly took charge of the service. The body was interred in the Norwood cemetery. A large number of friends followed the remains to the grave. The Masons, of which the deceased was a member, met the funeral on the outskirts of the village of Norwood, and accompanied the remains to their last resting place.

Messrs. Jas. Hall, Jas. Shearer and Thos. Breckenridge returned from a few weeks sojourn in New Ontario on Friday last. Mr. Hall brought home an interesting souvenir.

On Friday evening, the 5th of June, it being Mr. Kelly's birthday, a small picnic was held at the river. A very enjoyable time was spent; everyone had a sail on the river, and those not sailing were playing games. Mr. Breckenridge arrived at tea time and Messrs. Duff and Borland later.

TRIED AGAIN AND WAS CURED.

A. Bailey, After Repeated Disappointments, Used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

And now his old Pain is Gone for Good and he can do any Kind of Stooping or Lifting Work.

Winnipeg, Man., June 8.—(Special.)—So many deaths are now charged to Kidney Disease and ailments resulting from disordered Kidneys that the cure of Mr. H. Bailey, of 256 Patrick street, of this city, is being widely discussed. Mr. Bailey says:

"Some time ago I suffered a lot with pains across my back and in the region of the Kidneys. I had spent considerable money in England treating this ailment, but got no permanent relief.

"All by chance I read of some wonderful cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills and though my previous failures made me hesitate I finally decided to try them. It was a fortunate thing for me that I did.

"After taking three boxes, I found myself perfectly free from any pain whatever, and no matter what stooping or lifting work I do, I never have the old pain.

"It is now two years since I was cured, and I think in justice to Dodd's Kidney Pills, I have the right to recommend them to anyone suffering from Kidney Disease."

Council adjourned to meet at the call of the Reeve.

CLYDESDALE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Very dry hot weather here—crops are suffering to some extent for want of rain. Small fruit such as strawberries are dried out; scarcely any to be seen.

There are some bush fires still raging in this vicinity, and are destroying much timber. Many people are being left homeless by it.

Mr. B. Conlon is doing rushing business on Factory street. He has bought out Mrs. Alex. Trotter's store, and the Clydesdale Post Office has been removed to his premises. We wish him success as he is quite an enterprising fellow. Ice cream there every Wednesday and Saturday for the accommodation of Clydesdale young people.

Our blacksmith, Mr. Peters, is doing a good business.

Mr. John Manogue is sawing lots of lumber to build in the village. We hope to see street cars running through to make more stir.

Mrs. Alex. Trotter is going to New Ontario on a long visit. We shall miss her as she was a favorite in the shop here.

Mrs. Cauldwell is recovering nicely from stroke and is able to walk about and do her own work again.

Mr. Allan Cauldwell has quite recovered and is now working his farm.

Mr. Coyle Brown, school inspector, passed through here examining schools last week.

Mr. Potter, Presbyterian student, is doing a good work in Clydesdale and Apsley. He is a fine speaker.

Mr. John Trotter is erecting a home this summer. He says he intends running for a government office next year.

SOME HAPPENINGS IN THE NORTHERN TOWN.

Personal Mention and Other Happenings of Interest at Lakefield.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Mr. A. L. Davis of Peterborough, passed through the village on his way from his cottage at Stony Lake on Tuesday.

Quite a number of young folks from the village spent a very pleasant evening at the home of Mr. Little, Douro, on Monday evening, coming home by way of Young's Point. A most delightful drive was enjoyed.

Invitations are out for the wedding of Mr. R. P. Davidson, Manager of the Traders Bank, and Miss Mabel Beasley, of Windsor, Ont. The ceremony is to take place at the residence of the bride's mother, 142 Victoria avenue, Windsor., on June 17.

One of the three rotaries which the Lakefield Portland Cement Co. is installing, arrived on Saturday from Canton, Ohio. These rotaries are 100 feet long and 7 feet high insider. They are the largest rotaries on this continent at the present time. When these rotaries are all running they will yield an output of 1100 barrels per day. Additions are also being made to the grinding department. Two tube mills and one ball mill have been added. The company's new power house at dam No. 3, is rapidly nearing completion and this will supply the power for the works.

Mr. Joe Moffatt, accountant Traders Bank, spent Sunday at his home in Port Hope.

Mr. R. B. Rogers of Peterborough, was in town this week on business.

Mr. C. B. McAllister of Peterborough, was in town on Thursday.

Rev. Mr. Rose occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian church here on Sunday in the absence of Rev. Mr. Campbell, who is away attending the General Assembly, which is being held at Vancouver, B.C.

Miss Brown spent Sunday with her parents in Peterborough.

Mr. L. Davidson of Toronto, spent Sunday with his brother, Mr. Davidson, of the local bank.

The Solar Plexus.

Is the largest nerve centre in the sympathetic nervous system, is situated just back of the stomach, and supplies nervous energy, the vital force of the human body, to the stomach, heart, lungs, kidneys, liver, etc. By creating nerve force Dr. Chase's Nerve Food directly aids the solar plexus in supplying the power which runs the machinery of digestion and so cures nervous dyspepsia, headache, dizzy spells and bodily weakness.

Best, who died 48 years ago. Mrs. Best was born in Ireland and came to this country at the age of 12 years. She had a family of 6 sons and 4 daughters, of whom all but two are alive. Those remaining are: — Samuel J., of Magnetawan; David, of Grand Forks, N.D.; Abraham, of Bay Centre, N.D.; Thomas, of Mount Pleasant, and John, of Peterborough. The daughters are: — Mrs. Geo. Jamieson, and Mrs. Jas. McLean, Mount Pleasant, and Mrs. Charles Argue, of Millbrook. The funeral took place on Wednesday to Gardner Cemetery, Cavan.

HORSE THIEF CAUGHT.

Attempted to Relieve Douro Farmer of a Horse and was Caught in the Act.

The much talked of horse thief has been captured at last. Last night a cork-legged tramp was caught by a farmer in Douro in the act of attempting to steal a horse from his stable. He immediately captured the thief, detaining him until this morning when he was taken to Lakefield and High Constable Cochrane communicated with. Mr. Cochrane left this afternoon for Lakefield to bring the prisoner to town. The constable deserves great credit for the prompt methods he has used to capture this troublesome character. He has repeatedly urged the farmers to greater watchfulness and it will be a relief to those having valuable horses to know that they can now rest secure in the knowledge that at least one source of menace has been removed.

THE PETERBOROUGH BOARD OF HEALTH

Took a Business Trip This Morning.

Drive Around the Town—Some Sewers Recommended—Those Present.

This morning a large portion of the Board of Health drove around the town, visiting places where it had been suggested that sewers were in requisition, to take the place of cesspools, and to avoid any more of these being built. There were inside of one of Robinson's large rigs Mr. Robert Neill, chairman, and Messrs. William Eyres, G. Schneider, Mayor Roger, S. R. Armstrong, Chief Boezel, the Sanitary Inspector, and Mr. T. A. S. Hay, the town engineer, besides two representatives of the press.

The party first of all drove south down Rubidge street to Rink street, opposite the Canadian General Electric Company's Works. Here the rig stoped and some discussion arose, which ended in a motion being moved resolving that the Board of Health recommend the council to run a sewer on Rubidge street from Charlotte street to Rink street.

The horses were then turned up Park street, and after due consideration on the part of the Board of Health and the Town Engineer, it was resolved to recommend the council to construct a sewer on King street from Park to Rubidge streets.

The party then drove up to the north end of the town to where Edinburgh street crosses Bethune. Here it was resolved that the council be recommended to lay down a sewer on Bethune street from Smith street to London street.

The party then drove to the centre of the town and went along the lane which runs behind the shops along George and Hunter streets, from the commercial House to the Post Office. This lane they found in a very bad sanitary condition. It is expected that some action will shortly be taken with a view of cleaning up this very unhealthy spot.

The next and last place was the Cereal Works. Here they were shown a pool of stagnant water on west side of the Company's main building. Mr. Macdonald explained that a pipe had been laid when the road had been constructed. It had no outlet however. After viewing this and ascertaining the cause, the Board passed a resolution as follows: "We recommend and ask the Engineer to report on a system of sewerage from Murray street past the Cereal Works."

The Board then adjourned after having done some two hours hard, and, it must be said, efficient work.

The idea of the Board visiting the actual spot which is under their consideration is an excellent one, and it is felt that much more efficient work can be accomplished in this manner than by discussing situations which they have, probably, never viewed. A man who sees a thing for himself grasps the situation far better than one who hears another "report" on that place. It is felt that all those places which the Board to-day recommended to have a system of sewerage very badly need such and it is further thought that had not the Board taken their business drive such places would not have got sewers recommended.

AT THE POLICE COURT THIS MORNING.

An Italian Charged With Pointing a Revolver at Another.

At the police court this morning, before Police Magistrate Dumble, a lad was fined $2 for being drunk and disorderly. He pleaded not guilty.

A man was charged with not closing up a well, the water of which the Board of Health deemed unfit to drink, after they had ordered it to be closed. The accused said he did not think the water was bad. The Magistrate enlarged the case in order that the water might be further submitted to analytical examination.

Three young men were charged with creating a disturbance early on Saturday morning. They were all discharged with warnings of what would be in store for them should they again appear in court under a similar charge.

The case in which Fred Burleigh was charged with assaulting Alex. Martin on Aug. 26, 1901, was again enlarged, this time until Friday.

A case in which one man was charged with using grossly insulting and abusive language towards another, was enlarged until Tuesday.

An Italian was charged with pointing a revolver at the head of one of his fellow countrymen. His case was enlarged for a week.

The court then adjourned.

FLOODS AT ST. LOUIS.

Thirty Lives Lost Already, and Water Still Rising.

Special to the Examiner.

St. Louis, Missouri, May 10. — At 8 a.m. the southern half of St. Louis was under water and it is believed to be only a question of a few hours when the whole city of 32,000 inhabitants, will be submerged. The river is still rising. Thirty lives have already been lost in the flood. A break in the Baltimore and Ohio levee on the north is reported, menacing the city from that point.

THE GUARD OF HONOUR WAS WELL COMPLIMENTED.

Small Turn-out of Men to Drill Last Evening.

The turn-out at the drill shed last night was very small, but the weather was fine and the men went through company drill on the Central Park. No. 4 Company went through skirmishing exercises and in the opinion of the company commander, acquitted themselves very creditably.

At the conclusion of drill the following orders were read:—

Headquarters, Peterborough.
June 9th, 1903.

Orders by Lieut.-Col. J. W. Miller, commanding 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers.

No. 1. Detail of duty for the week ending June 16th, 1903:—Officer for the week, Captain Clurton; next for duty, Capt. Bennett.

No. 2. The Regiment will parade for drill at the drill shed on Monday, June 15th and Thursday, June 18th at 8.00 p. m. and the parade for Tuesday, June 16th is hereby cancelled.

No. 3. The recruit class will be discontinued after Thursday, June 11th.

No. 4. The commanding Officer has been pleased to make the following promotions:—A Co., to be Corpl., (provisionally) Pte. C. Hill.

By order,
D. WALKER, Capt.
Adjutant.

Lt.-Col. J. W. Miller then spoke a few words to the regiment. He regretted that the turn-out was so poor, but attributed it to the meteorological conditions and not any lack in interest in the work on the part of the men. He asked for a good turn-out on Monday and Thursday nights, and highly complimented the men who turned out on the guard of honour, which was provided for his Excellency Lord Minto.

WEDDING IN ST. PETER'S.

Popular Young Couple Married by Rev. Father Crowley.

At St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday morning the wedding of Mr. Wm. Lynch to Miss Margaret Crowley was celebrated by Rev. Father Crowley of North Bay, brother of the bride, assisted by her cousin, Rev. Father John O'Brien. The bride, who is a very popular young lady, received many valuable presents, which testified to the esteem in which she is held.

The usual wedding breakfast was served after the ceremony, at which a number of the bride's friends were guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Lynch will live on Downey street.

SPECIALS!

Extra fine flavoured Canadian Tomatoes, New Wax Beans, Peas, Cabbage, Beets and Carrots. Also Mixed Fruits, California Cherries, Canadian Berries, extra large Pine apples. Everything of the best quality we can buy—at OKE'S, 376 George street.

DOMINION DAY.

Let all Citizens Take an Interest in the Celebration.

Now that it has been decided that Peterborough is to have a celebration on Dominion Day, every citizen should take a personal interest in it, and do all in his power to make the day a success. Usually the bulk of the work and worry incidental to an affair of this kind falls upon a few willing public-spirited men, but it is to be hoped that on this occasion everyone will take a share of the work. Those who have taken the matter up are very desirous that it shall be an event in which all will have an equal interest, and every man who takes any pride in his home town should begin now to help boom the Dominion Day Celebration.

Cheap rates will be in force on all railways, which will mean that from all the towns within a reasonable distance of Peterborough, visitors will come, and considerable money will be left here as a result.

The Committees which have been appointed are composed of energetic and enthusiastic men, but it is absolutely essential that if the day is to be a success, they must have the hearty co-operation of all the citizens.

NEWS NUGGETS.

—The plan of hall for Mrs. Morrow's concert is open at Jas. Lynch's drug store.

—Piano tuning promptly attended to. Satisfaction guaranteed. A. F. Hoover. 'Phone 199.

—Mr. T. W. Robinson went up to Stony Lake this morning to open his Juniper Island store for the season's business.

—The Young Men's Guild of St. Paul's church intend holding an excursion on Thursday. See their ad. in another column of this issue.

—Mr. Fred Roy, who won the sailing race at the regatta on Victoria Day, attributes much of his success to the suit of sails used on that occasion, which were made by Mr. A. Kingscote.

—At St. Andrew's to-night there will be a special Gospel service and on each Wednesday during this month. Mr. James Morgan, bass soloist will sing. All are cordially invited. Service begins at 8 p.m.

—Auction sale of mahogany and walnut furniture, piano and household effects, of Lieut.-Col. Rogers. Sale on Thursday and Friday, the 11th and 12th days of June, Commencing at 1 o'clock each day. No reserve. J. Haggart, auctioneer.

—The rifles for the two pew companies, Nos. 7 and 8, have arrived, and have been placed in the armouries. They are a splendid lot, and the men are greatly pleased with them. The accoutrements of these two companies are now complete.

—Mr. R. M. Roy was bitten by a collie dog Monday evening. The wound, however, is not serious, and Mr. Roy is not expected to suffer from hydrophobia.

—A Coronation medal and ribbon was lost on Thursday last. The owner is particularly anxious to have it returned and as it is of no value to any other person, he hopes the finder will have it at the Examiner office at once when a liberal reward will be given.

—Mr. G. L. McLellan, of the local branch Ontario Bank, met with a painful accident this morning. A pair of shears which one of the workmen engaged in the work of improving the building had been using fell from a scaffold striking Mr. McLellan on the head and inflicted a wound in which some stitches had to be put. The accident is not serious and Mr. McLellan will no doubt soon be able to be on duty again.

JUNE SESSION OF THE COUNTY POLICE COURT.

The Case Against Geo. A. Buels was Postponed.

At the June session of the County Police Court, to-day, before His Honour Judge Weller, the case against Geo. A. Parcels for perjury and extortion, was postponed until the December session of the County Court.

An appeal from the decision of the County Police Magistrate was also postponed until the same session. Mr. Geo. J. Sharry of Norwood, appeared for the defendant; while County Crown Attorney R. E. Wood prosecuted.

The young lad, Jas. Fram, who was charged with the attempted murder of Lizzie Stewart, on May 25th, chose to be tried by a judge alone, without a jury. The date of his trial has not as yet been fixed.

The court then adjourned.

FORESTERS TALK OF INCREASED RATES.

Provincial Court Banquetted by St. Peter's Court.

Fraternal Greetings From Sister Societies—Addresses by Bishops.

The following address was presented to the visiting brethren of the Provincial Court, C. O. F., by St. Peter's Court:—

Chief Ranger, Delegates and Members, Catholic Order Foresters:—

It is with great pleasure and utmost cordiality, that St. Peter's Court, No. 225, whose voice it is our privilege to express at this time, bids you welcome to our city, a welcome alike for yourselves personally, and for the Catholic Order you represent.

The Order is by no means a stranger to our city, for we have long had one of its most flourishing and vigorous Courts established in our midst with a membership of about 180 good Catholic Foresters. We are proud you are Catholics and glad you are Foresters ,and that your power will be felt in our midst and bring good results to Catholic Forestry in our city and also in the Province.

Our Order being a Fraternal one, we address one another Brother, we can therefore assure you your brother Foresters of the City of Peterborough feel honoured by your presence here to-day.

We desire to express our hope that your Convention will be entirely successful and satisfactory to our noble Order in the province. Brothers you have come to our city to discuss questions that doubtless are of great importance to our Order, and we pray that God may preside over your convention; may animate your deliberations and keep you during those days, according to the principal laid down in our motto, so that when your work is over and you have effected much good for Faith and Catholic Forestry you may leave us in the same spirit of friendship, unity and true Christian Charity.

Brothers ,you have come from the East and West of the province to discuss affairs of our Order. You are members of an organization that is exclusively and entirely Catholic. Our Mother Church expects much from you. Our Order expects great things from you. We live in an age of organization, the world around us is organized, men and women, too, form great trusts that rule the commerce of the world, from the societies that try to rule the governments of the world to the news boys and boot blacks on the streets, everything is organization . Here and there the individuals count for little, he has become a spoke in the great wheel. To effect any good we must be formed into a mass and organized. Hence the Catholic Order of Foresters are organized under the banner of Catholic teaching, for the social and intellectual guidance of men, for the protection of the widow and the orphan, to comfort them in their hour of distress and to provide for them when we cannot be any longer with them, and our earthly mission is ended, and we have been called to give an account of our stewardship.

Peterborough C. F. opens her heart, her hand and her home to you, and we ask you to take advantage of whatever little little hospitality we may have been able to prepare for you, so when you go back to your various courts you can say Catholic Forestry is strong in heart, strong in muscle, and strong in sentiment, but strongly opposed to strong drink, in our city.

All we ask of you when you have gone is to say, so far as we are concerned, that we have done the very best that we knew, according to our means and ability, and to-day on behalf of this committee and C. F. of the City of Peterborough, we extend to you this welcome. We ask you to be with us, not alone in this convention, but outside in your various Courts, in our social intercourse, and in everything that makes for the best of this order.

We give you this invitation, we give you this welcome. It comes from our hearts.

Brother Foresters, be governed in you debates by honesty and justice. As we said in the beginning, the church watches you, our Order watches you; the world is looking on, and we hope and pray to-day that from on high the spirit of Truth and Wisdom will descend on you and guide you in your deliberations, imbue your hearts with the true spirit of Faith, Hope and Charity, so that you may be true and loyal to our holy religion, and the world will learn that a good Catholic and a true Forester is the highest type of a Christian.

THE BANQUET.

The banquet tendered by St. Peter's Court Catholic Order of Foresters in the T.A.S. rooms last evening to the delegates to the Provincial C.O.F. High Court, was one of the most successful ever arranged by a local organization. Mine host McCallum excelled himself in the spread provided for the occasion, and a most enjoyable evening was spent by the delegates and those favoured with an invitation to be present.

Mr. J. P. Bryson, P.C.R., Court St. Peter, acted as chairman and seated on his right was His Worship Mayor Roger, and on his left Rev. Father McColl. Associated with these were Rev. Father Collins, of Bracebridge; Rev. Father Feeney, of Acton; Rev. Father Dillon, Rome, Italy; Rev. Father McGuire, Hastings; Rev. Father Crowley, North Bay; Rev. Dr. O'Brien and Rev. J. O'Brien, of the Cathedral; C. P. Boudreault, Provincial Chief Ranger; G. W. Seguin, Provincial Treasurer; Thos. Lane, Chief Ranger, Court St. Peter.

Among the invited guests were Messrs. A. Allison, C. R. of I.O.F.; M. A. Sorsolil, C. D. of I.O.F., and J. W. Buyers, Recording Secretary I.O.F.

The speechmaking of the evening opened by Mr. J. P. Bryson, Recording Secretary of Court St. Peter bidding a cordial welcome to the town on behalf of the local Court. He hoped they would carry away pleasant memories of their visit here. In a few well chosen words he proposed the toast of His Holiness Pope Leo XIII, which was heartily recognized.

The next toast on the list was that of His Gracious Majesty King Edward VII. This was received with enthusiasm, and the singing of the National Anthem.

"Our Clergymen" brought a response from Rev. Father McColl, who thanked those present for the enthusiasm with which they recognized the toast. The clergy felt proud of the Catholic Order of Foresters and that pride had been enhanced considerably on the occasion of this convention. When a delegation from the local Court came to the clergy in making arrangements for the delegates we promised to assist them in every way and to do all in our power to make the affair a success. It spoke well for the Order, and certainly showed the high esteem in which the society is held by the clergy, when His Grace, the Archbishop of Ottawa, would come to assist in the religious services. The presence of His Lordship Bishop O'Connor on his throne was also a proof that the Order had his sympathy and blessing. He assured them that the clergy would do all in their power to assist them in their good work. They were glad the society was organized in the parish, as they looked for and was anxious to receive the co-operation and assistance of the laymen. He prophesized a bright future for the society.

Rev. Father McGuire, of Hastings was received with applause, and he delivered one of his characteristically humourous speeches, in which he stated that he was proud the convention was held in Peterborough. He voted that they meet this season in this town, and was sure that all were delighted with the reception that had been accorded them. The presence of His Worship Mayor Roger was a proof he asserted that the town as a whole welcomed them. He eulogized the society and its officers and urged one and all to work for the best interests of the C.O.F.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien was proud to have an opportunity of welcoming the delegates to the T.A.S. rooms. He hoped they would fully partake of the privileges extended to them in the rooms. The presence of the Mayor of Peterborough at the banquet went to prove that harmony and good feeling existed amongst all classes of the community.

Rev. Father Finey, of Acton, felt honoured in being called upon to address them, and at being present with such a gathering as that before him. He had been associated with Catholic Forestry for some time, and the work was one of love. He was fond of young men, they are all like young trees and the clergy he characterized as their caretakers, who sheltered them from danger. There was no limit to the spirit of fraternity in the Church of God. The C. O. F was doing a good work and would continue to be a power for good. Unity is strength he continued, and if all would work together with God's blessing they would prosper. He complimented the local Court on the way they had received and entertained the delegates. The procession headed by the Archbishop and Bishop, with priests and delegates, was an object lesson, and the town deserved the highest congratulations on the welcome which had been extended.

"The Provincial Officers and Delegates" brought a response from Mr. C. S. Boudreault, Provincial Chief Ranger, of Ottawa. He assured them that he felt somewhat embarassed in his endeavours to address them after listening to the eloquent addresses of those who came before him. Everything that had been uttered about the town and clergy found an echo in his heart, and all would carry away lasting memories of the kindness of the citizens. The Catholic Order of Foresters had a membership in Ontario of over 7,000, spread over 90 courts. They at all times sought guidance of the clergy in the different places in which courts were in existence, or were about to be organized, and were in harmony with the church in all matters. The delegates did not anticipate such treatment as they had received from the local court and the citizens of Peterborough. If the people did not restrain their generosity it would induce them to return again, and he feared also that they might neglect the business which they had met to consider. In one month they had organized five courts and received requests to organize four more. The society was growing and would continue to grow. Ten years ago the first court in Ottawa, and the order, had been the means of uniting and solidifying the Irish and the French people of the city. It was also doing a grand work there in the temperance cause, and would continue to be a power for good all over the province. He felt that they were worthy of endorsation of the clergy, and they tried to deserve it. He closed by sincerely thanking the local clergy, Court St. Peter, and the citizens in general for their kindness.

Mr. P. W. Seguin, P. Treasurer, Ottawa, and at one time a resident of Peterborough, stated that in 1901, he had proposed bringing the Provincial Court here. He knew of the proverbial hospitality of the people of the town—there was no question of nationality—harmony existed, and he felt that he was justified in his eagerness to have the Provincial court meet here. The C.O.F. was doing a grand work and its future, he believed, was exceedingly bright.

"Our Mayor and council," was next proposed, and Mayor Roger was loudly cheered as he rose to respond. He referred to the manner in which the delegates were welcomed to the town. It was but an evidence of the cordiality that existed here. The citizens were all proud of our town and all worked for it. He was proud of the reception accorded the visitors by the local brethren was so pleasing to him as Mayor as the opportunity so often afforded him of welcoming visitors to town. It was always a pleasure to entertain them. There was a tendancy in some quarters to look down upon municipal government. This was unfortunate. The municipal government was in the hands of the people, and we had the most complete system in the world. It was to the interests of the people to promote good government, and every citizen should give a portion of his time and talents to benefit the municipality. Municipal life was of great benefit to a citizen. He gains experience and it is an educational medium, and a man should take advantage of the opportunities presented him to enter into municipal matters.

Alderman Corkery in a brief speech endorsed the Mayor's remarks.

"Sister Societies," drew forth an eloquent address from Mr. M. A. Sorsoleil, Court Deputy, I.O.F. He appreciated the honour thrust upon him and expressed the hope, or certainty, that the words "sister society," was no euphonious appellation. The different courts of Foresters were not rivals—they were merely striving to build up their orders, and that fact certainly did not engender ill-will. He closed with a master reference to man's responsibility in life, and thanked the local court for the invitation to be present.

Mr. J. J. Hartley of Court Langton, was the last speaker, and he referred to the great good Forestry was accomplishing. He was proud of the honour of being present, and hoped the delegates would carry away pleasant memories of their visit.

TO-DAY'S SESSION.

At the session commencing at nine o'clock this morning, the Provincial Court C.O.F. delegates were privileged to listen to addresses given by Archbishop Duhmel and Bishop O'Connor, in which these gentlemen offered words of congratulation on the success attendant upon the work of the Order. They urged the delegates to greater earnestness in building up the grand and glorious structure of Catholic Forestry, assuring them that their labours would have the full sanction of the clergy, for "right relations to our fellow men is just as much our Christian duty as right relations to our God." Catholic Forestry in Ontario with the men now at its head, was bound to prosper:

A deputation was received from Court Chemong, I.O.F., and the following address read:—

Peterborough, June 9th, 1903.

High Chief Ranger and Delegates to Ontario High Court of the Catholic Order of Foresters: —

Gentlemen,—Permit me, on behalf of Court Chemong Independent Order of Foresters, Peterborough, to extend to you fraternal greetings and felicitations.

We, as Foresters, welcome you to Peterborough and heartily concur in the action of our civic authorities in officially recognizing the presence of this august body.

We congratulate you most sincerely upon the solidity and growth of your Order throughout this Province and upon the strong and flourishing local court.

We further congratulate you upon the honour conferred on you in the presence of the eminent Pontiffs, His Lordship, the Archbishop of Ottawa and His Lordship, Bishop O'Connor. We commend your wisdom in the selection of Peterborough as your place of assembly. Surely no better place could be found for the discussion and spreading of the principles of Forestry than the heart of a progressive and rapidly growing business community such as is this municipality.

We feel that you are happy in becoming the guests of the local court and from our knowledge of the men who are guiding its affairs we are certain that your entertainment will be as bountiful as is compatible with the transaction of your affairs.

We feel certain that your assembly and the consideration of your business must result most beneficially, not only in the advancement of your own order, but in the furtherance of the general principles of Forestry.

Signed on behalf of Court Chemong,
ANDREW ALLISON, Chief Ranger. J. W. BUYERS, Secretary.
W. A. SORSOLEIL, Court Deputy and General Deputy of the High Court of Eastern Ontario.

Fraternal greetings were received by wire from the different State conventions now in session; also from the Quebec Court, which is meeting in Lachine.

Reports were presented by some minor committees and the court then took up the special business of the day. A motion was presented which provided that the 14 delegates to the International Court which meets at Dubuque, Iowa, in August, should be instructed to oppose any legislation proposed at that meeting looking to an increase in the insurance rates. This motion was the subject of a warm discussion in which many of the members participated. It was pointed out that nearly all of the fraternal societies in both Canada and the United States had found it necessary to raise their rates, and this had been considered wise, but in the case of the C.O.F., it was pointed out that they were doing business at a very small expense in proportion to the number of members, and particular care was taken to admit only good risks. It was feared that if an increase were made in the rates it would be a number of years before the Order would recover from the effect which such an action would have.

An amendment was finally introduced which provided that the delegates go uninstructed as to this matter, and that they use their own discretion when the subject is voted upon. This was carried.

Other important matters are under discussion in the session which convensd this afternoon at two o'clock.

PIONEER DAYS.

Trials of Settlers at Guelph and in the County of Bruce—Down the Saugeen River in a Scow.

"Incidents of Pioneer Days at Guelph and in the County of Bruce" is the title of an interesting little volume by Mr. David Kennedy, sen. His father and mother having come from Scotland settled at Guelph in 1830, when he was two years of age. It had been surveyed only three years previously and had only a few log houses. After a short residence there his father selected a lot in the Paisley Block, near Guelph, and the homestead, which was called Craigmorriston, was his own home for 55 years. Among the incidents in connection with his father's settlement Mr. Kennedy mentions that the contractor for the house and each assistant were paid four shillings and a bottle of whiskey a day. While looking on, his father was struck by a falling tree, which broke his leg. They had to send all the way to Hamilton for Dr. MacKelcan, and owing to the delay the leg was crooked ever afterwards. He gives a vivid description of the privations they endured in those days:—

"Sometimes we were for weeks without bread and had to subsist on potatoes and turnips, and these were very often frozen during winter. I can remember well seeing my mother putting the potatoes into cold water to draw the frost out of them before being cooked, and then we had neither meat, milk nor butter to eat with them.

"The labor of clearing the first acres of unbroken land was all performed by the settlers, when they subsisted entirely upon potatoes as a diet, baked and boiled time about, by way of change or variety, with sometimes a dish of greens made from cow cabbage or the tops of young turnips, added when in season. All this may seem strange when I tell you that the forests abounded with various kinds of game, and the creeks were full of speckled trout, yet it rarely happened that the settlers succeeded in capturing any deer.

In 1851 he and his brother William decided to shift for themselves in the valley of the Saugeen River, which they had heard was a remarkably rich mining country. After six days' traveling through unsurveyed forest with a wagon of supplies and a team of oxen, they reached the Saugeen above Walkerton. Here they built a scow made of deals sawn by themselves out of a green pine tree, with the intention of floating down the river to its mouth. Their hardships at this time were almost unendurable. It was the end of March, and for two weeks they were compelled to remain there without shelter in inclement weather, with their feet and clothes wet all the time. Finally they started, and on the second day down the river reached the shanty of Mr. Simcon Orchard, founder of the Town of Paisley, and that night stopped about three miles from the lake, near the present Village of Port Elgin. Not far from here they chose some land and built their shanty. Others following their example tried to float down the river but were not as successful. One party, in a scow, which consisted of four men, two women and five children, struck on a rock and partly sank. Their provisions were swept off and they were compelled to stand in a couple of feet of icy water for over 24 hours before they were rescued and brought for shelter to a shanty. Among those who passed there in the following months were Mr. Vidal, now the Senator.

Their shanty was overrun by white mice, which gnawed their way into everything of wood. "My brother," writes Mr. Kennedy, "often caught them with his hands and killed them by the dozen while sitting at the table." The only place in which they could keep their provisions was an iron bake-kettle with close-fitting lids. They finally brought a cat from Southampton, but one day it upset a flatiron upon the kettle and smashed the cover, rendering it useless, and their last condition was worse than the first. Another day he undertook to ferry across the river a man from Nova Scotia, who hesitated to trust himself upon the raft used for that purpose.

"He got down upon his knees on the raft," writes Mr. Kennedy, "and commenced to pray. I pushed the raft off into the stream and I noticed that it was sinking very much deeper in the water than usual, and I told him that I thought he would be better standing up, for he was getting wet, but he answered me by saying that he preferred to remain upon his knees, and he continued in this position, with his eyes closed, earnestly engaged in prayer, although his end of the raft was sunk about a foot under the water, and when we reached dry land, although wet nearly up to his waist from kneeling, he thanked me, and said that he would never run the risk of crossing that river again, for rather than do so he would travel by land all the way to Goderich and get back home by that way."

That fall occurred the wreck of a schooner laden with flour and other supplies required by the inhabitants of Southampton for the winter.

"You may imagine the consternation and alarm caused by this sad catastrophe. I was told that our friend, Mr. McDonald, the captain, had remained much longer in Goderich than was prudent at this season of the year. But there was an election in the County of Huron going on at the time, and so anxious was he to assist his friend, the Hon. Malcolm Cameron, in his election that he had neglected to return in proper season, and thus it ended with such serious results to so many, for all were concerned, for there was no way of getting any more supplies during the winter but by packing it across by the trail through the woods from Owen Sound."

Next year he returned to help his father on the homestead, where he still is. His interest in the Saugeen farm he disposed of to his brother William, who is still living in his 77th year in the Village of Tara.

The Roman Aqueducts.

The Roman aqueducts were marvels of architecture. The Akio was forty-three miles long; the Martio forty-one, of which thirty-eight were on 7,000 arcades seventy feet high; the Claudia was forty-seven miles long; the arches 100 feet high. The Roman aqueducts brought 40,000,000 cubic feet of water daily into the city, and the various sections of the metropolis were supplied with water by 13,504 pipes.

FAMILY SKELETONS.

NOTABLE PAGES IN THE HISTORY OF NOBLE HOUSES.

One Recalled by a Picture of a Beautiful Girl in the Palatial Home of Lord Rosebery—The Forrers' Ancestor Who Was Hanged—Grandfather of Present Speaker of the Commons a Prizefighter.

In the great gallery at Lord Rosebery's palatial home, The Durdans, near Epsom, among the portraits of his ancestors, and yet a little apart from them, is the picture of a young and exceedingly beautiful girl.

The original of this painting, which never fails to attract the attention of visitors, was a certain Kitty Canham, a village beauty of Thorpe-le-Soken, in Essex.

Mated when little more than a child to a man whom she disliked, Kitty fled to London, and, after various adventures, married under an assumed name the Lord Dalmeny, who would, had he lived, have been the third Earl of Rosebery.

The young couple went abroad, and four years were spent happily in traveling from place to place. Then, at Verona, Kitty sickened and died, a victim to the remorse born of her guilty secret.

But ere the end came the unhappy girl found strength to confess to Lord Dalmeny the wrong she had wrought him, and begged him, as a last favor, to promise to carry her body back to the home of her childhood and bury it in the village churchyard. The promise was readily given and faithfully kept, the young man traveling to Thorpe-le-Soken, via Harwich, with her embalmed remains in one big chest and her dresses and jewelry in another.

Arrived at his destination, he at once sought out the deceased's first husband, and the two followed her to the grave next day. Three years later Dalmeny's broken-hearted and inconsolable, died also, leaving his younger brother Neil to succeed to the earldom.

Had Ancestor Hanged.

Such is the story of the Rosebery's one family skeleton. It is pathetic rather than grisly. But the exact reverse holds good with regard to the history attached to the specimen belonging to the Earls of Ferrers. For their particular skeleton is that of an ancestor who was hanged.

The crime, for which he died, was committed by Lawrence Shirley, third Earl Ferrers, the scene of the tragedy being his lordship's private room at Staunton Harold in Leicestershire, then, as now, the principal seat of the family. The victim was the murderer's own steward. He had been summoned there by the earl to go into certain business matters about which there has been disputes. These disputes were, it would appear, then and there renewed; and in the end the earl, a man of violent temper, ordered his retainer to sign a paper containing a confession of dishonesty. On his refusal, he shot him dead.

His lordship was in due course brought to trial before his peers in Westminster Hall, and, being found guilty, was sentenced to death. He was hanged by Tyburn, with a silken rope, for the possession of which the executioner and his assistant fought three rounds while yet the body was dangling.

Grandfather a Prizefighter.

The grandfather of Mr. William Gully, Speaker of the House of Commons, was a prize-fighter. There is little to be ashamed of in the possession of this brand of family skeleton; and as a matter of fact, it is pretty generally averred that the right honorable gentleman is rather proud of the fact than otherwise.

For—John Gully, the ancestor in question, was, despite his profession, a thoroughly good-hearted, genuine sort of fellow; a staunch friend and generous enemy. He got into the King's Bench Prison for debt when barely twenty-one years of age, through "backing a bill" for a friend, and was got out of it again by another friend, Henry Peace, the then champion of England, who gave a boxing exhibition in the jail yard for Gully's benefit.

Afterwards Gully himself entered the ring, won several battles, saved money, became a professional bookmaker, and before he was forty had succeeded in amassing a million sterling. He left behind him, in addition to his money, no fewer than twenty-four children, one of whom was, as has already been intimated, the father of the present Speaker.

Hanged for Murder.

There is no older or prouder family in England than that of which Baron Mowbray and Stourton is the present reigning representative. They were a turbulent lot, too, in times past, and so many of them have lost their heads for political offences that the fact of one among them—the eighth Baron it was—having been hanged for murder stands out even more prominently than it probably otherwise would do.

The victims were two yeomen farmers named Hartgill, father and son, who together took a prominent part in resisting the encroachments of their powerful neighbor, Lord Stourton, on the common lands of the parish of Kilmington, Wiltshire, wherein they all resided.

The Hartgills fought the baron in the courts of law, and won; whereupon his lordship gathered together an armed band of his servants and retainers, went and seized the two unfortunate farmers in broad daylight.

They were hurried off, bound and helpless, to Stourton House, and there beaten to death with bludgeons, Lord Stourton looking on approvingly, and remarking, in answer by one of the actual murderers, that he would see that "they should no more be called to account for it than if they had killed two sheep."

In this he was mistaken, however, for both he and they were called very sharply to account for it; nor could all his lordship's influence save them or himself from the fate which he, at all events, had richly merited. His retainers were gibbeted near the scene of their crime. Lord Stourton was hanged at Salisbury and buried within the cathedral, the silken rope which did duty at his execution being suspended above his tomb.

Hid Him in Her Boudoir.

The skeleton in the cupboard of the Berkeley family was installed there owing to the willfulness of a woman, Lady Henrietta, fifth daughter of the first earl.

A handsome lass she was, high-spirited, but extremely wayward. At eighteen her father wanted her to espouse a suitor of his choice, whereupon she promptly fell in love with her kinsman by marriage, Lord Grey of Warke.

Her affection was reciprocated. The lovers met clandestinely. But danger dogged their footsteps. On one occasion Lord Grey remained hidden for two whole days and nights in a tiny cupboard in her boudoir, his only food a few sweetmeats, while the stern old earl, her father, searched everywhere for him, sword in hand.

Afterwards the Lady Henrietta was removed to the family's palatial country seat in Surrey, where she was closely guarded. Nevertheless, she managed to apprise her lover of her whereabouts, and, aided by him, escaped, and rode on horseback to London.

After all this the course of true love ought, according to all precedents, to have run smoothly. But it did not, Lord Grey, prosecuted by Earl Berkeley before the Lord Chief Justice of England for decoying his daughter away, and threatened with pecuniary and social ruin, wavered, and ended by showing coldness to his lady-love, who had dared and risked all for his sake. Whereupon that young lady vowed that never again would she trust any man; and, what is more, she kept her word, dying unmarried some thirty years later.

A Love Idyll.

A love idyll which was even more romantic, and which possesses the advantage of ending in the orthodox happy fashion, is recorded by that famous Duke of Chandos, who was so great a favorite of George I.

Traveling one day in Herefordshire, his lordship stopped at the Castle Inn, Marlborough, where he saw an ostler ill-treating a young and pretty woman.

The duke intervened, whereupon the aggressor explained that the girl was his wife, and that he intended doing as he pleased with his own; adding, however, that he was so thoroughly sick and tired of her that he would willingly sell her to anyone who would buy.

Lord Chandos took the man at his word, paid him over on the spot £20, and carried the girl away with him. Thenceforth he treated her as his ward, had her educated, and eventually married her, her husband the ostler having died meanwhile.

So came plebeian blood into a noble family. But the duke himself was very, very happy with his low-born bride. "I owe," he said in his will, "the greatest comfort I have enjoyed in this life to my dear Duchess, Lydia Catherine."

All this, and much more, concerning this extraordinary love match, is contained in a volume preserved in the British Museum, and which is bound in some crimson velvet left over from covering the coffin of the lady in question.

Carp Not a Popular Food Fish.

As a food fish, carp will never become popular, for no cook can give any taste to his flesh, even though he be stewed in red wine, after the German method. But he gives nourishment, and the poor of the cities consume many a hundredweight of carp in the winter time. The trouble is that where he lives there is no room for other fish. His is such an insatiable appetite that the others are left to starve. Lake Simcoe, once full of gamey black bass, is becoming more and more given up to the German interloper. A miller on one of the streams flowing into the lake stocked his pond with carp, believing that they would keep down the weeds, and would afford him a change from a meat diet. The plan worked well until a spring freshet came along and swept the whole teeming pondful down into Lake Simcoe. That was a few years ago, and already the many hundreds of acres of wild rice that used to feed the wild ducks and bass are becoming diminished. The carp loves nothing better than the tender rootlets of the rice, and he destroys hundreds of them in a week. The Fishery Commissioners have had many a complaint from earnest sportsmen, but it seems to be impossible to do anything to eradicate the pest.

Caught a Salt Water Salmon.

Some seven or eight years ago the Dominion Fisheries Department deposited a quantity of Atlantic salmon fry in some of the rivers running into Lakes Superior and Huron. About three years later, The Wiarton Echo is informed, a fine specimen was caught on the Saugeen River. With manly pride, the lucky angler sent his catch to the authorities at Ottawa for which he received a ten-dollar bill as a prize. In so far as The Echo is aware, this was the only one caught up to last week when an Indian succeeded in landing, at the power house near Southampton, another fine specimen. The strangest part is that this latest catch resembles the Pacific salmon more closely than it does the Atlantic species.

Those Children.

And there was a certain man who, being a merchant with a trade to look after, was a member of the church, in fact an elder therein.

One day he invited his pastor home to dinner, and while they sat in the parlor waiting for the call to table he began to tell of a brother elder's misconduct and grievous sin.

"I only tell you this because you are the pastor, and I think you ought to know it. I never mention it to any one else."

And he repeated this several times during the recital. As it was about completed in came his little daughter. Catching the subject of the conversation, she broke in with this exclamation:

"My goodness, pa! You're surely not telling that old story again!"—Kansas City Independent.

Physicians and Hospitals.

During the past twenty years, millions of bottles of Angier's Petroleum Emulsion have been sold, and nearly all upon doctors' prescriptions. It is also extensively used in hospitals, especially for consumption, and wasting diseases of children. A good reason why you should use it.

Cured of Piles Seven Years Ago

Chronic Case of Twenty Years' Standing Cured Permanently by

Dr. Chase's Ointment.

To be relieved of the dreadful suffering caused by piles is a wonderful thing, but to be permanently cured is even better. Dr. Chase's Ointment brings relief from the very first application, and as is proven by hundreds such letters as the following it cures thoroughly and permanently.

Mr. Alex. McLaughlin, for 30 years a resident of Bowmanville, Ont., writes:

"For twenty long years I suffered from itching piles and only persons who have been troubled with that annoying disease can imagine what I endured during that time. About seven years ago I asked a druggist if he had anything to cure me. He said that Dr. Chase's Ointment was most favorably spoken of and on his recommendation I took a box.

"After three applications I felt better and by the time I had used one box I was on a fair way to recovery. I continued the treatment until thoroughly cured and I have not suffered any since. I am firmly convinced that the Ointment made a perfect cure.

"I consider Dr. Chase's Ointment an invaluable remedy for piles. In my case I think the cure was remarkable when you consider that I am getting up in years and had been so long a sufferer from this disease."

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

A BRIDAL TRIP

.....By Henry Lyle

Copyright, 1902, by T. C. McClure

The Nephi stage carried no outside passengers. Inside it accommodated four comfortably and six uncomfortably. Consequently every one interested in any particular trip of the Nephi stage hoped that the number of passengers would be limited to four.

At Millstown, the half way station, the grinning face of the hostler was thrust through the stage window, and the four passengers already inside groaned. They knew the sign.

"Two passengers, gents. Kindly git t'gether," the hostler announced.

The stage door was flung open. A woman was a rarity along the Nephi stage line and a bride unheard of, yet the first passenger to be ceremoniously thrust into their midst was very evidently a bride. Had all other signs failed, which they did not, there were several kernels of rice sticking to the back of her veil. The tall, thin, spindle shanked young man who followed her was just as evidently a bridegroom. Their clothing and manners proclaimed them of the east and brand new.

The bridegroom carried a suit case, which he pushed to one side after settling his bride as comfortably as the middle seat permitted. Then he fitted his knees between the passengers in front of him and looked solicitously at his veiled bride. "Tired, dearie?" he asked.

"Just a little, darling," she answered, touching his shoulder lightly with hers. "Wasn't it just lovely the way we got away from them?" she continued. "I thought once they would really find out where we were going. Wouldn't it have been terrible? But you were such a darling, you"—

There was a suppressed snicker behind them. One of the passengers facing them gulped and crammed his mouth full of tobacco. "Chaw, pardner?" he asked, extending the package to his seat companion, the fat storekeeper of Alkali City.

The man shook his head. "Hear 'bout th' holdup las' week?" he asked, winking hard.

"Naw. Yeou don't mean t' say there's been er holdup in these here days, do yeou?"

"Turrible! One man kilt an' thirty theusan' dollars took!" the storekeeper answered, covertly watching the bridal couple.

"Oh, darling!" exclaimed the bride. "Why did we come to this awful place? Take me back—can't you, darling?"

The bridegroom shook his head. "Don't be afraid, dearie. I'm with you." His voice sounded weak and tremulous.

One of the men behind him laughed, and the bridegroom flushed deeply and made a reply which was unintelligibly jumbled by the rapid lurching of the stage, which at that moment entered the rougher sections of the road.

The sharp report of a pistol startled the jostled passengers and brought the stage to a stop with a suddenness which jerked the bride into the arms of the storekeeper.

The smoking muzzle of a revolver was thrust through the window, and a voice exclaimed: "Hands up. Step outside, gents!"

No one hesitated. One after the other, with hands well up, the passengers alighted and stood in line along the roadside. The bride came last, and the robber hesitated, astonished, as she stepped down.

"Excuse me, miss," he exclaimed, lifting his hat before he felt about the men's clothes for weapons. "Sorry t' disturb yeou, but business is business.

"Now, Tom," he continued, addressing the driver, "my pardner," motioning to a second robber who stood holding the horses' heads, "will keep yeou covered while I look inter things."

The driver laughed. "I'm afeared yeou'r goin' t' be disappointed this trip, Black John. S' far as I know, there ain't no treasure in this load."

The bride gave a faint cry, staggered and toppled over into the arms of the bridegroom, which, regardless of orders, came down to receive her.

The robber swore. "Keep yeour hands up!" he cried, swinging around and covering the line with his revolver. "Let th' tenderfoot look after th' gal. She's only fainted."

He had pulled several pieces out of the stage when an unusual movement behind him caused him to turn his head. He looked directly into the muzzle of a forty-four, held by the bride.

"I've got you dead to rights, Black John," a low voice whispered. "No noise or I'll let loose."

The bridegroom held a similar weapon at the other robber, who, unconscious of the slight change in affairs, was twitting the driver. "Now, Billy, drop your gun!" the bridegroom called.

The man made an offensive movement. There was a flash, a sharp report, and the shattered revolver dropped from the robber's hand.

"Hands [illegible]ay up, Billy, or it'll be you ne[illegible] the bridegroom command[illegible]ed over and relieved the other gun. "Now, you John and Billy, get up blame quick. No par[illegible]

[illegible]iced at the bride.

[illegible]aid. "Get along. My [illegible] says you've got to ride a sender."

The bridegroom swung himself on one of the pole horses while the bride stood in the roadway and held his gun.

After he had mounted she lifted the suit case out of the stage, handed it to the driver and then climbed up on the box beside him.

The driver frowned. "Yeou, yeou ain't goin'"—he began, but the situation was too novel for him, and he subsided into astonished silence as the bride turned her veiled face toward him and suggested that her husband wanted him to drive on. He cracked his whip, and the stage started.

Progress was slow, and the stage was so late in getting to Alkali City that the entire population was lined up in front of the Palace hotel in anticipation of something out of the ordinary. Their expectations were more than realised when the stage drew up before the door.

The bridegroom glanced over the upturned faces. "Is Mr. Green in the crowd?" he asked.

A round faced, excited little man stepped ont of the crowd.

"Give him the case, dearie," called the groom without taking his eyes off the robbers. "Your cash is all O. K., Mr. Green."

"Is the sheriff in the crowd?"

"That's me, stranger," answered a young giant.

"Come around and get Black John and Billy Rice, sheriff. They haven't any guns, but they have got legs, so I'll keep 'em covered till you're ready. All right?"

"Yep!" replied the sheriff.

The bridegroom swung himself to the ground. "Come, dearie," he said gently, holding up his hands.

The bride climbed down from her seat and turned with him to face the crowd.

"Gentlemen," said the groom, removing his hat, "my name's Archie Dunning, and this is my wife. We're on our wedding tour, but I had to let in a little business to please the company. Is there any outfit in this town where we can put up? My wife's tired. She held up Black John."

He laughed heartily, and, taking a huge revolver which the bride held, he tossed it in the air and caught it. "Here, sheriff," he cried; "catch. She did it with that."

The sheriff caught the revolver, pointed it over the heads of the crowd and pulled the trigger. The hammer snapped.

The crowd roared hilariously and rushed into the bar to drink the bride's health, but the sheriff shook his head and laid a detaining hand on the bridegroom's shoulder.

"Archie," he said impressively, "for the best messenger in the state yeou did er blame fool trick. S'posin' Black John hadn't er got caught jis' so, it'd been all day with yeou an' the gal."

"I know it, sheriff, but she made me promise. She's got plenty of sand about some things, but she's skittish about handling a gun unless it's empty." Then he dropped his voice to a whisper. "But that's nothing compared to the chances we took of going crazy acting like jackasses so's those four mummies of passengers would think we were tenderfeet."

Blood Disorders

are simply kidney disorders. The kidneys filter the blood of all that shouldn't be there. The blood passes through the kidneys every three minutes. If the kidneys do their work no impurity or cause of disorder can remain in the circulation longer than that time. Therefore if your blood is out of order your kidneys have failed in their work. They are in need of stimulation, strengthening or doctoring. One medicine will do all three, the finest and most imitated blood medicine there is

THIS SUMMER'S WORK.

Exploration and Investigation Under the Direction of the Bureau of Mines.

Plans for the season's work of the Bureau of Mines have been matured, and are being put into opeartion. Prof. Coleman has already gone to the Sudbury nickel field, of which he is continuing the examination begun last year, his work this season being directed specially to the northern nickel range curving in a northwesterly direction from Lake Wahnapitae. It is expected that the result of the work will be to define the range and perhaps also determine its relations to the northern belt. He will also investigate the geology and mineralogy of the Hutton iron deposits and the extension of the iron formation to the northwest. He is being assisted by Mr. M. T. Culbert.

Prof. Miller, Provincial Geologist, has in view, along with other work, an investigation into the limestone deposits of Ontario. The use of limestone, not only for lime and building purposes, but also for making cement, the refining of beet sugar, the manufacture of calcium carbide, sulphite pulp, etc., etc., are every year becoming more extended, and the deposits of limestone in the Province are not only numerous, but varied in quality, and it is believed that material suitable for all these and other uses can without difficulty be obtained in Ontario. Marls and clay for economic uses will also engage Mr. Miller's attention.

The great importance of the fuel question has led the Bureau of Mines to take a special interest in peat, lignite and other kinds of fuel found in Ontario. A bulletin has just been issued describing the most modern and improved methods of preparing peat for fuel, and also how to burn it to advantage. To determine definitely the question of the existence in Northern Ontario of workable deposits of lignite, the occurrence of which in many places is already known, an expedition has been dispatched to the Hudson's Bay slope under charge of Mr. J. M. Bell, M.A., with Dr. W. A. Parks as assistant. The starting point of the party is Missanabie on the C. P. R., and it is expected the party will remain in the field until about the 1st of October. They will visit the Missanabie, Abitibi and other branches of the Moose River, and will also keep an eye open for iron ores, gypsum beds and other deposits of mineral known to occur in the Northern regions.

The summer mining classes which have been a feature of the Bureau's work for several years, will this year be under the charge of Dr. W. L. Goodwin, Director of the School of Mining, Kingston, and Mr. J. G. McMillan, B.A.Sc., Fellow in Mining Engineering, School of Practical Science, Toronto. The following is the approximate program; Black Donald Graphite Mine, Brougham township, May 26; Olden Zinc Mine, Long Lake P.O., June 3; Belmont Gold Mine, Cordova P.O., June 11; Copper Cliff, June 20; Massey Copper Mine, Massey Station, June 20; Big Master Gold Mine, Gold Rock, July 9; Elizabeth Gold Mine, Port Arthur, July 20; Tip Top Copper Mine, July 28; Helen Iron Mine, Aug. 8; Rock Lake Copper Mine, Aug. 19. These classes were very successful last year, and have done not a little in providing working miners, prospectors and others with a rudimentary knowledge of mineralogy and chemistry.

The demand for agricultural lands is causing the Department of Crown Lands to lay out some 40 townships in that part of the clay belt southwest of Lake Abitibi, just over the Height of Land. Advantage is being taken of this work to have the country examined for its mineralogical possibilities. A small party with a competent geologist at the head will be placed in the field, and it is expected that much information will be acquired in this way which will be of value in intelligently opening up and settling the country.

Drinking Toast.

The bit of toasted bread that was deemed such an important ingredient in many an old time drink was considered a morsel of honor and fell to the one whose turn came last to sip from the common cup.

In Cromwell's time, so we read, a favorite toast of the cavaliers was to put a crumb of bread in the glass and before they drank to say, "God send this crum-well down."

The very name toast calls up a host of anecdotes that have been the very essence of many a convival scene.

The well known one of the accomplished Judge Story at a dinner in honor of Everett's appointment as ambassador to the court of St. James is especially graceful.

"Genius—sure to be welcomed where Everett goes."

The next response to this was:

"Law, equity and jurisprudence—no efforts can raise them above one Story."

Alphonse Karr, one of the daintiest of writers, once gave a toast at a dinner of physicians by proposing "the health to the sick."

Some Odd Spelling.

Americans, says the London News, employ the word "Britisher," which they invented, in a contemptuous sense. It was a certain Philadelphia wit who is said to have asked his friends what a "Britisher" would mean to convey by the written word "ghoughphtheightteeau." He had to explain to them that, according to the genius of the English language, it meant "potato. Thus: Gh—p, as in "hiccough;" ough—o, as in "dough;" phth—t, as in "phthisis;" eigh—a, as in "neighbor;" tte—t, as in "gazette," and eau—o, as in "beau." This was at least as puzzling as the livery stable keeper's bill which contained the two items:

Aosafada
Atacinonimomgin.

Nobody who does not "know the answer" has ever yet arrived at the solution, which is, in the vernacular of the creditor himself, "A 'oss 'alf a day" and "A-takin' on 'im 'ome ag'in."

Our Recent Arrivals.

A family of Russians who arrived in Winnipeg recently merited all the attention they received. There were seventeen children, ranging from a babe in arms to a lad of 22 or 23, the parents and the aged grandsire, a white-whiskered fellow of nearly ninety years. Even in his old age he is a tremendous fellow. Bowed and all as he is now, he towered over the station constable like a pine over a larch. He was fully 6 feet 9 inches high, and in his prime must have measured over 7 feet. He was deliberate in his movements, but is still a powerful fellow, despite his age. The interpreter said that the old man had spent his prime in the Czar's foot guards.

HACKING.

That word hacking is expressive to those who have experienced the aggravating constant cough, which is called a hacking cough. Sometimes it is the result of a cold, or of grip, and sometimes it is a consequence of catarrh, which unchecked has gradually involved the lungs in disease. Such a cough finds its cure in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery which cures bronchitis, obstinate coughs, lung disease, hemorrhage, and conditions which, if neglected or unskilfully treated, lead to consumption.

"For twelve years I was a sufferer from catarrh and was treated by one of the best physicians in the State of North Carolina, who said the trouble had reached my lungs," writes Mr. J. M. Patton, of Clotho, Pasquotank Co., N. C. "I grew worse every day until I tried Dr. Pierce's medicines. Will say Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery with one bottle of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cured me, and to-day I am well and hearty, and I will say further that my former physician, Dr. W. M. Lyday, recommends Dr. Pierce's medicines to me and to others, I am sure your medicines will cure any case of catarrh that exists. I recommend them to all."

If you ask your dealer for "Golden Medical Discovery" because you have confidence in its cures, do not allow yourself to be switched off to a medicine claimed to be "just as good," but which you did not ask for and of which you know nothing.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the paper covered book, or 50 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

HON. EDWARD BLAKE, K.C., M.P.

The London Daily Chronicle:—The Hon. Edward Blake, K.C., M.P., who is to be the counsel for his native Canada before the Alaskan boundary commission, has sat for Longford in the Imperial Parliament during the past ten years, but he has never become acclimitized at Westminster. He is an illustration of the old saying: "An oak should not be transplanted at sixty." On the other side of the Atlantic he realizes Lord Roseberys description: "The most brilliant orator and one of the most capable statesmen of Canada." Mr. Blake will be seventy a few months hence, and he is a barrister of forty-seven years' standing. He was offered the Chief Justiceship of the Dominion by the Liberal Premier of 1875, Mr. Mackenzie, and declined it. He succeeded Mr. Mackenzie in the leadership of the Canadian Liberal party, and held it until 1887, when he retired and was replaced by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. At a dinner in Toronto in February, 1894, he described himself as "an Irishman and an Imperialist, not in the jingo sense of the word, but an Imperialist in the fullest sense, believing that the destiny of the British Empire is to occupy the foremost position as a civilizer and Christianizer throughout the whole world."

An Unjust Aspersion.

"Yes, our society's new president certainly is a busy woman, but they say she is neglecting her duties as a wife and mother."

"That is not true. I know for a fact that she manages to see her family almost every day."—Brooklyn Life.

One Exception.

"Seeing is believing, you know," remarked the man with the ingrown quotation habit.

"Not always," replied the fussy person. "I see you frequently, but I seldom believe you."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SPRINGVILLE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

A tramp answering to the description of the cork leg hobo from whom Mr. Scullthrope recovered the team at Beulley was seen on the C.P.R. track by the section men. He spent Thursday between Kendry Riding and Cavanville station. A crook called at Mrs. Walker's store Cavanville the same day, representing himself as an employee of Mr. Tinney. He purchased goods to the value of $11, presenting a check in payment purporting to be signed by Mr. Johnston, station agent at Cavanville. The check is a forgery and Mr. Tramp is gloating over his luck in some unknown part.

Elmdale and Springville Sunday schools will have a union picnic in the woods of Mr. Robert Bowles', just east of Scott's corners. Bearers of well-filled baskets made welcome.

The anniversary of the Induction of Rev. Mr. Yule as pastor of Presbyterian Church here was celebrated as announced. Large congregations attending both morning and evening services. Rev. Mr. Thompson of Hastings preached very acceptably. He selected verse 25 of Psalm 118 as his text for morning service. After a brief reference to the progress attending the labours of Mr. Yale, whose first anniversary we were celebrating. He thanked the congregation for their hearty co-operation which made the year just closed one to be remembered on account of the contrast with other periods and the actual prosperity attending their united efforts. The Rev. gentleman pointed out that although works are a strong evidence of prosperity, the prayers of the inspired writer as contained in the text was for spiritual prosperity which could not be determined by works alone. An earnest appeal for the higher interpretation of the text was the point sought to be impressed. The evening service was also noted for the earnestness of the speaker whose text was Acts 3rd Chap., 19 verse. The music was good. The choir rendered the anthem "Bless the Lord", by M. L. McPhail at the evening service. This anthem showed care in preparation and skill in execution. Miss Lillacoe sang "Abide with Us" in good voice. The floral display was worthy of notice. The artistic arrangement added effect to nature's beautiful.

The manse is nearing completion. It presents an imposing appearance and is very apparent evidence of prosperity. Would the present not be a most opportune time for some former members of the congregation to have a memorial window placed in the new manse. It would be an ever present token of their interest and also a momento by which their memory shall be always kept green.

We noticed Mr. Bambord, general freight agent of the C.P.R. in company with F. E. Wilson viewing the proposed accommodation for freight by the placing of a spur at western extremity of the Kendry riding; also ascertaining the probable business. Mr. Bambord's keen foresight makes him fully alive to the interests of the Company he represents and anxious to advance their interests. The anticipated accommodations will be a valuable addition to our neighborhood conveniences.

A football team has been organized. We are pleased to encourage all manly sport. Come out to practice, boys, on Thursday evenings.

The rear trucks of a car loaded with paper going west on C.P.R. line left the tracks at western end of Kendry siding Sunday morning, destroying the ties in such a way as to necessitate the placing of 1,000 new ones. The car was thrown from the station at Cavanville station. Traffic is not impeded.

Mr. John Horton was disturbed by unusual noises Saturday night about 12 o'clock and on investigation he discovered a bay mare on road near his gate and heard a buggy drive away. The horse is a strange animal and shows signs of abuse in driving. He thinks it was unhitched from a buggy and left there. It is still in this neighborhood.

The finding of the Commission re Gamey's charge brought against Provincial Secretary is causing satisfaction and our citizens extend their congratulations to Hon. J. R. Stratton in whom we have every confidence and would gladly enlist in a crusade to exterminate such tactics as those attempted by Gamey and the opposition. Trusting that Hon. J. R. Stratton shall yet be Premier and lead the party whose policy has withstood the fiery darts of the Opposition.

KEENE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The community was shocked to hear of the very sudden death on Saturday at three o'clock of George Eason. Mr. Eason has not been quite well for a few weeks past but able to be about and superintend the work on his farm; and Saturday afternoon he went from the barn to the house to get some sacks. When he reached the verandah he sat down and complained to his daughter Maud, of acute pains in his shoulder which he attributed to rheumatism. In a minute more he fell off the verandah and although medical aid was at hand in a few minutes, it was of no avail and the stricken man quietly passed away.

Mr Eason has been a life long resident of this place, his farm being just outside the village. He has been closely associated with, and an active worker in the moral uplifting of the community. He took a very warm and helpful interest in the agricultural society and in the cause of temperance.

Mr. Eason is of a family of seven, the surviving members being Mrs. W. Eaton, of Norwood; Thomas, of Asphodel, David, of Paisley; Richard, of Lindsay and John, of Westwood. He leaves four sons and one daughter to mourn his death. David, of Peterborough; Edward, of British Columbia; Albert, of Calgary; Fred, of Winnipeg; and Maud at home.

Mr. Eason was very highly respected and the family has the sympathy of the community in their sudden bereavement.

The funeral took place on Tuesday at 11 a. m. from the family residence.

For the Denver C. E. Convention.

Very low excursion rates have been arranged from all points in Canada to Colorado, leaving July 6th, 7th, and 8th., good for return up to August 31st. Everybody can go, the rate is wide open and this is a splendid opportunity to spend a vacation among the Rockies at slight expense. The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway and connections will run special Standard First-Class and Tourist Sleeping Cars through to Denver, besides the regular daily service from Chicago.

For full information, time tables, pamphlets, rates and sleeping car reservation write to A. J. Taylor, Canadian Passenger Agent, 8 King street, east, Toronto, Ont.

—The Peterborough Baptist Association, will meet June 17, 18, and 19 in the Murray street Baptist church. Sessions will be held morning, afternoon and evening. Those of the evening will be especially interesting to the public.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Mrs. V. H. McWilliams, of Keene, is in town, and will receive with Mrs. J. B. McWilliams, Friday afternoon.

Mr. R. H. Bradburn, with the Ottawa Steel Casting Co., Ottawa, is in town for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fulford, of Point Edward, who have been visiting friends in town, leave for home to-morrow morning.

Mr. and Mrs. H. LaBrun, and Miss Hackett, went up to Stony Lake this morning to open Belleschasse, their summer cottage, for the season.

Mr. John Nelson, senior member of the firm of Willis, Nelson & Co., wholesale milliners, Glasgow, Scotland, and an ex-Alderman of that city, was in town this week the guest of Mr. Robert Fair.

This afternoon at the residence of Mr. Cooney, Harvey street, Miss Lillie Cooney was united in marriage to Mr. Jack Dysell, of Otonabee, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. P. Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Byshe left this morning to reside in Rochester, N.Y. They have been residents of the town for the past five years. Mr. Byshe was a valued member of the 57th Regimental Band, and in his departure from town that organization losses a first-class musician.

Mr. James Morgan, who has been in the employ of the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Company, leaves to-morrow morning for Point Edward, where he has obtained a position with a progressive firm in that town. Since his advent to Peterborough he has made many friends, and will be particularly missed in St. Andrew's church choir of which he was a member assisting in a most efficient manner in solo work.

14TH FIELD BATTERY.

Headquarters, Cobourg,
June 1st, 1903.

14th Midland Field Battery, Battery Orders, 1903.

1. The Battery in accordance with Militia Order No. 115 will encamp at Deseronto for their annual training.

The Battery will assemble at Port Hope where they will entrain for Deseronto.

The Left and Centre Sections will leave Peterborough by morning train on Tuesday, June 23rd at the earliest possible hour.

For the accommodation of men and horses in the neighborhood of Bethany, it will be arranged that they shall leave Bethany by morning train. The Peterborough Division will entrain under command of Lieut. Bradburn. Upon arrival of train at Port Hope drivers will at once take their horses to (Port Hope) Drill Shed and have the harness fitted.

2. Detail for duties.—For duty on 23rd June, Lieut. Bradburn; next for duty, Lieut. Ackerman.

At Port Hope the entrainment of guns will be under charge of Lieut. Hall.

The entrainment of horses will be under charge of Lieut. Bradburn and Vet.-Captain Fisher. The loading of baggage and company equipment and Battery Stores will be under charge of Lieut. Ackerman.

3. Medical Inspection.—The men of the Battery will be medically inspected by Medical Officer of the Battery at the Drill Shed, Port Hope.

All horses will be inspected by Veterinary Surgeon of the Battery before entrainment.

4. Advance Party.—Captain Cairns, one Non.-Com. Officer, 3 men and one cook will proceed as an advance party to Deseronto on morning of June 22nd where camp equipment will be drawn also rations, and have a hot meal prepared for Battery upon their arrival at the camp grounds.

5. Rations.—Extra rations will be provided on camp for the members of battery and lunch provided on train.

6. Information.—Everything that is possible for the Commanding Officer to add to the comfort of the men will be done, and it is his wish that every N. C. O. and man will take the greatest possible interest in the Battery work so that the 14th Field Battery may take a high standing for efficiency. The Battery equipment is the best in Canada and it only remains for the officers, N.C. Officers and men to do their best possible to excel.

Each man will provide himself with necessary towels, brushes and material for cleaning his personal equipment.

7. Enrollment.—Every man must sign the service roll before entrainment at Port Hope.

8. Syllabus of Training and Instructions for Practice.—Syllabus of Training for 1903 with detail of same is issued to all concerned.

Only 28 Votes Recorded for Mr. Chaplin's Amendment.

BALFOUR'S CLEVER SPEECH.

Maintains the Right of Colleagues to Express Their Opinions—For Himself He Holds an Open Mind on Great Fiscal Question—Many Conservatives Did Not Vote — The Liberal Position.

London, June 11.—By a dexterous and extraordinary speech, Premier Balfour last night temporarily smoothed over the differences in the Cabinet, relieved Colonial Secretary Chamberlain of any necessity of resigning, and, for the moment, averted a crisis, which threatened the Unionist party. This, Mr. Balfour accomplished without committing the Government either to protection or free trade, though the effect of his speech will generally be taken to mean that the tariff issue is to be shelved for the present.

Henry Chaplin's amendment, which gave rise to the most interesting debate of the present Parliament, was defeated by the overwhelming majority of 396 votes, composed of Unionists, Liberals and Irish members. The minority, who supported Mr. Chaplin's amendment, were almost all followers of the Government, while many others of the Conservative party abstained from voting.

In a whimsical vein, Mr. Balfour explained that the only reason that the corn tax was put on, was because the Government wanted money, and the only reason it was taken off was because the Government wanted money no longer.

Mr. Balfour made an impassioned plea, enforced by the precedents of friction in Mr. Gladstone's Ministries, for allowing the Premier to retain an open mind upon a question so difficult and so superior to all party issues.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal leader, briefly replied, appealing for an opinion for the House to more fully discuss the issue raised.

The Colonial Secretary, himself, jubilant, said: "Our friend, the enemy, is nonplussed this time."

With the exception of some irreconcilable malcontents, the Unionist party is greatly relieved by the outcome of the debate, all the members expressing gladness that the crisis was passed, though, at the same time, believing that the same Cabinet could not long continue to embrace such opposites on the fiscal policy of Great Britain as Colonial Secretary Chamberlain and Chancellor of the Exchequer Ritchie.

Australia For Chamberlain.

London, June 11.—Vice-Admiral Sir Harry Rawson, Governor of New South Wales, has cabled Mr. Chamberlain, in behalf of the Government of New South Wales, strongly supporting the Colonial Secretary's preferential trade proposals.

Tempting Price Inducements

In Snowy White Lingerie

About 150 doz. pieces beautiful fluffy Whitewear cleared in the nick of time.

At this season of the year many manufacturers make a grand clean up of their warehouses (in anticipation of taking their summer inventory). Big lines must be cleared out; all over-production orders that have been too late for shipment and big stock lots must go in order to make room for fall goods.

Having a resident buyer in Toronto who is always on the keen lookout for any snaps that are going, enables us to get first choice (which is always the best). For some time we have been on the lookout for large clearing lines of the above character and have now procured this desirable lot at practically our own figure, thereby enabling us to offer you big lines of Skirts, Corset Covers, Drawers, Chemise, etc., at greatly reduced prices.

A partial price list circular of the above lines is now being delivered through the town. See that you get one.

Remember that although the quantities are large, the remarkable low prices at which they are marked will cause a speedy clearance.

GRAND ORANGE LODGE OF B.A.

In Session at Winnipeg—Address of Grand Master Sproule and the Secretary Testify to Order's Progress.

Winnipeg, June 11.—The seventy-fourth annual meeting of the Grand Orange Lodge of British America is now in session in the Scott Memorial Hall. Owing to the distance, the representation from Eastern Canada is not so heavy, but the contingent from the West is very large. The gatherings shows a great advance since the last Grand Lodge was held in Winnipeg fifteen years ago. Usually, the Grand Lodge concludes its labors in two days, but owing to the amount of business left over from last year, this meeting may take three days.

T. S. Sproule, M.P., M. W. Grand Master and Sovereign, in his address, touched upon the events of the past year, as relating to the affairs of the order, and its great progress.

According to the annual report of W. M. Lockhart, Grand Secretary, no less than thirty-eight primary lodge warrants had been issued during the past year. Of these sixteen were in Ontario, nearly all of the number being in the new districts. Two county lodges have been organized—Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario West, and Edmonton, N.W.T., Western Division. Three district lodges were organized—Sault Ste. Marie and Rainy River, in Ontario West, and Cape Breton, South Nova Scotia.

There have been two female lodges organized—one at Tyndal County, Selkirk, Manitoba, and the other at Goldsmith, District Mersea, County Essex, Ontario West.

There have been issued eight Orange Young Briton warrants.

CARRIED TWO TO DEATH.

Canadian Pacific Railway Engine Drops Into Scovil Lake.

Winnipeg, June 11. — The eastbound transcontinental express on the C. P. R., which left Tuesday afternoon, went through the bridge across Scovil Lake yesterday morning at 3.45 o'clock, and as a result W. Johnson and W. A. Knott, the engineer and fireman, lost their lives. That more were not killed or drowned is little short of a miracle for the entire train was crowded with passengers and had the coaches left the rails hundreds would have met a fearful death. As it was the engine and one car went into the lake, while the rest of the train held the rails. The accident was due to the fact that the bottom of the lake shifted, leaving the trestle without adequate support. The deceased, Johnson and Knott, were both residents of Rat Portage, the former being well-known in the city, where he ran for some time.

Fur Traveler Arrested.

Kingston, June 11.—A. J. Campbell, a traveler of the Russian Fur Company, has been apprehended at Picton, and the necessary papers to bring him to Kingston were issued and an officer went west to bring the man back. He is accused of theft. Campbell suddenly left Kingston on Tuesday, when a member of the firm reached the city to make enquiries about stray furs.

Bourassa Unfair.

Toronto, June 11.—Hon. George A. Cox characterized Mr. Bourassa's attack on him and Mr. Ross of Montreal in the House of Commons yesterday as being responsible for the fluctuations on the markets of Steel stock, as unfair. He had nothing to do with the speculation, never gave any advice, and holds now practically the amount he originally subscribed for.

Left Three Millions.

Ottawa, June 11.—Probate was asked yesterday of the will of the late Alexander Fraser, lumberman, who leaves an estate of $3,125,000, of which $3,087,000 is personal, and $38,000 real property. About five years ago, Mr. Fraser transferred to his sons limits and other property worth about five millions.

Drowned Man Had Money.

Kingston, June 11.—The remains of the unknown man, found drowned in Collins' Lake, have been identified as those of John Connell, aged 75, who left Hotel Dieu two weeks ago, after depositing $1,500 for his keep. His niece identified the clothing of the deceased.

Grand Trunk Railway Officials See the Government.

CONFERENCE LASTED TILL 11.

Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson and Grand Trunk Manager C. M. Hays Closeted With the Premier and Some of His Colleagues — What Transpired Not Divulged — Both Sides Are Sphinx-Like.

Ottawa, June 11.—Sir Rivers Wilson and Mr. C. M. Hays arrived yesterday morning from Montreal and spent a very busy afternoon and evening interviewing the Ministers. Last night the Grand Trunk Manager and the President were closeted with the Prime Minister in his office in the House of Commons. A number of the other members of the Government were present. The conference lasted until 11 o'clock, when Sir Rivers Wilson and Mr. Hays, accompanied by Messrs. Wainwright and Biggar took their leave. What transpired at the interview was not divulged. The Ministers would not speak, and Sir Rivers and his associates were equally sphinx-like. It is probable, however, that matters have advanced sufficiently far to enable the Government to form a general idea of the character of the aid best suited to the undertaking.

CANADIAN NORTHERN AID.

Mr. Borden Demands an Explanation of General Railway Policy From the Government—Public Ownership.

Ottawa, June 11, — Yesterday afternoon the House took up Mr. Blair's resolution to aid the Canadian Northern Railway by guarantee of bonds.

The aid to be given is a guarantee of bonds to the extent of $13,000 per mile, bearing interest at 3 per cent. and secured by mortgage on the property. Mr. Blair explained that the section from Grand View to Edmonton passed through a country of which 80 per cent. was capable of growing the best of wheat. The same is true, though perhaps, not to quite the same per cent. of the other section. He was satisfied that in the course of time these roads would meet any reasonable obligation, principal and interest. Under the circumstances the Government thought it would not be fair to settlers to have to wait until the company could build these lines from its own resources.

Mr. Bell of Pictou asked if the company would be able to sell their 3 per cent. bonds at par.

Mr. Blair replied that the company was very hopeful of doing so.

"What will it cost to build the road?" asked E. F. Clarke.

"My information is that it will cost more than the $18,000 a mile," replied Mr. Blair. He added that there were varying estimates running as high as $17,000 a mile.

Mr. Borden said it was important that the Government should inform the House if this was part of any comprehensive scheme which the Government had in hand for the development of a scheme of transportation, the improvement of our lake harbors and utilization of our ocean ports and harbors. Also, whether it was part of a scheme to extend to the Pacific coast. It was important to know also whether Mr. Blair had abandoned the scheme he had announced in the West, of a government owned railway across the continent.

"I only had a dream about that," said Mr. Blair.

Mr. Borden said another matter was that of capitalization, in connection with which he trusted the Government had taken steps to ensure that it should not be so overloaded as to prevent the Government having control of rates which was so essential in Canada. Mr. Borden expressed the hope that the Government should provide for supervision of the construction and cost of the subsidized portion of the line.

Mr. Blair said he would be happy to bring down any possible information on the subject, and had no objection to the final passage of the resolution being delayed until the paper had been perused. But Mr. Blair did not think the introduction of this resolution should be made the occasion of any declaration of general policy on the whole transportation question. This railway stood by itself. The company evidently intended to extend to the Pacific Coast, and had taken charter power to do so, but all there was to consider at present was the proposed construction to Edmonton, which was a scheme which quite justified the aid proposed. As to capitalization, his view accorded with Mr. Borden's, that Parliament should keep a close eye on this matter, which could best be dealt with in the Railway Committee, which passed upon the power of capitalization asked for in railway charters.

Mr. Maclean said a general plan should have been communicated to the House. Mr. Maclean argued that the Government was creating a precedent for assisting other railways. "If the country's money is to be put in a railway, the country should own the railway," declared Mr. Maclean. "The only solution of the question is a Government-owned road from coast to coast, carrying with it Government control of rates."

Messrs. Bourassa, Scott (Assiniboia), McCreary (Selkirk), and Oliver (Alberta) also went into the whole transportation question.

In the evening Mr. Fisher's estimates were taken up in supply.

Having passed the items for arts, agriculture and statistics, the committee reported progress and the House adjourned at 11 p.m.

GUN CAUSED INSTANT DEATH.

A Twelve-Year-Old Boy Instantly Killed in Collingwood.

Collingwood, June 11.—A twelve-year-old son of G. W. Brown met with a tragic death about 6 o'clock last evening. He was out driving with two or three other boys in one of his father's rigs, and when about a mile from town caught up with a lad carrying a gun. This boy attempted to get in the rig with the shotgun in his hand, when it accidentally exploded, the entire charge penetrating young Brown's left side and causing almost instant death.

Circus Pickpockets' Stiff Sentence.

Kingston, June 11.—Yesterday afternoon William O'Keefe, New York, and John Norton, London, Ont., were sent to prison by Police Magistrate Farrell for three years and six months, respectively, for picking pockets of people coming to the recent circus in Kingston.

Sold to Englishmen.

Halifax, N. S., June 11.—A big deal was closed here yesterday, by which 26 square miles of coal areas known as the Chimney Corner property, at Inverness, Cape Breton, was sold by Halifax parties to an English syndicate for a large figure.

Pasteboard inner soles—leatherboard,

Spongy sole leather under a costly finish that lasts a day.

Glossy cotton thread passed off for silk stitching,

Imitation Goodyear welts that deceive even experts,

Skimped in the unseen vitals to save pennies—robbed of dollars' worth of wear;

Such tricks may be practiced on shoes of no particular standing, with no valuable trademark at stake, no advertising to attract attention and invite criticism,

—Sold under a nameless brand that's here to-day, gone to-morrow with another in its place,

How long could the makers of the "Slater Shoe" practice such deceptions and survive?

—Of what use publishing this ad, or its $100,000 worth of predecessors for unworthy shoes?

How long would its quarter million dollar trademark continue to attract the trade that makes it valuable?

The "Slater Shoe" by the very force of its advertising has got to be a good shoe and a corking good shoe.

STORE ADVERTISING SCHEME.

The business of the Canadian Store Advertising Association, Limited, with headquarters at 52 Bay Street, Toronto, has aroused considerable interest on the part of retailers throughout the country. For the benefit of those who have not had a closer acquaintence with this organization it might be stated that, as the name implies, it was formed for the purpose of dealing in advertising space in retail stores. The company contracts with retailers for a consideration for the use of inside wall space in their stores "Measuring about twelve inches from the ceiling." This space is filled with racks divided for the reception of advertising cards similar to the method now in vogue in street cars in different cities.

The following reproduction of the company's contract gives some idea of what conditions retailers signing it are expected to carry out.

Memorandum of agreement, entered into this.....day of .....; 190...., between ..... of the first part and The Canadian Store Advertising Association of Toronto, Canada, of the second part.

I, the said party of the first part, do hereby agree to lease to The Canadian Store Advertising Association, of the second part, all the space around the inside of my store, measuring about 12 inches from the ceiling, for advertising purposes, and grant them exclusive rights for same for one year, with option of their renewing same for another five years if they so desire, my remuneration for above privileges to be 50 per cent. of their gross receipts which may accrue from such advertising in or about my store, the same to be paid to me quarterly.

In consideration of the above rights and privileges granted, The Canadian Store Advertising Association agree that no expense for frames or advertising matter whatever shall be charged to me, "except a fee of $1 per year," and that I shall receive 50 per cent. of their gross receipts for advertisements displayed by them inside or outside of my store.

It is further agreed by me, that in consideration of the payments mentioned above, I do hereby agree not to allow any kind of advertisement whatever to be displayed inside or outside of my premises, except which may be placed there by order of The Canadian Advertising Association, to whom I grant the exclusive right for advertising purpose.

This agreement or contract shall become operative and in force from the day they first began to display their advertising matter, and I agree to remove all advertisements of whatever kind from my premises when notified by the Canadian Advertising Association.

It is understood that the foregoing conditions do not in any way apply to name, sign or other personal or non-commercial advertising.

In witness whereof the parties hereto have set their hand and seal.

Canadian Store Advertising Association, Limited, Per.....

The Retail Merchants' Association of Canada has put itself on record as opposing the methods of the Canadian Store Advertising Association, pointing out that in agreeing to the terms of the contract the retailer leaves himself no option as to what the advertising placed in his store shall be. There may be displayed the advertisement of some line that he does not handle, and that an opposition store carries in stock. If the association sees fit to place whiskey or tobacco advertisements he has not the right to protest, although he may be entirely opposed to both. Neither are his objections valid should the Association place a card advertising a line of goods that his townsmen know a competitor carries. By agreeing to "remove all advertisements of whatever kind when notified," the retailer does not retain the privilege of even hanging a calendar of an insurance company or any other firm. Hundreds of merchants have become subscribers to the agreement, but many more who have carefully studied the matter from all sides cannot see a sufficient inducement in the Association's offer of "50 per cent. of their gross receipts for advertisements displayed by them inside or outside of my store." It is understood that in the subscriber vacating the premises in which space has been contracted for his agreement becomes void.

SMITH COUNCIL MEETING.

The council of the Township of Smith met as a Court of Revision on the Assessment Roll for 1903, on Tuesday, the second day of June; all the members present, the Reeve in the Chair.

The Clerk reported that no appeals had been received and after making some changes as to property by request, on motion of Mr. Duff, seconded by Mr. Bell, the Roll was passed by the Court and certified by the Clerk.

The Fires of Eczema.

So keen is the suffering of many people who endure the stinging, itching sensations of Eczema that they speak of the skin as being on fire. By its soothing, healing, antiseptic influence Dr. Chase's Ointment positively cures Eczema, Salt Rheum, and every form of itching skin disease. It is of inestimable value in every home, and when once introduced becomes a household necessity. Dr. Chase's Ointment is the standard the world over, and has no worthy rival.

KEENE.

(From our own Correspondent.)
Keene, June 8th.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bennett spent Sunday in Hastings.

Mr. Philip Elmhirst and family have removed to Lindsay. Mr. Elmhirst is now permanently employed as fireman on the G.T.R. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Elmhirst happiness in their new home.

Mr. M. Kennakey is having extensive repairs made to the roof of the Victoria Hotel. Mr. T. Frazer, of Hastings has the work in hand.

Fishing is improving somewhat of late and some fine catches are reported.

The cheesemakers of the Keene factory are having their hands full. Owing to the enormous amount of milk that is coming in, and the extremely hot weather all the help available is required almost constantly. On Monday they took in 21 standards of milk and made 22 large cheese.

The excursion on Friday afternoon up the lake under the management of the Civic Improvement Association promises to be a great success. The steamer Rainbow, with barge attached will leave the wharf at 12, noon. Music will be provided for dancing.

Mr. Robert Dickson, late of Michigan, is home for a few days. "Bob" has spent two years with his uncle, who carries on a large lumber business in Uncle Sam's domain.

The funeral of the late Geo. Eason on Tuesday was attended by a very large number of friends, bespeaking in a measure the very high esteem in which Mr. Eason was held.

The entrance examinations will be held here as usual beginning on the 24th inst.

The football boys are anxious to have a game with some team.

Mr. and Mrs. James Barnett of Buffalo, N.Y., were in Keene over Sunday.

Miss Mabel Humphries of Hastings is the guest of Miss Lena Drummond.

Mrs. John Bolin and her daughter, Mrs. Burns, returned to Nebraska on Monday.

Miss Susie Campbell of Peterborough is visiting Miss Read.

The Government should see that the many logs partially submerged and obstructing the channel of the river are removed. Mr. Thos. Fraser on his first run up here knocked a flange off his propellor. Other accidents are sure to follow if the matter is not attended to at once.

CORDOVA.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The two men, Cote and Hyman, injured in the accident at the Belmont gold mine on May 26th, have been taken to their homes, the former to Delora, and the latter to Arden. They are recovering rapidly from their injuries.

Dr. Goodwin of the Kingston School of Mines, and Mr. McMillan, of the School of Practical Science, Toronto, are conducting afternoon and evening classes in elementary mineralogy, which are being well attended by the miners and others interested. The classes will be continued for ten days.

Mr. H. R. McLean, of London, Ont., was a visitor in town this week.

Mr. H. R. Hunt, who was injured in the last Cordova - Havelock Football match, has gone to his home in Kingston for a brief recuperative holiday.

The lawn social on the grounds of the Cordova Presbyterian church on Wednesday evening, was a very pleasand and successful affair. Choice refreshments, including strawberries and ice cream, were to be had in abundance, and the Havelock brass band discoursed sweet music.

The relatives and immediate friends of the contracting parties, witnessed a very pleasing ceremony on Tuesday evening when Miss Mary E. Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Scott, of Cordova, was married to Mr. Frad J. S. Elmhirst, of Detroit. Rev. F. H. Howard, tied the nuptial knot, and immediately after the bridal party and guests sat down to a recherche supper to which full justice was down. Later on the newly wedded pair, accompanied by a few friends, drove to Havelock and took the train for eastern points, where the honeymoon will be spent, after which they will return to Detroit to reside.

CAN'T AFFORD IT.

You Can't Work Right if you Have Dyspepsia—Hamilton Lady Proves That Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Will Cure it.

Aside from its discomforts you can't afford to have Dyspepsia. You can't work right unless you feel right, and you can't feel right if you have Dyspepsia.

With that dreary despondent feeling that every Dyspeptic knows work loses all its pleasure. You long for the dinner bell, because it makes the end of the morning, but you dread the dinner bell because it means more eating and consequently more suffering.

But there is a way of escape. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are the way. Thousands who have tried will tell you that. Juliana Sandburg, of 221 John street, North Hamilton, tells you. Hear what she says:

"For over six years I was troubled with Dyspepsia and Headaches. Nothing I ate would agree with me. I tried several medicines, but could get nothing to help me till I tried Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"Almost at once they gave me relief, and before I had finished one box I was cured."

You can't find a Dyspeptic who has used Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

A TERRIBLE CONFESSION.

Woman Poisoned Her Brother, His Wife and Child.

Detroit, Mich., June 11. — A despatch from Kalkaska, Mich., says: After two weeks' work Prosecutor E. C. Smith has secured the confession of Mrs. Mary McKnight to the cold-blooded, premeditated murder of her own brother, John Murphy, Gertrude Murphy, his wife, and their three-months-old baby. A partial confession was made Monday evening in which Mrs. McKnight denied killing the baby. Late last night, Smith again called at the woman's cell at her request, and this time she made a complete confession. She admitted giving Mr. and Mrs. Murphy capsules of strychnine and quinine mixed.

Last night she said: 'I didn't intend harm to any of them. I did give the baby the strychnine. It woke up and cried while its mother was gone, and I mixed up a little strychnine in a glass with some water and gave a spoonful to the baby. I didn't mean to harm the little thing at all. I confessed all to the Lord this afternoon, and I feel that He has forgiven me. I really didn't mean to harm any of them."

Farmer's Skull Blown Off.

Chatham, June 11. — A popular young farmer, son of John Allison, a wealthy farmer of the 4th concession of Chatham, near the Village of Louisville, was found dead in a field Tuesday afternoon. A gun lay at his head, and the top of his skull was completely blown off. A jury has been summoned, and the circumstances surrounding the tragedy will be investigated.

CAMPS OF INSTRUCTION.

General Officer Commanding, Lord Dundonald, Arrives in London.

London, June 11.—Lord Dundonald arrived at 11.30 o'clock yesterday morning, and went immediately to camp headquarters. He will remain at camp until Monday next.

At Niagara Camp.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, June 11.—The weather yesterday was superb. It was warm, however, in the afternoon, and the men were permitted to shod their heavy serges while at drill. Over in the trenches, where, with pickaxe, spade and shovel, at work in the hardpan, the men labored and perspired. It was no soft job, and many heaved a sigh of regret, as they recalled the easy times they left behind on the farm, where they enlisted in His Majesty's militia, and went off to camp. There are on the ground a total of 2,444 men and 645 horses, considerably under the strength of men in companies. The cavalry brigade numbers 680 men and 577 horses. The wounded men in hospital continue to improve. There were several cases of heat prostration.

Let Others Experiment.

There is always something new in the way of medical treatment and you are constantly invited to try new-fangled, unproven remedies. Let others experiment and so lose time and risk health. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have been tried in the crucible of time, won the approval of public opinion and demonstrated their right to a place in every home as a family medicine.

Russian Police Warned.

St. Petersburg, June 11.—Fresh instructions have been issued to the police of Kisheneff, ordering them to be in instant readiness to assist anyone attacked, and adding that any breach of this order will be most severely punished.

Ontario Government Will Concentrate Its Efforts.

MEMBERS TO GET $1,000 EACH.

Pulp Agreement Ratified at a Late Session of the Legislature—An Anti-Vaccination Debate—Adjournment Tonight Until Tuesday of Next Week When the Gamey Debate Will Likely Begin.

Toronto, June 11. — The Government's undivided devotion to the University of Toronto as the great Provincial seat of learning was made clear in the Legislature yesterday in a discussion on a motion by Mr. Pense for correspondence touching the public control of the School of Mines at Kingston. The member for Kingston, in a speech of strength and conciseness, urged the claims of Queen's for Provincial aid. The Premier, in an exhaustive reply, reviewed the services of Queen's, and said the Government were disposed to assist the School of Mines for its usefulness to eastern Ontario. At the same time he urged the claims of the University of Toronto, said there must be no duplication of Provincial aid to universities, and declared that the aid to be given to Toronto must only be limited by its necessities and by the Province's power to give. Mr. Whitney joined in the expressions of co-operation with Toronto University, while Mr. Harcourt endorsed these declarations of attachment.

Sir John Boyd's Sons.

Mr. Macdiarmid asked if there were any of the sons of Sir John Boyd in the pay of the Province.

The Attorney-General replied that David G. Boyd, a graduate of the School of Practical Science, is in the employ of the Bureau of Mines as an inspector, receiving a salary of $1,000 a year, and is the only son of Chancellor Boyd directly in the service of the Province. Two other sons, Lawrence and Philip, are employed in the office of the Supreme Court of Judicature, holding positions largely in the control of the High Court Judges, the former receiving $2,000 and the latter $700 a year. The amount of money paid Sir John A. Boyd through the Province would be found in the public accounts.

Mr. Pense's motion which asked for the correspondence between the Government and the School of Mines, Kingston, regarding public control of the school, was then carried.

Anti-Vaccination Bill.

Mr. Kribs, in the Legislature last night, moved the second reading of his anti-vaccination bill. He said the object was to remove the compulsory clauses of the Public Health Act, and read several letters from persons who claimed to be permanently injured by vaccination. Mr. Kribs said it was impossible to tell whether the vaccine used was pure until it was used, and then the victim would be a candidate for the cemetery. He had a petition, signed by 1,271 residents of Galt, which has just had a smallpox epidemic, in favor of his bill.

Mr. St. John was fully in accord, and said he believed the leading physicians were opposed to compulsory vaccination. It was as impossible to get pure lymph as it was to have a wholesale disease, Mr. St. John read the opinions of some eminent physicians against the efficacy of vaccination.

Dr. Currie said the trouble was that there was too much dirty vaccination, and, as a rule, where fatal results followed, tetanus was due to the patient scratching the affected arm.

Dr. Reaume, who said he had been vaccinating for 20 years, had yet to see the first evil result. He quoted a bulk of statistics, all favorable to vaccination.

Dr. James continued the discussion, claiming that the subject was more properly one for a medical association than the Legislature.

Colonel Gibson suggested that the bill be withdrawn, as its importance made it impossible to give it proper consideration at this stage of the session.

The bill was accordingly withdrawn.

Leaders Vote With Minority.

The House went into committee on Mr. Gross' bill, to confirm a bylaw and agreement of the Town of Niagara Falls, fixing the assessment of the Cataract Power Company for ten years.

Mr. Stock moved an amendment that the assent of the electors be gained.

The amendment of Mr. Stock was beaten by a large majority. Messrs. Ross and Gibson and Whitney and Foy voted in its favor.

Dr. Pyne's bill, to prevent the overcrowding of boarding and apartment houses, by allowing the health officer to pay a visit of inspection after 8 o'clock at night, was read a second time.

Street Railway Arbitration.

Mr. Powell asked for the second reading of his bill, to compel street railway companies to arbitrate when the municipalities wanted to buy them out. He introduced the bill as a private measure, but it was thrown out by the committee, and Mr. Powell brought it back as a public bill. The bill was lost on division.

Mr. Beck's bill, to allow street railway companies to adopt a fender on the approval of the City Council, without reference to the Engineer of the Public Works Department, was put through committee with the amendment that it should apply only to cities of over 20,000.

Other bills taken up in committee were: To amend the Municipal Drainage Act (McCart); to amend the Central Road Companies Act (Pense); to amend the act respecting mortgages on real estate (Lucas); to amend the act respecting conditional sales of chattels (Hoyle).

Mr. Sutherland moved for a return of correspondence relating to the establishment of a reformatory in Oxford County.

Mr. Latchford said he would bring down the papers.

At 1 o'clock this morning a division of the House took place upon the question of ratifying an agreement between the Crown Lands Department and the Rainy River Pulp and Paper Company. The result was 33 to 29—a Government majority of four.

Premier Ross laid the supplementary estimates on the table at 1.30 this morning. The sum asked for was $217,601.53. Among the items is $40,000 for an extra indemnity of $400 for the members, making $1,000 in all. The Gamey investigation cost the Province $35,000.

Just before the House adjourned this morning the Premier said he hoped to clear off the order paper to-day, when the question of adjourning till Tuesday to take up the Gamey report could be considered. He said the evidence would probably be printed by that time.

C. E. A. IN CONVENTION,

"Municipalities Gone Mad," Is the Phrase of the President About Municipal Ownership—Commee Act Favored.

Toronto, June 11.—The Canadian Electrical Association, who, with delegates from Pittsburg, St. Louis, Madison, Chicago, Cincinnati and other large electrical centres, number some 300 persons, is in session here. After being welcomed by the city, President Reesor's annual address was read. This paragraph occurred in the course of the address:

"Municipal ownership," said Mr. Reesor, "has taken quite a hold upon a number of people. With some it is really a craze, and might be termed municipalities gone mad." In this country there were millions of money being invested in power companies and franchises were being negotiated. The vested rights of these companies should always be considered. In many cases the very municipalities who had been most earnest in bringing these corporations to locate with them were the most ardent advocates of public ownership.

The speaker felt that the rank and file of the association were not doing all that lay in their power to support the movement in opposition to public ownership. The association's committee were working hard, but individual work was what was needed most after all. Everybody was interested and all should share alike bearing the burden of expense and labor.

The speech met with a great deal of favor from all present.

Secretary-Treasurer C. H. Mortimer's report showed a membership of 844, an increase for the year of 38. Receipts had been $1,398.11 and disbursements $488.94.

The report of the Legislative Committee showed that the association was in favor of the Commee Act. The principles of the act could be considered reasonable protection to those whose funds were invested in the development of power, light, etc. Future legislation, however, had to be watched, because some amendments might be made which would alter the effect of the act.

The clause most to be feared at present was that giving municipalities power to sell powor, or the right of expropriation.

In the afternoon interesting technical papers were read.

The Solar Plexus.

Is the largest nerve centre in the sympathetic nervous system, is situated just back of the stomach, and supplies nervous energy, the vital force of the human body, to the stomach, heart, lungs, kidneys, liver, etc. By creating nerve force Dr. Chase's Nerve Food directly aids the solar plexus in supplying the power which runs the machinery of digestion and so cures nervous dyspepsia, headache, dizzy spells and bodily weakness.

Toole Was Fooled.

Bret Harte was often asked to write his autobiography, and it is said that the idea had taken possession of his mind in his later years, but not a line of it did he write. It would have been worth reading, for the author knew most of the interesting people of his time. There is an amusing story told by J. L. Toole, the English actor, of a luncheon with Harte: "After a greeting from my host he said, 'Let me introduce you to the Duke of St. Albans.' 'Oh, yes,' I said, with a smile, and shook hands with the gentleman who was assuming that character, as I thought. Then he introduced me to Sir George Trevelyan, and I had hardly shaken hands with him when my host said, 'I would like to introduce you to Count Bismarck.' 'Oh, yes,' I said, bowing to the newcomer. 'How many more of you are there? There is Von Moltke, for instance?' Bret Harte laughed; so did Trevelyan. A comedian is allowed certain privileges, and my remark was considered, I dare say, more or less complimentary; but I had no idea what a fool I was making of myself. At luncheon I said to the man who sat next me, 'Who is the gentleman Harte introduced me to as St. Albans?' 'The Duke of St. Albans,' he replied. 'And the man opposite?' 'Herbert Bismarck, the prince's son.' 'No,' I said. 'Really?' 'Oh, yes,' he said. 'And the man talking to him?' 'That is Sir George Trevelyan.' I was never more sold in my life."

Swallows' Nest.

Two swallows, writes a correspondent of an English paper, built their nest in an outhouse, and the hen laid five eggs. Before they were hatched she was killed by knocking her head against the lintel of the door. For a month the nest remained unused and deserted, the eggs cold. After that time the cock bird found another mate, and he and the little hen were very busy for a few days bringing fresh hay and mud to the nest. I did not like to watch too closely, but I certainly wondered what they were doing to the eggs, as no traces of broken eggshell, etc., were to be seen on the ground. I let them bring up their young brood undisturbed and then removed the nest (it was getting late in the season), when I discovered that they had built a false bottom to it, with a new edging of mud to hold the hay together, and that the new family was brought up above the cold eggs. The false bottom, with mud attached, was easily lifted off, the cold eggs being found intact beneath. I do not know if this is a common occurrence. I have not come across it before.

Doan's Kidney Pills

Cured Mr. George Graves, Pitts Ferry, Ont., of a very bad case of kidney trouble.

He tells about the cure in the following words: "I cannot recommend Doan's Kidney Pills too highly. I never took anything that did me so much good. I had a severe pain in the small of my back and could scarcely get up or down without help. I could hardly urinate, but when I did the pain was terrible, I was in the Hotel Dieu, Kingston, last winter and when I came out I was some better but not cured. It was then I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised. Since taking them I have been completely cured and have not had any trouble with my kidneys since."

THE NATIONAL SENTIMENT.

Extracts From Recent Speech of Hon. Clifford Sifton in London, Eng.

There is in the Dominion a distinctly national sentiment of its own. We have a Canadian sentiment, but if I could express the idea correctly, I should say while it is a Canadian sentiment, it is also a British sentiment. It is the sentiment that we are engaged in overcoming a great many natural difficulties for the purpose of building up what we believe will be, outside of England, perhaps, the greatest British community in the world. I had occasion to say a few words at Montreal when some delegates from the London Chamber of Commerce were being entertained. I told them it was my duty to look after the subject of emigration, and that owing to our efforts a great many substantial and desirable people were going from the Western States to the Northwest. I said we desired to carry on the work so as to settle one or two Britishers alongside every man that came from the United States, and I am delighted to know the result of our efforts has been such that immigration from Great Britain has been largely stimulated, and I think I may safely predict that on the Western plains of Canada there will in time be one of the greatest and most prosperous communities of Britishers in any part of the civilized world.

For myself I have serious doubts about the effectiveness of any attempt to more closely unite the different members of the Empire by anything in the nature of a paper constitution. You who come from the colonies well know the number of local circumstances you have to deal with, and that it could be, perhaps, more likely that a paper union would result in dis-union and discontent than in greater union or in greater feeling on the part of the colonies for the Mother Country, and if that result should come about, surely it would appear that such a paper union would be a mistake. During the late trouble in South Africa it was the wonder of the world that the British colonies came forth as one man—not so much that they sent troops, but that they sent them spontaneously. That is a very satisfactory condition of affairs, and I think we should think frequently and carefully before attempting to make any radical change in the position.—From London speech of Hon. Clifford Sifton before Royal Canadian Institute on May Day.

Preserving Niagara Falls.

The Americans, having gone to the limit in commercializing Niagara Falls by harnessing the power on their own side and decorating the banks with factories, are putting up a tremendous appeal for the preservation of the natural beauties of the great cataract, with a special protest against the commercializing of the Canadian side. It is too bad that the primeval beauty of the surrounding scenery cannot be preserved, but it looks very much as if the falls was too valuable commercially to be maintained as the greatest show on earth for tourists. An untouched gold mine would also be an interesting exhibit for curious visitors, but to allow it to remain untouched on that account would be an expensive way of gratifying curiosity.—Ottawa Citizen.

Forger Bill Ross Caught.

Port Hope, June 11.—The notorious "Bill" Ross, probably one of the cleverest forgers in Canada, is again in the arms of the law, having been captured by Chief Douglas here Tuesday evening. Ross has been out of prison only a year or so, having served a term for forgery before. In the last nineteen months he has forged five cheques, totalling $418.

Charged With Indecent Assault.

Toronto, June 11.—On a warrant charging him with indecent assault, and sworn out by Emily Abolite, of Milton, Ont., Charles Christie, of 7 Caer Howell street, was arrested yesterday by Detective Harrison. He was taken to Milton last night.

Too Great a Risk.

In almost every neighbourhood someone has died from an attack of colic or cholera morbus, often before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. A reliable remedy for these diseases should be kept at hand. The risk is too great for anyone to take. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has undoubtedly saved the lives of more people and relieved more pain and suffering than any other medicine in use. It can always be depended upon. For sale by all druggists.

The Deadly Death-Cup Mushroom.

As the season is approaching for gathering mushrooms I would like to sound a note of warning. The deadly death cup toadstool grows in many places in Canada and as it recently caused the death of one man at Toronto Junction, and nearly killed me, perhaps a description of it may not be out of place. It has a smooth, satiny top, which may be either white, spotted, or tinted yellow; it also has white gills and a white stem. As a whole, it looks much like a large meadow mushroom and for this reason is doubly dangerous. It also sometimes strays from its proper wood haunts, to lawns and meadow edges. Remember the fatal cup at the root, and the white gills; remember, also, that a single fragment is generally enough to kill a man, and beware of it, as there is no rank taste or odor to give warning, and the poison does not begin to work until eight or nine hours after it has been eaten, when it is generally impossible to do anything to overcome it. It causes death by paralyzing the heart, I had to take strychnine as an antidote, and it was a long time before I was fully recovered. There is also a notion that a toadstool may be distinguished from a mushroom by peeling it, but this is erroneous. The death cap can be peeled, and the edible puff ball can not. Hoping that this may be a warning to mushroom hunters.—Norman Willmott.

Our Air Consumption.

It is computed that when at rest we consume 500 cubic inches of air a minute. If we walk at the rate of one mile an hour we use 800; two miles, 1,000; three miles, 1,600; four miles, 2,300. If we start out and run six miles an hour we consume 3,000 cubic inches of air during every minute of the time.

Effect of Absence.

DR. PITCHER'S Backache Kidney TABLETS

MOST of women's ailments, such as backaches, sideaches, headaches, worn, weary, depressed feelings, are the result of the failure of the kidneys to properly purify the blood. Dr. Pitcher's Tablets aid the kidneys in their work of blood purifying—banish every pain and ache—make women rejoice in health and strength restored.

Mrs. A. Crangle, Lighthouse Street, Goderich, Ont., relates her experience: For some time I suffered with a good deal of backache and kidney trouble, and with a severe headache which continued to grow worse. I heard of the many cures Dr. Pitcher's Backache-Kidney Tablets were making, and determined to try them. They acted splendidly, stopping the backache and headache and curing the kidney complaint.

The price of the Tablets is 50c. a bottle, or 3 for $1.25, at druggists or by mail. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto.

RECITAL

By Piano and Violin Pupils of Mr. Gliddon's classes in St. John's school room Monday evening next, June 15th. Collection in aid of Rectory Fund.

Arrange for Tickets.

St. Andrew's Young Man's Guild excursion will be held on Thursday, June 25th, per special train to Lakefield and steamer Majestic to Stony Lake. As has always been strictly adhered to there will be a limited number of tickets sold, which may be had at H. H. Edmison's, J. D. Tully's or W. Bathgate, at H. McDonald's, and Examiner office. The young men are leaving nothing undone to make this as successful as previous excursions. Arrange for your tickets at once.

Ennismore Picnic.

What should prove to be a most successful picnic will be held on Monday, June 15th at Tara Grove, under the auspices of St. Martin's T.A.S. An excellent programme of sport has been arranged, and good music will be provided. There will be quite a number of good speeches made. Amongst those who will take the platform will be Premier Ross, Hon. J. R. Stratton, Senator McHugh, of Lindsay; and Messrs. D. O'Connell, O. Laplante and Dr. Coughlin, of Peterborough. The admission to the grounds will be 50c.

KING AND QUEEN OF SERVIA SHOT.

Country in State of Revolution and Kill Their Rulers.

Premier and War Minister Probably Fatally Wounded—Anarchy Prevails.

Special to the Examiner.

Belgrade, Servia, June 11.—A military revolution broke out here last night. The troops who revolted under the leadership of Major Angikovics surrounded the palace, assassinated King Alexander, Queen Draga, the latter's sister, the Queen's brother, Nijodem, Premier Karkovitch, Ministers Petrovitch and Fudorovics, Gen. Pavlovitch, the former Minister of War, and some of the members of the Royal Guard. A new government with Jovan Avakmovics Premier, was formed and a proclamation was issued announcing that from to-day the constitution of April 6, 1901, comes in force and calling a meeting of the national representatives dissolved by the proclamation of March 24th, to meet at Belgrade on June 15th.

The streets are thronged with people, whose actions seem to approve the coup d'etat.

Prince Karn-Gaorgevitch was this morning declared King of Servia by the revolutionists.

Belgrade, Servia, June 11th.—The people received the news of the assassinations which were perpetrated last night, quietly. The bodies of the King and Queen remain in the palace. All entry to the palace is prohibited. A strong cordon of troops surround the royal residence.

MISS CLEMINA McCONKEY HAS PASSED AWAY.

Funeral Will Take Place To-morrow Afternoon to Lakefield.

The very lamentable death of Clemina McConkey occurred at 7 o'clock yesterday evening, at her home No. 183 Edinburgh street. The deceased, whose demise occurred at the youthful age of 23 years, has been ailing since January last, when she took a cold, which finally settled on her lungs, and she has been confined to her bed for over three months.

The late Miss McConkey was the second daughter of Silas McConkey, and was greatly beloved by a very large number of friends. It is only right to say that her death will be universally deplored. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 1 o'clock from the family residence at Edinburgh street to the Ray Cemetery, Lakefield, where interment will take place.

T. V. C. C. MOONLIGHT.

Prospects are Bright for an Enjoyable Evening.

Considerable interest is being manifested in the first annual moonlight excursion given by the Trent Valley Canoe Club, which will be held to-morrow night by the steamer City of Peterborough. The Canoe Club is making special arrangements, the carrying out of which will ensure the pleasure of all who attend. An orchestra has been engaged which will add to the enjoyment to be derived from the sail. An outing under such pleasing auspices cannot but be successful. The boat will leave her dock at 8.30.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

The following clipping is taken from the Music and Drama column of the Toronto Globe:

At the Toronto College of Music on June 6th Miss Mabel Harrison of Notre Dame Convent, Peterborough, a resident of Keene, gave an interesting recital. The young pianiste revealed a musical temperament, good taste and technique. The programme was: "Rhapsodie Hongroise," No. 5, Lisst; "If I were a Bird," Henselt; "The Flatterer," Chaminade; Third Ballade, op. 47, Chopin; "Novalette," Op. 21, No. 1, Schumann; Liebestraum No. 3, Lisst.

Nothing Like Experience.

"One truth learned by actual experience does more good than ten experiences one hears about." Tell a man that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy will cure cholera morbus, and he will most likely forget it before the end of the day. Let him have a severe attack of that disease, feel that he is about to die, use this remedy, and learn from his own experience how quickly it gives relief, and he will remember it all his life. For sale by all druggists.

Steamer Empress.

Commencing June 1st the steamer Empress will leave Lakefield every morning, (Saturdays excepted) after the arrival of the morning train from Peterborough, making "around the Lakes" trip to Burleigh, returning in time for the evening train for Peterborough. Saturdays the Empress will make up trip after arrival of the afternoon train from Peterborough, returning on Monday morning in time for the morning train to Peterborough. Season tickets, in books of 24, $6. Season tickets now on sale by W. Bunton, G.T.R. agent, Peterborough; or G. B. Hilliard, Lakefield.

NEWS NUGGETS.

—The Board of Works will meet this evening.

—All Saints' choir will practice this —Thursday—evening at 8 o'clock.

—Piano tuning promptly attended to. Satisfaction guaranteed. A. F. Hoover. 'Phone 199.

—St. Georges Church, Hastings ran an excursion to Peterborough to-day. About 200 were in the party.

Among the names of other students of Victoria College entitled to fourth year awards, appears the name of Miss R. M. Jolliffe.

—Peterborough was overtaken by a squall last night. It was the regular April one this time, however, and not the baby.

—The confirmation class of St. Luke's will be held to-night, (Thursday,) at 8 o'clock. All candidates are requested to be present.

—The parks are open; the locks are free. But that does not protect your family. See DeVine, office 408 1-2 George street, Peterborough.

—The High School Entrance Examinations will begin this year on Wednesday, June 24th, and the Departmental Examinations on Monday, June 29th.

—A sewer connection is being made with the fountain in Central Park. When this is completed, ice will be supplied and good drinking water will be available.

—Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather about sixty members of St. Paul's Young Men's Guild left for Lakefield this morning, where they will board the steamer Empress.

—The 57th Regimental Band has been strengthened by the addition of a new instrument, a Higham emphonium. The instrument is for Mr. E. Croft, and its cost was approximately $130.

—The new timetable of the Trent Valley Navigation Co., will go into effect on June 15th, when a through service will be inaugurated between Lakefield, Burleigh, Chemong Park, Bobcaygeon, Lindsay and Coboconk.

—The mammoth coloured posters advertising the Dominion Day celebration, are now in the printers' hands, and will be issued on Saturday. Judging from the varied list of attractions as indicated on the postera, the day's programme will be an attractive one, and it will be well worth while to arrange to stay in town on July 1st.

—In only two places in the world have deposits of nickel been found in paying quantities, and one of these is the Sudbury district of Northern Ontario. The other group of nickel mines is in New Caledonia, a French possession in the South Pacific Ocean. Last year the mines of Canada produced nickel in the form of unrefined matte to the value of $1,859,970.

—A bylaw empowering the Town Council of Fenelon Falls, to raise $75,000 for the purpose of acquiring a water power, electric light and roller flour mill, has been carried. The firm that has been running the mill used about 500 horse power, and has been bought out for $35,000. The council will build a power station to cost $25,000 and will then offer current at a low rate to induce industries to locate there. The firm that owned the flour mill previous to its absorption by the council will rent it for $1200 per year.

HONOUR IS DESERVED.

Hon. David McFadden Prominent in Orange Order.

The Globe to-day contains a picture of Hon. David H. McFadden, Grand Master of the Orange Order in Manitoba, with the following sketch:

"One of the leaders of the Orange Order in Western Canada is the Hon. David H. McFadden, the Provincial Secretary in the Roblin Government. It was largely at his suggestion given as Grand Master of Manitoba, that the Sovereign Grand Lodge decided to meet in Winnipeg this year. Mr. McFadden is a Peterborough county man by birth there in 1856, a Bruce man by up-bringing, his parents having settled in Allenford in 1862, and a Manitoban by adoption. He graduated from the University to Veternary College in 1880, and at once went west, settling in Emerson. Hard work gave him a good practice and a position of standing. He entered Provincial politics in 1892 as a Conservative, and in 1899, when Mr. Hugh John Macdonald defeated Mr. Greenway, he asked Mr. McFadden to join his ministry. He took the Works portfolio at first but exchanged it for the Provincial Secretaryship a year later. Mr. McFadden is connected with quite a few societies besides the Orange Order."

THE ASPHALT PAVE.

They took a little gravel
And they took a little tar
With various ingredients
Imported from afar.
They hammered it and rolled it,
And when they went away
They said they had a pavement
That would last for many a day.

But they came with picks and smote it
To lay a water-main;
And then they called the workmen
To put it back again.
To run a railway cable
They took it up some more;
And then they put it back again,
Just where it was before.

They took it up for conduits
To run the telephone;
And then they put it back again
As hard as any stone.
They took it up for wires
To feed the electric light,
And then they put it back again,
Which was no more than right.

O, the pavement's full of furrows;
There are patches everywhere.
You'd like to ride upon it,
But it's seldom that you dare.
It's a very handsome pavement;
A credit to the town;
They're always diggin' of it up
Or puttin' of it down.

FORESTERS HAVE ALL NIGHT SESSION.

Election of Officers Proves to be a Long Task.

Next Meeting Place Decided Upon—Delegates to International Court Selected.

At the afternoon session of the Catholic Foresters' Convention the principal business transacted was the decision as to place of meeting for the next Convention, which will be held two years hence. Requests were received from London, Berlin, Orillia and Perth, each place having a number of supporters. After four ballots had been taken Perth was selected for the honour. Two committees reported; those of the Constitution and Good of the Order, both of which were adopted after some little discussion.

The question of a raise in rates was again thrashed out, and, while the Provincial Court has no power to enact legislation along this line, it can advise the International body and this it proposes to do. The Provincial Court is strongly opposed to any increase in its rates of insurance, and placed itself on record as taking this stand. They claim that the Ontario Court is more than paying its way, and is rolling up a satisfactory surplus which, however, is all handed in to the International Court. An effort will now be made to obtain from the parent body a proportionate share of the surplus for investment in Canada. If this is secured it may lead to a secession by the Ontario Court from the International Court, in which case all such questions as insurance and sick benefit rates will be dealt with by them directly. A great many of the delegates are opposed to severing connection with the main body, but the advocates of such a course, point to the A.O.U.W. in Ontario, which some years ago became a separate organization and the success which followed as the result of such a course, proved its wisdom.

Fraternal greetings were exchanged with the Canadian Order of Foresters now meeting at Hamilton.

The evening session, which opened at 8 o'clock and closed at the same hour this morning, was taken up with the reception of the Finance Committee's report and the election of officers.

The Finance Committee found that the Order was in splendid condition. Plenty of funds are in hand to meet all claims, and in fact it was found that the finances were in such good shape that an additional per diem allowance could be paid to the delegates. In other years they were paid $2.50 per day for attendances on the Conventions, this year the allowance being raised to $3.00.

The election of officers was then proceeded with, and this proved a somewhat lengthy task, as in some cases there were thirty and forty nominations for one office.

Those elected were:—
P.C.R.—C. S. C Boudreault, Ottawa.
P.V.C.R.—Rev. D. R. McDonald, Crysler.
P.S.—Vincent Webb, Ottawa.
P.T.—Geo. W. Seguin, Ottawa.

The above were but re-elected to the office which they held last year.

The Provincial Trustees elected are: — F. Mogan, Toronto; Rev. Father Feeley, Acton; O. A. Rocque, Orleans; Daniel Staley, Kingston; Dr. Connoly, Renfrew.

Fourteen delegates were then elected to attend the International Court which meets at Dubuque, Iowa, commencing on the third Tuesday in August. As this is considered quite an honour, the nominations were numerous. The result follows:—

Daniel St.Pierre, J. A. Chisolm, Father McDonald, L. V. McBrady, J. G. Foley, M. H. O'Connor, W. Lee, H. T. Newman, O. A. Rocque, Vincent Webb, L. Gignac, Dr. Connoly, C. S. O. Boudreault, Geo. W. Seguin.

The newly elected officers were installed by Mr. Lee, Past Provincial Chief Ranger.

The delegates have greatly enjoyed their visit here and have only words of praise for the way in which they have been entertained by the members of St. Peter's Court. Before the session closed this morning a vote of thanks was passed to the members of the local Court for their very hearty welcome to the town and for the arrangements made for the comfort of the visiting brethren.

The Provincial Auditors, which are appointed by the High Court, are:—A. C. Larosse, Ottawa; R. J. Slattery, LL.B., Arnprior; M. F. Mogan, Toronto.

A Court Competition Silver Cup, presented by the Provincial Court to the local Court that makes the best gain in membership, was won last year by Perth.

Most of the delegates left town to-day, and all were well pleased with their reception.

A CHURCH WEDDING.

A Montreal Man Weds a Young Hamilton Lady.

Hamilton, June 10th. — An interesting wedding was solemnized in the Wentworth Presbyterian church, at two o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, when Miss Lena Hannan, of this city, and Mr. Frank Packenham, works accountant of the Canadian General Electric Co., of Montreal, and formerly of Peterborough, were made one. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. McWilliams.

White and green were effectively mingled in the decorations of the church, which presented an attractive appearance.

The bride was becomingly attired in a costume of white crepe de chine, trimmed with embroidered chiffon, and wore a veil and wreath of orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses.

The bridesmaid Miss Blanche Burns was charmingly gowned in a costume of white India lawn, with green trimmings, and carried a bouquet of pink roses and maidenhair ferns.

Little Murial Crawford looked very sweet as the flower girl.

The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. W. S. Hannan of Schenectady, N. Y., and the groom was supported by Mr. Wm. Higgins, of Peterborough. Mr. Thos. Anderson played the wedding march, and Mrs. MacWilliams sang "O Fair, O Sweet and Holy."

After the ceremony the bridal couple received the congratulations of their immediate relatives at a reception which was held at the home of the bride's brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Burns, No. 83 Wilson street. A wedding breakfast was served in the dining room. The parlours and dining room were beautifully decorated with ferns, palms and field daisies.

Mr. and Mrs. Packenham left for Montreal, where they will reside, on and evening train. The presents were unusually numerous and costly.

The groom's present to the bride was a beautiful gold watch. To the bridesmaid he gave a pretty pearl pendant.

Golf Balls of all kind, Tenniss Balls, Footballs, Croquet and Hammocks, at the lowest prices in Peterborough, guaranteed, at Sallsbury's.

MANY DELEGATES IN ATTENDANCE.

Ernst Gartung, Brantford, superintendent of organisation.

The first duty was the reception of delegates. They numbered between 300 and 400.

The chief officers then presented their reports, which showed a very satisfactory year's business.

A clause from the High Secretary's report says:—

"The following statement shows the changes that have taken place in the membership during the year 1902:

"Total number of members, January 1st, 1902, 44,865.

"Initiated during the year, 8,120.

"Members permanently suspended during the year, 2,509.

"Members died during the year, 262.

"Total number of members, December 31, 1902, 50,214."

The High Court Treasurer reported that the balance on hand was $1,310,159.79.

Later in the afternoon the officers and delegates were welcomed to the city by Mayor Morden and several aldermen, and the local courts of the order.

The executive committee held a session at the Waldorf House, the order's headquarters, yesterday afternoon, and made final preparations for the High Court.

The High Court opened this morning at nine o'clock with a largely increased attendance.

A message of fraternal greeting was received from the Catholic Order of Foresters now in session at Peterborough, and a suitable reply ordered to be sent.

The report of the Credentail Committee showed the attendance to be the largest of any session of the High Court yet held, there being 314 delegates already registered.

The nominations for office then took place and most of the positions were filled by acclamation.

High Chief Ranger, Geo. Faulkner, Ottawa.

High Vice Chief Ranger, James A. Stewart, Perth.

High Secretary, Thos. White, Brantford.

High Treasurer, John Neelands, Brantford.

High Registrar, D. R. Kennedy, Montreal.

High Chaplain, Rev. Dr. McRobbie, Owen Sound.

Chairman of Medical Board, U. M. Stanley, M. D., Brantford.

Associate Medical Board — Dr. R. C. Young, Ridgetown; Dr. A. N. Hotson, Innerkip.

High Auditor, Thos. W. Gibson, Toronto.

Those were nominated for a position on the Executive Committee: W. H. Smyth, M.D., H. Gummer, Edwin Laporte, W. Bailie, C. E. Britton, F. J. Jameson, R. Elliott, M. D. Carroll, Edward Lock, W. D. Earngy, G. G. Miles. D. Allen, Edward Lowe, J. R. Miller, E. H. Johnston, Dr. Frank, H. A. O'Dell, W. A. Dayman.

The election will take place on Friday.

After the adjournment this morning the delegates went to the Court-house steps, where a group photograph was taken.

It is likely the next convention will be held in either Montreal or Quebec city.

There is a jolly crowd of newspaper men present as delegates, among them being Harry Gummer, Guelph; P. McGuire, Orangeville; Robt. Elliott, Ingersoll, and F. J. Jameson, the business manager of the Peterborough Examiner. Mr. Jameson can get any position in the gift of the Hamilton Press Club, as he has ably assisted the reporters during the convention.

JUNE WEDDING.

Pleasing Ceremony in Which Miss Lillie Cooney Becomes Wife of Mr. J. S. Deyell.

A wedding of great interest, because of the popularity of the contracting parties, was that celebrated yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mr. J. Cooney, Harvey street, his youngest daughter, Miss Lillie Cooney, being married to Mr. Jack S. Deyell, of Otonabee.

About sixty guests, friends of the principals, were present, the officiating clergyman being Rev. J. P. Wilson, pastor of the George street Methodist church.

The bride was very prettily gowned in Swiss organdie, trimmed with applique, and carried a large bouquet of white roses, while the bridesmaid, Miss Ella Cooney, Clarke, cousin of the bride, looked pleasing in a dress of white organdie, carrying pink roses. Mr. J. H. Hanbidge of Otonabee, supported the groom.

Before the ceremony Miss Clara Bellegham sang "O Promise Me," in her sweet soprano voice.

The bridal couple after partaking of the usual wedding dejeuner, left for Toronto and other points, the bride looking very becoming in a travelling gown of blue gray cloth. Upon their return they will reside in Otonabee.

An unmistakable evidence of the esteem in which these young people are held, was the array of handsome and valuable presents of which they were the recipients.

The out-of-town guests were: Mr. Pearson, Winnipeg; Miss Edith Pearson, Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. Davidson, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Routly, Mrs. O. W. Routley, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. E. Deyell, Mr .and Mrs. H. Deyell, Misses Jennie and Emily Deyell, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Latimer, Fraserville; Mr. and Mrs. James Cooney, Otonabee; and Mrs. T. Thorn, Lindsay.

RIGHT MAN CAUGHT.

Mr. Cochrane Believes he has the Man Whose Robberies Have Menaced the Farmers.

High County Constable Cochrane returned to town last night with the suspected horse thief, who gives his name as Moore, although the following communication from the Cobourg Chief of Police, which Mr. Cochrane feels satisfied, refers to the man whom he placed under arrest, would indicate that his name may or may not be what he says it is:

"Cobourg, May 26th.

"I hold a warrant for the arrest of Jas. McMullen, alias Jos. Watson, alias Jas. Agness. He is a horse thief. I want him for receiving money under false pretences. He is the man who stole the horse from Belleville, and a horse and buggy from Napanee. Description, 5 ft. 7 inches high; small sandy mustache; blind in one eye, and has a cork leg or cork foot. He was wearing a brown coat and black pants. He wore a peak cap, and sometimes a straw hat. Was last seen around Garden Hill. J. O .Ruse, Chief of Police."

The man whom Mr. Cochrane now has in custody was caught on Tuesday night about 11 o'clock in the act of hitching a team of horses belonging to Mr. G .C. Gale to a demorcat waggon, the property of Mr. Frankish. He was in the company of another man, but his companion escaped. Considerable credit is due to Messrs. G. C. Gale, Geo. Garbutt and Mr. Frankish for the prompt capture of this notoriously tough character.

A STRICTLY MORAL CIRCUS.

The late P. T. Barnum was very scrupulous about the morals of his show; or, at least, the appearance of morality. In pursuance with instructions, his advance agents were careful at all times to empathize the fact that:—

"We have the only strictly moral show on earth. Wait for Barnum."

"I met Barnum's press agent a number of years ago," said a prominent Hamilton editor, as the talk turned on circuses. "It was Charley Thomas, I think. He was 'talking up' his circus and came out strong on its moral quality, as usual. Then he took me into the side-show to see the moral curiosities. There was a band of Zulus inside and Thomas presented every last one of them to me as Matthew, Mark, Luke and John Barnum."

"Possible!" exclaimed the listener.

"Sure! 'What do you call the What-is-it?' I asked Thomas.

"O, we call him 'Phineas,'" said he.

"What coincidence is this?" I asked, "that all your freaks are named after the founder of the show?"

"A matter of custom," said he.

In the days when Barnum flourished it was necessary to come out strong on the moral atmosphere of the circus to impress a somewhat timid public. The times then were rougher in a general sense and that refinement which now pervades circuses as well as in other walks of life had not then evoluted into custom which demands courtesy. The qualities of gentleness and refinement are empathized in the Walter L. Main shows. Gentlemanly conduct is so prevalent therein it is superfluous to herald the fact to the world, as was the case in the days of the old-time circuses.

The Walter L. Main shows, circus, menagerie and savage South Africa will exhibit in Peterborough, Tuesday, June 16th. Real Canadian troopers, Boers, Zulus, Bushmen, Matabeles will participate, as many of them did in the recent Boer war. Savage contests, vivid tableaux, lurid climaxes will follow.

WHEN THE HUNT WAS UP

By EDGAR B. PRICE

Copyright, 1903, by McClure's Newspaper Syndicate

There had been a painful scene and they had parted forever. Geraldine had carried herself well and had returned the ring with an air of such positive relief that Arthur could not contain himself, and had rushed from her presence to find a place where he could give free vent to his feelings. His man David was packing, and he proposed returning to New York with the dogs, and from there—oh, hang it all, what was the use of planning? His life was blasted.

In another part of the Southampton "cottage" a girl sat dabbling her red eyes with cologne water, while her hostess vainly offered consolation.

"It's quite the thing in fox hunting, I assure you, Jerry," she said helplessly.

"It may be quite the thing to be cruel and cut—cut the poor little helpless thing's t-tail off, but the man that did it shall never m-marry me," declared Geraldine with momentary spirit.

"But the fox was dead before he did it, you know," said the good lady.

"Yes; killed by a pack of horrid dogs urged on by people who will have m-much to answer for hereafter," wept the girl. "Don't ask me to see him again; I'm going to take the afternoon train to New York and leave him here to revel in b-butchery."

The cause of all this woe was a Shinnecock hills fox hunt, with a real fox instead of an aniseed bag. Reynard had led the field a glorious chase, doubling and twisting times without number, only at last to succumb to the hounds. Foremost in the hunt had been that ardent fox hunter, Arthur Chamberlain, who at the death had dashed in among the dogs and secured the "brush" in the most approved fashion, to lay it at his ladylove's feet. The lady so honored unluckily had no appreciation of the act. In fact, her sympathies were distinctly with the fox, and there had been a warm scene, with the results as above noted.

No Geraldine appeared at lunch. Shortly after that Arthur took leave of his hostess, who discreetly forbore to tell him his ex-inamorata would leave on the same train, and, whistling for the two foxhounds Toby and Dan, he moodily strode off to the depot. He was taking his seat in the chair car when a carriage dashed up and a lady alighted and entered the same car. Their eyes met. The lady primly inclined her head and deliberately turned her chair until only the top of her head was visible. The young man ground his teeth.

Miss Geraldine lived up town on the west side of New York in a street numbered among the sixties. Mr. Chamberlain lived on the next block. In fact, the backs of Miss Geraldine's home and the gentleman's bachelor apartments almost faced each other. The block was a solid rectangle built up with brownstone dwellings on the side streets and business places on the avenues, and the roofs, separated by low parapets, were famous places for clothes drying and star gazing.

Arrived in New York, the young gentleman hesitated in doubt of what course to pursue. But Miss Geraldine solved his difficulties by calling an electric hansom and bowling off without a look in his direction.

She found no one home but a servant or two, and after a dismal dinner she sought her apartments to water her couch with tears. Arthur after a tour of the clubs returned to his dwelling with three other desperate souls and proceeded to make a night of it at poker. Toby and Dan, stowed by the thoughtful David in a packing box on the roof, snuffled and yapped in lazy content.

The hours passed; the rattle of chips sounded continuously in the hot room, and David was kept busy making and passing around cooling drinks. Over the silent roofs a late moon rose and bathed them with soft light, the dividing parapets casting black shadows. Into this scene of peace came a smaller shadow, trotting across the lighted spaces and leaping the obstructions. In an instant the dreaming hounds were astir. In another instant a black streak was making along the roofs with the two hounds after it in full cry.

The poker party came to a sudden end, and the youths frantically made for the roof.

"It's a cat! No, by the Lord, it's a fox!" cried the doughty fox hunter as the black streak with the hounds in pursuit, having made the four sides of the block, came sweeping past.

Laughing and stumbling, leaping parapets and catching chins in invisible clotheslines, the four madly followed the chase. Roused by the trampling on the roofs, heads appeared at windows and tremulous cries were made for the police. Far below in the streets plunged in darkness a shrill whistle was heard. Once again pursued and pursuers made their way around the block. The eager hounds were closing fast upon their quarry, when suddenly fox and hounds disappeared.

There were policemen on the roofs now, revolvers in hand, searching for the cause of the uproar. By common consent the four fox hunters abandoned the chase and made a silent return to Arthur's quarters, wondering at the swallowing up of the hunt. Their wonderment was of short duration, for repressed screams were heard coming from the other side of the block, and the bell connected from the street door to the bachelor apartments rang violently. Arthur sprang to the speaking tube and called, "Who's there?"

"It's Anne—Miss Geraldine's maid," an agitated voice replied. "Oh, Mr. Chamberlain, come to our house quick! There's a terrible animal in Miss Geraldine's room and two great mad dogs"—

Arthur had heard enough. In an instant he was flying downstairs four steps at a time and running madly to the opposite side of the block. The house door stood open, and the cook and waitress were whimpering on the steps. No need to ask where Miss Geraldine's room was, for from above came a pandemonium such as two maddened and baffled hounds alone could make. Rushing in, Arthur descried the two dogs making wild efforts to seize a dark object showing gleaming white teeth from the top of a wardrobe. Tipping the heavy piece of furniture, the dark object slipped unwillingly to the floor, where the two hounds pounced on it, and in another instant a dead red fox lay on the floor.

"I trust you will pardon this intrusion, Miss Geraldine," said Arthur wickedly, kicking the dogs away from the fox.

"Oh-h, Arthur, is it you?" said a tearful voice under the bedclothes. "Take care! The horrid thing will bite you!"

"The horrid thing is 'only a poor little helpless fox,' and he's dead as a doornail. I'm going to cut his tail off," declared Arthur heartlessly.

"Cut the brute's head off if you want to," came the unexpected reply. "And now, Arthur, dear, please go away and—and call and see me in the morning."

"Where did the creature come from?" asked the blushing Geraldine the next morning. There had been explanations, and Arthur was holding a hand on which a certain ring again sparkled.

"From a bird and animal store around on the avenue. A man called to see me bright and early this morning with a bill for 'one red fox, $50;' cheap enough," said the happy Arthur. "Oh, by the bye," fishing in his coat-tail pocket, "I've brought you the brush!"

"We'll have it mounted for a souvenir," said the hater of fox hunting.

THE FORSAKEN.

By Duncan Campbell Scott.

I.

Once in the winter,
Out on a lake
In the heart of the north-land,
Far from the Fort
And far from the hunters,
A Chippewa woman,
With her sick baby,
Crouched in the last hours
Of a great storm.
Frozen and hungry,
She fished through the ice
With a line of the twisted
Bark of the cedar,
And a rabbit-bone hook
Polished and barbed;
Fished with the bare hook
All through the wild day,
Fished and caught nothing;
While the young chieftain
Tugged at her breasts,
Or slept in the lacings
Of the warm tikanagan.
All the lake-surface
Streamed with the hissing
Of millions of ice-flakes,
Hurled by the wind;
Behind her the round
Of a lonely island
Roared like a fire
With the voice of the storm
In the deeps of the cedars.
Valiant, unshaken,
She took of her own flesh,
Baited the fish-hook,
Drew in a grey trout,
Drew in his fellow,
Heaped them beside her,
Dead in the snow.
Valiant, unshaken,
She faced the long distance,
Wolf-haunted and lonely,
Sure of her goal
And the life of her dear one;
Tramped for two days,
On the third in the morning
Saw the strong bulk
Of the Fort by the river,
Saw the wood-smoke
Hang soft in the spruces,
Heard the keen yelp
Of the ravenous huskies
Fighting for whitefish;
Then she had rest.

II.

Years and years after,
When she was old and withered,
When her son was an old man
And his children filled with vigor,
They came in their northern tour on the verge of winter
To an island in a lonely lake.
There one night they camped, and on the morrow
Gathered their kettles and birch-bark,
Their rabbit-skin robes and their mink-traps,
Launched their canoes and slunk away through the islands,
Left her alone forever,
Without a word of farewell,
Because she was old and useless,
Like a paddle broken and warped,
Or a pole that was splintered.
Then, without a sigh,
Valiant, unshaken,
She smoothed her dark locks under her kerchief,
Composed her shawl in state,
Then folded her hands ridged with sinews and corded with veins,
Folded them across her breasts spent with the nourishing of children,
Gazed at the sky past the tops of the cedars,
Saw two spangled nights arise out of the twilight.
Saw two days go by filled with the tranquil sunshine,
Saw, without pain or dread, or even a moment of longing:
Then on the third great night there came thronging and thronging
Millions of snowflakes out of a windless cloud;
They covered her close with a beautiful crystal shroud,
Covered her deep and silent,
But in the frost of the dawn,
Up from the life below,
Rose a column of breath
Through a tiny cleft in the snow,
Fragile, delicately drawn,
Wavering with its own weakness,
In the wilderness a sign of the spirit,
Persisting still in the sight of the sun
Till day was done.
Then all light was gathered up by the hand of God and hid in His Breast.
Then there was born a silence deeper than silence,
Then she had rest.

Could Not Sleep At Night.

Was All Run Down.

Had No Appetite.

FOOD WOULD NOT DIGEST.

Mrs. I. W. Warner, Riverdale, N.S., is glad there is such a remedy as

Burdock Blood Bitters.

IT CURED HER AND WILL CURE YOU.

She says: "I wish to add my testimony to the many others who have spoken so highly as to the unfailing virtues of Burdock Blood Bitters. I was all run down, had no appetite, lost all ambition, could not sleep much and had terrible headache and backache, and my food did not digest properly. I saw B B B. advertised, so concluded to give it a trial, thinking if it did no good it could do no harm. But after using one bottle I began to feel better, and by the time I had used three bottles I was feeling like a new person. I am so glad there is such a remedy provided for suffering humanity, and cannot praise it enough for I think there is no medicine like it on the market."

Niagara v. Zambesi.

Within a very few weeks the Cape-to-Cairo Railway will have reached the great falls of the Zambesi, says The Tablet. In some respects these tremendous falls quite throw Niagara into the shade. The Victoria Falls are double the width and more than twice the height of the Niagara Falls, as will be seen in the following table:—

	Width.	Height.	Estimated aver. h.p.
Niagara F.	½ mile	158 to 167 ft.	7,500,000
Victoria F.	1 mile	400 to 420 ft.	25,000,0 0

It was one of the favorite projects of Cecil Rhodes to utilize the power which has here been running to waste for years for the good of all Rhodesia. At the present moment plans are being prepared in an office in London which are likely to go far towards converting Rhodes' dreams into reality. A concession company is at this moment preparing to utilize the power from the Victoria Falls for working railways, lighting towns — including Bulawayo 240 miles away—supplying currents to the mines in northern and southern Rhodesia and other purposes. A writer in The Westminster Gazette states that in the opinion of Mr. Francis Fox any amount of power required could be obtained, and that an available head of at least 250 fact could be utilized. Each pipe or tube eight feet in diameter would drive a turbine and generator necessary for 5,000 horse-power, and Mr. Fox thinks it will be found desirable to lay down the plant in units of this magnitude. The question of voltage is not yet determined, but there will be no difficulty in distributing current over an area of 300 miles. At the present time transmission is being successfully carried on over nearly 300 miles in California, and by the use of very high voltage the distance may be increased even further.

PEKIN ON FIRE AGAIN.

Boards of Revenue and Rites Buildings in Flames.

Pekin, June 10. — The extensive buildings occupied by the Boards of Revenue and Rites are in flames from end to end. The revenue building contains four million taels. The burning buildings adjoin the legations, and the foreign military guards are doing effective service. The Chinese fire department, equipped chiefly with banners and gongs, is helpless.

Many Doctors Have Many Minds

But no Doctor can Deny the Extraordinary Restorative Powers of

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This great food cure is composed of a number of the most potent blood builders and nerve restoratives that are known to medical science.

It is thoroughly scientific and prepared in such proportions as Dr. Chase found most effective after years of testing in his own extensive practice.

While doctors naturally prefer that you go to them for treatment, there is yet to be discovered a single case where a doctor when asked his opinion of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has not spoken of it in the highest terms of praise.

The evidence which is most satisfactory, however, is that of the persons who have been cured of such serious ailments as paralysis, locomotor ataxia, nervous prostration, nervous exhaustion and all the accompanying ailments, by the use of this preparation.

When you find yourself losing energy and vigour, becoming easily tired, subject to headache, neuralgia, indigestion, faintness and dizziness, despondent, discouraged and unable to sleep or rest, it is time to be warned of approaching nervous collapse.

These are unmistakable indications that your nervous system is being undermined and that you must seek such assistance as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food alone can give.

By noting your increase in weight while using this great system builder you can prove that new, firm flesh and tissue is being added to your body. Fifty cents a box; six boxes for $2.50. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

THE MUSKRATS.

Description of the Sport of Lindsay Citizens for a Couple of Weeks.

The breaking up of the ice on the narrow reaches of the Scugog above and below Lindsay is eagerly watched for every spring by a couple of dozen of our citizens because they are skilled in the trapping of the muskrat, whose odor is objectionable, but whose jacket of close, soft fur is an article of commerce at present in great demand—so much so, that the price has almost doubled in the last few years, says The Lindsay Post.

When the ice starts to break up the rising flood forces the muskrat families out of the snug houses in which they have spent the winter, and this is the hunter's opportunity. Traps are cunningly set near every submerged log and landing place likely to be visited by the rats in the course of their night excursions in quest of food or adventure, or material for another happy home, and if the little swimmer happens to touch a certain innocent looking twig the trap beneath the surface is sprung, and the chances are that the jaws close on one of the animal's legs. Then is enacted one of nature's tragedies. The rat struggles until exhausted, and finally drowns.

Next morning the owner of the trap hikes along in his canoe, and ejaculating, "There's another!" casts the bedraggled bunch of fur on top of the pile in the bow of the boat—the fruits of his visit to forty or fifty traps—and heads for camp. During the day the pelts are stripped and stretched on cedar frames to dry and cure, and the skill and care displayed in the operation may mean the difference between the lowest and the top price when the buyer has his innings.

Some years ago as many as 2,500 muskrat pelts were marketed in Lindsay, but this number represented more than should have been taken, and several of the trappers say that a close season is needed to give the animals a chance to repopulate their old haunts. This argument seems to be borne out by the fact that last season several trappers worked East and West Cross Creeks and along the upper channel with such success that apparently it was considered useless to repeat the visit this spring, and with the exception of a few odd days, all the trapping this season was done below. McLaren's Creek and vicinity yielded a fine harvest, and it is reported that some Indians had great luck on Emily Creek.

The quantity of fur taken by local trappers as closely as can be ascertained, is as follows: Joe Hand and George Jackman, 315 rats, 2 mink and 2 raccoons; Les. Foley, 112 rats; F. Dennison, 53; Joe Lytle, 237; George and Dave Hudson, jr., and F. Reeves, jr., 367; Stafford Halpin, 38; Jack Dickson, 52; W. J. Britton, and F. Bushnell, 64. In addition to the above M. O'Leary, A. Bradshaw, and several Indians, including "Dow" Taylor and his father, made up a respectable total among them.

The great bulk of the fur was purchased by Mr. Thos. Spratt, who at the very outset offered the top price of 80c for prime and 29c for common skins.

MUFTAH

By... HELEN WOOD

Copyright, 1902, by T. C. McClure

He sat in the blazing sun with his face bowed. His lean brown hands were folded over a decent black robe, and a faded scarf was twisted about his head. He was Muftah—and the story. Every man is a story, Muftah a pitiful one. And all this was outside the upper Tangier gate by the market.

Inside the brown old gate shone the white stuccoed houses and gay bazaars. Outside the great market place of trodden earth was one mass of people and animals. The men were of every color and type, from pure blooded Moors of astonishing, classical beauty to flat nosed, grinning negroes as black as night. And a stranger medley of queerly cut robes and jilavas, of fezzes, white turbans and gay scarfs, was never seen elsewhere. Most went barefoot. Only some of the older and more richly dressed had thrust their stockingless brown feet into yellow slippers.

Ugly camels lay in rows, snapping crossly at each passerby. Wild looking Arabs from the desert stalked about, each with his horse's bridle wrapped about his arm, each resplendent in many garments and scarfs, newly washed and snowy. Country women sat in groups upon the ground, displaying their fruits and vegetables. They wore large straw hats on top of their turbans to serve as sun umbrellas, and they looked like mere heaps of rags. Jostling each other with great rudeness, voluble with an oriental fluency of retort, the throng swayed back and forth. Occasionally some one rode his donkey laden with panniers among the women, and then great was the uproar. The air was full of women's shrill voices and their cackling laughter, so numerous were the slaves, purchasing for their households.

Strange that Muftah did not raise his head to gaze upon this interesting life surging past him! Perhaps it is no new story to him? Perhaps he has wearied for sight of it? Alas, no!

A veiled slave brushes close to his side, bracelets and anklets tinkling merrily. Yet Muftah heeds this not. He is looking far, far beyond the brilliant throng, and what does he see?

A great black well that recedes and recedes to unfathomable depths and faroff hazy visions that become almost real at times, then vanish before he can truly say he sees them. Sometimes they take on the form of a low, broad tent, with a kettle swung over the fire, sheep and goats grazing, and beyond the scanty herbage and palms a strange golden line of desert, with hills of pink and intense purple shadows. Naked children are at play while their mother weaves, singing as she crosses the heavy shuttles. A slave mixes coarse black cakes for the evening meal.

In the distance he sees a horseman crossing the burning sands. The horse, tossing his long mane, is young and graceful. Almost Muftah can feel the animal beneath him. The wind blows the cutting sand of the desert about them, but Muftah's turban veil protects him. His long mantle streams on the breeze. Oh, the exhilaration of that gallop over the trackless waste! And joyous, too, is the errand, for he has been made sheik!

Always the strongest and most influential of his tribe, the sultan has now marked him for advancement. Little does Muftah know it is as ominous a preference as that of the vulture for the tenderest lamb. He only feels that he is to be a leader among men. He will receive the sultan's tribute, direct the wanderings of his tribe from oasis to oasis and be at ease and happy. Ten years of happiness—they seem like an hour now. Is he thirsty? Here is a cooling spring in the earthen jar. Is he hungry? They bring him cheese and bread, fresh curds and pulpy dates. In the evening the men gather in a circle and listen to the strange recital of some story teller, who half sings, half tells, an interminable Moorish tale.

Only ten years, and then there comes an obsequious messenger, desiring his presence at the court of the bashaw of Tangier, there to render more definite account of his stewardship than has been given with his regularly remitted tribute money.

His laughing children have one more ride on the beautiful Gilsar. Two slaves pack their camels with provisions for the journey and with presents of honey and almonds for the bashaw. The sheik makes his farewell speech to his friends, with the touching Moslem gesture, placing his hand upon his forehead and his heart before he shakes that of his companion to show that mind and heart are faithful. Then for the last time he looks into the lovely eyes of her who is mother of his children.

Muftah groans. The mother of his children!

Three days of burning sands, then at last the bay of Tangier, with its white town built down the sides of the cliff and almost touching the blue water—a beautiful sight when it first greets his eyes. Later he comes closer into the filth and misery infesting it.

The bashaw, a handsome, impassive figure, sits cross legged before his door, his slaves grouped about him, to receive the envoy. Graciously he accepts the proffered gifts and permits the sheik to kiss the hem of his robe in token of obedience. Then—what are these strange words of accusation, these demands for tribute unlawfully levied, money illegally hoarded? The sheik, simple, freeborn son of the desert, is bewildered. Nor does he understand why later on he is thrust into that deadly hole, the Tangier prison, where some in chains, some free, toil wearily all day at weaving baskets that they may have a wretched allowance of food, a mere pittance for their labor.

The sheik is unconscious of hunger. He lies silent, seeing dimly dark figures, hearing vaguely the rattle of chains, curses, imprecations, prayers.

Then the awful day when he is dragged through the hole which forms the entrance to the prison and taken before a pool, blue as turquoise, before which on a raised divan sits the arbiter of his fate, surrounded by grave men in handsome robes. Black slaves lead him forward, clad only in his loin cloth. And still he cannot understand. The tribute? He sent it, every coin! Did the bashaw desire more? Then why was he not told? Could he read the thoughts of the great? And, besides, more would not be legal and honest to his tribesmen.

Ah, the pain as they beat the soles of his feet, and then a quick vision of hard faced attendants, instruments such as he had never seen before, and then a blood red mist! And blackness! Muftah sees no more! Muftah, the sultan's prisoner, lies without the gates, a blind beggar, and the sun blazes on a thousand brilliant coloring all about him.

Every day he hears them, the yellow robed priests who climb the mosque minaret inside the gate and call for prayers. And through the mist which enshrouds him Muftah prays, not for himself, not to be freed from pain, not to have back the eyes torn from their sockets by the orders of the sultan, but only that his wife, the mother of his children, may know that he is true!

Day after day they pass him, the once handsome, dashing sheik of the desert, and none knows him nor speaks save the tourists who shudder and drop coins in his hand. But today some one pauses, some one murmurs, "Muftah, Muftah."

And Muftah quivers like a young leaf before the breeze.

"Muftah."

"You have come far?" he asks. And the voice from his past answers, "I come but to return."

Then Muftah, the prisoner of the sultan, pours forth his tale, not complainingly—no, because it is fate, it is kismet, it is the will of Allah. All he asks is that she, the mother of his children, shall know that he was true and his name shall not be a reproach to his children.

And the tribesman passes on, and the priests in yellow robes climb to the minaret of the mosque, and Muftah renders thanks to Allah, who has heard and answered his one prayer. For the rest, it is his fate—kismet.

BAD BABIES

Are often only hungry babies. They cry and fret because they are ill-fed. The healthy mother is sure to have good babies; babies that coo and sleep and grow. Mothers who use Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription, are generally healthy and happy, and have healthy, happy children. "Favorite Prescription" prevents nausea, soothes the nerves, promotes the appetite and causes sleep to be sound and refreshing. It gives a great physical vigor and muscular elasticity so that the baby's advent is practically painless. It is the best tonic for nursing mothers, restoring strength and promoting an abundant flow of nutritive secretions.

"I can cheerfully recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as one of the best medicines for women," writes Mrs. Mary Murdock, Murdock, of 1045 Woodard Ave., Topeka, Kan. "I consider it the best medicine made. I know it has no equal. I am the mother of ten children and only one living—the tenth one. She is one year old and is as well and hearty as can be. She is a beauty. Of my other babies, one lived to be one year old, but she was always feeble. I tried different doctors, but none of them could tell me what my trouble was. They said I was well and strong. I was examined by surgeons but they found nothing wrong, and they were puzzled to know what my trouble was. I did not know what to do, so I thought this time I would try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I took it the entire nine months and now have a fine baby girl, and I cannot praise your medicine enough for the good it did me."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are easy and pleasant to take. A most effective laxative.

A FORTUNE IN FRENCH.

A Valuable Hint for Ambitious and Earnest Young Canadians.

How many of the younger men know that, if they will only grasp it, there is awaiting them a golden prize? It can be attained only by study; the study of French. The big wholesales of Toronto are pushing their trade into Quebec, says The Toronto News. The manufacturers are doing the same thing. And the representatives of these firms, if they are to be successful in the French Province, must speak the language. Toronto employers have had great difficulty in obtaining traveling salesmen who would be able to talk to the French-Canadian merchant in his own tongue. They had plenty of bright, alert, pushing young fellows, but they had only the language that their fathers taught them. All the things being equal, the young man who knows French will stand a much better chance of doing business in Quebec than will his competitor, who compels his customer to speak a language that is alien to his lips. The French-Canadian merchant in a small town does not attempt to speak English more than once a month or so. He is gratified to find an English-speaking salesman acquainted with his own tongue; so that the French-speaking man from Ontario stands in with a manifest advantage. So far, many of the Ontario firms have been forced to engage French-Canadian travelers to cover the territory. The recruit is usually earnest and enthusiastic, but he is not so efficient as the man who has been brought up in his employer's business, and several years at his apprenticeship before being sent out on the road.

Then, everybody knows that Quebec is full of water powers that will make her, in the near future, a quantity to be reckoned with when it comes to manufacturing. Where water powers are, there will be electrical developement, and electrical development means positions for many young men who know something of that branch of engineering. Toronto is full of its students. Many of them will get posts in Quebec, and under them will be hundreds of French-Canadians. Will it not be easier for them to manage the business when they know the tongue of their employers? The man who has nothing but English at his command, will have to depend largely on his French-Canadian assistants or foremen. He will often have to pay salaries that he could save if he had both languages to work on. The electrical engineer of the future, who is now studying in Ontario, had better have a try at French. The younger he is, the better. Still, a man who has attained middle age can "pick it up." Many a politician has gone to Ottawa knowing no word of the alien tongue. He has found that a knowledge of it would help him in Parliament and, has commenced its study. People of our blood are notoriously timid about learning foreign languages, but there is nothing very difficult in the task of acquiring a working knowledge of French. It is something that pretty nearly any man possessing a High School education should be able to achieve in six months. If he knows his Latin grammar pretty well, he will be immeasurably helped. But even if he has no Latin, he will do well to take up French. He will be richer financially and mentally.

NOTHING GOES RIGHT.

Nothing goes right while the stomach and bowels are wrong. Angier's Petroleum Emulsion is the ideal remedy for all forms of stomach and bowel disorders. It aids digestion, improves nutrition, creates rich, red blood, firm flesh, and makes life worth living. Pleasant to take. al

The Mosquito.

But all over Ontario that vindictive and typhoid-propagating insect, the mosquito, is a pest. In rural and suburban districts, broken crockery, flower-pots and discarded vegetable and fruit cans in a back yard will often hold enough rainwater to attract an egg-laying mosquito. Of course, ponds furnish a larger problem, but not an insoluble one. With them drainage must be resorted to, and drainage calls for co-operation. For that matter, so do other methods of campaigning. Fighting mosquitoes is like shovelling snow. If Jones cleans his sidewalk, and Smith is negligent, the public loses the benefit of the former's diligence, and Jones is tempted to regret his own zeal. If one man cleans up his yard and denies the mosquito a breeding-place, and his neighbor does not, virtue is not adequately rewarded. Virtue is continually getting it in the cervical vertebrae, anyhow, but the man who is not ready to lament the fact can never hope to make an effective bluff in the direction of convincing his fellow-citizens that he desires to look on life from high altitudes, the while he hits up the high, clear ringing note that he should always have on tap.

Scriptural Carving.

A Scriptural method of carving fowls when in secular company was claimed by a witty clergyman who, having been asked to carve one day, said, "Inasmuch as you demand it, I will carve the fowl according to Biblical principles." "Yes," exclaimed the hostess, "act according to the Scriptures." The theologian therefore began the carving. The baron was tendered the head of the fowl, the baroness the neck, the two daughters a wing apiece and the two sons a first joint, the carver retaining the remainder.

"According to what interpretation do you make such a division?" inquired the host of his guest, as he regarded the clergyman's heaping plate and the scant portions doled out to the family.

"From an interpretation of my own," replied the clerical wit. "As the master of your house the head belongs to you by right; the baroness, being most near to you, should receive the neck, which is nearest the head; in the wings the young girls will recognize a symbol of their mobile thoughts, that fly from one desire to another; as to the young imrons, the drumsticks they have received will remind them that they are responsible for supporting your house, as the legs of the capon support the bird itself."

Couldn't Ruin Their Eyes.

Sir Henry Holland, the noted English physician, had his studies interrupted by a youth who wanted advice. The young man, with considerable swagger, said he proposed locating in some town as an oculist. A city in which a large number of students were located was preferred. "There," he continued, "I would have unlimited opportunities of treating the eyes of overstudious scholars."

Dr. Holland was reluctant to have a community's eyes endangered because of his indorsement of a doubtful practitioner. He thought a few moments and then advised the ambitious oculist to locate in a small town near Liverpool, stating that a large school was located there.

The young man thanked the doctor. In a few days he reached the suggested field for his experiments. The large buildings in the distance indicated a magnificent school and splendid opportunities.

He investigated and collapsed. The school was one for the hopelessly blind.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

One of Canada's Jurists.

The Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec, Sir Louis Jette, who is to the front as one of Canada's jurists in the Alaskan Boundary dispute, is not known outside of his Province except by name. He is far more of a judge than a politician, in temperament and attainments. The one episode in his political career which brought him fame was his defeat of the late Sir George Cartier in Montreal East in the general elections of 1872. Then a young avocat, comparatively obscure, Jette was brought out by the Liberals against the French Tory leader, whose prestige and authority in Quebec were then similar to Sir John Macdonald's in Ontario. Cartier had deeply offended his church by declining to intervene to save Separate schools for the New Brunswick Catholics. He had also incurred the hostility of the militia, and the late Colonel Dyde, of Montreal, and Colonel G. T. Denison, of Toronto, went quietly into the constituency and worked against him. Cartier was left in a minority of 1,250 votes—they never do things by halves in Quebec—and young Jette woke up to find himself famous. He was made a judge by the Mackenzie Government in September, 1878, resigning from the Bench in 1898 to succeed Sir Adolphe Chapleau at Spencerwood. He is 67 years old. Mr. Rodolphe Lemieux, M.P. for Gaspe, is his son-in-law.

Identified.

In many parts of England, and especially in the villages of the Black country, it is quite a common thing for a man to be known so exclusively by a nickname that his real name is forgotten. A gentleman had occasion once to ask a potter for the whereabouts of a certain John Williams.

"John Williams?" repeated the man thoughtfully, knitting his brows. "I have heard tell of it. John Williams—it is familiar. I say, sir," he exclaimed, as if seized by a sudden inspiration, "do he be married?"

"That's so," was the reply.

"And hes three of a family?"

"I believe so."

"Well, sir, I'm John Williams."—London Globe.

Messrs. McMillan & Maguire have received the following despatches:—

New York, June 11th, 1.30 p. m. — The market decline was in danger of becoming serious, so influential men in the financial world came out announcing that the decline had discounted all unfavourable features and that there were no failures pending. In addition to this the government report was more favourable than expected. Support was extended to the market in a substantial way by Houseman and others representing Morgan and other large interests. With the result that stocks opened up from 1 to 3 points above last night's close. This feature was to be expected after the prolonged decline. Good judges think there will be further liquidation and that stock put out on the bull side can be covered at a profit on the drives.

GUILD LEAGUE GAMES.

In the Guild League last night two games were played. At St. Andrew's McDonnel street grounds. St. Paul's and St. Andrew's played four innings of fast ball, the score at the close being 10—3, St. Paul's in the rear. The teams lined up as follows:—

St. Andrew's—Henderson, 1 f.; McDonald, r f; Cox, 2nd b; Pence, p; Thornton, C; Elliott, 1st b; Anderson, s s; Kelley, c f; Wilkie, 3rdb.

St. Paul's—Laing, 2nd b; Craig, l f; Wightman, 3rd b; Walker, p, r f; Duncan, 1st b; G Lee, s s; D. Watt, r f, p; Gillespie, C; Hall c f.

Umpire—Taylor.

The remaining three innings will be played on Friday night at 7 o'clock.

At the Patterson street grounds George and Charlotte street teams also played four innings, the game being witnessed by an enthusiastic crowd of supporters.

Those participating in the playing were:

George street — Dredge, Miller, Roberts, Gray, Skitch, Wood, Warne, Boomer, Dobbin—9.

Charlotte street — Thornton, Harmer, Jolliffe, Sorsoliel, Sanderson, Bradburn, Pringle, Carr, Hartley.—10.

The Examiner will not attempt to give the positions on the diamond occupied by these players. During the first two innings the "Georges" played Gray in the box, who proved an easy proposition, Charlottes scoring 10 runs. For the remainderof the game Miller pitched and no runs were scored off him.. For Charlotte street Harmer pitched a good game until the last innigs, when, with two out George street brought in 8 runs. This game will also be concluded on Friday night.

The nerve of some people! The Post evidently has an inflated opinion of the playing ability of the Clippers. We quote the following from yesterday's Post: "There is blood on the moon in Peterborough in baseball circles. Manager Graham of the Auburns, 'phoned for a game for Friday at Lindsay; Manager Whitcroft of the Excelsiors, also 'phoned for Lindsay to play them at Paterborough, saying he was entitled to a match first. They are having a scrappy time. If they don't behave themselves Lindsay will go down and trim both teams in one day."

LACROSSE.

The first league game of lacrosse will be played here next Thursday afternoon between the fast Belleville team which defeated Hastings on the latter's grounds 8-1 and the Athletics. From the list of players which includes Winchester, McGuire, Kennedy and Brown of the Hockey team, Arthur Whitley who played for Copper Cliff as well as three Indians who are said to be good men. It will be seen that a very interesting game will be the result. The match will be played on the Nicholls Oval, commencing at 5 o'clock so that it will be convenient for everybody to be present.

This afternoon at Lindsay a game is being played between the home team and Port Hope.

GOLF.

The handicap competition for the Noill Trophy will commence at once. The draws for the first round are given below. This round must be finished by 17th June. This competition is to be played according to the rules of match play. Each round those defeated drop out of the contest. The holes at which strokes in handicaps are to be taken can be seen on card posted up at the Club House. The play consists of 18 holes for each round. At conclusion of each game played cards must be dropped in box. The committee wishes cards dropped in whether round is played or not. Cards put in where round has not been played will state who defaults. This trophy is to become property of winner. The following are draws for first round for which cards must be put in by 17th June:—

TURF.

The next of the fortnightly series of sporting events under the auspices of the Peterborough Turf Club will not take place on Friday of this week as announced, but on Thursday, June 18th.

FOOTBALL.

A full practice of the Y.M.C.A. football team is requested for to-night at the Nicholls oval.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Mr. Charles Grant, the trick bicycle rider, was greeted by a large number of persons on the market square last night, as he had announced that he would perform there at 8 o'clock. It can be safely said that Mr. Grant has a complete mastery of his wheel, which he can ride in almost any position. His skill in this regard was well applauded by the onlookers, who thoroughly appreciated his excellent performance.

Mr. David Beland, who recently issued a challenge to run a 100 yard race produces satisfactory proof that he is an amateur. A letter from the Quebec lacrosse Club signed by M. G. O'Brien and W. G. Berrigan states that he has frequently raced under their colours and has always acted in a sportsmanlike manner. Mr. Beland is willing to arrange a race with some amateur in Peterborough.

SPEECH MAKING.

English Statesmen Largely Write Their and Commit to Memory—Ours Are Plotted But Not Written.

Lord Rosebery is not known to fame as a very methodical man, and so it was with no great amazement that the English people heard the latest tale about him. It is, that after preparing a speech that was to electrify the country, the former Premier departed for Plymouth, where the speaking was to take place, without his notes. Consequently he had to make an extempore address, and very ordinary stuff it was. It is evident that Lord Rosebery is one of those gentlemen who require "studied impromptus." Disraeli, they say, used to con over his speeches until he had virtually memorized them. His epigrams were not drawn forth by the spur of the occasion, Beaconsfield is reported to have confessed that he had the biting sentences ready for pretty nearly any occasion. And the facts about his system of keeping these smart sayings on tap, so to speak, never became public property until after the death of the great man. John Bright, it is said, did not memorize his speeches, but trusted to what he called his "islands." The "islands" were central ideas for a speech. From one to the other in succession it was Bright's plan to "swim," as he put it. The great tribune of the people was not one of the kind who would memorize a speech. He had plenty of things to spend his time on, and would never have consented to the drudgery of memorization.

Here in Canada we have few public men who will waste precious hours in getting a speech off by heart. Sir Wilfrid Laurier never prepares a speech in the sense of getting it structurally complete, let alone memorizing it. His notes do not often take up more than one side of notepaper, or the back of an envelope. Of course, if authorities have to be quoted, the books are used. But the argument comes largely to Sir Wilfrid's mind as he progresses through his speech. Before he makes it the plan is plotted, but there is never any attempt to go any farther than the skeleton of the address. If the Prime Minister had to trust to his memory for those periods which so often have electrified the land, he would go out of public life. He has said so himself. Sir Wilfrid has many good qualities, but he has not the patience which allows other and perhaps smaller men to get by note page after page of matter. Perhaps the most laborious preparer of speeches that Canadian politics ever knew was the late Mr. Justice Mills. When in the House of Commons, Mr. Mills was known as one of the most erudite of its members, and also as one of the most voluminous of its debaters. When Mr. Mills had to participate in a "full dress debate" as they call it in England, the desk in front of him was piled high with books, manuscript, pamphlet, and all kinds of paraphernalia. The then member for Bothwell was not the man to allow the most minute point to escape him, and he was a terror to the Hansard men with his unusual phrases and recondite references. Sir John Macdonald was not in the habit of paying compliments to the Liberals, but he is said to have remarked that if Mr. Mills should decide that there were two "s's" in "the," he would be inclined to believe him off-hand. The member from Bothwell was always pretty accurate in his references.

On the Supreme Court bench sits Mr. Louis Davies, who is, by way of being, the direct antithesis of his brother judge. If ever there was a more slap-dash debater than Mr. Justice Davies was, he was not detected at Ottawa when the judge was a member of Parliament. When there was campaigning to be done, there was seldom to be found in Canada a more effective man on the stump than the Liberal leader from Prince Edward Island. Audiences which were cold and unresponsive to other men's efforts, awoke suddenly when Davies commenced to speak. His taking personality and his fine appearance made him one of the Liberals' strongest cards when it came down to a case of campaigning. But in the House of Commons it was different. There Sir Louis also made excellent speeches, but he did not always take the time necessary to verify his facts. His efforts were undeniably able, but they were hardly so full of reliable statements as those of Mr. Justice Mills. It must not be understood that Sir Louis went in for misstatements, for he did not. But he was not always a systematic worker, that was all.

Sir Richard Cartwright's speeches give evidence of careful preparation, although the Minister of Trade and Commerce has been known to make excellent impromptu efforts. The consideration that always strikes one on hearing Sir Richard's speeches is that the Minister has so much material to use that he must put his facts through a winnowing process before presenting them to the public. That is about the case, too. Sir Richard's tremendous intellect has at its disposal such a tremendous array of information that the difficulty with him must be, not what to say, but what to leave unsaid. And yet the old gentleman is not nearly so prolific as many men who have not one tithe of the information which he owns. Most of his speeches are very short. They are shorter than they used to be, for the gout has laid Sir Richard's left leg under tribute, and it is really painful for him to stand for any time.—Day by Day, in Toronto News.

For the Denver C. E. Convention.

Very low excursion rates have been arranged from all points in Canada to Colorado, leaving July 6th, 7th, and 8th., good for return up to August 31st. Everybody can go, the rate is wide open and this is a splendid opportunity to spend a vacation among the Rockies at slight expense. The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway and connections will run special Standard First-Class and Tourist Sleeping Cars through to Denver, besides the regular daily service from Chicago.

A FALSE CLUE.

Caused Man in Glory Whalen Murder Proved Alibi—Accuser Arrested.

Collingwood, June 12.—Another chapter in the murder mystery was added yesterday in the arrest of Thomas Mulheron, who was brought here from Owen Sound on the afternoon train. His story was that he and a companion of the name of Osborne had slept in the bush where Glory Whalen was murdered the night before her murder, but this was as far as he would go in his statement. His hesitancy aroused suspicion, so he was arrested and brought to Collingwood. His story was soon investigated, and Osborne soon located and asked to account for his actions. He showed beyond doubt that he was innocent, and proved that he had been peddling furniture polish in Collingwood at the time the murder was committed.

Mulheron, however, seemed to be much excited, and immediately on his arrival in town, employed A. A. Bond, the young criminal lawyer of this town, to look after his interests. He was examined by the police, and his story was soon found to amount to nothing. He is now in the lock-up here, but the police do not look upon the arrest as important, nor do they think he has any knowledge of the affair.

Another Suspect.

Grand Valley, June 12.—A tramp passed through Grand Valley who many think resembles one of the suspects of the Glory Whalen murder at Collingwood. He acted very suspiciously, allowing no one to get between him and a door, and kept one hand in the vicinity of his hip pocket. He was seen around Bowling Green on Sunday, and later.

Only 250 Saved.

Sofia, Bulgaria, June 11.—It is reported that the village of Enidge, in the district of Adrianople, consisting of 500 houses, was attacked on June 2 by Bashi-Bazouks, and the entire population, with the exception of 200 men, massacred.

About 150 doz. pieces beautiful fluffy Whitewear cleared in the nick of time.

At this season of the year many manufacturers make a grand clean up of their warehouses (in anticipation of taking their summer inventory). Big lines must be cleared out; all over-production orders that have been too late for shipment and big stock lots must go in order to make room for fall goods.

Having a resident buyer in Toronto who is always on the keen lookout for any snaps that are going, enables us to get first choice (which is always the best). For some time we have been on the lookout for large clearing lines of the above character and have now procured this desirable lot at practically our own figure, thereby enabling us to offer you big lines of Skirts, Corset Covers, Drawers, Chemise, etc., at greatly reduced prices.

A partial price list circular of the above lines is now being delivered through the town. See that you get one.

Remember that although the quantities are large, the remarkable low prices at which they are marked will cause a speedy clearance.

WORK OF ASSASSINS

The King and Queen of Servia and Many Officials Killed.

THE NEW RULER PROCLAIMED

Prince Peter Karageorgevitch Attains His Desire—The New Government Proffers Him the Throne—Revolution Well Planned and Carried Out—Reports Say That People of Belgrade Rejoice at Its Success.

Belgrade, June 12.—A military revolution broke out here Wednesday night. The troops, who revolted under the leadership of Major Angikovics, surrounded the Palace assassinated King Alexander, Queen Draga, the latter's sister, the Queen's brother, Nijoden; Premier Markovitch, Ministers Petrovitch and Tudorovich, Gen. Plavolitch, the former Minister of War, and some of the members of the Royal Guard.

Prince Karageorgevitch was proclaimed King.

A Proclamation.

A new Government was formed,

KING ALEXANDER.

and the following proclamation was issued:

"To the Servian people—Last night the King and Queen were shot. In this grave and fateful moment friends of the fatherland have combined to form a new Government. While the Government makes this announcement to the people, it is convinced that the Servian people will gather round it and lend it their aid to maintain order and security throughout the land.

"The Government hereby makes known that from to-day the constitution of April 6th, 1901 comes in force. A meeting of the National representatives dissolved by the proclamation of March 24, is summoned to meet at Belgrade, June 15.

New Minister Cheered.

The streets are thronged with people whose actions seem to approve the coup d'etat. M. Protics, the new Minister of the Interior, was loudly cheered as he drove to the Ministry.

M. Avakumovics, the new Premier, belongs to the Independent Liberal party.

A Better Future.

The newspapers forecast a better future for Servia, and the new state of things is heartily welcomed by the masses. The Servian parliament will confirm the new King in his office. The army rules.

HOW IT WAS DONE.

Dramatic Story of How King and Queen Were Killed.

Vienna, June 12.—Despatches from Servia say that since the late King Alexander's suspension of the Servian constitution the army had been animated by the hostile feelings toward both the King and Queen.

The revolution was planned weeks ago. Secret committees were organized in the country, and worked in co-operation with army. The leaders of the revolution are said to have been the new Ministers of Justice and Finance, respectively, M. Schiokovics and Mr. Volkovics, and the Sixth Regiment of Infantry, garrisoning Belgrade, was designated to carry out the plot. It was originally intended that the plot should be executed later, but fears that the new Servian parliament would settle the question of the succession to the throne hastened matters.

Colonel Naumovics, the adjutant of the King, was entrusted with the execution of the plans. While on duty at 11 o'clock Wednesday night Naumovics burst in the door leading to the sleeping apartments of the royal couple with a bomb and then entered, accompanied by Mischics and a number of junior officers. Previously the guard had been overpowered, and its commander, Captain Pauajowics, was killed.

King's Aim Was True.

Naumovics presented to the King a form of abdication for his signature. The document contained the statement that by marrying a "public prostitute" the King had degraded Servia, and that therefore he must abdicate. The King's answer was to draw a revolver and kill Naumovics on the spot.

Mischics then picked up the document and presented it again to the King, who perceiving his danger, fled with Queen Draga to the palace roof, both being in their night clothes. The officers followed, continuously firing, and ultimately shot down the royal couple. Major Luka Lazarewics, who had been under the King's displeasure for two years, is said to have fired the shot which actually killed the King.

Murder of the Ministers.

At about 2 o'clock yesterday morning Queen Draga's two brothers were shot at their homes, as well as Premier Markovitch and his brother-in-law, M. Milkovitz, the Minister of the Interior, M. Tudorovich, and his daughter, and the War Minister, M. Plavolitch.

While these events were proceeding at the palace the streets of the city were already occupied by soldiers, and an armed force surrounded the royal residence. The horses and guns of the batteries of artillery were all decorated with evergreens as for a festival. The soldiers discarded the badge of King Alexander from their helmets.

An attempt was made to support the dynasty by the commander of the Danube division, who tried to march the light regiment of infantry into the city to help the late King Alexander, but he was opposed by a body of troops under Col. Gagovitz. In the fight which ensued both the officers mentioned were killed.

Official Explanation.

What purports to be an official explanation of the tragedy was issued at Belgrade during the day. It says: "After dinner on Wednesday evening the King and Queen with some of their relatives and several Ministers sat on the balcony of the palace. Suddenly the King demanded that Queen Draga leave the country. She refused, and was supported by some of the Ministers. When the King saw this opposition he ordered the military to occupy the palace. In the meanwhile the Queen's friends were also active, and collected her supporters. It was in a fight between the two factions that the King and Queen were killed."

The Possibilities.

A despatch received by the Austrian Foreign Office yesterday afternoon announced that the Servian parliament, which has been summoned for June 15, will only elect Prince Peter Karageorgevitch King in the event of Austria and Russia not opposing such a step. Austria would not object, because, although the Prince was once the avowed enemy of Austria, he has since given repeated assurances that in the event of his coming to the throne of Servia he was desirous of living amicably with Austria.

The question of Austria's intervention in the present situation has so far only been considered in the case of civil war breaking out. Otherwise it is regarded as being Servia's private affair. In case of civil war in Servia, Austria's forcible intervention is not impossible, but even in such a case, only if the signatory powers should require Austria to take such a step.

Alexander I., King of Servia, was born in 1876 and ascended to the throne on the abdication of his father, King Milan, on March 6, 1889. He was educated privately at Belgrade, according to the German High School program. Young Alexander was under the guardianship of M. Ristitch and M. Belimarkovitch, as Regents, until April, 1893. The country having then been for some time in a state of dissension, the young Prince, doubtless at the suggestion of King Milan, suddenly assumed the reins of power.

After endeavoring to secure a royal wife in vain, he married Mme. Draga Maschin, who had been a lady-in-waiting to his mother, Queen Natalie. He once had his father, ex-King Milan, arrested for coming into the Kingdom after his abdication.

The New King.

Geneva, June 12.—Prince Peter Karageorgevitch, whom the Servian army has proclaimed King, has been living in Geneva since 1891. He appeared greatly astonished on receiving the news from Belgrade, which he said had reached him through a private telegram from Vienna. The Prince did not leave the House all day. Through the Russian Consul, an intimate friend of the Prince last evening obtained the following statement: "Prince Karageorgevitch declares himself innocent of any knowledge of the tragedy at Belgrade. He said that through his grandfather he had undoubtedly the best right to the Servian throne, and intended taking it if possible for the sake of his son. He said he knew nothing of the tragedy at Belgrade." The Prince is a widower, aged 53. He has three children, George, his heir, 16 years old; Alexander, 14 years old, and Helena, aged 19 years.

Ex-Queen Broke Down.

Paris, June 12.—On being informed of the death of her son, ex-Queen Natalie broke down, and was unable to hear the close of the tragic story, although care was taken to break the news gently.

His life was not insured.

International complications are not likely to ensue.

JOHNSTOWN FLOOD IN B. C.

North Bend, British Columbia Town, Nearly Wiped Out.

Vancouver, B.C., June 12.—North Bend was subjected early yesterday morning to a Johnstown flood experience, happily without fatality, or, as it now appears, very serious property loss. The dam by which a little lake high up the mountain side is converted into a natural reservoir and the town supplied with water, power and light broke under pressure of the heavy contributions of the melting snows, and a wave of turbid destruction swept down upon the town. Trees, boulders, and debris of all sorts came with the torrent, and numerous small buildings were washed from their foundations, while at the Fraser Canyon House and the depot buildings fully a foot of slimy mud deposit marked the floors. The flood came only a few moments after the express had passed, and the track was obliterated where the torrent crossed. At 5 o'clock last evening all danger had been removed.

NEW ONTARIO.

Notwithstanding all that has been said, and the campaign of education which has been prosecuted, with reference to the extent and value of the resources of that really wonderful heritage, New Ontario, there is yet a very grave misapprehension in the minds of the great bulk of the people as to the wealth of that portion of the province. Not only is the character of the country misunderstood, but few have any adequate idea of the extent of territory which is embraced in the district known as New Ontario. It is almost three times as large as southern Ontario, and extends from the Quebec boundary to Manitoba, is bounded on the south by the Mattawa River, Lake Nipissing, French River, Georgian Bay, Lake Huron, Lake Superior and the State of Minnesota, while it stretches northward to James' Bay, the southern prolongation of Hudson's Bay. Through the province from Lake Abbitibi to Lake St. Joseph runs the height of land, from 1,000 to 1,500 feet above the sea level, on the southern slope of which are the sources of the rivers which empty into the Great Lakes, while those flowing into Hudson's Bay rise on its northern slope.

The country between the Great Lakes and the height of land, has often been described by superficial observers, as a worthless, rocky region, which must always prove an insurmountable barrier between Central Canada and the North-West. That it looks rocky and worthless, whether viewed from a steamship, or a railway car, cannot be denied, and the rocks are certainly there, but throughout this region are numerous little fertile valleys sheltered from the rough winds by the much abused rocky hills, and watered by swift flowing rivers, and pretty lakes. It is claimed that owing to the protection afforded by the rocky hills, and the moderating influence of the shallow lakes, these little valleys have a much milder climate than the lake shore, and that they are well adapted to growing hardy fruits, as well as grain and vegetables. The writer has seen in New Ontario vegetables and fruits which were in every respect equal to those grown in the southern part of the province, and not by any means on isolated or rare occasions, but everywhere throughout that district where agriculture is tried, it has proven a decided success, if methods are used for which the country and climate are adapted. A theory, which has been exploded, was that it was impossible to bring fruit trees to a state of maturity to produce fruit, but at many places farmers have in good bearing condition large orchards, and one of the principal exhibits at any one of the numerous fall fairs which are held, is that of native-grown fruit. It must be admitted that the fertile valleys being small, there is not much room in any one spot, but altogether there are millions of acres available for cultivation between Nipissing and Port Arthur. West of that, along the Canadian side of the Rainy River, there are quite extensive tracts of good land, but the wealth of the region is in the rocks rather than the soil, for there is reason to believe that it is the richest mineral district this side of the Rocky Mountains. Gold, silver, copper, nickel and iron have already been discovered in large quantities and it is believed that diamonds will yet be found.

North of the Height of Land the climate moderates as the country slopes downward toward Hudson Bay. It has been pointed out that Moose Factory is in almost the same latitude as London, England, but the climate is not the same. However the summer temperatures from the beginning of May to the end of September are very nearly the same as those of Edinburgh, Scotland, although more than 4 degrees farther north.

Almost the only settlers north of the Height of Land are the Hudson Bay Company's officers and they do not devote much attention to agriculture, but there are small farms or gardens around nearly all their posts, and from these some idea may be obtained of the agricultural possibilities of the country. At Moose Factory fine crops of oats, barley, peas, beans, tomatoes, turnips, potatoes, beets, carrots, cabbage, onions, lettuce, spinach and radishes are grown every year without any special care, and wheat has been successfully ripened there. Owing to the abundant supply of water, the luxuriance of the native grasses and adaptability of the soil and climate to root growing, this part of the province is especially suitable to stock raising and the dairy industry.

The Provincial Government is now displaying commendable zeal in encouraging the development of Northern Ontario. Exploring parties have been sent out to survey the territory between the Height of Land and James Bay, and their reports confirm the favourable statements made by the Dominion Government Geologists regarding the general character of the country.

This great country is as yet practically undeveloped. The great essential for the transformation of what is now an unavailable asset into a wealth producing factor is railway communication. North of the Height of Land there lies an area of land, the popular name assigned to which is the "Great Clay Belt." To enable this great district to be settled the Provincial Government is building a railway into the Temiskaming country, and with the increase in population resultant upon its building, the progressiveness of the Government as evidenced by this undertaking is highly commended. The building of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, a charter for which is now about to be secured from the Dominion Government, will assist still further in opening up this wonderful domain, of which a summary published by the Government on the the report of the Dominion Geologists says:—"The results of these extensive explorations, as detailed in the elaborate reports sent in by the surveyors, the land and timber estimators and the geologists, have fully justified the most sanguine expectations in regard to the natural wealth and fertility of Northern Ontario, and justifies the action taken whereby some accurate knowledge of the character and extent of its enormous undeveloped resources has been acquired. It has been established beyond controversy that in the eastern half of the territory north of the Height of Land there is an immense area of excellent agricultural land apparently equal in fertility to any in older Ontario. This great clay belt comprises an area of 15,060,000 acres nearly all of which is well adapted for cultivation."

Silly Cause For Strike.

Huntington, W. Va., June 11.—Twelve hundred employes at the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Shops, in this city, and including the office force, struck yesterday. William Davis, a carpenter, and a member of the City Council, recently voted to take from Mayor Buck his authority to name the standing committees for the ensuing year. Mayor Buck, being a member of the Blacksmiths' Labor Union, his fellow-laborers demanded that Davis be discharged by the railroad. The company refused, and the strike resulted.

DEBATE WAS ANGRY

House of Commons Discusses the Treadgold Concession.

MR. CASGRAIN'S RESOLUTION.

A Special Committee to Investigate Proposed—Sir Wilfrid Laurier Denies an Insinuation—The Amendment Lost by a Majority of 46—$3,000,000 Loan to the Harbor Commissioners of Montreal.

Ottawa, June 12.—Hon. Sydney Fisher introduced in the House yesterday a bill respecting inspection and sale of seeds. The object of the bill is to protect purchasers of agricultural seeds, who, through carelessness or otherwise, are sometimes imposed upon.

Mr. Hyman moved that the bill respecting the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway be referred back to the Railway Committee for further consideration. This motion was carried.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier informed Mr. Clarke that all the compositors and typesetting machine operators in the Printing Bureau were members of the Typographical Union. He said that the Typographical Union adopted the scale of wages recently proposed without any conference with the Government, and announced that it would be in operation on and after June 1. Under the circumstances the Government declined to recognize the scale, and the subject was not referred to the fair wage officer of the Department of Labor.

Mr. Blair stated that the gross earnings of the I.C.R. up to April 30 amounted to $5,292,639, and the working expenses to $5,288,768. There had been expended on capital account during the ten months $910,576.

Montreal Harbor Loan.

In committee, Mr. Fielding moved the resolution authorizing the loan of $3,000,000 to the Montreal Harbor Commissioners, to enable the Corporation to construct such further terminal facilities as are necessary to properly equip the port. Speaking in support of the resolution, Mr. Fielding said that with the increasing trade of the country, additional transportation and terminal facilities at our ports are required, especially at Montreal. By acts of Parliament passed in 1896-1898 and 1901 authority was given to advance to the Harbor Board of Montreal sums aggregating $5,000,000. Out of this amount $2,000,000 has been advanced at 3½ per cent., and $1,450,000 under the later act at 3 per cent. Of the amounts already authorized, $1,550,000 is yet available, but against this is to be set contracts now under way which will absorb all but $294,000. Of the amount now authorized, some $2,368,000 is required for steel sheds, elevated roadways, etc., on the Alexandria, King Edward and other piers, the rental from which, it is estimated, will amply compensate the board for the expenditure, and enable them to meet the obligations incurred in that respect. The board have in the past always met their obligations promptly, and they have represented to the Government that with the growing business of the port they will be able to meet their increased obligations under this resolution.

After a long debate the resolution was reported, and Mr. Fielding introduced a bill founded on the resolution and it was read a first time.

Moved For a Committee.

Mr. Casgrain moved for a Parliamentary committee, not a Royal Commission, to investigate alleged frauds in connection with the Treadgold concession in the Yukon. In the course of his speech he said that if the reports alluded to by Mr. Monk the other day were correct someone on the Government benches felt that if there was a full enquiry he would have to leave public life.

Parliamentary Courage Lacking.

Sir William Mulock said that he wished he could congratulate Mr Casgrain on showing some Parliamentary courage in the manner in which he had presented his case. He had not yet been able to screw up his courage, although challenged on the 12th. of May, to pledge his word to any charges he might have to make. He read the motion by Mr. Casgrain of the 12th of May, in which there was no reference to any concession except the Treadgold concession, and even in that there was no charge of any corruption, but simply a charge that the concession in its financial effect was not advantageous to the people of the Yukon. That was the gravamen of the charge of May 12th. And at once the Government issued an order for an investigation into, not only the Treadgold concession, but into all other matters connected with hydraulic affairs in the Yukon. He examined the wording of the commission, showing that it more than covered the points into which the petition quoted by Mr. Casgrain asked for an investigation.

Mr. Monk argued that the Commission did not cover the matter. The Opposition would not give names. Everybody knew that the department which engineered this nefarious transaction was the Department of Interior, and it seemed strange that Mr. Sifton should have been absent throughout the whole of this session, although these reports had been long in circulation before the House met. He did not believe Mr. Sifton's official duties in connection with the Alaska Boundary Commission necessitated his absence until this day.

Was it not a fact, Mr. Monk, asked, that the scandals had been brought to the ears of the Governor-General and His Excellency brought to the notice of the leader of the Government.

"I deny that in the most absolute terms," said Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Mr. Monk accepted the denial.

Mr. Borden said he wanted the investigation promised by Mr. Ross. Liberal member for the Yukon, and by Sir William Mulock on May 12.

Mr. Blair said the Opposition was seeking by the violence of their language to make up for their lack of facts and material. He said that the charges made by the Dawson Liberal Club and Board of Trade were not against members of the Government, and the Commission issued was supreme.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, speaking with great emphasis and energy, protested against the action of the member for Jacques Cartier (Mr. Monk) in insinuating or implying by the repetition in the House, after the statement had previously been denied, that his attention had been called by the Governor-General to the rumors in connection with this concession. "For the third time," said the Premier, "I beg to say to my hon. friend that there is not the slightest foundation for the statement he has made."

Mr. Monk denied that he had made any assertion, and insisted that he had only asked whether there was any truth in the rumors current.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that when Mr. Monk had again to-day repeated the statement, after the denial he had previously made upon his responsibility as a leader of the House, it was an insinuation. If it was not an insinuation or an accusation, what, he, asked, was it? If it meant anything it meant that some one had poured into the ear of Mr. Monk the story of wrongdoing. Whoever that man was, he must have a name, a reputation and a character. If he had not, Mr. Monk was wrong to repeat the statement of a worthless man upon the floor of Parliament. If, on the other hand, the statement was made by a man of reputation and character, why had not Mr. Monk the courage to make charges upon that foundation? Why, in the name of common sense, of fair play and of honor between man and man, and between member of Parliament and member of Parliament, did not Mr. Monk come out and make his charges? Sir Wilfrid pointed out the futility of granting an investigation without charges, showing the nature of the fraud and naming the parties charged or the person who made the charges. He had only to say that if charges were formulated in a proper manner they would be investigated.

Messrs. Tarte, Northrup, Fitzpatrick, and Davis (Saskatchewan) continued the debate.

On a straight party division, Mr. Casgrain's amendment was negatived by a vote of 40 to 88.

Electric Railway Bills Passed.

Ottawa, June 12.—The Toronto & Hamilton Railway Co. bill passed the Railway Committee yesterday. The company will have a capital of $500,000.

Mr. German's bill incorporating the Niagara, Queenston & St. Catharines Railway Company, was reported.

Senator Deprived of Seat.

Ottawa, June 12.—Senator Masson, who has been absent from the Senate for two consecutive sessions, was formally deprived of his seat by a resolution introduced by Senator Scott in the Upper House yesterday.

CAN'T AFFORD IT.

You Can't Work Right if you Have Dyspepsia—Hamilton Lady Proves That Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Will Cure it.

Aside from its discomforts you can't afford to have Dyspepsia. You can't work right unless you feel right, and you can't feel right if you have Dyspepsia.

With that dreary despondent feeling that every Dyspeptic knows work loses all its pleasure. You long for the dinner bell, because it makes the end of the morning, but you dread the dinner bell because it means more eating and consequently more suffering.

But there is a way of escape. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are the way. Thousands who have tried will tell you that. Juliana Sandburg, of 221 John street, North Hamilton, tells you. Hear what she says:

"For over six years I was troubled with Dyspepsia and Headaches. Nothing I ate would agree with me. I tried several medicines, but could get nothing to help me till I tried Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"Almost at once they gave me relief, and before I had finished one box I was cured."

You can't find a Dyspeptic who has used Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Power of a Swan's Wing.

"Swans," said a Toronto Island habitue, "have great strength of wing. It is said that with a blow of its wing a swan can break a man's leg, and I have no doubt this is so. A doctor told me one day, as we stood together by the island lake, that one of his first cases had been that of a man whose arm a swan had broken with its wing.

"The accident occurred in Arkansas, on Swan Lake, a body of water where these birds abound. A huntsman was 'fire-hunting,' when a swan, making for the light, flew straight at his head. He put up his arm to shield his face, and the powerful wing of the white bird struck him like a club. Both bones in the forearm were broken; it was a compound fracture.

"If a swan, accidentally, can break in this way a man's arm, there is, in my opinion, no room to doubt that it could, if it desired, break, with a well-directed blow, a man's leg."

THE ONTARIO HOUSE.

Debate Upon the Report of the Public Accounts Committee.

ALL THE CHARGES REFUTED.

Inquiry Was Not Barked—A Morning Session to Be Held To-Day—Ordinary Business Will Be Wound Up This Morning—Adjournment to Follow Until Next Week For Gamey Debate.

Toronto, June 12.—The report of the Public Accounts Committee was the subject of discussion before the Legislature all yesterday afternoon and for an hour or more during the night session. As a result little progress was made with the ordinary business before the House.

The debate upon the Public Accounts report centred about the Shannon and Capreol timber limits, and the charge that the Government had shut off the committee to prevent the submission of further evidence. Hon. Mr. Davis and Hon. Mr. Latchford each made strong replies to these allegations, and showed conclusively that Col. Matheson had failed in his effort to demonstrate that the Government had shared in the profits on "Cap." Sullivan's transactions.

Public Accounts Report.

Mr. George P. Graham, Chairman of the Public Accounts Committee, presented the report of the committee, containing the typewritten evidence taken before it.

After the report had been presented Col. Matheson said that the committee had obtained evidence of transactions which he considered a disgrace to the Government. He reviewed the evidence on the Rutherford and Capreol limit matters, and drew his conclusions therefrom that T. C. Taylor, the Crown Lands Department official under suspension, had held up the Minister of Crown Lands, and that Sullivan held up Clew brothers, and that Taylor obtained $1,900 to keep his mouth shut. Col. Matheson declared that the committee had shut down upon them, and had done their best to block the presentation of evidence.

No Evidence Blocked.

Hon. Mr. Davis, Minister of Crown Lands, complained that the member for South Lanark had, as was customary with him, made a number of statements that were not borne out by the facts. The Charlton brothers had spent much more than they had at first estimated for taking out the timber on the Rutherford limit. It had been thought that the distance the logs had to be taken to water was one mile, and it turned out to be four miles. The total cost of getting out the timber was $20.05 per thousand, and when the accounts were finally made out, expert testimony went to show that Charlton brothers could scarcely get out without a loss.

Mr. Davis devoted some attention to the arguments based on the sale of the Rutherford limit by Sullivan for much more than it cost him. Limits were often sold at public auction, and a few hours later resold at a much higher price. The limit had been under license two or three times previously, when all the pine might have been cut. The Crown Lands Department, therefore, knowing that the pine on the limit was not likely to be of good quality, had not placed a high value upon it.

Mr. Davis regretted that Mr. T. C. Taylor had been implicated in a timber deal. His long record in the department had proved him an exemplary and capable employe. It was to be remembered that Mr. Taylor had sworn that he had not given any departmental information to Sullivan or to anyone else.

The House adopted the report of the committee at 10.30 o'clock after speeches had been made by Messrs. Whitney, Graham, Gamey, Hugh Clark, Clarke (Northumerland), St. John, Smythe (Algoma) Hon. Mr. Latchford, Duff and Carr.

House Sat Till Midnight.

The Legislature adjourned at midnight until 11 o'clock this morning, when it is thought all the business will be concluded in two hours. The Lieutenant-Governor will be on hand to assent to the bills passed during the last days of the session.

Then the House will adjourn till Tuesday to discuss the Gamey report, though any matters that may arise in the meantime will be considered proper subjects for debate. Premier Ross informed the House last night. The only items to be cleared off are the adoption of the supplementary estimates and the concurrence in the resolutions adopted by the conference of Premiers at Quebec in December last.

Bills Withdrawn.

During the late hours last night a great many bills were disposed of. The most important announcement was that the Hon. Mr. Latchford would withdraw his bill regarding the creation of a board of conciliation and arbitration. The Minister of Public Works said that there was a great diversity of opinion regarding the bill. Mr. Gibson's bill to improve and make certain, land titles, and Mr. McKay's bill respecting conveyancing, were also withdrawn.

All the other bills on the paper went through all the stages.

C.P.R. Earnings.

DUELLING IN OLD TORONTO.

Reminiscences of Former Times in Canada —Where a Eident Fell—Attorney-General White's Duel With Small.

There may be living to-day Torontonians who recall the time when dueling was not uncommon in this country, and even in this city, says The Toronto Mail and Empire. Dr. Scadding, in "Toronto of Old," has occasion to mention and deplore the practice. He quotes Mandeville, whose defence of dueling is supposed to have had considerable influence in the earlier days, as follows:—

"Without it there would be no living in a populous nation. It is the tie of society, and though we are beholden to our frailties for the chief ingredient of it, there has been no virtue, at least that I am acquainted with, which has proved half so instrumental to the civilizing of mankind, who in great societies would soon degenerate into cruel villains and treacherous slaves, were honor to be removed from among them."

The reader will observe that the gentle Mandeville considers "honor" and "dueling" as synonomous terms.

On the west side of Yonge street, near Grosvenor, there was a vacant field, with trees sheltering it on three sides. An old Dutch barn stood near the centre, and to the north of this a fine piece of sward. On this spot the young life of a son of Surveyor-General Ridout was offered up one fine morning in 1817. Samuel Jarvis stood with a smoking pistol in his hand, and the July sun beat down on the dead boy. Apparently no official cognizance was taken of the affair for ten years, and then Jarvis was fonnd "not guilty." It is probable that he never would have been tried but for the fact that Francis Collins, of the Canadian Freeman, published the story of the meeting in his paper, and made charges against Jarvis, who had been instrumental in having the editor jailed for slander.

Dr. Scadding also mentions a duel which took place on January 3rd, 1800, at a place known as The Park, situated near the foot of Parliament street. There John Small, clerk of the Crown, and Attorney-General White faced each other with pistols, and the latter fell, mortally wounded. The men were prominent in Upper Canada, and, more than that, they were warm personal friends. They located side by side in the Park, and then some trivial difference, perhaps, ended their long friendship and the life of one of them. The victim was buried under a summer-house on his own property, according to his dying request, and seventy-one years later his remains were disinterred by laborers digging for sand. They were removed, and now lie in St. James' Cemetery. Small was indicted and acquitted. The historian of Toronto further notes a quarrel between two men, Joseph and Charles Willcocks, who belonged to different families. They arranged a meeting, but Charles alone turned up. He waited some time for Joseph, and then chipped a piece of bark from a tree, and, standing at a distance, put a bullet in the spot. "Oh, Joe, Joe," he exclaimed, passionately, "if you had only been here!" Wherever Joe was, at the moment, it seems certain that he was better off.

Lower Town, Quebec.

The streets in the Lower Town of ancient Quebec are full these days of honeymooners, and they are well worthy of a day's attention; among the most interesting are Sault au Matelot, Sous le Cap, the narrowest street in the world, and Little Champlain street, where, hardly wider than a carriage track, with steep-roofed, plaster-covered houses huddled together on each side, straggles along for a half mile, hugging the side of the nearby perpendicular rocky wall, which, 350 feet above, is surmounted by the fortress.

The old wooden "break-neck steps" at the head of the street have been removed and an escalier of iron has taken their place; otherwise, the street remains unchanged save that, here and there, is seen an old stone house fast crumbling into ruin, and the pile of stones and mortar that, a few years ago, demolished several houses and cost several unfortunate people their lives.

If the bride cares for afternoon tea, she is likely to pilot her liege lord into the Kent House on St. Louis street, where they will receive "a warm welcome and a warmer cup of tea" from Miss Yates, who is a friend to all honeymooners and delights in showing to them her superb collection of antique china, furniture, brasses and all sorts of curios; and the tea! Miss Yates' tea, say the brides, tastes so different from ordinary English breakfast or Oolong.

Well it may, for it is served in eggshell cups of fragile china, over 100 years old; an ancient "Toby" jug holds the hot water while a dear little pitcher of genuine lustre ware holds the golden cream; and in a covered dish of blue and white Canton that is their envy and despair, steam slices of butter toast, a rare old plate from a famous London coffee house of olden times heaped high with cakes that fairly melt in one's mouth.

And they are tempted to break the commandment, "Thou shalt not covet," when they see this wealth of ancient treasures, gathered principally in Quebec and vicinity. The collection is as famous and well known in its way as even the citadel itself.

I MIND THE DAY.

"I mind the day I'd wish I was a saygull flyin' far,
For then I'd fly and find you in the West;
An' I'd wish I was a little rose as sweet as roses are,
For then you'd maybe wear it on your breast,
Achray!
You'd maybe take and wear it on your breast.

"I'd wish I could be living near, to love you day an' night,
To let no trouble touch you or annoy;
I'd wish I could be dyin' here to rise a spirit light,
If Them above 'ud let me win you joy.
Achray!
If Them above 'ud let me win you joy.

"An' now I wish no wishes, nor ever fall a tear,
Nor take a thought beyond the way I'm led;
I mind the day that's over-by, an' bless the day that's here.
There be to come a day when we'll be dead,
Achray!
A longer, lighter day when we'll be dead."

—Moira O'Neill.

Why He Celebrated.

One of the professors at Cornell University was born in Canada. He has, however, been for a long time a resident of the United States, and his children were born there. The New York Times relates an amusing anecdote, which the professor himself is fond of telling.

One Fourth of July the professor's eldest son had exploded, early in the afternoon, all the firecrackers that he had provided for the day. The youngster and his little friends wanted more, so the boy found his father, and asked for some money with which to buy a new stock of fireworks.

"I will give you the money, my son, if you can tell me what it is that you are celebrating with all these fireworks," replied the father.

"I can do that easy enough," said the boy. "This is the anniversary of the day we licked you fellows."—From a New York Paper.

An Advantage of Khaki.

One definite advantage in substituting khaki for blue cloth uniforms for the army in the tropics and in summer was not considered when the change was discussed in the War Department, the anopheles mosquito not having at that time been exhaustively studied. The malaria breeding mosquitoes will not light upon substances having a yellow color, but swarm about blue fabrics.

Trusted Clerk Arrested.

Hamilton, June 12.—Yesterday afternoon William Beard, one of the Canada Life clerks, was placed under arrest. He is charged with stealing the sum of $3,497 during the last eight months. It is alleged that it was "the ponies" that ran away with the money. He was under bonds for only $1,000, and it was the Guarntee Company that caused him to be looked up. Beard is a married man, 29 years of age. Harrison & Lewis have been retained in defence.

The Fires of Eczema.

So keen is the suffering of many people who endure the stinging, itching sensations of Eczema that they speak of the skin as being on fire. By its soothing, healing, antiseptic influence Dr. Chase's Ointment positively cures Eczema, Salt Rheum, and every form of itching skin disease. It is of inestimable value in every home, and when once introduced becomes a household necessity. Dr. Chase's Ointment is the standard the world over, and has no worthy rival.

A National Game and A National Food

Lacrosse is Canada's national game. Malta-Vita should be Canada's national food. It is made by Canadian Workmen from Canadian grown wheat—wheat for which Canada is famous the world over. No other cereal is so rich in nutriment nor so thoroughly adapted to the requirements of mankind. In Malta-Vita, the perfect food, all the good properties of the wheat are retained so that it comes to the table a thoroughly appetizing, healthful, easily digested food. It is cooked ready for instant use and can be served hot or cold with cream or fruit for any meal of the day.

No Work—No Heat—Just Cream—Then Eat.

Faith and Works.

One's faith is often wonderfully strengthened when some one unites it with works. We are told that one hard winter, when sickness came to the poorly paid pastor of a certain country church in one of our newer Northwest settlements, his flock determined to meet at his house and offer prayers for the speedy recovery of the sick ones and for the material blessings upon the pastor's family. While one of the deacons was offering a fervent prayer for blessings upon the pastor's household there was a loud knock at the door. When the door was opened, a stout farmer boy was seen. "What do you want, boy?" asked one of the elders. "I've brought pa's prayers," replied the boy. "Brought your pa's prayers! What do you mean?" "Yen. brought his prayers an' they're out in the wagon. Just help me, an' we'll get 'em in." Investigation disclosed the fact that "pa's prayers" consisted of potatoes, flour, bacon, cornmeal, turnips, apples, warm clothing and a lot of jellies for the sick ones. The prayer meeting adjourned in short order.

Reminiscences of Disraeli.

A correspondent writes: "In his biographical sketches, just published, Mr. Bryce repeats a remark attributed to Bismarck at the Congress of Berlin, who is reported to have said of Lord Beaconsfield: 'Der alte Jude, das ist der Mann!' ("The old Jew, he's the man!"). This is the first time one has heard of that mot, and it is doubtful whether Bismarck ever gave utterance to it. But what is authentic and certain is that at one of his Parliamentary soirees, when asked whom he considered to have been the ablest plenipotentiary at the Congress, the Chancellor replied, after a little reflection: "I don't know about the ablest; but certainly at least the second ablest was Lord Beaconsfield.' The Prince's interrogator inferred that he had made mental reservation of the first place at the Congress for himself. Lord Ampthill was fond of telling his friends that the only wall ornaments of the Chancellor's Cabinet were portraits of his own wife, the old Emperor, and Lord Beaconsfield.

THE DOMINION DAY CELEBRATION.

Attractive Programme of Sporting Events Arranged.

Queen's Own Band to Give Two Concerts —Calithumpian Parade a Special Feature.

The greatest day of sport ever enjoyed in Peterborough will be that to be provided on Dominion Day. The different committees having the affair in hand are all working enthusiastically and a success is now assured. The Queen's Own Band, of Toronto, with a membership of about 30 has been engaged for the day and as this is a musical organization than which there is no better in Canada, it will be well worth hearing.

A special feature of the day's programme will be a monster procession and circus parade, some of the characters participating in it will "Sousa's Band" (25 pieces.) be:—

Mounted Policemen	8
Mounted Grand Marshalls	2

WEDDING BELLS.

Nuptials of Mr. Thomas Turcotte and Miss Maggie Crowley of Downeyville.

The marriage of Miss Maggie Crowley of Downeyville, and Mr. Thomas Turcotte of town, was celebrated in the Roman Catholic Church at Downeyville on Tuesday morning last at nine o'clock, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Father Bretherton.

The bridesmaid was Miss Jeannie Crowley, sister of the bride, while the groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Albert Turcotte.

The bride is the third daughter of Mr. James Crowley, while the groom is the secretary of the local T. A. S.

A large array of presents showed the popularity of the newly married couple, who will reside at 12 Cross street town.

A PAINFUL ACCIDENT.

Young Boy's Finger was Caught in the Chain of His Wheel.

Eddie Harrison, a boy residing on Harvey street, met with a nasty accident yesterday afternoon. It appears that the boy was riding a wheel when his bootlace caught in the pedal of his machine. Without dismounting the boy stretched down his hand to try and free the lace. In doing this, however, one of his fingers got caught in the chain and the tip was taken off.

The boy went to the hospital this morning to have a piece of bone taken out.

ST. JOHN'S THE SCENE OF A PRETTY WEDDING.

Peterborough Lady is the Bride of Mr. Frank P. Foster, New York.

The marriage of Mr. Henry Bennett's daughter, Helen, to Mr. Frank Pierce Foster, jr., son of Dr. Frank Pierce Foster, of New York City, took place this afternoon in St. John's Church, at three o'clock.

The bride was prettily dressed in white chiffon over white taffeta silk, trimmed with Irish point lace, and entirely veiled in white tulle caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of pure white sweet peas. Miss Vivian Rose Bennett looked sweetly pretty as flower girl, dressed in pale pink, with a large pink and white picture hat, carrying a shower bouquet of pink sweet peas.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. C. Davidson, assisted by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, rector of St. Luke's church. The choir during the ceremony, sang by special request, "O perfect Love!" and Peterborough's best tenor, Mr. Herbert Morphett, sang the solo.

The church was tastefully decorated with palms and pink and white cut flowers.

The bride was give away by her cousin, Captain W. Bennett, of the 57th Regiment.

The reception at the family residence was dispensed with, owing to the ill health of the bride's father, who was unable to be present at the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster left Peterborough at five o'clock, and will take up their residence in New York City in October.

Mrs. Foster's going-away gown was of golden brown satin, finished lady's cloth, lined with cream satin, and a golden brown hat to match, trimmed with plumes.

Miss Helen Bennett was one of Peterborough's well-known young ladies, and left amid the good wishes of her many friends, and showers of white flowers and confetti.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Mr. Arthur Lipsett of Ashburnham Died This Morning.

A very unexpected death occurred this morning in the demise of Mr. Arthur Lipsett, aged 32 years, son of Mr. George Lipsett, sr., of Ashburnham. Mr. Lipsett had been ailing for only about a week, and was up and around last night. The cause of his death was heart failure. Some ten or twelve years ago he was prominent in sports, playing on the old Peterborough junior lacrosse team, and occupied first base for the town baseball team.

The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the residence of his brother-in-law, Mr. S. H. Long, Driscoll Terrance, to the Little Lake cemetery.

GOVERNMENT GRANTS.

THE CANADIAN ORDER OF FORESTERS

Executive Committee's Report Shows Order to be Prosperous

Oppose any Raise in Rates—Election of Officers Takes Place To-day.

Hamilton, June 12th.—The afternoon session was mostly taken up with lengthy discussions on notices of motion, to make certain changes in the constitution and bylaws of the order.

The executive committee, in its report gave this information:

Since the last annual report the committee has invested $315,188.06 in municipal debentures. The committee congratulated the order on the fact that there was no litigation during the year. The organization work of the order has been industriously pushed forward. The high treasurer has been provided with an office in the order's premises at Brantford.

The principal discussion last evening was over the proposal that an additional tax of 20 cents a member per year be levied, to be applied to the organization work of the order. The feeling was against any increase. The C.O.F. is the only order that has not increased its levy rate since its institution, and the members appear averse to making any change. The question was not disposed of when the court rose.

TO-DAY'S SESSION.

The high court opened this morning with High Vice-Chief Ranger J. A. Stewart, of Perth, in the chair. The high register reported 331 delegates.

Chairman McKendry read the report of the special committee appointed to inquire into making some important changes in the general get-up and size of the official organ of the society, which brought forth a lengthy debate, lasting most of the forenoon.

Mr. Britton, of Gananoque, moved an amendment to the report, recommending that certain clauses of the report be accepted, but that no further expenditure be increased for this year. The amendment thus was carried.

A motion to fix the salary of the medical examiner at $3,000 per annum for three years was carried almost unanimously.

The election of officers will be held during to-day's sessions, most of them will be re-elected.

DEATH OF MR. ROBT. ELEY.

Respected Citizen of Campbellford Passes Away.

By the death of Mr. Robt. J. Fley, Campbellford lost one of her most respected and influential citizens. He had for many years carried on a successful business as undertaker. Up to the 30th of May Mr. Fley had appeared to be in his usual health, but on that morning he was taken suddenly ill and became unconscious. A specialist, on being summoned from Toronto, pronounced his illness due to kidney disease and held out little encouragement for his recovery. After being ill ten days, and for part of the time in an unconscious condition, he passed away on Monday evening.

Mr. Fley was born in Prince Edward County in July of 1841, and consequently arrived at the age of nearly 62 years. He started in business in Campbellford about forty years ago, and continued therein without interruption till the great reaper claimed him for the harvest that is immortal. By his long business career Mr. Fley became well known through this section, and he will be missed among the associations of his fellowmen. He was three times married, and is survived by a widow and seven children of a family of nine, viz., Mrs. W. H. Locke and Mrs. Robt. McAlpine, both of Seymour township; Stephen, of California, and Lottie, Ethel, Robert and Walter, the latter four being unmarried.

The remains were buried in Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Wednesday afternoon, the funeral being under Masonic auspices, of which society deceased was an honoured member.

Mr. Wm. Faint, of whom the deceased was a brother-in-law, was in Campbellford in attendance upon the funeral.

POLICE COURT.

At the Police Court to-day before Police Magistrate Dumble the case against Mrs. Murray, Parnell street, for using insulting and abusive language towards several of her neighbours on Tuesday, June 2nd. As Mrs. Murray absolutely denied the evidence of four witnesses the Magistrate would not hear what she had to say. She was fined $2 and costs, amounting in all to $6.45, to be paid in 10 days, and was given a warning as to what her lot would be should she appear in Court on the same charge.

Fred Burleigh was charged with assaulting Alex. Martin two years ago. The latter allowed the case to drop on Burleigh paying the costs of $3,35. This was done.

The Court then adjourned.

MARRIED.

PARSONS — GRUNDY. — At Chicago, Ill., on Wednesday, June 3rd, 1903, by the father of the bride, Mr. Frank W. Parsons of Champaign, Ill., to Adna M., third daughter of the Rev. H. and Mrs. Grundy.

AN INCENDIARY FIRE EARLY THIS MORNING.

Boxes in Alex Elliott's Yard Simcoe Street Were Set on Fire.

The fire brigade was called out early this morning to attend to what is said to be an incendiary fire, in the yard belonging to Alex. Elliott's wholesale liquor store.

Mr. Paddie Carrol, a bartender at the Oriental Hotel, remarked this morning to an Examiner reporter that he went up to his room about a quarter to two o'clock with the intention of going to bed. Before doing this however, he opened the window and looked out. He stated that he saw, a tall, well built man, wearing an overcoat, standing in Elliott's yards. The night, however, was dark and he could not distinguish his features. A few minutes afterwards he noticed the blaze and again looked out of the window. This time he saw the man in the act of leaving the yard and shouted to him, however, to no avail.

The man, whoever he may have been set fire to the boxes at the back of one of the sheds in which there is a number piled up on top of each other. Had the blaze got well started serious damage might have resulted, however, there was little damage done as the brigade quickly extinguished the blaze.

RECEPTION BY PARK STREET BAPTISTS.

Rev. A. H. Brace Cordially Welcomed to his new Charge.

Pleasing Event in Connection With the Reception of new Pastor—Addresses Given by Clergymen.

An occasion of more than ordinary interest was the reception given last night by the members of the Park street Baptist church to Rev. A. H. Brace, who has recently accepted a call to become their pastor. It was an event participated in by every department of the church, and is a happy augury of the future success of the church.

Mr. Gillespie, one of the deacons of the church, filled the duty of chairman, and in doing so gave the following address of welcome to Mr. Brace, on behalf of the congregation which he represented:

My Dear Brother Brace,—

It is with pleasure that I as one of the deacons of this church, and now as its representative, give you a cordial welcome to the pastorate over us. I can assure you that it is no mere formality with us. Our hearts are in it. Though the interval between the closing of the work of our last pastor, and the beginning of your work, has not been long, it has been long enough to lead us to realize the desolateness of a pastorless church life, and to learn the great value of an under shepherd. So our hearts to-day are filled with joy that henceforth we are to be under your fostering care. We are confidently expecting that with the blessing of God, you will be a great help to us as individuals and as a church in developing our spiritual life and leading us forward into efficient service for others.

You have already won our universal confidence and love. This is indicated by the unanimous call we have given you and the cheerfulness with which we have pledged an increased salary, and the cordial welcome that has been given to you by the individual members who have met you.

We are pleased to learn of the success that has attended your ministry elsewhere, and that you come amongst us with the cordial endorsement of the leading men of our denomination, who know you much better than we do, and whose judgment we have been accustomed heartily to respect.

To this the new pastor responded very feelingly. He said he was convinced that the congregation meant business, and he had great hopes for future success.

Miss Nellie Pilling then sang a solo very sweetly. Rev. Mr. McKinnon, of the Gilmour Memorial church, gave an address in which some good advice was given to the church members.

A solo by Miss Hall, "Star of the East," was much appreciated, as was also a duet by Misses Hall and Stevenson.

Rev. J. Bastow, representing the Ministerial Association, and also the Murray street church, then extended a welcome to Mr. Brace to the ranks of the Ministerial fraternity of Peterborough. In doing so he paid a high tribute to the general good feeling which prevailed among the ministers of the different denominations.

The meeting then closed after a vocal duet had been rendered very effectively by the Misses Pilling.

Rev. A. H. Brace was for four years pastor of the Dunnville Baptist church, and his work while there is very highly spoken of. On leaving he was made the recipient of a considerable sum of money and some very complimentary addresses. He enters upon his work here under very auspicious circumstances. The congregation have already shown the spirit of liberality which they possess by presenting their pastor with a purse to defray his moving expenses.

LACROSSE.

LINDSAY BEAT PORT HOPE.

A despatch from Lindsay says: "The Lindsay lacrosse club played an exhibition game this afternoon, with the Beavers of Port Hope, defeating the latter by a score of 9 to 1 in a fast and exciting game. The two teams were pretty evenly matched, but the superior stick handling and combination game put up by the Lindsay boys was too much for the visitors to overcome. The game was a fairly good exhibition and was the opening event of the season. Mr. George Taylor, a former manager of the Tecumsehs, was referee, and gave good satisfaction. Attendance about 700."

The Lindsay enthusiasts are as a result feeling greatly elated over their success.

The three Indians on the Belleville line-up are from the neighbourhood of Montreal, and are at present engaged at bridge work in the Bay City.

Port Hope is disappointed with the the showing of her team in Oshawa last Saturday, and there is talk of releases and changes before the next game. The Guide handled some of the players without gloves in last Monday's issue.

So and so "held Hobin," remarks the newspaper, but just the same when Hobin really wants to skip about the field he usually does it regardless of the expenses.

Keep in mind the Athletics-Belleville game here next Thursday, and take it in.

Plans have been prepared for the new T.A.S. grand stand, and work will commence at once. It will be situated near the northeastern corner of the grounds and will run parallel with McDonel street.

Fred McGrath has been elected as manager and Jas. Dorris, secretary treasurer of the T.A.S. II team.

A good suggestion, says the Telegram, would be to tie a bell around centre fielder Currie's neck, for in this way his check might find out where he was when wanted.

The N.A.L.U. proposes to suspend all players jumpting to other leagues. Inasmuch as all players who jump from eastern towns to C.L.A. towns fail to return to their former haunts it looks as if this would not be a very serious punishment. Buck McGibney did play one game in Port Hope, and then wandered back to Ottawa. But as the Cups have not picked the old chap on their team for Saturday it may be that he went back home because he was too slow to live in Port Hope.

* * * *

Anyway, the Ontarios have signed Harry Griffiths, of Toronto, who has figured on the Tecumsehs, Torontos, and Capitals, to take Buck's place. "Griffy" is one of the biggest and hardest players in the game and may be expected to put up good lacrosse against his former club mates when he comes against them on the island a week from Saturday.—Telegram.

The T.A.S. team and Oshawa will come together in their first C.L.A. game on the Murray street grounds on July 1st. Very little is known of the Oshawa aggregation, but it is hinted that they are a speedy dozen. The locals are practicing hard for the event, and it is expected that a Toronto team will be down before that date to give the T.A.S. boys a game.

BASEBALL.

ORILLIA'S BASEBALL BOOM.

A despatch from Orillia says: — "Orillia has a baseball boom such as it has never before experienced. For years Orillia has been more or less prominent as a lacrosse town, and figured conspicuously as a place for canoeing and other lines of aquatic sport. This year, however, it is baseball, and the keenest interest is being manifested in the game. There are four ball teams in the town, representing the three big factories, Tudhope's Carriage Works, World's furniture factory and the Wood Specialty Co., and the clerks of the town. A local league has been formed and a schedule drawn up. Two games are played weekly in the town park, usually before 800 to 1,000 people. Tudhope's team is leading, with two wins and no losses, but are closely followed by the clerk's team, which is a strong and fast aggregation. A baseball tournament in Orillia on Dominion Day is talked of, to which outside teams will be invited.

Last night at the Murray street grounds a game was played between the Shamrock and Pullman nines. The batteries were Quinlan and Fitzgerald, and McCabe and Johnson. Daniel McCorry umpired the game to entire satisfaction. The score at the end of the 4th innings when the game was called, was 13-6, with the Shamrocks in the lead.

EXCURSION POSTPONED.

FAMOUS KILTIES' BAND HAS RETURNED HOME.

Belleville Musicians Travelled 32,000 Miles.

The following is taken from the Scottish American:—

After the longest tour in the history of any musical organization in America the Kilties' Band (Gordon Highlanders, Belleville) returned to Canada on Tuesday of last week. The dozen Hamilton members and Bandmaster Wm. F. Robinson were met on arrival in that city by a number of their old associates in the 13th Regiment Band, relatives and friends, and at Toronto, where the majority of the Kilties reside, a proportionate number of enthusiastic friends awaited the band's arrival. The remainder of the musicians—drummers, pipers, etc., who are from Montreal and Belleville—proceed to Belleville in their private car, Thistle. The men reached home loaded down with curios, with which they were presented by admiring enthusiasts in old Mexico, Arizona, California, British Columbia, etc., and the fact that the 48 weeks' tour included Canadian, United States and Mexican cities made the men's collection varied and interesting. During the year over three hundred cities were visited from coast to coast and south to the gulf, and 32,000 miles were covered. It is remarkable that not a single concert was missed or delayed by accident or otherwise. This is a record in itself, and every man is now the picture of health, despite the varied climatic conditions and the arduous task of giving two concerts every day in order to cope with the demand for the Kilties' service. The tour closed in Boston, being the fourth appearance in that city. Mr. Cameron Brown, owner of the band, and T. P. J. Power, director of the tour, are now in Belleville completing arrangements for the next tour, which begins after four weeks' rest, on July 1st. The chief summer engagement will be at Willow Grove Park, Philadelphia, where the band will appear fifty strong during the greater part of July. The Kilties' attendance record of 150,000 at the great resort on July 4th last having led the Park management to at once engage the pride of all Canada for this year.

ST. PAUL'S OUTING WAS A SUCCESS.

Enjoyed a Pleasant Sail up the Lakes,

Special Features of an Enjoyable Day —Mock Trial Interesting.

The first annual excursion of St. Paul's Young Men's Guild held yesterday, was one of unqualified success, for notwithstanding the fact that the morning opened dark and cloudy, and even raining, about seventy members and friends of the Guild joined in the day's outing and were well repaid as the day developed into an exceedingly pleasant one, not only by reason of the weather clearing, but also on account of the genial good fellowship which pervaded the whole company. St. Paul's first annual excursion will go down into history as one of the pleasant events in the lives of all those participating in it.

The trip was made by train to Lakefield, where the steamer Empress was boarded and a tour of the three lakes, Katchewanooka, Clear and Stony, was made. The first stop was at Mount Julian, from which place a pleasant sail was enjoyed to Burleigh Falls, where the majority took dinner, a stop being made for that purpose. All expressed themselves as being well pleased with the accommodations provided at Burleigh. The owners of the hotel there are making numerous improvements to the place, which will still further increase its popularity with excursionists and summer tourists. This really is one of the most picturesque points on the chain of lakes and with the recognition on the part of Messrs. Darcy of better accommodation and facilities for the many visitors, which they are now providing, it will no doubt rapidly grow in favour.

After embarking again the trip was made to the head of Stony Lake, returning to Juniper Island and Sandy Point, where a stop of two hours was made for supper. A varied programme of sporting events, in which all those present were, or thought they were, proficient, was proceeded with, a feature of which was a baseball match between teams captained by Messrs. Alex. Gillespie and Roy Walker, the score being 7—6 at the end of six innings play, the smaller score being to the credit of Gillespie's men. Other events were running races, three-legged race, and tandem races, in the latter of which the ladies were participants. During the morning trip two of the young men in the party were playing with a baseball on the boat and an accidental mis-throw landed the ball in the waters of Stony Lake. This incident was the origin of a very interesting mock trial on the boat after leaving Sandy Point. The culprits were arranged before "Chancellor" Rev. J. A. Wilson, and "Justice" J. H. Connal, and the charge brought against them was that they "did wilfully and maliciously make away with and render unavailable for use certain valuable and unique property, depositing the same at the bottom of a body of water, the same property being completely unreplacable.

Those charged with the above most serious crime were two "Irishmen," known as Scott and Ross. We refrain from publishing their Christian names as they both come from highly respectable families, who would be shocked to learn of their misdemeanours. The two policemen, in whose custody the accused were, and who preserved order in the court room, were Messrs. Bruce Graham and Gordon Lee, and it speaks well for their watchfulness that they were able to bring two such desperate characters to justice.

The jury was composed of six ladies—Miss E. Best, (foreman,) Miss G. Smith, Miss Alice Dawson, Miss E. Thompson, Miss Addie Lee, and Mrs. Emerson. The Registrar was Miss Marion Hall.

The counsel for the prosecution was Mr. R. F. McWilliams, while Mr. Horace E. Ayers ably defended the accused. Three witnesses were called for the prosecution, Messrs. Reg. Thompson, Roy Walker and Maurice Rosenburg. During the examination of the first witness he was asked in what official capacity he was present on the occasion. He replied that he was regularly appointed "squeezer" (lemon,) for the excursion.

The defence did not call any witnesses, but the counsel made an impassioned plea to the jury-men(?) for mercy, on account of the youth of the prisoners, and also because it was their first offence.

The Crown counsel asked for a conviction as the guilt of the prisoners had been proven conclusively and thought that a severe sentence should be imposed upon the perpetrators of such a glaring violation of the law.

The effect on the jury of the eloquent plea on behalf of his clients, by the defence counsel was very great, especially when he referred very touchingly to the youth of the accused and pictured to them the effect on the morals of the young and tender prisoners if they were made to associate with deep dyed criminals, as would be the case if they were convicted.

The Chancellor in summing up the case charged the jury not to be carried away by the eloquent words of either counsel, but to decide the matter on strictly legal lines.

After mature deliberation the jury through the foreman, brought in a verdict of "Guilty," and the following sentences were imposed:—Scott was sentenced to be married inside of one year, three months and three days, and Ross was condemned to be deprived for three months of the use of Quaker Oats, and also to attend the next three meetings of the Guild in solemn silence.

A great deal of sympathy is expressed for Mr. Scott in the sentence imposed upon him, as it is thought that the crime which he committed was hardly deserving of such a severe sentence. It is hoped that his counsel may yet be able to have the sentence made lighter.

The excursion was a thoroughly enjoyable one in every way and will be made an annual event, and will no doubt be looked forward to with a great deal of pleasurable anticipation.

AN INTRICATE CASE.

Residents of Marmora in Peculiar Difficulties.

The Toronto News has the following account of a suit, under peculiar circumstances:—

Before Judge Street a very intricate case, coming from the very small village of Marmora, near Belleville, was unravelled. Annie Lavine, the former proprietress of a dry goods and grocery store in the village, and Dobonsky & Co., who dealt in jewelry, are the parties to the suit, and they have managed with amazing ingenuity to tie themselves up hand and foot in a series of complications that look hopeless of solution.

Mrs. Lavine agreed with John Dobensky, who, it turned out afterwards, was the representative of Dobensky & Co., to exchange her stock of dry goods and groveries for Dobensky's stock of jewelry. Neither party, it seems, had very much confidence in the other, for after taking stock of the grocery store they put a double lock on it, each taking a key, then they deposited the jewelry with the hotel keeper to be handed over to Mrs. Lavine on the completion of the arrangements.

Before the exchange took place Dobensky repented of his bargain and took forcible possession of the jewelry from the hotel keeper. For this he was arrested and committed for trial, the two boxes and valise full of jewelry passing into the custody of the Crown. This left Mrs. Lavine without access to her store and without the jewelry. She has now issued a writ against Dobensky & Co., claiming performance of the contract possession of the store and an injunction restraining the defendants from dealing with the jewelry.

The motion for the junction was made before Judge Street this morning and was granted by him. The defendants were also directed to admit the plaintiff to her store to dispose of the perishable goods therein.

A SMITH WEDDING.

The home of Mr. John Tighe, of Smith, was the scene of a quiet wedding on the evening of June 3rd, when his daughter, Winifred M., was united in marriage to Mr. W. F. Dixon, of Oshawa.

Miss Susie Tighe, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. Lewis Brothwell, cousin of the groom, as groomsman.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. L. McKinnon, of the Gilmour Memorial Baptist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Dixon left on the evening train for their new home in Oshawa, carrying with them the best wishes of their friends.

LUBBER LAST

By Grace H. Boutelle

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

Ever since they had come to Perkinsville De Peyster and his mother had failed to adjust their respective standpoints to a mutual harmony.

To begin with, it was spring. With the delicious odor of resinous smoke from the boughs that had banked the house assailing one's nostrils, who could resist joining the dancing silhouettes that circled the bonfire and daring one's fate by leaping across it in swaggering competition as the flames died down?

But she drew lurid pictures of his certain fate if he should repeat the offense. Blind defiance rose insurgent within him—he would go! And then all of a sudden he remembered what his father said and hung his head to think how those grave, kind eyes of his would look at him now.

"Take good care of mamma," he had said at the last. "You must be her big brother and never let her worry about you, she's so little and delicate." And then he had whispered over two or three times, "My pretty little wife—my dear little girl!"

And De Peyster had tried with all his might to remember. But often it did seem as if it would have been a little easier if she could have understood that one was disgraced if one did not keep neck and neck with "the other fellows" in every prank they played.

There was a long and weary period of dooryard discipline after this episode. There were a good many times when De Peyster had to clinch his fists as tight as he could and remember his father very hard.

By and by June came, quivering with gold green sunlight, perfumed with a universal blossoming and pungent with the joy of living. At this time every true boy thrills with the half realised rapture of it all and finds the fullest expression of his ecstasy in going swimming.

Every bright morning in some part of the town there was sure to be a group of boys toeing a line, their necks bobbing eagerly forward and their bodies giving anticipatory jerks and twitches as they waited for the word. When the leader said "Go!" they darted forth, and there was a kaleidoscopic and dissolving view of legs racing madly down a side street that led to the river. Then collars came off, coats followed, as they ran with undiminished speed, the fellow who was farthest ahead sometimes slowing up with magnificent daring to get off his shoes and stockings while the others were still hampered by shirts and trousers, and by the time they tumbled in headlong competition over the bank the nimblest carried their entire wardrobe on their arms and flashed whitely into the water while the laggers fumbled at their shoe lacings. The unfortunate who popped into the river, flushed and panting, after all the rest were in was greeted with taunting cries of: "Lubber last! Lubber last!"

De Peyster had never been told not to go in swimming. It had not occurred to his mother as among the list of his possible perils, as she was in blissful ignorance of the fact that "the other fellows" did it.

So it was with the thrilling exultance of the Greek runner that he set his toe on the line with the rest and hurled himself forward, head up and elbows in.

The first few rods it felt like flying. His feet scarcely seemed to touch the ground. Then a pair of legs flashed by him, and another and another. He gathered his strength and shot forward again, but another pair of legs went by, and another and another.

They were tearing off their coats; they were stripping off their shirts. He felt at his collar, wrenched it off and flung it away, to have both hands free for his coat and shirt. They were almost at the bank now. He could see Micky Daly's white skin dazzle in the sun as he took a splendid dive ahead of the rest. His own feet were growing heavy, and there was a mist before his eyes. The knot in his shoe lacing would not come untied. A savage rage filled him. If he could have cut off his foot to rid himself of the hampering shoe, he would scarcely have hesitated. You were ruled out if you went into the water with anything left on. As he struggled and perspired and agonized the two or three whom he had distanced leaped past him, and as he shook the shoe off at last and made his dive he heard the air ringing with, "Lubber last! Lubber last!" and slowly realised that it was meant for him.

He tried manfully two or three other days, but it was always the same way. His muscles were flabby from the dooryard discipline, and he could not pick up in a few weeks what the others had acquired through joyous years of summer vagabondage.

He took it quietly and good naturedly, but it went deep.

His mother found out the custom shortly and forbade him to go near the water.

As for De Peyster himself, the numbness of despair settled upon him. Now he could never learn to redeem himself, to have some day perhaps the ineffable joy of being the first in, ahead of Jimmy Spratt, ahead of Micky Daly, ahead of everybody. His career was ended before it had begun.

"But I got to not let her worry," was the rueful conclusion he always reached. And then he breathed hard and winked fast.

Jimmy was his constant friend and brought him alleviating messages from time to time, such as that the other fellers all said he had lots of sand and could do as well as the next feller if he had half a chance.

When even these encouraging remarks ceased to comfort, he gave him his own horned toad as a last desperate resort. The effect was wonderfully efficacious, but transitory.

"I'd oughter been a girl," said De Peyster many times to himself, "but I wish she didn't want to make believe I am one when I ain't."

She writes: "I was so run down that I was not able to do my work, was short of breath, had a sour stomach every night and could scarcely eat. My heart palpitated, I had faint and dizzy spells and felt weak and nervous all the time. My husband got me a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills but I told him it was no use, that I had given up hope of ever being cured. He however persuaded me to take them and before I had used half the box I began to feel better. Two boxes made a new woman of me and I have been well and have been able to do my work ever since."

This was the nearest to a reproach that he allowed his loyal little heart to entertain, but a baffled, unchildlike look grew in his eyes as he watched his mates go off without him day after day.

In July a light epidemic of scarlet fever prevailed. The oldest inhabitants called it "walking scarlatina," the illness was so slight.

Mrs. Van Voort kept De Peyster in the house.

One day De Peyster caught it.

He regarded it rather in the nature of a festal occurrence than otherwise, for all the boys who had had it came up to see him, and, although they were not allowed to stand long, it cheered him amazingly to hear what they were doing, for he had constantly the hope that these new delights they told of one after another would not be on the forbidden list when he was out again.

But after awhile he did not seem to care whether they came or not and one day when told that Micky Daly waited below said languidly, "I guess I don't care about seeing him just now—I'm sorter tired—but tell him it 'll be bully to have him come tomorrow."

But when tomorrow came no one was admitted, for he was tossing about in a weakening struggle with something he did not understand that those who watched by him realized only too well.

He heard a voice as if from very far away:

"You'd better tell him, doctor," it said. "I can't stand it to see him fight for his life like a little Trojan when it isn't any use."

The voice broke and then went on:

"He's a brave little chap, brave enough to face anything, and it isn't treating him square not to let him say goodby."

De Peyster opened his eyes. The doctor was standing over him.

"You don't have to tell me," said De Peyster, for he dimly saw that the old doctor's lips were quivering. "I—I guess—I know."

He felt for his mother's hand.

"I'd like to hear you sing just once first, mamsie," he said.

"There's a bully song one of the fellers taught me, 'One Wide River.' I've liked it specially much since—since it worried you to have me go in swimming."

His mother sobbed out a few lines, faltered and stopped.

A look of patient disappointment came over his face.

"Never mind, mamsie, you needn't," he gasped. "I'm going to see it, you know, so it doesn't matter. Won't the cool water feel good, though! And don't you worry, mamsie. Who's afraid? Father 'll find me!"

He lay quite still a moment; then he whispered:

"I would 'a' liked to try one more run with the fellers—Micky Daly was most always ahead—he's a peach sprinter. You tell him and Jimmy and the other fellers about—about me and the wide river. Tell 'em this time I—I ain't lubber last!"

And he slipped away to find that unknown river, the bravest of little pioneers.

Above the Atmosphere.

If it were possible to rise above the atmosphere which surrounds the earth the sun would look like a sharply defined ball of fire, while everything else would be wrapped in total darkness. There could be no diffusion of light without an atmosphere or some similar medium for the sun's rays to act upon. But, on the contrary, if the earth's atmosphere extended to a height of 700 miles the sun's heat and rays could never penetrate it, and we would freeze to death while wrapped in darkness blacker than the blackest midnight.

Virtues of Pumice Stone.

Pumice stone is the best thing in the world to take the stain off one's hands. When ink or any other stain gets on the fingers its removal is sometimes a matter of many days, but with a bit of pumice stone it may be rubbed off in a moment, and no one would ever know that it had ever been there. To be sure, the rubbing must be pretty hard, and there is danger, of course, of rubbing off a little more cuticle than one can conveniently spare, but if this point is watched the toilet table has no more valuable accessory.

Big Leaves.

The leaf of the cocoanut tree is nearly thirty feet long. A single leaf of the parasol magnolia of Ceylon affords shade for fifteen or twenty persons.

THE GREAT ADVENTURE.

There's many a quiet seaport that waits the daring sail;
There's many a lonely farer by many a doubtful trail.
And what should be their star
To lead them safe and far—
What guide to take them o'er the crest,
what pilot past the bar—
Save Love, the great adventurer, who will not turn nor quail?

As a voyager might remember how the face of earth was changed,
All the dreary grey of winter forgotten and estranged—
When he rode the tempest through
And steered into the blue
Of a tranquil tropic morning diaphanous and new,
With palms upon the sea-rim where the flying fishes ranged:

As a lover in old story on a night of wind and rain
Might have stood beneath a window till a lamp should light the pane,
And a lady lean one arm
On the glowing square and warm,
A girlish, golden figure in a frame of dark and storm—
To look the longest moment ere he turned to life again—

Then set a stubborn shoulder to wind and sleet and smear,
With the weather foul above him and the pavement foul below;
So it happened in my case;
When I saw her, strayy trace
Of doubt and fear and languor to the pulse of joy gave place,
And the world was great and goodly as He planned it long ago.

There's a shipman who goes sailing where the sea is round and high;
There's a lover who goes piping where winds of morning cry;
And the lilt beneath his heart
Was timed to stop and start,
Till no more ships go sailing and the great hills fall apart.
O, friends, that minstrel-lover, that mariner am I!

—Bliss Carman.

WE HAVE A HISTORY.

The Talbot and Simcoe Celebrations Emphasize the Potent Fact.

The unveiling of a monument to Governor Simcoe, like the Talbot anniversary celebration, carries us back a century, and gives us a feeling that this Province has a history. Simcoe was the first Governor of Upper Canada after the Province was divided into a French and English section. He was a member of the Parliament which passed the Constitutional Act of 1791, and heard the debate between Pitt and Fox. Fox declaimed against the bill, as an attempt to introduce into the New World those aristocratic notions which were declining in the old. He asked if those red and blue ribbons which had lost their lustre in the Old World were to shine forth in the new. It seemed to him a peculiar proposal to introduce hereditary honors in America, "where those artificial distinctions stunk in the nostrils of the natives." He condemned the setting aside of the clergy reserves, and also the separation of the French and English inhabitants of Canada. The bill was intended to give the people the shadow of the English constitution, while denying the substance.

Simcoe certainly believed that he was giving to Canada "the express image and transcript of the British constitution," and made a conscientious effort to carry out that idea. History gives us a pleasant account of the calling of the Little Parliament at Newark, now Niagara, and how the honest settlers found their parliamentary honors embarrassing, as they were called away from their farms in the busy harvest season. Those who could come were detained only a month, and, in the beautiful October weather, they wended their way home on horseback, through forest paths or in bark canoes. In honoring such men as Talbot and Simcoe, we make our nearest approach to honoring the pioneers to whom we are so largely indebted. McMullen has given a most interesting account of their labors:

"The backwoodsman, whose fortunes are cast in the remote inland settlements of the present day, far removed from churches, destitute of ministers of the Gospel and medical men, without schools, or roads, or the many conveniences that make life desirable can alone appreciate, or even understand the numerous difficulties and hardships that beset the settler among the ague swamps of Western Canada. The clothes on his back, with a rifle or old musket and a well-tempered ax, were not unfrequently the full extent of his worldly possessions. Thus lightly equipped, he took possession of his two hundred acres of closely-timbered forest land, and commenced operations. The welkin rings again with his vigorous strokes, as huge tree after tree is assailed and tumbled to the earth; and the sun presently shines in upon the little clearing. The best of the logs are partially squared, and serve to build a shanty: the remainder are given to the flames. Now the rich mould, the accumulation of centuries of decaying vegetation, is gathered into little hillocks, into which potatoes are dibbled. Indian corn is planted in another direction, and, perhaps, a little wheat. If married, the lonely couple struggle on in their forest oasis like the solitary traveler over the sands of Sahara, or a boat adrift on the Atlantic. The nearest neighbor lives miles off, and when sickness comes, they have to travel far through the forest to claim human sympathy. But, fortunately, our nature, with elastic temperament, adapts itself to circumstances. By and by the potatoes peep up, and the corn blades modestly show themselves around the charred maple stumps and girdled pines, and the prospect of sufficiency of food gives consolation. As winter approaches, a deer now and then adds to the comforts of the solitary people. Such were the mass of the first settlers in Western Canada."

We do well to honor all those who discharged faithfully their duties as the builders of Canada, says The Toronto World. But we should like to see a monument erected somewhere to these pioneers themselves, both men and women, whose names and industry transformed a wilderness into the pleasant and wealthy country in which it is our good fortune to live.

What Wearied Him.

A friend once asked an aged man what caused him to complain so often at eventide of pain and weariness. "Alas," replied he, "I have every day so much to do. I have two falcons to tame, two hares to keep from running away, two hawks to manage, a serpent to confine, a lion to chain and a sick man to tend and wait upon."

"Well, well," commented his friend, "you are busy indeed! But I didn't know that you had anything to do with a menagerie. How, then, do you make that out?"

"Why," continued the old man, "listen. Two falcons are my eyes, which I must guard diligently; the two hares are my feet, which I must keep from walking in the ways of sin; the two hawks are my hands, which I must train to work, that I may provide for myself and those dependent on me as well as for a needy friend occasionally; the serpent is my tongue, which I must keep ever bridled lest it speak unseemly; the lion is my heart, with which I have a continual fight lest evil things come out of it, and the sick man is my whole body, which is always needing my watchfulness and care. All this daily wears out my strength."

In Perfect Accord.

Some years ago there came to an American city a delightful German, Herr von Blitz, who intended to support himself by giving lessons in his native tongue. When he had been here several months and had secured a moderate number of pupils, he went one day to the mother of one of them and to her great surprise asked for her daughter's hand in marriage.

"But, my dear sir," said she, "my daughter has no fortune."

The suitor smiled upon her in an expansive generosity.

"Me, too!" said he reassuringly.

"And, although we are not rich, we have thus far been able to give her every comfort. She is indeed used to luxury."

"Me, too!" was the smiling rejoinder.

"But, Herr von Blitz, she will never be able to manage affairs."

"Me, too!" rejoiced the lover.

"And I feel obliged to tell you that my daughter has a very high temper."

"Me too! Me too!"

That was enough. The mother retired from the contest, and the professor won his suit.—Youth's Companion.

LAME AND ACHING IN BACK AND LEGS

In Quick Time Mr. Oughtred and his Neighbour Were Cured by Using

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

Constipation, clogged kidneys and sluggish, torpid liver are derangements which usually accompany one another. Because of their direct and combined action on the kidneys, liver and bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the most prompt and thoroughly effective treatment for these ailments that money will buy. This statement is fully borne out by the letters of recommendation which are daily received at these offices. Here is one.

Mr. J. W. Oughtred, farmer, Marbleton, Wolfe, Co., Que., writes:—"Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills deserve to be recommended. I was lame all through my back, legs and arms, and had a continual dull pain in my bowels. Every little thing I did required great effort. I was so sore and lame. I took lots of other pills, but they only made me sick. When haying time came on I had sixty tons of hay to pitch, and felt that I could not possibly do it.

"Just at this time Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills came to my notice and did me so much good that I worked at the haying and did lots of other hard work with ease. I sent and got five boxes, and gave away one box to a neighbour, who was suffering so badly with headache that he could not do any work. He afterwards told me that they were the best pills he ever used, and is now real well. I found that by taking two a week they kept me feeling well. Other pills give me sick headache, but Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cure sick headache and suit me better than any others."

GOING TO THE CIRCUS

By CASPAR DEAN

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

Aunt Sarah Bebee, after whose father Bebee's Corners had been named, was a widow past fifty the day a sporty looking man drove up to her farmhouse in a fancy rig and wanted to arrange with her to cover the front of her barn with circus pictures.

"Why, bless your heart, I never went to a circus in all my life!" she exclaimed in reply.

"But you are not too old to begin," he suggested. "Let me put the pictures up, and I'll leave you ten tickets of admission. You can go and take all your friends."

"Land o' massy, but you don't know Bebee's Corners! Everybody around here is a Methodist or Baptist or Presbyterian—everybody but me—and they won't even attend camp meeting if lemonade is to be sold on the grounds. I don't exactly know what my religion is, but if I went to a circus nobody would ever speak to me again."

The circus man wanted his bills on that barn, and he argued and reasoned for half an hour. He saw that Aunt Sarah was an independent character and that if he could get her started she'd be ready to defy public opinion. The result was that she finally said:

"Well, go ahead with your pictures. I never saw an elephant or lion or tiger in my life, and I'll go and see the menagerie part anyhow. There 'll be an awful row around here, and folks will think that Satan has got hold of me, but I'll have to stand it."

The pictures were hardly up when Deacon Danforth happened along the highway and saw them. He turned pale and trembled. Not in twenty years before had a barn on the Red Mill road been thus defiled. When he had recovered a little from the shock, he walked to the house and confronted the widow. For the first fifteen minutes the conversation was devoted to Satan, hades, Lot's wife, Judas Iscariot and other interesting subjects. But it gradually tapered off to hyenas, boa constrictors and alligators, and the deacon was almost smiling when he left the house.

Next day Deacon Bidwell saw those pictures as he sat in his buggy behind his old white horse. The horse saw them before he did and stopped so suddenly that the deacon was pitched against the dashboard. For a long minute the good old man thought his eyes deceived him, but the true state of affairs finally dawned upon him, and he groaned and sighed and drove up to the widow's gate.

"Widder Bebee, have you sold your livin' soul to Satan?" was his greeting, and then the fur flew. It was nearly an hour before he left the house, but he wasn't sighing and groaning as he went. On the contrary, he looked rather cheerful, and he called back from the gate:

"Yes; I s'pose there 'll be camels there with two humps, mebbe with three, and they'll be wuth lookin' at."

There was one more deacon in the neighborhood, Deacon Burton. He was driving to town to get a pitchfork mended and was humming the air of "I Want to Be an Angel" when the colored posters suddenly confronted him. There were short skirted, long legged damsels poised on barebacked horses or jumping through paper covered hoops. He stood and gazed and felt cold chills go up his back. He drove on to the farmhouse, half expecting to find the Widow Bebee trying to turn handsprings over a kitchen chair.

"I wouldn't 'a' believed it, widder—I wouldn't 'a' believed it!" he began as he entered the house. "It's the awfulest thing I ever heard of, and you know I've bin in Chicago twice and seen some awful things."

The widow had a reply ready. It began with hyenas and worked up to elephants, taking in lions, tigers, grizzly bears and sea lions as it rose upward. She talked so earnestly and well that when Deacon Burton was ready to go he reluctantly admitted:

"No, I don't 'spose it's any more harm to look at a lion than to look at a woodchuck if you don't git mad and rip and swear over it."

There were others besides the deacons. There was old Mrs. Gaynor, for instance. She wasn't exactly a zealot, but she never took a dozen eggs to market without asking Heaven to bless them and make the price 14 cents a dozen. She wasn't a bigot, but she contended that her own brand of religion was the only one to be saved by. She wasn't narrow minded, but when she heard of those circus posters she went down to see Aunt Sarah and to say:

"I've just stepped in a minit to say that if you go to that circus I can't never let you enter my doors ag'in."

Aunt Sarah started in to argue, but old Mrs. Gaynor was on her guard against the wiles of Satan and wouldn't wait for further talk.

The day of the circus arrived, and the widow drove into Medina to attend it. For some reason not to be explained a dozen farmers around her had business in town that day and made an early start—some of them before daylight. Some of them also lingered and drove home after dark.

It was all over the neighborhood that Aunt Sarah defied public opinion, and it was old Mrs. Gaynor who determined to bring her to book. She went about it in malevolence. She got up what she called a quilting bee and asked the three deacons and their wives and three or four others, and at a proper hour Aunt Sarah was sent for to be crushed. She arrived, and when asked if she had anything to say she very calmly replied:

"I didn't intend to see nuthin' but the animals, but when I got in there Satan beckoned me into the circus tent, and I went. The jokes of the clown tickled me almost to death. That's all I've got to say."

"Deacon Danforth, what do you think of such conduct?" asked Mrs. Gaynor as she folded her arms and rolled up her eyes.

"Nuthin', 'cept that I sat jest behind Aunt Sarah and was tickled, too!" he replied.

"And you, Deacon Bidwell?"

"Waal, the hosses was wonderfully trained—wonderfully. I can't skarsely make out how they do it."

"And you, Deacon Burton? You ain't goin' to tell me you was there too!"

"I got kind of tired lookin' at the two lump camels, and as one ticket admitted to all I went into the circus part," admitted the deacon.

"And where did you all git tickets?" demanded the accuser as a sudden thought flashed across her mind.

"Aunt Sarah gave us deadheads!" answered the three deacons in chorus.

"And left me out, when she knew I was jest dyin' to see the whole thing! Well, now, you can all go home without any supper, and if I ever speak to one of you ag'in I hope to fall dead on my own doorstep!"

Surprising the Doctor.

Scottish shrewdness is occasionally overmatched by Irish wit. The handful of people who inhabit a certain little island in the Atlantic, off the coast of Donegal, enjoy so much health and so little wealth that there is no doctor on the spot. In rare cases of emergency a physician is brought in a boat from the nearest village on the mainland.

On one occasion some islanders who were obliged to summon the doctor found that he had gone to Dublin on business. As the case was urgent, they invoked the services of another practitioner. This gentleman was a Scotsman, with the proverbial canniness of his race, and he declined to undertake the voyage unless he received his fee, a golden sovereign, in advance.

There was no help for it, and the money was paid. The physician went to the island and attended to the case. But when he inquired for a boat to take him away he found that not a boatman on the island would ferry him back again for any less consideration than £2, paid in advance.

The doctor had to part with the money and to admit that he had been beaten at his own game.

"Diogenes the Wise."

With all his faults, the old philosopher of Athens was often called Diogenes the Wise. Whether his wisdom was really so great as to deserve that title may be doubted, but his worst faults seem to have been good qualities carried to excess. In opposing too much luxury he cut himself off from the comforts of life; in his eagerness to make life simple he lost sight of its gentilities; he was saving at the expense of neatness, truthful at the cost of courtesy and plain spoken even to rudeness. One would say that he was coarse grained by nature, but he showed signs of tenderness and even refinement, which proved that the grain was not entirely coarse and which makes us wonder at an age that could produce two men so wise and yet so different as Diogenes, the rude, "walking philosopher" of his time, and Plato, the polished and aristocratic gentleman.—St. Nicholas.

A Sick Liver

Can work havoc with human happiness. It can change the cheerful philanthropist into a morose misanthrope and the optimist into a pronounced pessimist. The liver has a great deal to do with the removal of the waste of the body. When it is sluggish in its action the whole body must suffer by reason of clogging accumulations.

The excretory organs in general promptly respond to the action of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It restores the liver to healthy activity, purifies the blood, and cures diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition.

Mr. Edward Jacobs, of Maresgo, Crawford Co., Indiana, writes: "After three years of suffering with liver trouble and malaria I gave up all hopes of ever getting stout again, and the last chance was to try your medicine. I had tried all the home doctors and received but little relief. After taking three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and one vial of Iris 'Pleasant Pellets,' I am stout and hearty. It is due entirely to your wonderful medicines."

The sole motive for substitution is to permit the dealer to make the little more profit paid by the sale of less meritorious medicines. He gains: you lose. Therefore, accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets assist the action of the "Discovery." They are easy to take, agree with the weakest constitution, and do not beget the pill habit.

Higher Education.

Those who plead the cause of Latin and Greek in our higher education should remember that colleges were first founded in the early middle ages to teach the classics to prospective priests, for use in reading rituals, Greek in the east and Latin in the west, at a time when these languages were obsolescent in speech and yet contained all the literature, philosophy, poetry and such science as the world of Europe knew, and the modern tongues, just coming into use in Europe, north and south, had in them neither literature nor other elements of learning. Colleges so begun became the fashion. Every college man was a classical man, and naturally then, as now, a man would feel that his own college culture was the right one. It soon became a common saying that the only education worthy of the name was Greek and Latin. But now modern languages are very rich in every form of literature and learning, everything from the classics has been often emptied into them by better masters than the average student can fairly hope to be, losing some and also gaining some in the translation from languages which few scholars even ever learn to read and to enjoy, while a wealth of scientific knowledge of the boundless world, which to know is the real learning, has sprung up in many modern tongues.—Worcester Gazette.

Got In His Whole Name.

A Genoa paper tells this delightful story at America's expense: When the Duke of Veragua, the descendant of Christopher Columbus, visited Chicago, he inquired at a telegraph office the charge for a telegram to the city of Columbus of ten words. "Fifteen cents," answered the official, "not including the signature, which is wired free." Whereupon the duke wired: "Mayor, Columbus: Shall visit your city next Monday or Tuesday." And he signed it: "Cristobal Colon de Toledo y Larreategui de la Cerda Ramires de Baquedancy Gante Almirante y Adelantado Mayor de las Judias, Marques de Jamaica, Duque de Veragua y de la Vega, Grande de Espana, Senator del Reine, Caballero de la insigne orden del Toison d'Oro, Gran Cruz de la Concepcion de Villaviciosa, Gentil Hombre de Camarra del Rey de Espana."

Helping Him Along.

"Then there is such a thing as heart failure, is there, doctor?" said the handsome young widow.

"Certainly, madam," responded the bashful young physician. "The records of the profession are full of"—

"It's a perfectly unnecessary disease, isn't it, doctor?"

On this hint he spake.

FARM SCHOOLS.

The Latest Scheme Fostered by Ontario Education Department.

There is pending an important innovation in rural public school education. A growing movement is on foot to take up the study of agriculture on a scientific and attractive basis in rural schools. Manual training is soon to have a large place in city and town schools. The study of agriculture, in an experimental and practical way, is to be for the rural schools the counterpart of manual training in urban schools.

The scheme now being fostered by the Education Department contemplates a small school farm for central schools in each municipality. Traveling teachers of agriculture, preferably graduates of the Ontario Agricultural College, will visit these schools each week and teach the pupils of the district the principles and practice of the science of agriculture, as illustrated by the varied products of a 2½-acre school farm, worked by the pupils.

Carleton County is taking the initiative in the new departure. School Inspector Cowley has persuaded the Carleton County Council to defray the expenses of two such traveling teachers of agriculture, and Sir William Macdonald will pay the salary of a third teacher. In each municipality central schools will be selected within easy reach of four or five other surrounding schools. These central schools will be the "farm schools," and in each one the special teachers will hold classes once a week. These classes will be attended by the senior boys from the surrounding schools. The pupils will be taught the elements of horticulture, forestry, entomology, the science of agriculture, etc. As noted above, the theoretical teaching will be amplified by practical experiment on the school farms. The special teachers will be able to visit five of these central "farm schools" each week, and will hence serve altogether from 25 to 30 school sections.

Besides Carleton County, other counties are becoming interested in this latest educational development of the Province and will probably soon follow Carleton's lead. Saltfleet municipality, in Wentworth county, is also making arrangements to engage a traveling teacher of agriculture. In this case, however, special attention will be paid to the teaching of fruit culture.

It may be added that in France, Russia and Austria this system of agricultural education has for some years been carried on with the greatest success and on a large scale. In France there are 28,000 such schools.

NECESSARY ELEMENTS.

Strengthen your throat and lungs with Angier's Petroleum Emulsion. It cures chronic coughs, makes breathing easy, cleanses the system of impurities, creates healthy blood, fim flesh, and supplies all the elements necessary for the successful treatment of consumption. Pleasant to take. 2a.

An Equal Test.

It is an interesting fact that the two studies of arithmetic and geography often seem to be opposed to each other in the affections of school children. Pupils who are particularly proficient in the one are apt to be backward in the other.

A story is told of a youngster who was slow in arithmetic and whose apparent stupidity in this field was a great source of grief to his father, a clever mathematician.

One day when the father and son were walking out they passed a place where a "learned pig" was on exhibition, and the father took the boy in to see the prodigies that the animal could perform.

"Just look at that!" said the father. "Why, there's a pig that can count and add up numbers! Don't you wish you were as smart as he?"

"Ha!" answered the boy. "Just let me ask him a few questions in geography! I reckon I could beat him at that!"

Robin's Queer Nesting Place.

Conductor McKnight and Brakeman Joe Smith of Stratford have discovered a robin's nest underneath a passenger coach of the Grand Trunk Railway. This coach leaves Stratford at 4 p.m., and returns from Port Dover at 10 a. m., and stays on the Stratford siding until the hour of departure. The robin finds the car each morning and leaves the tracks as the hour for departure arrives. On the first investigation the nest was discovered under the platform on the drawbar and was only in a partially finished state, but recent investigations show that the nest was not only finished, but that four eggs had been laid in it. The bird is being anxiously watched by the train crew, to see whether she completes the set of five and sets on them while the train is in motion.

THE SEA GULLS.

How They Follow the Boats From Seattle to Victoria, B.C.

To the traveler on Puget Sound there is nothing that so holds the interest on the day's trip from Seattle to Victoria, on Vancouver Island, as do the sea gulls. These birds distinctly are the feature of the trip.

The sea gulls of Puget Sound are an institution, and as an institution are protected by the governments of the State of Washington and of British Columbia. To kill a gull is a crime, and punishment is swift and sure to any one who is caught committing such a deed. The gulls are the Scavengers of the Sound and are faithful to their self-appointed task, always on hand and ever ready to swoop down and remove all refuse from the surface of the water or from beneath the surface if it is within range of their acute vision. Despite the protection accorded by the law many of the gulls are shot and others are trapped by taxidermists and curio seekers, or by men working in the interests of these two classes.

Take the boat from Seattle, leaving the port at 9 in the morning and arriving at Victoria in the afternoon some time after 4 o'clock according to the weather, and the first thing to greet the eye as the boat leaves the dock is a flock of from 200 to 500 of these gulls. Watch them well, for with few variations they will be your companions until you tie up at Victoria that night. There are some five or six different varieties in the flock, some white all over, some nearly all brown, others marked in various ways with brown, and also showing a decided difference in the proportionate size of their wings to their bodies. The bodies appear to be full and plump, but any one who has seen one of the birds plucked will tell you there is little if anything to one of these bodies when the feathers are removed.

As the steamer sails out into the Sound for its northward trip the gulls take up their position. From the outset of the trip they start their apparently tireless circling about the steamer, always going north on the eastern side of it until twenty to fifty feet ahead and then turning and passing back on the western side.

QUOTATIONS ON THE WALL STREET MARKET

Sharp Re-action in New York Stocks.

The Quotations of the Leading Stocks —Market Letters.

There was a grand old rally on Wall Street this morning and prices all along the line recovered to a considerable extent the raid that was made on them during the past few days. C.P.R. was a strong issue—opening up at 122 5-8 and advancing to 123 3-4 by noon. Twin City was also strong and Penna, Reading, B.O. and other stocks participated in the advance. There was a cheerful feeling on the street and every person is asking as to whether the market has seen its worst.

In the afternoon the market made still further advances and it was quite evident that the bulls were having their innings. Reading ran up to 143 3-4, C.P.R. to 125 1-8 and P. O. advanced to 93 3-8. There was considerable realizing by local speculators.

The following are some of the principal quotations as received by McMillan and Maguire, Hunter street:—

McMillan & Maguire this morning received the following:—

New York, June 12th, —The man I was talking to who bought 40,000 shares was taking profits around the high figures yesterday. I understand he expects to be rid of the whole line by noon on Friday. That is if the market is very strong this morning. He says he is going to buy on the next break. Of course this is only one man's opinion. You must make your own guess about playing for another break. Of one thing I am certain and that is that stocks will be a great deal higher by the end of the month. Strong people have bought stocks and there is every indication that the bear market ended Wednesday. Purchases should be made on all declines.

RIDGELY.

London sent materially higher prices and continued buying in this market. There was buying for local account and short covering which gave the list great strength. A.C.P. has been bought by Standard Oil people. It is surmised that they will work another coup by increasing the dividend this year. Good weather and more favourable crop advices help Atch., Mop., St. Paul and the grangers generally. The people handling the actual sugar are bullish on the stock. An advance was to be expected considering the long decline. The recovery has been very violent, however, and stocks should be sold on this bulge, to be in a position to buy on any decline.

DICKINSON.

SLOSS-SHEFFIELD STEEL & IRON.

Showing for the Quarter Excellent.

The quarterly statement of Sloss-Sheffield made an excellent showing. The profits for three months were larger by 111 per cent. than for the corresponding quarter in 1902.

The large earnings clearly reflect the higher prices the company has been receiving for its product in connection with an expansion in its business. The prospects of a dividend being declared on the common stock in the near future are based upon the earnings which are sufficiently large in the opinion of most of the directors to justify distributing a portion among the common stockholders.

It is understood that there is an element in the board which is desirous of following very conservative lines as regards dividends on the common stock, the directors believe that in declaring dividends at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum it would not be deviating from the conservative policy of the company.—McMillan & Maguire.

CHARACTER OF BUYING.

Speaking of yesterday's break in Wall Street the Post says: "This break occurred with such suddenness and violence that it appeared for the moment to leave the market prostrate. As usually happens, however, after such demoralization, buying orders of the very best character came in—originating in the majority of cases, from the middle classes of capitalists who had money of their own to use, and who bought on principles of intrinsic values. This buying was followed by repurchases for professional "bear operators"; their action doubtless being inspired by the positive assertion of the banks that they knew of no firm in trouble. Under the twofold impetus, prices recovered rather substantially, though with a nervousness and occasional faltering which showed how confidence had been shaken yesterday."

SOME HAPPENINGS IN THE NORTHERN TOWN.

Personal Mention and Other Happenings of Interest at Lakefield.

A regular meeting of the municipal council was held on Monday evening, June 8th.

There were present, H. G. Fitzgerald, reeve, in the chair; and Councillors Burgess, Kidd, Northey and Tanner.

The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and approved.

Requisition from the school board asking that $1826 be raised for school purposes for 1903 received; also a request that $450 be placed to the credit of the school board for current expenses.

The Finance Committee presented the following report:

Gentlemen, — We, your Finance Committee, have examined the following accounts, and would recommend payment of the same.

Municipal World, copy public health act	$ 1 00
Grand Trunk Ry., freight	20 09
T. Z. Webster, meals, etc.	40
W. H. Casement	9 29
W. Northcott	1 25
J. Hendren, sprinkling streets	4 90
W. Finley, work	1 37

We would also recommend that the treasurer be authorized to place to the credit of the School Board the sum of $450.

Moved by Councillor Tanner, seconded by Councillor Burgess, that the report of the Finance Committee be received and adopted.—Carried.

A bylaw, No. 378, entitled a bylaw to appoint an officer to the combined offices of assessor, roadmaster, collector, health inspector, and caretaker of the engine room and town hall, received its several readings and was passed signed and sealed, rule of order, No. 50, being on motion suspended for the evening.

A bylaw No. 379, entitled a bylaw to borrow money for current expenses, received its several readings, was passed, and signed and sealed by the Reeve and Clerk.

A bylaw, No. 380, entitled a bylaw to authorize the levying of school and debenture rates and assessments for the village of Lakefield for the year 1903, received its several readings and was passed and signed and sealed by the reeve and clerk.

Moved by Councillor Tanner, seconded by Councillor Burgess, that an order be drawn on the treasurer for the sum of $4.85 in payment of expenses of delegates to the Legislative Assembly.—Carried.

The council then adjourned.

The vacant lot on Queen street, north of R. Graham & Son's general store, formerly owned by Miss Tanner, has been purchased by Mr. Jenkinson, jeweller. Mr. Jenkinson is preparing to erect a brick store, and dwelling overhead. This will much improve the appearance of Queen street, as it will help to fill an unsightly gap caused by a fire some years ago.

On Tuesday night as Mr. Gale of Douro, was going home from the village, he saw his double carriage being backed out of his driving shed, and as he had left no one at home, he suspected something wrong. On investigation he found a man running away. He alarmed the surrounding farmers, who spread to different points and worked back together, and found a man who answered the description of a man who was wanted in Peterborough for Peterborough for horse stealing. He was brought to Lakefield, and County Constable Cochrane took him to Peterborough on Wednesday.

POEMS FOR OLD BOYS

THE THREE PRIZE WINNERS IN RECENT TORONTO COMPETITION.

Liberal Prizes of $100, $50 and $25 of the Board of Trade of Queen City Went to Mr. Duncan Campbell Scott, 1st; Miss Helen M. Merrill, 2nd; and Miss Marjorie Pickthall, 3rd.

The Old Home Committee of the Toronto Board of Trade, in offering the liberal prizes of $100, $50 and $25 for the best poems on the old home sentiment, met with a very ready response from all quarters of America. Nearly two hundred poems were submitted from every part of North America. The committee of judges was composed of Rev. Dr. Clark, Prof. Maurice Hutton, Prof. Pelham Edgar and Prof. W. S. McLay. The names of the competitors were unknown to the judges, but were sent under seal to the Secretary. On opening the envelopes it was found that Duncan Campbell Scott of Ottawa had won the first prize, Miss Helen M. Merrill of Picton the second prize, and Miss Marjorie Pickthall of Toronto the third.

Duncan Campbell Scott is already well known as a Canadian poet. His works have been published in England and the United States. Miss Helen M. Merrill of Picton has written a considerable number of verses and her work has been published in the periodicals of the United States and Canada. Miss Marjorie Pickthall is a resident of Toronto, being a young girl of seventeen, whose poems in the local press have attracted of late the attention of many of our literary authorities, who are of the opinion that her poems give very great promise. The prize winning poems follow:

First Prize—The Home-comers.

From the smoke where cities welter,
From the quiet glens of earth,
To the land that gave us shelter,
To the land that gave us birth;
We, the wanderers, the dreamers,
That for love of fortune roam,
In the gladness of the morning,
In the light, come streaming home.

Men whose fathers, mocked and broken,
For the honor of a name,
Would not wear the conqueror's token,
Could not sell their bread with shame.
Plunged them in the virgin forest,
With their axes in their hands,
Built a province as a bulwark
For the loyal of the lands.

Men whose fathers, sick of dead lands,
Europe and her weary ways,
Saw the fading emerald headlands,
Saw the heather quenched in haze,
Saw the coast of France or Flanders,
Like a glimmer sink and cease,
Won the ample land of maples,
The domain of wealth and peace.

Won it by the axe and harrow,
Held it by the axe and sword,
Bred a race with brawn and marrow—
From no alien over-lord.
Gained the right to guide and govern;
Then, with labor strong and free,
Forged the land a shield of Empire
Silver sea to silver sea.

Sighting makes the heart grow fonder,
Labor makes the heart grow fain,
Still wherever we may wander
We are of the Hon strain;
We may trample foreign markets,
We may delve in outland loam,
Yet when memory cries and calls us,
All our hearts come leaping home.

Now from smoke where cities welter,
From the quiet glens of earth,
Come we to our land of shelter,
To the land that gave us birth.
Lo, we bring thee our achievement,
Won by strength and patient toil—
Thine the strength and thine the patience—
Bring it to thy breast again.

And we bid Ontario quicken,
Under snow and under sun,
Where the spruces root and thicken,
Where the waters flash and run;
Bid the towns of glad Ontario
Gather to a diadem,
Deep encrusted round Toronto,
As with gems the peerless setting folds and holds the gem.

—Duncan Campbell Scott.

Second Prize—The Home-comers.

Across the dawn the Whitethroat calls—
Thrice happy the impassioned song
That from the leafy thicket falls
To greet the homeward-coming throng:
"Sweet, sweet Canada, Canada, Canada,"
Oft he repeats each perfect note,
A-tremble from his shining throat,
Adown the land where maples rise,
And elms to arch the sapphire skies;
"Sweet, sweet Canada, Canada, Canada."

The homeland sea is broad and blue,
The homeland shores are fair to view—
Along the sunlit summer ways
Visions of half-forgotten days,
Like dim mirages, in the gout
Their holy images unroll.
For him, homecoming, as of old
After the twinkling roof-tree gleams;
And brightly haloed he beholds
The splendid city of his dreams—

Toronto, of the golden north,
Whence, barking back baye ventured forth
A thousand fearless hearts to fight
Life's battles by the alien light
Of other lands; and after years
Of silent longing, smiles and tears,
Strange winds, and stars, and creeds, come home
To view once more their native land,
And in the shadow of its domes,
Clasp one another by the hand.

The Whitethroat calls across the dusk
From woodland sweet with pine and musk,
What time the purple twilights rest
Upon the city's glimmering breast;
"Sweet, sweet Canada, Canada, Canada,"
The night wind hushes, and more near
The sound of revelry I hear;
And by the starlight's opal beams
My woodbird whispers in its dreams.
"Sweet, sweet Canada, Canada, Canada."

—Helen M. Merrill.

Third Prize—The Home-comers.

Bounded by saltless sea and pine crowned hill,
Tall-spired and tree-embowered, the city lies;
And the loud songs of labor upward rise
From street and factory, from forge and mill,
Beside her wharves the steamers lift and strain,
While the dark smoke drifts down and fades, and far
On her far fields heights the orchards are,
With garden-plots, and fields of ripening grain.

How many hearts have held this picture dear?
How many hearts still hold it, and shall hold?
How many hearts, as the long years unfold,
Find all their dreams, their tenderest memories here?
How many, cradled here, that rove and roam
In distant lands where stateller scenes may please,
Yet hold this picture holier far than these—
Each street a heritage, once house a home?

How many, wandering long in devious ways,
Have stood 'neath alien skies at set of sun,
When the hot labor of the day was done,
And pierced with longing eyes the northward haze?
Thinking they saw the well-remembered place—
The old brown house beneath familiar stars,
Green maple trees without the orchard bars,
And, by the open door, their mother's face?

Toronto's well loved sons rove far and free,
Seeing strange flow'rs call round the circling years;
But all their hopes, their loyalty is here,
Fair lakeside city, centred safe in thee!
And with a deep-grown love no time may stem,
Where'er the dwell, in land of palm or pine,
Still in their strong and faithful hearts you shine
An unforgotten haven unto them.

But now in vain the ocean hems them in,
Vainly the country of their choice would bind,
For, young of heart, they turn and leave behind
The distant refuge that they strove to win,
And swift they speed across the leagues of foam,
Leaving with scant farewell the unloved land,
Once more to taste old joys, and clasp the hand
Of brotherhood that claims a common home.

There is the thrill and there the happiness
That sees on every side some well-loved place;
To them each building owns a welcoming grace,
Each wayside tree spreads arms to greet and bless,
To them each stone is dear, and memory lends
Soft gleams and tenderest shadows everywhere;
Each night to them is kind, each day is fair,
Each hand a comrade's, and each face a friend's.

Then welcome them as well befits their worth—
These kindred wanderers come from far and near;
Let the days pass in lengthening rounds of cheer,
While tranquil skies shine softly on the earth,
Let the deep circling woods, the fruitful plain,
Show all their treasures to the passing hours,
And the rich land put forth her fairest flowers,
When the Queen City greets her sons again.

—Marjorie Pickthall.

DIRE STRUGGLE IN THE DARK.

Conspirators Unsuccessful in the Beginning—Compelled a Servant to Lead Them to King and Queen—Latter Absolutely Torn by Bullets—Indignities to the Bodies—The Burial Not Royal.

Belgrade, June 13.—The assassination of King Alexander, Queen Draga, the latter's two brothers, the Servian Premier, Minister of War and former Minister of War, and the proclamation by the army of Prince Peter Karageorgevitch as King of Servia has apparently, it may be said, now that forty-eight hours have passed, been accepted by the capital and the Servian people without a murmur. The meeting of the Skupechina next Monday is now looked forward to, to confirm the proclamation as King of Prince Peter and to regularize the new situation.

The only new element in the situation is a feeling among the intelligent classes in favor of the abolition of a Servian monarchy altogether and the creation of a republic, and this sentiment is shared by at least one member of the provisional Government. The majority of the Ministers, however, declared themselves in favor of a new King in Prince Peter.

THE MASSACRE.

Graphic Story of the Murders in the Palace at Belgrade.

The following is a narrative of the revolution given by men who took part in it:

Army officers, to the number of 90, having formed a project of a revolt, among them being delegates from almost every garrison in Servia, and the majority of the officers of the 6th Regiment. Lieut.-Col. Nitschitsch invited his comrades on Wednesday evening, at 11 o'clock, to meet in the Hallimmgdam garden and there the immediate carrying out of the intended deed was organized.

At 1.40 a.m. the officers in eight groups went to the Konak, the royal palace. Each had a cue, and special instructions regarding his part in the revolution. First stepping before the guard at the Konak, one of the two officers called: "Throw down your arms."

A fight ensued, with shooting on both sides, in which several persons were wounded.

The revolutionaries then entered the front garden without hindrance, and reached the court-yard of old Konak, where Lieut. Naumovics was awaiting. He opened the lock of the iron door, leading to the front room on the first floor. Lieut. Petrovitch, alarmed by the unwonted hubbub, hurried forward, a drawn revolver in one hand, in the other a sword.

"What do you want?" he cried.

"Show us where the King and Queen are," came the reply.

One Loyal Officer.

"Back," cried Petrovitch, and at the same moment a ball stretched him on the groubd.

The revolutionaries pressed forward, when suddenly the electric light went out, all stood in darkness. In the greatest excitement and feeling their way, the revolutionaries climbed the stairs and got into the dark ante-room to the King's apartment. Here they found candles and lit them. In the ante-room connecting with the corridor between the old and new Konak, the sergeant of the gendarmes was sleeping. Awakening, he stepped before the revolutionaries, who felled him. At last Queen Draga's servant was found. He wounded Captain Dimitrevic severely, but was spared because he was needed in finding the fleeing couple. Indeed, this servant showed the officers where King Alexander and Queen Draga had gone to conceal themselves. When he had told this he was shot. Col. Maschin now joined the revolutionists and led them back to the sleeping apartment, where the King's adjutant tried to hinder the search. He shot at Lieut. Naumovics, who fell dead. The other killed the adjutant. After a long search a small door leading into an alcove was discovered, but was found locked. It was broken in with an axe and here the royal couple were found in undress. The older officers first intended forcing the King to abdicate, but the young officers were in no mood to be held back, and shot at the royal couple. Nobody knows in the excitement who shot first, but it is generally said it was Lieut. Kistice.

Bodies Torn by Bullets.

After the murder, King Alexander's body was found entirely covered with blood, while that of Queen Draga was absolutely torn by bullets. The report that the bodies were thrown out of the window into the garden is untrue. The young officers intended to do so, but Colonel Maschin prevented it, exclaiming "That would be barbarous." All the servants of the royal couple fled when the first shots were heard, with the exception of Queen Draga's servant, who was found dead. At 12 minutes past 2 all was over. Col. Maschin issued from the gate of the Konak, around which great crowds had collected, and made a speech, saying: "We have now destroyed the dynasty of the Obrenovitchs and have got rid of the dishonorable woman who was the King's evil spirit. Long live Servia."

The people responded: "Long live the army."

Cold-Blooded Murders.

Almost simultaneously with the butchery in the [illegible] the troops endeavored to arrest all the relatives of the Queen and those ministers whom the conspirators disliked. Two brothers of the Queen, Lieut-Col.'s Nikola and Nikodern Lunjovics, were speedily seized and escorted by a detachment of troops from their dwelling to the guard-room of the divisional commander. They were evidently not suspicious of their doom, and were lighting cigarettes when they were shot dead by eight soldiers.

Gen. Markovics, the Premier; Gen. Pavlovics, Minister of War, and M. Todorovics, Minister of the Interior, were all as they attempted to defend themselves from arrest, shot by the troops. The two former were killed and the last named was just alive last night.

Indignities to Bodies.

Shortly after midnight the bodies of the dead King and Queen were carried to their last resting place. It was a pitiful sight. All day long the victims were reposing in rough coffins and had lain exposed to the gaze of those who had killed them and to the privileged curious. There were unpleasant evidences of the public sentiment against the late royal couple. Some persons even spat on the remains.

The burial services was brief and not impressive. Two priests were present, but no high ecclesiastical dignitaries. The remains of the royal couple were interred in a vault in the cemetery.

Marching on Belgrade.

Berlin, June 13.—A despatch to the Lokal Anzeiger from Budapest, says the garrison of Nish, where the late King Alexander was most popular, is, according to a railroad official, who has arrived at Budapest from Belgrade, marching on the Servian capital with full equipment and artillery.

No Interference.

London, June 13. — The Servian minister here has received confirmation of the statement that neither Russian nor Austria will interfere in the Servian choice of a sovereign.

MR. BLAIR'S RAILWAY BILL.

Minister of Agriculture Gave an Interesting Review of His Recent Visit to Japan—St. Louis Will Cost $320,000—A Dozen Private Bills Passed—Progress With Railway Bill.

Ottawa, June 13. —With a very slim attendance of members, the House of Commons made material progress in committee with Mr. Blair's railway bill. Last evening an hour and a half was given to the consideration of private bills, some dozen of which were passed through their final stages. The bill incorporating the Toronto & Hamilton Railway Co. was held over, in order that the city of Toronto may have time to present objections to some clauses of the bill. In committee of supply the estimates of the Agriculture Department for the census and exhibitions were considered, and Hon. Sydney Fisher outlined the programme which he proposed following in connection with the St. Louis Exhibition, and gave an interesting review of his visit to the exhibition at Osaka, Japan, and the opportunities for trade which that land offers.

Mr. Blair's Railway Bill.

The House went into committee on Mr. Blair's railway bill at 3.15 o'clock yesterday, taking up the clauses dealing with expropriation proceedings. The debate was practically confined to the legal members of the House, who discussed technical legal questions connected with the practice and procedure in expropriations. The question of allowing an appeal against the award of the arbitrators in expropriations was debated at some length. The act as drafted gave the right of appeal upon questions of law or fact in every case, but the principle of limiting the appeal to cases wherein the award reaches a certain amount was affirmed, and an amendment made to the clause. The minimum amount of the award which may be the subject of appeal will be determined at a future sitting of the committee. The committee reported progress at 6 o'clock.

Reduced the Stock.

Ottawa, June 13.—An act respecting the Canada Steel Company was reported at the Private Bills Committee yesterday. It reduced the capital stock from $18,000,000 to $4,000,000.

Essex Tobacco Crop Ruined.

Windsor, June 13.—The outlook for the tobacco crop in Essex County this year is not very bright. The fault lies with the young plants, which did not thrive after coming through the ground. They appeared to wilt and die. One farmer has lost two hundred thousand plants and others report a like number, which have died in the beds. The farmers say it is because of the very cold nights.

To Watch Chilian Election.

Victoria, B.C., June 13.—It is because of the coming general election in Chili, an officer of H.M.S. Amphion says, that the warship has been ordered to Valparaiso.

Toronto University Degrees.

Toronto, June 13.—Yesterday afternoon the Chancellor of the University presented successful students, to the number of 390, with their degrees. Eight new LL.D.'s were created honoris causa, among them being Hon. Mr. Gibson, Attorney-General of Ontario, and Hon. Richard Harcourt, Minister of Education. In the evening there was a great dinner of the Alumni Association.

Vienna, June 13.—While Emperor Francis Joseph was out driving here yesterday afternoon, Jacob Reich, a commercial agent, holding a stick in a threatening manner, rushed at His Majesty's carriage. The man was arrested. It is thought he was insane.

SOLDIERS REVOLT.

Four 36th Men Defy a Whole Company But Were Put Behind Bars.

Niagara Camp, June 13. — What may prove a serious matter for four privates of the 36th (Peel) Regiment occurred yesterday morning, when the regiment was summoned on parade. Four men named O'Brien, Lesker, Welch and Newton, refused to turn out.

When taken prisoners they broke away from the guards, but were recaptured and taken to the R. C. R. On the way they again broke away and ran out in the field, where, after being caught again, they laid down and would not move.

A squad from the regulars were sent for, and on their arrival the mutineers promptly arose, formed in line and saluted without orders; and, when told to march, stepped off in proper style. At this their captain decided to handle them himself, but had to use a whole company to do it, and even then it was hard work. He finally succeeded in marching them down-town with their packs, where they were put behind the bars.

UNIONS SOLD OUT.

Union Leaders in New York Charged With This Treachery.

New York, June 13.—More evidence has been collected by District Attorney Jerome in regard to the illegal methods to which delegates and employers of union labor have resorted. He says he has evidence to prove a scheme existed whereby several walking delegates of the United Board of Building Trades Council, including Samuel J. Parks, now under arrest, sold out the unions they represented to fifteen of the biggest furniture and decorating concerns in this city for about $10,000. At present Mr. Jerome is dealing only with the case against Parks, but he will begin "John Doe" proceedings to get at the bottom of the scandal involving the employes and the bosses. This hearing will be public, as Mr. Jerome says he wishes to give the honest men a chance to clear themselves.

Ottawa Valley Drought Broke.

Toronto, June 13.—The storm of which Toronto yesterday saw the tail end arose over the middle Atlantic coast the night before and developed energy as it moved northward. There was a rainfall of from one to two inches in Eastern Ontario, including Ottawa and the Upper St. Lawrence. In Ottawa one and one-half inches fell, and at Kingston over two inches. This is the first heavy rain that has blessed that parched valley since April 29. Every appearance is that the weather will now clear up.

Dr. Sproule Grand Master.

Winnipeg, June 13.—The election of officers in the Orange Grand Lodge yesterday resulted as follows: T. S. Sproule, Grand Master, Markdale, Ont.; William Gilbraith, Deputy Grand Master, Montreal, Que.; Rev. William Walsh, Grand Chaplain, Brampton, Ont.; Wm. Lockhart, Grand Secretary, Alliston, Ont.; W. J. Parkhill, Grand Treasurer; Jas. F. Harper, Grand Lecturer, Hamilton, Ont.; W. H. Code, Grand Director of Ceremonies, Smith's Falls, Ont.

MILLING IN CANADA.

An Industry Which is Assuming Gigantic Proportions.

The article on the Milling Industry in Canada, which is one of the most important in the Dominion, an installment of which follows is taken from Industrial Canada:—

Equipped with Canadian-made machinery, controlled and operated almost entirely by Canadians, supplied with the finest home-grown wheat in the world, and producing flour of the first grade, the mills of Canada are one of the nation's proudest and most valuable assets. Out of a total of some 2,500 mills scattered from the Atlantic to the Pacific, fully 200 have capacities of over 200 barrels per day, whilst the largest mills are capable of producing between two and three thousand barrels every twenty-four hours. The value produced has increased annually. In 1871 the output aggregated $39,135,919. In 1881 the the total reached $41,772,372 and in 1891 it grew to $52,423,286. A conservative estimate would place the present output at $70,000,000. Though apparently few men are employed in the mills and the machinery seems to do everything by itself, yet no small portion of the population of Canada is given employment both directly and indirectly by the milling industry. Mechanics are required to keep the machinery in repair, engineers to run it, coopers to make the barrels and other employees to sew the sacks, not to speak of the millers themselves, who perform the actual work required in grinding wheat. Were the industry to be removed from the country, then and only then would Canadians discover how important, industrially, it is to the welfare of the land.

The enormous possibilities before the industry fill the breast of the patriotic Canadian with enthusiasm. The rapidly increasing crops of the North West ensure a constant supply of grain of the best quality in the world, and the capabilities of Canadian mills to produce the finest of flour have been demonstrated.

BIRTH OF THE INDUSTRY.

The beginnings of the milling industry in Canada are closely associated with the early settlement of the country. In fact, grist mills may be said to have been, in nearly every case, the directing influences which have led to the formation of Canadian industrial centres. It was around the mills that the early settlements grew up.

Until it came to the grinding of his grist, the settler remained comparatively independent of his neighbour. He could clear his plot of land himself, rear his log-house with but slight need of assistance and sow and reap his first crop alone. But beyond that, few cared to go. There were, it is true, small hand-mills in many homes but the domestic condition of the industry was short-lived. Grist mills sprang into being in every locality very soon after the country was opened up.

It is to Ontario that the student must turn if he desires to study the most important development of the milling industry during the century that has passed. In the Province of Upper Canada the necessity for mills during the period of settlement was much more acutely felt than in Quebec. To convey wheat from the settlements along the shore of Lake Ontario, down the St. Lawrence to the mills of older Canada and to bring back flour was a task of too much difficulty to be long undertaken. As a result, the number of mills in Upper Canada increased rapidly and every convenient water power was requisitioned to turn mill-wheels, whilst in such districts as water power was not available, wind mills were erected.

Concerning the establishment of the first mills in Upper Canada, but little authentic information can be obtained. D .W .Smythe, the Surveyor-General, writing of the country at the opening of the nineteenth century, refers to numerous mills along the St. Lawrence, and speaks in commendatory terms of mills on the Gananoque and at Smith's Creek, now Port Hope, but fails to supply any details regarding their equipment, output or time of establishment. At Belleville it is known a mill was erected in 1794 by a Colonel Myers, which for some years supplied the needs of the settlers for a considerable distance around. Prior to this time there must have been mills on the upper St. Lawrence and at Kingston. Of these a relic still stands near Prescott. It is an old wooden wind mill which played an important part in the war of 1812.

SOME EARLY MILLS.

Passing still further westward an early mill is found to have been erected in the valley of the Don, near what is now Toronto, just prior to the year 1800. It was built by a man named Parshall Terry, and was operated for many years. In Western Ontario a number of mills sprang into existence between the years 1800 and 1812, for in the records of the incursions of the United States armies during the war of 1812, the destruction of several mills is related.

Notwithstanding all deterrent influences, the number of mills in Upper Canada increased rapidly, so that by the year 1825 there were 232 in operation. The number grew to 352 in 1835, and to 527 in 1847. Then during the period from 1847 to 1860, there was a slight falling off, the census returns for the latter year showing a total of only 502. As in Quebec, so in Ontario, the next decade witnessed an enormous increase in the number of mills, there being fully fifty per cent. more mills in 1870 than in 1860. Since then the total has been increased only slightly.

IN THE GOLDEN WEST.

Though Manitoba and the West have played but a small part in the development of the milling industry during the past century, it is quite apparent that they are destined to enormous importance during the present century. The Dominion census of thirty years ago contained no mention of any western mills. The census of 1881 referred to some 25, and that of 1891 to 68. To-day there are in the neighbourhood of 80, with an actual daily output of about 12,000 barrels. Of British Columbia but little need be said. There is a small industry there and about thirty mills are operated.

THE CHANGES IN PROGRESS.

The milling industry in Canada has passed through several interesting stages. The early mills at best were but crude affairs. Grinding was accomplished by means of two stones, one revolving on top of the other. The bed stone, usually about four feet in diameter, was fixed in position and on its upper surface furrows were made leading out from the centre to the circumstance. The top stone was poised above the bed stone and made to revolve rapidly upon it. The wheat was fed in through an opening in the centre of the upper stone and ground out between the two. There was also a system of reels or bolts to separate the bran from the flour.

Up to about the year 1880 the main alterations in process affected merely the separating and wheat cleaning mechanisms. Scalpers, bolt reels and bran dusters were introduced and the mills became crowded with machinery. The average mill at the time the change came would usually have four runs of stones, one smutter of antique pattern, three hexagon reels, one flour packer, and four stands of elevators, the whole driven by two water wheels, turbines, with wooden buckets.

The Hungarian process or roller process was introduced about 1880. Its principle is one of gradual reduction. The wheat is crushed between chilled iron rollers and as it passes through each successive roll of the series every possible atom of flour is freed from the grain of wheat. The actual separation of the flour from the feed is carried on as before on sieves. The whole process is completely automatic from the moment the wheat enters the elevator until the flour is packed in barrels or bags.

THE GROWTH OF THE AUCTION SALE SYSTEM.

It is recognized by all breeders of live stock and by all others who have paid any attention to stock breeding, that in order to produce good animals we must use only good sires of the proper type and bred in proper lines. The farmer must not only use the best class of males, but he must feed the offspring liberally if he expects to secure a profit from his operations. These two conditions must go together. Recognizing this fact, the Live Stock Commissioner, Mr. F. W. Hodson, has for years been endeavouring to perfect plans for distributing as many good sires as possible among farmers in all parts of Canada. The remarkable development in Great Britain of the auction sale system of selling live stock led him to advocate a similar method here. In Britain there are at many points fairs or markets on certain days, where cattle, sheep, swine and other animals are regularly auctioned off. From reliable evidence and personal observation this system was found to work satisfactorily, entirely doing away with huckstering, and giving to the seller the full value of his animals as determined by public competition. After discussing the question with the various live stock associations, it was concluded that the adoption of the auction sale principle would be of great benefit to Canada, and the Department of Agriculture offered to assist in starting live stock sales in each province. Several provincial sales have been held and the feeling in favour of them is growing rapidly. Similiar independent combination sales are being held in many parts of Canada and a fine pavilion has been erected especially for auction sales at Hamilton, Ont. It is not the intention that the Department of Agriculture shall long continue to assist these sales, but only until they are well established and self-sustaining. It is hoped that eventually monthly or weekly sales will be established at some central point in each electoral district. At certain seasons of the year pure bred stock for breeding purposes would be sold; at other times store and fat animals, including cattle, sheep and swine, in fact everything a farmer has to sell. This is the same principle on which most of our cheese is now sold. In Great Britain very little stock is sold except at these auctions; nearly every town or village has its weekly, monthly or fortnightly sale, and the auctioneers have well equipped yards and sheds in which to sell. The educational value of these sales is a noticeable feature, for a poor animal will bring little money, while a choice one will bring a good price. This is an object lesson for the farmers who attend.

In this connection the sale established under the auspices of the Territorial Cattle Breeders at Calgary is worthy of mention. At their sale in May, 1903, an average of $96.38 was made on 208 head. The highest priced bull, a Hereford, sold by Oswald Palmer of Lacombe for $300 to A. B. Macdonald, New Oxley. Mr. Palmer sold three Herefords for an average of $181.66 per head and the Moosom Boyd Company, of Prince Albert, sold 9 head at an average of $122.83. Messrs. J. & W. Sharp, of Lacombe, obtained the highest average for Shorthorns, having sold 9 head at an average of $159.33, the lowest price being $140. The highest priced cow was sold by Geo. Geary of Innisfail, for $150 to Dr. J. P. Creamer of Qu'Appelle.

The Calgary sale is steadily growing in extent and in the prices commanded. In 1902 an average of $95.75 was made on 220 head, and in the previous year 64 animals brought an average of $85.17. This year two carloads of stock went to British Columbia and it is expected that next year at least five carloads will be taken by that Province. Territorial breeders evidently intend to give Ontario a hot fight in the pure bred stock market.

You Can't Work Right if you Have Dyspepsia—Hamilton Lady Proves That Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Will Cure It.

Asids from its discomforts you can't afford to have Dyspepsia. You can't work right unless you feel right, and you can't feel right if you have Dyspepsia.

With that dreary despondent feeling that every Dyspeptic knows work loses all its pleasure. You long for the dinner bell, because it makes the end of the morning, but you dread the dinner bell because it means more eating and consequently more suffering.

But there is a way of escape. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are the way. Thousands who have tried will tell you that. Juliana Sandburg, of 221 John street, North Hamilton, tells you. Hear what she says:

"For over six years I was troubled with Dyspepsia and Headaches. Nothing I ate would agree with me. I tried several medicines, but could get nothing to help me till I tried Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"Almost at once they gave me relief, and before I had finished one box I was cured."

You can't find a Dyspeptic who has used Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

A Link With the Past.

There may be sitting in the House of Lords to-morrow a man with a link with the historic past not less amazing than that of which we spoke cautiously recently as probable. The Earl of Leicester's father was born while there were still in the world those who had been alive when Charles Stuart's head fell off in Whitehall, and Lord Leicester would astound the peers if he were to rise in his place and tell them that his father had been in love with the wife of "Bonnie Prince Charlie," who had presented her portrait to him. But he would be speaking the truth, incredible as it may seem. When the young pretender was no longer young, and the unhappy Countess he had made his wife had left him, Lord Leicester's father traveled with her on the continent, and the gossipping Horace Walpole informed the world that he returned "in love with the pretender's queen, who was permitted him to have her picture." There is still among us the widow of a man who hurried to Rome, at the bidding of King William, to summon Peel to form a Cabinet, and there might walk into the House of Lords to-morrow the grandson of a man who sat on the throne of England 142 years ago.—London Daily Chronicle.

Of Course.

Millie—If we were to meet a bull, dear, what would you do?

Percy—What a question to ask! Don't you know I was champion long distance runner at school?—Boston Globe.

The Fires of Eczema.

So keen is the suffering of many people who endure the stinging, itching sensations of Eczema that they speak of the skin as being on fire. By its soothing, healing, antiseptic influence Dr. Chase's Ointment positively cures Eczema, Salt Rheum, and every form of itching skin disease. It is of inestimable value in every home, and when once introduced becomes a household necessity. Dr. Chase's Ointment is the standard the world over, and has no worthy rival.

Slater Shoe Advertising

"Sight—unseen"

Short talks by the Slater Shoe ad man, No. 10.

The one thing that literally makes or breaks a shoe, is the insole and it can not be seen, felt or tested till worn.

A poor insole means a stitch-cut outsole, loose stitches, ripped uppers, causes mishapen, shrunken, stretched, unsightly, short lived shoes.

A good insole is all that a poor one cannot be—it is the keystone to the arch—the steel skeleton of the tall building.

But you have got to take it "sight-unseen"—must trust to the stake the maker hangs on his own honesty —and the stake that's hung on the honesty of the "Slater Shoe" is the expenditure in six years of a hundred thousand dollars for advertising and the trade commanding capacity of a quarter million dollar trademark.

That is your protection when you buy and wear the "Slater Shoe" and it's the only one of its kind in Canada.

The Slater Shoe

Made in Canada 40 years. Goodyear welted.

Sunshine Furnace.

REGULATED LIKE A WATCH.

"Sunshine" dampers are so ingeniously arranged and control the fire so perfectly that the consumption of fuel can be regulated almost as accurately as a watch—the operator knows just what time a certain quantity of coal will retain fire and the degree of heat it will produce.

All parts of "Sunshine" furnaces are mechanically correct—the castings are clean and extra heavy, while the steel used in the dome is of the finest quality and is specially made for the "Sunshine" furnace.

Every detailed feature in the "Sunshine" has its purpose, and all combine to produce the most heat from the fuel consumed and distribute it without waste.

Had Eczema From Childhood.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Works a Marvellous Cure for a Lady in Clayton, B. C.

Eczema is one of the most common of all blood and skin diseases. The skin is inflamed and irritable, with vesicles or fissures from which serous fluid exudes. When the disease is extensive there is fever, a pallid appearance, headaches and loss of appetite. Paine's Celery Compound is nature's unfailing cure for the disease. It purifies and gives fresh vitality to the blood, and supplies the needed elements for the repair of the whole body. Annie L. Forman, Clayton, B.C., writes:

"Since childhood I have been troubled with a serious eczema and up to two years ago, I gave up hope of ever being cured, as the best doctors could not help me. While greatly discouraged my attention was drawn to the wonderful cure of Mr. D. McMahon of Peterborough, Ont., by Paine's Celery Compound. The newspaper story of this cure gave me faith enough to try one bottle of Paine's Celery Compound. The use of one bottle did not cure me, but it was doing me good, and I continued the medicine day after day until I had used seven bottles, when I was perfectly cured. I have not the slightest trace of the disease on any part of my body and my skin is now soft and clear. Paine's Celery Compound is a wonderful remedy and I heartily recommend it to all suffering from eczema or other skin troubles."

Nothing Like Experience.

"One truth learned by actual experience does more good than ten experiences one hears about." Tell a man that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy will cure cholera morbus, and he will most likely forget it before the end of the day. Let him have a severe attack of that disease, feel that he is about to die, use this remedy, and learn from his own experience how quickly it gives relief, and he will remember it all his life. For sale by all druggists.

57TH REGIMENT'S MILITARY NEWS.

Arrangements for the Trip to Picton Concluded.

The Montreal Cadet Corps Will Visit Here—The Drills for Next Week on Monday and Thursday.

THE TRIP TO PICTON.

A report is in circulation around town, that the 57th Regiment will not go to Picton on July 1st, but will visit Napanee. This morning Lieut. Col. J. W. Miller told an Examiner representative that the report was entirely incorrect, and that all arrangements regarding the regimental trip to Picton had been made, including the signing of the agreement with the railway companies. He said that the Picton people were making elaborate arrangements to receive the 57th.

MONTREAL CADET CORPS.

Col. Miller remarked that the Montreal Cadet Corps had communicated with the 57th Regiment re a visit to Peterborough. The proposed visit will in all probability take place at an early date in August, and the boys will turn out to the strength of 200. They will be accompanied by their brass and fife bands, and will be dressed in tartan. In all probability the corps will arrive in town on Friday night, give an entertainment on Saturday night and hold a military church parade on Sunday afternoon. They will leave on Sunday night for Montreal.

THE LINDSAY CADETS.

Yesterday afternoon the Commanding Officer of the 57th Regiment inspected the Lindsay Collegiate Cadet Corps. The inspecting officer remarked that the boys are very efficient, and went through their drill with with remarkable excellence. Lt. Col. Miller said the corps showed the effects of careful training, and the boys, he said, marched like veterans. He said that the manner in which the young fellows did their work reflected great credit on their instructor.

DRILL ON MONDAY NIGHT.

It will be remembered that owing to other attractions on Tuesday night, drill will be held on Monday night, instead of on the regular night. There will also be a drill on Thursday night.

The recruit class which has been held every Thursday evening under the instruction of Sergt.-Major Brittain, has been discontinued.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Mrs. Thos. Brooks, Cleveland, is the guest of Mrs. George Carton.

Miss Aolisha Fowler, of Ashburnham, is visiting friends in Bobcaygeon.

Rev. E. R. James will officiate in St. John's church to-morrow morning and evening.

Bishop O'Connor will administer the Sacrament of Confirmation in St. Mary's church, Lindsay, to-morrow.

F. J. Jameson has returned from Hamilton, where he has been attending the High Court meeting of the Canadian Order of Foresters.

B. F. Roesor, manager Electric Light and Power Company, Lindsay, is in Toronto attending the convention of the Canadian Electrical Association.

Prof. Watson, teacher of Hebrew in Mount Allison University, Sackville, N.B., is in town, and will preach in George street church to-morrow evening.

Miss Ruth L. Robertson, daughter of Mr. W. H. Robertson, of town, is one of eight young ladies, who graduated this week as a trained nurse from Grace Hospital, in New Haven, Conn. This is one of the most up-to-date training hospitals on the continent, and it prides itself on this fact. Miss Robertson has spent about three years in the institution, and has now graduated with honours. Her many friends in Peterborough will be pleased to hear of her success. Among the eight graduates, four belong to Canada. After spending a short short time with friends in New York, Miss Robertson will return to Canada for a rest.

OFFICERS OF CANADIAN FORESTERS ELECTED.

High Court at Hamilton Closes Successful Meeting.

Toronto Next Place of Meeting—Delegates Enjoy an Excursion to Grimsby Fruit District.

Hamilton, June 12.—At yesterday afternoon's session of the High Court of the Canadian Order of Foresters the remainder of the notices of motion were disposed of. The vote as to the next place of meeting drew forth spirited addresses from the advocates of the several places—Toronto, Quebec, St. Thomas, Galt, Windsor. After nine ballots had been taken, Toronto won the honour, having received the largest vote.

In the evening, after the routine of opening and the reading of the minutes, the election of officers was proceeded with, resulting as follows:—

High Chief Ranger—Geo. Faulkner, Ottawa, by acclamation.

High Vice-Chief Ranger — J. A. Stewart, Perth, acclamation.

High Secretary — Thos. White, Brantford, acclamation.

High Treasurer — John Neelands, Brantford, acclamation.

High Registrar — D. R. Kennedy, Montreal, acclamation.

High Chaplain—Rev. A. R. Galpin, London.

Chairman of Medical Board—Dr. U. M. Stanley, Brantford.

High Auditor—Thos. W. Gibson, Toronto, acclamation.

Executive Committee — Robt. Elliott, Ingersoll, acclamation; C. Leporte, Montreal, acclamation; M. D. Carroll, Montreal, acclamation; W. D. Ernsey, Toronto, acclamation; D. Allen, Grimsby.

It was after midnight when the election was over. There were three nominations for Grand Chaplain—Rev. Messrs. McRobbie, Coffin and Galpin. For the Chairman of the Medical Board the contest was between Dr. Stanley and Dr. R. C. Young, of Ridgetown.

This morning the officers were installed by D. C. Hill, D. H. C. R. of Manitoba, after which complimentary addresses were made by the officers elected.

The lodge adjourned at noon, after the following resolution was carried:

Moved by F. J. Jameson, seconded by B. Maguire, that the thanks of this High Court are hereby tendered to the press of the city, for the complete reports they have given of the proceedings of High Court meeting and the interest they have shown in the Order in publishing full reports of the proceedings, and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded the Times, Spectator and Herald.

This afternoon the visiting delegates were taken for a trip on the H., G. & B. R. as far as Grimsby. In the village the delegates were entertained by the officers of the local courts.—Times.

FARMERS ENJOY GUELPH EXCURSION.

Staff of College Gives Helpful Lectures and Demonstrations

Large Crowd of Excursionists—Sugar Beet Industry Receives Attention.

The excursion to Guelph and the Model Farm on Thursday was a most enjoyable event, and was an occasion both of pleasure and profit to all those who participated in it. About 500 excursionists were on the special train which the C.P.R. ran from all stations on this branch. Upon the arrival of the train at Guelph the great majority went to the Model Farm, where they found that very complete and pleasing arrangements had been made for their reception. Lunch was served and a tour of the many interesting departments of the Farm was made, under the guidance of the Professors of the different branches. Some attended lectures on beekeeping; others were more interested in hog raising, and visited the buildings devoted to this important branch of agriculture. A most interesting section was that devoted to fruit and here many of the fruit growers spent hours asking questions and engaging in beneficial conversation with those in charge.

A pleasing feature, and one upon which many of the visitors remarked, was the fact that everything was done by the professors and their assistants to afford every facility for obtaining the fullest information in reference to any subject in which the inquirer was interested.

The dairy industry is one which is becoming of more and more importance to the farmers in this province, and in this respect the Ontario College leads the way for all other agricultural educational institutions in America, and as cheese and butter production is claiming the intelligent attention of many of our most progressive farmers, the dairy section of the farm and the instructors in charge always found an attentive hearing when giving information as to the results obtained from the experiments made to ascertain the best dairy grades of cattle, and the most economical methods of feeding to produce a maximum quantity of milk and cream.

One subject in which many of the visitors were especially interested because of the attention which it is receiving from the leading agriculturists in Ontario was that of sugar beet culture, and as a consequence Prof. Harcourt had a large and attentive audience as he gave a lecture on the best methods in use for the successful culture of the beet. This is a subject on which a great deal of attention has been bestowed at the College, and as a result, Prof. Harcourt was able to impart considerable very useful information which will prove of great benefit to those who heard him. He said that wherever sugar beets had been grown and intelligent methods used in caring for them they had proven to be one of the best paying crops a farmer could sow, provided, of course, that the soil and climatic conditions were adapted to them. In almost any agricultural section in Central or Eastern Ontario they could be grown with splendid results, and as a sequel to this trip and the information gained on it, many of the farmers in Peterborough will no doubt embark in the culture of this root.

Everywhere around the College was manifest the great interest which the Department of Agriculture is taking in the farming population of the province. The College is the means of educating those who follow farming for a business as to the newer methods in use by the most successful farmers and stock raisers.

The live stock at the College was the subject of many very complimentary exclamations from the admiring visitors, showing as it does what careful and thoughtful breeding will accomplish along this line.

Altogether this was an occasion of great pleasure and will result in many improvements being made on the farms of those who attended. It was particularly helpful to the young men who were there; indeed it is especially that the young men of farm life is not a drudgery and that it requires as much scientific study as any profession, and the expenditure of time and money in becoming a thoroughly competent farmer, will bring a competence equal to that of any of the other walks in life, that the Ontario Agricultural College was founded and is being conducted.

RAIN HAS PROVEN OF GREAT BENEFIT.

Crops are now Refreshed and all Signs Point to a Record Harvest.

The farmers are in town to-day in full force and they all wear broad smiles. The rain which has come at a very opportune time, has supplied the necessary requisite for successful crops this year. If the old saw, "A dry May and wet June make good crops," is to be depended upon, this year should see well pleased farmers.

The Examiner in talking with representative farmers learns that all all the conditions now are very favourable for a record year's yield of all kinds of grain in Peterborough County. This fact coupled with that of the exceptionally good market here for all kinds of farm produce should go to make the tillers of the soil who are fortunate enough to have cast their lot in Peterborough County a happy and contented people.

MURDERERS TO BE SEVERELY PUNISHED.

Diplomatic Relations With Servia Broken off for Present.

Powers Declare High Positions Must not be Occupied by Assassins.

Special to the Examiner.

Rome, June 13th. — It is announced here to-day that by agreement between the powers, diplomatic relations with Servia have been broken off for the present. A semi-official note which was issued declares that whosoever be declared King of Servia the powers will demand the punishment of the murderers of King Alexander and Queen Draga, as civilized Europe cannot tolerate that high administrative military positions be occupied by assassins.

The Best Liniment.

"I have derived great benefit from the use of Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism and lumbago," says Mrs. Anna Hagelgans, of Tuckahoe, N. J. "My husband used it for a sprained back and was also quickly relieved. In fact it is the best family liniment I have ever used. I would not think of being without it. I have recommended it to many and they always speak very highly of it and declare its merits are wonderful." For sale by all druggists.

For the Denver C. E. Convention.

Very low excursion rates have been arranged from all points in Canada to Colorado, leaving July 6th, 7th, and 8th., good for return up to August 31st. Everybody can go, the rate is wide open and this is a splendid opportunity to spend a vacation among the Rockies at slight expense. The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway and connections will run special Standard First-Class and Tourist Sleeping Cars through to Denver, besides the regular daily service from Chicago.

DECORATION DAY ON THURSDAY, JUNE 18TH.

I. O. O. F. Will Decorate the Graves of Departed Brethren.

The Annual Decoration Day Ceremonies of the two lodges I.O.O.F. will be held on Thursday, June 18th. The members of Peterborough Lodge, No. 111, and Otonabee Lodge, No. 13, will assemble at 2 o'clock on the Central Park in proper regalia, and wearing white gloves and ties, where they will be joined by the 57th Regiment Band and proceed to the cemetery where appropriate services will be held, presided over by Past D. D. G. M. Bro. M. W. Matchett. An effort will be made to have a half holiday proclaimed, and it is expected this will be done, as has been the custom in the past. In addition to the very beautiful service of the I.O.O.F. ritual, addresses will be given by a number of the ministers of the town. The committees having the matter in charge are Messrs. A. Fowler, W. Dayman and Gilbert from Peterborough Lodge, and W. Higgins, W. S. Robinson and J. T. C. Laing, representing Otonabee Lodge.

All visiting brethren will be made welcome.

WEAKLY CHILDREN.

Stunted, weakly children are those whose food does them no good, because they do not digest it properly. Keep the child's digestive organs healthy and it will grow up strong and healthy and it will not cause mother much trouble while it is growing up. It is the weak children, the puny children, that wear the mother out, caring for them day and night. All this is changed when Baby's Own Tablets are used. They promote digestion, they give, sound natural sleep, they keep baby cheerful and bright. They are good for older children too, and cure all their minor ailments. It costs only 25c to prove the truth of these statements—and you will be thankful afterwards. Mrs. Archibald Sweeny, Carleton, N. S., says: "I have given my little one Baby's Own Tablets and am more than pleased with the result. I can recommend them to every mother." That's the way all mothers who have used the Tablets talk. That's the way you will talk if you will try them when your little ones are ailing. You can get the Tablets from any dealer, or they will be sent by mail at 25 cents a box by writing to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

ANOTHER SUDDEN DEATH.

Mr. Bert Kennedy Becomes Ill While Crossing Lake Ontario and Died Rochester.

The many friends of Mr. Bert Kennedy were shocked this morning to learn of his sudden death, in Rochester, on Thursday. He with Mrs. Kennedy, left Peterborough last Monday for Rochester to spend the summer with his mother, and while crossing the lake, took sick, rapidly becoming worse, until Thursday, when his death occurred.

This news comes as a great surprise to all friends of the deceased, as he was in the best of health when leaving here. He had been married only about a year and a half to Miss McCarthy, daughter of Mr. J. McCarthy, Lake street, to whom the entire sympathy of the community is now extended.

The funeral will take place in Rochester, where his father and sister are buried.

If its a bilious attack, take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and a quick recovery is certain. For sale by all druggists.

SUGAR BEET NOTES.

Prof. Shuttleworth Visits the Factory Site and Beet Fields.

The Peterborough Sugar Company had the pleasure and profit of a visit on Thursday of this week from Prof. Shuttleworth, of Berlin. He is Chief Chemist and Agriculturist at the Berlin factory, and is one of the best qualified sugar experts on the continent.

Accompanied by the Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Garvin, Dr. W. H. Jeffs, Agricultural Superintendent; Capt. George Bennett, Assistant Superintendent, the learned gentleman visited the factory grounds and a number of the beet fields. He expressed himself as delighted with the factory site, and stated that the 'stands' of beets in this community were quite as good as those in the neighbourhood of Berlin.

One of the most valuable lessons learned from the Professor was the right methods of scuffling and thinning the beets. The following are the points to be remembered:

(a) As early as the young plants can be traced in rows across the field, cultivate, and when the third and fourth leaves are nicely formed, cultivate more deeply and as closely as possible to the beets; then thin the plants from 8 to 10 inches.

(b) Sugar beets should not be hoed and thinned like turnips or mangolds. A hoe from 5 to 5 1-2 inches wide should be used and constantly kept sharp. The hoer in blocking out should not pull or shove, but simply cut through the beets leaving the loosened soil otherwise undisturbed. This loosened soil will draw and hold moisture for the beets. In a couple of days the cut plants will wither, and show clearly the tufts to be thinned.

(c) The work of thinning can best be done by active boys.

(d) 18 to 20 tons per acre of beets containing 15 per cent. or more of sugar are obtained by:

1. Clean cultivation.
2. Preventing crust formation, and
3. Increasing depth of cultivation each time until a depth of 5 to 6 inches is reached.

The Solar Plexus.

Is the largest nerve centre in the sympathetic nervous system, is situated just back of the stomach, and supplies nervous energy, the vital force of the human body, to the stomach, heart, lungs, kidneys, liver, etc. By creating nerve force Dr. Chase's Nerve Food directly aids the solar plexus in supplying the power which runs the machinery of digestion and so cures nervous dyspepsia, headache, dizzy spells and bodily weakness.

The proposal that the Grand Lodge take over the property and orphanage of the True Blue Lodge at Picton, was discussed and it was decided that this be done. The lodge also decided to erect a memorial hall to Hon. Clarke Wallace, near the True Blue Orphanage at Picton.

The invitation from the District Lodge at Picton, that the next session of the grand lodge be held there was accepted.

No manufacturer or dealer in intoxicating liquors is eligible for membership in the Orange Lodge of British America. This change in the constitution was decided upon at the session of the Grand Lodge last evening.

The delegates were entertained this afternoon and evening by a tour of the city over the street railway line, and a banquet in Scott Memorial Hall to-night. To-morrow morning the new Scott Memorial Hall will be formally dedicated, concluding the convention proceedings.

AN OLD RESIDENT DEAD.

Jas. Savigny Died This Morning at the Age of 72 Years.

This morning the death of one of Otonabee's most respected and public spirited men occurred. Mr. Jas. Savigny has for 60 years lived a peaceful, contented life, looked up to by his fellows, and known as a man of good moral standing. He was born in Scotland and came to Canada when only four years of age.

Mr. Savigny, who remained unmarried, leaves two brothers and one sister, of whom the latter and one brother lived with him until his death, the other brother resided on an adjacent farm.

The deceased had been a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church ever since its organization, and proved himself an efficient member. He passed away at the age of 72 years.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock to Little Lake Cemetery.

CONTRADICTORY CLOCKS.

What London's Costs the British Nation in Time and Shillings.

Employers of labor are slowly awakening to the fact that faulty clocks and the absence of public dials synchronized with the official standard time of the country are serious items in the competition of trade.

The waste of time in factories owing to the absence of uniformity in clocks is very great. The workman's home clock cannot generally be relied upon. When it is fast he wastes his own time; when it is slow he is late, and the value of his time is lost to his employer. The loss to both is increased if he is so late that he is "docked a quarter"—a form of punishment which confers no benefit on any one.

The rule varies with the workshop, but the difficulty of ascertaining the exact time is so pronounced that two or three minutes after the hour for resuming labor are allowed to the workman. Take it that there is a leakage, a pure waste, of five minutes for every workman on each of the 300 working days of the year. That means a yearly waste of 1,500 minutes, which, at 6d. an hour, comes to 12s. 6d. If there were only a million of working people in the United Kingdom—which is absurd—it represents a sum of £625,000 per annum, without counting the profit lost to the employers in consequence of the labor lost.

The need for the synchronization of public clocks may be shown by a fact familiar to all who have been in factory districts. The "buzzers," or steam sirens, which are blown to call men to work or to inform them of the time to cease, do not signal simultaneously, but in procession. There are as many roars as sirens, and the workman must be sorely perplexed to gather which is telling the truth.

The methodical German knows the value of time better than his English competitor. His clocks are synchronized with the standard time officially exhibited by the State, and each man registers the time of his arrival when he reaches his place of work.

The method of synchronization is simple and scientific. At the sixtieth second of the sixtieth minute Greenwich Observatory sends over the electric wire a time signal—the ring of a bell—to the General Postoffice, which transmits it to branch Postoffices and subscribers. The Standard Time Company improves upon this by attaching to its subscribers' clocks an ingenius electrical mechanism which seizes the minute hand and places it on the centre of the figure of twelve, at the same time ringing a bell.

Thus, however bad a clock may be, it is automatically set right once every hour.—London Mail.

TRIED AGAIN AND WAS CURED.

A. Bailey, After Repeated Disappointments, Used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

And now his old Pain is Gone for Good and he can do any Kind of Stooping or Lifting Work.

Winnipeg, Man., June 8.—(Special.)—So many deaths are now charged to Kidney Disease and ailments resulting from disordered Kidneys that the cure of Mr. H. Bailey, of 256 Patrick street, of this city, is being widely discussed. Mr. Bailey says:

"Some time ago I suffered a lot with pains across my back and in the region of the Kidneys. I had spent considerable money in England treating this ailment, but got no permanent relief.

"All by chance I read of some wonderful cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills and though my previous failures made me hesitate I finally decided to try them. It was a fortunate thing for me that I did.

"After taking three boxes, I found myself perfectly free from any pain whatever, and no matter what stooping or lifting work I do, I never have the old pain.

"It is now two years since I was cured, and I think in justice to Dodd's Kidney Pills, I have the right to recommend them to anyone suffering from Kidney Disease."

Two Deaths Near St. John.

St. John, N. B., June 13.—Edward Oldenberg, barber, was killed while coupling cars on the Canadian Eastern Railway at Marysville, York County, yesterday morning. The man was not an employe of the road, but had been in the habit of coupling cars in the yard as a sort of recreation between shaves. Andrew Henry, of St. Mary's, York County, while working with a derrick on the highway road bridge at Boundary Creek, Salisbury, N. B., on I.C.R., was killed yesterday by hoisting gear falling.

Steel Industry in Canada.

Montreal, June 13.—William Jessop, the great steel manufacturer of Sheffield, England, yesterday announced that on his return he will recommend that his company found a branch in Canada.

Let Others Experiment.

There is always something new in the way of medical treatment and you are constantly invited to try new-fangled, unproven remedies. Let others experiment and so lose time and risk health. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have been tried in the crucible of time, won the approval of public opinion and demonstrated their right to a place in every home as a family medicine.

Our Friend From Jamaica.

Ottawa, June 13.—Hon. Sydney Oliver, the Colonial Secretary of Jamaica, has arrived in the city. His mission here is to interview the Government with a view of getting an improved steamship service between Canada and Jamaica. The Island has voted £2,500. Mr. Oliver wants Canada to assist. In the meantime Canada gives $15,000 a year to Messrs. Pickford & Black of Halifax, for a monthly service to Jamaica.

Lumbermen Fined.

Ottawa, June 13. — J. R. Booth and Hon. Senator Edwards were fined $1 and costs by Magistrate O'Keefe yesterday for piling lumber in the city limits. Their defence was that the bylaw is ultra vires and they will appeal.

Too Great a Risk.

In almost every neighbourhood someone has died from an attack of colic or cholera morbus, often before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. A reliable remedy for these diseases should be kept at hand. The risk is too great for anyone to take. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has undoubtedly saved the lives of more people and relieved more pain and suffering than any other medicine in use. It can always be depended upon. For sale by all druggists.

The Canadian Lords.

Dr. Landerkin restrains his jesting tongue in the Senate. A real, rollicking, lively jeu d'esprit would be like to send the venerable gentlemen into convulsions, not of merriment, but of rage. Jokes are bad form in the Senate, in fact, a good many things are bad form in the Upper Chamber. Long speeches are bad form; vigorous speeches are bad form; for many years, even the presence of Liberal Senators was such bad form that the Government of the day never essayed to violate this canon of Parliamentary taste. Now, however, the times have changed and the Senatorial customs with them. Thus new Conservative Senators are now outre, and you don't see any new ones. —Dey by Day, in Toronto News.

What the Girls Say.

Many a woman thinks a man is all right, because his diamond ring's true.

Many a woman freezes a man just to make him stop thinking that he cuts ice.

It all depends upon the man whether a woman's last word is her sweetest or her hatefulest.

CLEANING TIME.

GIRD yourselves with gingham aprons, oh, ye women of the land!
Pin your skirts to clear your shoe tops, take the scrubbing brush in hand;
Boil up alkaline infusions, turn the whole house upside down;
Slop the floors with soap and water, heedless of your husbands' frown;
Yank up carpets, rugs and matting, jerk the pictures from the walls;
Have your pails of suds where we can stumble o'er them in the halls;
Pile the stairs till they are worse than any Alpine steeps to climb;
Have the regular old picnic incident to cleaning time.

Fill the bath tub with umbrellas, books and shoes and bric-a-brac;
Heap upon the grand piano kitchen dishes in a stack;
Set the dinner on the mantel, though there's little time to eat;
See that every one who enters wipes with care his muddy feet;
Keep the windows all wide open as you ply the mop and broom;
Have a hot and steamy vapor permeating every room;
Swab and scrub and splash and spatter in your fight with winter grime;
Revel in the moist discomfort incident to cleaning time.

Have the men with whitewash brushes spread the tinted calcimine;
Take all necessary bedding out and air it on the line;
Have the furniture revarnished till the odor makes one faint;
See that all the woodwork glistens with a coat of shining paint;
Don't have anything to sit on, sleep on, eat on; also frown
When you hear a meek suggestion as to "some hotel downtown;"
Let the masculine complainer know it's nothing short of crime
Not to make one's life a burden in the glad spring cleaning time.

How He Declined.

Lady—Doctor, I wish you would call around to see my husband some evening when he is at home. Do not let him know that I asked you, because he declares he is not sick, but I know he has consumption or something. He's going into a decline.

Doctor—I am astonished, but I will call. What are his symptoms?

Lady—He hasn't any except weakness. He used to hold me on his lap by the hour, and now even the baby tires him.—West Union (W. Va.) Record.

A Wise Youngster.

"Are you married?" asked the five-year-old guest who was visiting his mother.

"Why, yes, Teddy. You knew I was married, for you heard the others call me Mrs. Mead, and you call me Mrs. yourself."

"Yes, of course," said the five-year-old. "But I thought maybe we called you that because you were sensitive about being called miss."—Philadelphia Ledger.

How one Woman Describes her Case

A Letter of Interest to Every Woman who Feels That her Health is not as it Should be and who Needs

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This lady writes: — I am the mother of four children, and as they are all quite young they require considerable care and attention. This, along with the regular housework, has proved too much of a strain on my nervous system, and my health is not at all good. The doctor pronounced my trouble nervous indigestion, and although he is giving me medicine, I do not seem to improve much.

"In the first place my head aches nearly all the time, a dull ache and dizzy and blinding feelings come over me as though I would fall over. I don't sleep well, have no appetite, no desire for anything or interest in anything. I can't enjoy company, and even the noise of the children irritates me. While others are enjoying life, I seem to be in constant fear that something dreadful is going to happen.

"Sometimes I have pains under my left shoulder blade, and a burning round my left side; then a cold unnatural feeling and numbness comes over my left side, and I have stomach pains and wind on the stomach. My eyesight is also affected, as when I begin to read my eyes get dizzy and the print seems to dazzle the eyes.'

We quote this letter because it describes so well the kind of cases in which Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is most successful. More blood is needed—more rich, life-sustaining blood, and there is no preparation known to science which is so effective in forming new blood as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Through the medium of the circulation of the blood and the nervous system this great food cure carries new vigour to the vital organs, revitalizes the wasted nerve cells, and permanently benefits the whole system.

By noting your increase in weight while using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you can prove that new, firm flesh and tissue is being added to the body. Fifty cents a box; six boxes for $2.50; at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author are on every box.

SNAKE HYPNOTISM.

Graham Peck, a well-known authority on snakes, was asked his opinion regarding a snake's hypnotic powers. His reply was as follows:

"There is a certain power to fascinate in a snake's eyes and movements. I saw only the other day a typical illustration of the power of a snake to fascinate. Over in the pine woods I saw a ground squirrel fascinated by a black gopher snake. The forked tongue darted out of the snake's mouth almost as regularly and rapidly as the needle of a sewing machine rises and falls. The squirrel seemed to watch it spellbound. The snake crept slowly nearer. When the gopher snake was within two or three inches of the squirrel it gave a leap and threw three coils about the squirrel. Instantly the spell was gone. The fascination or charm there had been over the little animal was no doubt broken the very moment the serpent's coils were about the squirrel, for the animal gave three convulsive, terrified shirps and realized that its death moment had come. I believe implicitly that all snakes have a certain degree of power to fascinate their victims to death. Blacksnakes, gopher snakes and racers have the power to a large degree. Rattlesnakes have the most fascinating power among all the poisonous serpents in the Southwest. The indications of charming among poisonous snakes are deceiving sometimes. Poisonous snakes fang their prey once only. The poison does not kill at once. The victim flutters to a branch, it may be, or runs a short distance and stops. The snake watches it. The poison does its deadly work, and the bird falls. Anyone who comes up, not having seen the attack, might be readily deceived into imagining that it was the glance of the snake and not the poison that caused the victim to fall.

Ancient.

Robson found Smith engaged in vigorously polishing his shoes. "What are you doing that for?" he asked. "I always thought you wore patent leather."

"These used to be patent leather," replied Smith, painfully bringing his spinal column into its normal position, "but the patent on them has expired."

OF THE MAD MULLAH

BRIEF BUT INTERESTING SKETCH OF HIS CAREER.

Mahomed Abdullah Has Been Preacher, Pilgrim and Pretender—Character and Temperament of the Dangerous Fanatic Was Entirely Changed as the Result of a Trip to Mecca—How He Gained Influence.

Writing from Obbie, a special correspondent gives the following brief, but interesting sketch of the Mullah's career:—

It is possible to doubt if the devout disciple of Mahomed Salih, sitting at the feet of the seer of Mecca in years now gone beyond remembrance, was then planning the triumphant displacement of the infidel within the confines of Somaliland. In those days, rather circumstances go to show that he was the earnest seeker after a better life, and a true believer in the Scriptures as propounded by his elders. However, his journey to Mecca brought about a curious change in the character and temperament of the man. The teaching of Mahomet Salih appealed to his nature, and the Mullah returned to his own country with the intention of reviving the religious spirit of his people.

By name Mahomed Abdullah, and belonging to the Sabr Suleiman section of the Ogaden tribe in the southwest of the Somali country, he had married into the Ali Kherri, one of the Dolbahanta tribes in the southeast of the British protectorate. By this means he had extended his influence from Abyssinia in the west to the borders of Italian Somaliland in the east, when, after his return from Mecca, in 1895, he retired to Kob Fardo, his place of residence, and a village inhabited by Mullahs in the Dolbahanta country, 170 miles from Berbera.

Up to this point, Mahomed Abdullah had shown no very decided animus against the British suzerainty over Somaliland, and it appeared as he were content with the homage paid to his learning and devotional sincerity by the Ogaden and Dolbahanta tribes. His fame continued to increase, and he won no little respect for his authority by the tribes electing to regard him as a court of appeal in their tribal disputes. Similarly, and with some measure of success, he strove to put down raiding. He also continued his pilgrimages to Mecca, every visit adding to his reputation and increasing his influence.

From these beginnings, he initiated in 1899 a religious movement in which he was at once joined by the tribes that hitherto had supported him, while a number of others identified themselves with him at the time and deserted him at a later period, as their interests dictated. His policy now underwent a change, and it was quite evident that Mahomed Abdullah was exerting his influence to excite the tribes to rebellion against British authority. He resorted to force in his efforts to gain supporters where he had previously employed persuasion, and he levied tolls and fines as punishments upon those who withstood his overtures. Early in 1899 he raided the territory of the Habr Yunis, and, occupying Burao, the Mullah proclaimed his intention of ruling the interior as his own sphere and leaving the coast to the foreigners. After an immediate return to Bohotle, he reappeared in August, 1899, at Burao, continuing his march with 5,000 men, of whom 1,500 were horsemen and 200 had rifles, to Upper Sheik. In the meantime he moved as far west as Odwein, harried the country around Sheik and at the end of September withdrew to Bohotle, moving thence to Lassader.

His appearance at Upper Sheik created a scare at Berbara, only some fifteen miles distant, and with no very adequate means of defense, but the arrival at this port of H.M.S. Pomone and R.I.M.S. Minto, restored confidence. The Mullah, however, advanced no nearer to the coast than Upper Sheik, claiming, when he saw the searchlights of the two ships from the peaks of the Golis range, that they were the eyes of God looking upon his crusade with favor. In other ways he began to boast possession of supernatural powers asserting that he could hear with his own ears in the Dolbahanta what was said about him in Berbara, and repeated the old story—familiar in the Soudan as among the Boxers—of being able to turn bullets into water. He was now animated by the frenzy of the fanatic, and in subsequent raids his attacks were accompanied with fierce slaughter which made his name the terror of the tribes. He took the lives of those who refused to assist him, and exacted instant and absolute submission in all who followed him.

Early in 1900 the Mullah raided the Ogaden, obtaining the submission of the Rer Abdilleh, the Rer Harum and the Rer Ali. In consequence of this, the Abyssinians sent two forces of mounted infantry to punish these tribes, but failing to find the Mullah the Abyssinian columns, after raiding the tribal territory, retired to Harrar and Jig Jigga. A few weeks later, in March, the force in garrison at Jig Jigga was attacked by some six thousand of the Mullah's followers, under the guidance of the principal officers, and incited by the Mullah himself. Inspired by an assurance that the Abyssinian bullets had been rendered powerless, the Mullah's forces attacked with the greatest gallantry, charging repeatedly up to the edge of the defences, and in several places seizing the rifles of the defenders before they were themselves shot down. In the end they were completely defeated, being repulsed with a loss of 2,650 killed. The Abyssinians were, however, too shaken to pursue, and the Mullah was left for a time in undisturbed possession of Ogaden, maintaining his headquarters at Milmil with an escort of 500 rifles and 500 spearmen. Although defeated by the Abyssinians, the Mullah suffered little loss of prestige, and the number of his forces was not materially reduced. Arms continued to reach him, and in May, a short time after the fight at Jig Jigga, he felt himself strong enough to bring off a sudden raid upon British tribes in the Haud. By this swoop he captured 2,000 camels, and caused the British tribes to abandon the Haud in confusion. A company of the 2nd Battalion King's African Rifles that had arrived in the protectorate in the previous February was sent to Burao and to Odwein, but a few weeks later, in September, the Mullah repeated his foray in a different direction. Upon this occasion he raided the Abyssinian Habr Awal at Herebe, capturing immense numbers of camels and live stock. The malarious condition of the Ogaden country, into when the Mullah had again retired, prevented the projected pursuit by the Abyssinian force taking place, and the Somali and Abyssinian sections of the Habr Awal took matters into their own hands. Their efforts were without material result, and the Mullah was left in enjoyment of his spoils. By this time the influence of Mahomed Abdullah dominated the southern portion of his own protectorate, as well as wide stretches inland in the Italian and Abyssinian spheres. It had now become an object of extreme importance to dislodge and to subdue him. In January, 1901, expeditions were arranged in conjunction with the Abyssinian force, and later in the same year the first British expedition was dispatched.—Manchester Guardian.

MY STAR.

By Arthur Weir.

"There is a star in the pure ether high,
My other home it is,
Whereto, when sorrow threatens me, I fly,
And in my flight towards the vaulted sky
The hated sorrows roll
Down from my fleet-winged soul,
As from the sea-gull's circling form the spray
Drops to the storm-vext bay
Its pinions erst did kiss.

"Well said the Seer that overstudy brought
A weariness of the flesh;
And oft my brain, worn with its overthought,
Watches the night steal past, while sleep comes not.
Then doth my star arise
Slowly before my eyes,
Steady, serene and cold, yet heavenly bright,
And, while my grief takes flight,
Binds all my thoughts in leash.

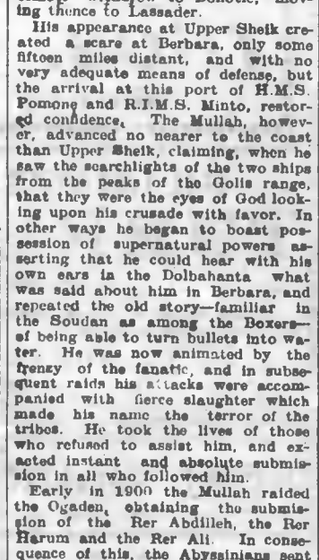
"No longer fear and discontent combine
To make my future drear,
For I arise from that star of mine
Look down and see our small earth dimly shine;
And all life's joy and pain
Their proper worth obtain,
And I to smile at all past fears begin.
For earth's discordant din
Is stilled, and God I hear."

COUGHED FOR YEARS.

"For four years I had a severe cough. I was so weak and exhausted from coughing that I was unable to attend to my business. Two bottles of Angier's Petroleum Emulsion cured my cough and benefitted me in every way."—A. Milligan, Toronto, Canada. 3a

Quite Harmless.

A Londoner, just arrived at a Scottish town, and on his way to a hotel, addressed the porter who led the way: "Not a large place this?" "No verra," was the answer. Next question came: "Has it a corporation?" "A what, sir?" enquired the baggage bearer. "I mean, who rules it?" "Rules it? Jist the Provost." "Ah, the Provost. Like our Lord Mayor? Has he got any insignia?" remarked the cockney. "Insignia! What d'ye mean?" quoth the puzzled Scotsman. "Yes, insignia; that is to say, has he a chain?" the polite visitor hinted. Whereupon the almost dumbfounded native gasped out: "A chain, sir? The Provost chained? Na, na! He gangs loose; but dinna be feared, he's quite harmless."—St. James' Gazette.



The Best Medicine for Mothers

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

"Words cannot express how grateful I am for your kind advice and your 'Favorite Prescription,'" writes Mrs. D. B. Barricks, of Perrows, Campbell Co., Va. "I feel that it has cured me. I had been in poor health for four years. Suffered greatly with my right side, also with bearing down pains, and my nerves were in a dreadful state. After using four bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' I am now well. I am the mother of two children. With the first child I suffered twenty-eight hours, and with the second I used your medicine and was sick only three hours. I believe Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to be the best medicine in the world for suffering females. I wish you great success, and hope that God will bless you in your noble work."

A ROYAL ARTIST.

Duchess of Argyll Is a Woman of Much Talent.

The fuss which has been made over the picture of a friend exhibited by the Duchess of Argyll reminds one that the late Sir Edgar Boehm, who was a good judge, had a very high opinion of the Duchess' talent as an artist, and especially as a sculptor. She was his pupil and used often to visit his studio. She has a very practical studio at Kensington Palace, where she has executed most of her works, including the picture referred to above, the sitting statue of the late Queen which faces the Round Pond, the statue of the late Queen, which she did for Manchester Cathedral, and the bust of the late Queen which stands in the gallery of the Institute of Water Colors in Piccadilly.

The Duchess of Argyll has been favored by time, and at the present day she hardly looks over thirty. Her figure has preserved its grace and slimness. Her features are good; she has the long, straight nose and large eyes of the Royal family. Her hair is soft and abundant. She is a thorough mistress of the art of dress and is the best dressed of the Royal sisters. She has a certain amount of dramatic power and looked magnificent in the tableux vivants which Princess Beatrice used to arrange at Balmoral and Osborne in the last reign. Her musical talents have excited the admiration of so competent a critic as Herr Johannes Wolff, the violinist. Like all her family, she is keenly interested in charity.—London Tatler.

It Made a Difference.

The "heckling" of Parliamentary candidates in England continues to supply election stories. One of the latest is told by Mr. Renshaw, Unionist member for Renfrew. At a Liberal meeting a speaker had said he was in favor of "free fishing." The following evening Mr. Renshaw addressed a meeting in the same place. A similar question was put to him. "No, I am not in favor of free fishing," returned Mr. Renshaw.

"Well," said the heckler, "the Liberal who spoke here last said he was in favor of it."

Mr. Renshaw's answer was rather unexpected. "That is very likely," he observed. "But you see I happen to be the owner of all the fishing around here!"

The oven of an Imperial Oxford Range and the old-fashioned spit before an open fireplace do better roasting than any other cooking apparatus invented.

In the olden days the spit had to be kept turning to get all sides of a roast cooked. It is much the same with the ordinary cook-stove. The heat of the oven is greatest on the fire side—roasts, bread, pies, cakes, etc., have to be turned and twisted to get them cooked at all. The result is uneven, unsatisfactory cooking—good food ruined. The diffusive flue construction of the draws fresh air into the flue chamber, super-heats it and diffuses it evenly over the oven, thus heating it quickly, thoroughly and uniformly—back, front and sides are at the same equal temperature. The result is juicy, tender roasts, light, dainty pastry, evenly raised bread—successful cooking.

When you buy an Imperial Oxford Range you get the result of over sixty years' thought and experience in scientific construction of cooking apparatus.

Is the Best Mining Investment on the Market To-day.

It's mines are in three great mining camps in Idaho, Thunder Mountain and Trinity County, California. It has vast bodies of ore already above ground and extensive workings under ground, thus enough insight for its three plants for years. It has one-third of the stock in another company that has the biggest and richest reef of ore (all above ground) in the world. All it has to do is to wait for dividends on this stock. It has a capable honest and reliable Management. The price of stock is very low for the present, virtually ground floor.

QUOTATIONS ON THE WALL STREET MARKET

Wall Street Stocks Maintained Yesterday's Advice.

The Quotations of the Leading Stocks —Market Letters.

The Wall street market to-day maintained its strength of yesterday and there were several stocks that made additional advances. One of the features of the Board was the advance in Dominion Coal although it fell back on the close to 89 3-4. Soo common was a particularly strong issue, opening at 57 1-2 and going as high as 63. Its closing quotation was 61 1-2. C P R opened at 124 5-8, and closed at 124 after climbing to 124 7-8. Twin City advanced to 97 1-4 during the day. There were signs of profit taking towards the close of the market.

Messrs. McMillan & Maguire, stock brokers, Hunter street, have received the following :—

New York, June 13th. — Northwest officials sanguine on crop outlook. Dunns' Review says although some exerted unfavourable influence on trade situation net result is encouraging. Bradstreets says weather crop and labour conditions all show improvement this week. Sixty four roads for April sho wnet increase 14.72. Thirty-four roads for 1st week of June show gross increase 8.75. Application for receiver may defeat shipbuilding re-organization. Large international banking houses heavy buyers of stocks and low priced bonds. Favourable bank statement expected. Said Morgan interest recent buyer N.Y.C.; trade bullish on sugar prospects. Currency movements show banks gained $4,237,100. Dominion Government will guarantee bonds of Grand Trunk between Quebec and Winnipeg at 3 per cent. for twenty years. Demand for coal in West increasing. Immigration figures make new high record. Twelve industrials advanced 1.10. Twenty active roads advanced 1.70.

DOW, JONES & CO.

I am a bull on the situation but cannot advise buying on this short bulge. P.o.its should be taken where you have them on the chance of buying back cheaper within the next ten days. The little shorts covered a lot of stocks this afternoon. The big shorts covered Wednesday.

RIDGELY.

CHEAP STOCKS.

The following market letter has been received by Messrs. McMillan & Maguire, stock brokers, Hunter street:

In view of the great decline in the price of stocks in the past six months, and in view of the fact that people with money are now coming into the street in quite considerable numbers looking for bargains, it may be advisable to direct attention to some of the cheap stocks at present in the market.

Atchison has fallen some 25 points since the beginning of the year, and at present prices yields a trifle over 6 per cent. to the purchaser on the basis of 4 per cent. dividends. The earning capacity of the company this year may safely be figured at double the dividend being paid after providing the equivalent of 2 1-2 per cent. more for sinking fund for the debentures. It may be that as many people in Wall Street seem to think Atchison is going to repeat its past history, but so far there is nothing in the figures to show it.

Baltimore & Ohio pays 5 per cent. to the investor at present prices, and the system is earning probably two and one-half times the dividend on the common stock. The price is down not far from 40 points from the high level of last year. Possibly, Baltimore & Ohio, as some people profess to think, may once again fall upon evil days as those of 1895, but the figures do not show it or anything like it.

St. Paul common at present prices yields 4.7 per cent., and there can be very little question as to the ability of the road to pay its present dividend short of widespread disaster.

Delaware & Hudson yields well over 4 per cent on its 7 per cent. dividend at present prices, and is known to be earning something like 25 per cent. on its stock this year. Furthermore, plans are on foot whereby the value of the outstanding stock is likely to be materially enhanced in the future.

Illinois Central yields close upon 5 per cent. and is certainly earning double its dividend at least.

Louisville & Nashville, earning 13 per cent. this year and paying 5 per cent. giving the investor a yield of 4 6-8 per cent. with every assurance of indefinite continuance.

Manhattan, a guaranteed 7 per cent. stock, with earnings equal to more than the guarantee, strong as the guarantee is, yields 5.3 per cent.

Metropolitan yields practically 6 per cent., and people who ought to know say the guarantee is sufficiently good.

Missouri Pacific, which will this year earn at least 12 per cent. and is paying 5 per cent., yields at present prices, with dividend accrued, well over 5 per cent. on the money invested.

Norfolk & Western yields over 5 per cent. on its present basis of dividends, and there is at least a probability of an advance in the rate next year. The company is probably 8 per cent. on the common stock this year.

Pennsylvania at present prices hardly needs comment.

Southern Pacific is now selling some 3 points below the price at which Union Pacific made its investment in the road without reckoning interest. Counting interest at 4 per cent., the buyer of Southern Pacific stock to-day gets it about 12 points lower than Union Pacific got its holding. Meanwhile, with no increase in capital, some $30,000,000 has been put into the property. It is reasonably certain that some day Union Pacific will secure a good revenue from its investment in the Southern Pacific proeprty.

Union Pacific is paying over 5 per cent. on the money to the holder of its common stock at present prices, and is earning at least two and one-half times the dividend that it is paying. The price is down close upon 30 points since January.

These are perhaps the most striking of what must be considered a rather interesting list of cheap stocks.

ANOTHER DISASTER.

Elgin Loan Company Closes Its Doors at St. Thomas.

THE MANAGER IS A FUGITIVE.

Mr. Rowley's Sudden Departure on Sunday Night Determined the Directors to Place the Affairs of the Company in a Liquidator's Hands—Promise Depositors Will Be Paid in Full.

St. Thomas, June 16.—This city was stirred to its depths yesterday morning by the closing of the old established Elgin Loan and Savings Co., which had been looked upon as secure as any of the banks.

The crisis was precipitated by the sudden departure Sunday night of Geo. Rowley, the manager.

John Baird, the president of the Elgin Company is nonplussed at the situation. "We know Mr. Rowley has gone," he said, "but have no knowledge of why he left. The directors placed implicit confidence in him and he did practically all the office work himself. It will require some time to find out the position, and in the meantime we decided to suspend payment."

The following notice posted on the door of the company yesterday morning was the first intimation the general public had of the condition of affairs:—

"Owing to the absence of the manager, the directors have decided to suspend payment for the present for the purpose of investigating the affairs of the company."

The directors could tell nothing pending an investigation of the books. The officers of the company are John Baird, president; D. K. Mackenzie, vice-president; directors, Angus Murray, John McCausland, A. W. Graham, L. Millington and Albert Couse.

The amount on deposit at present is about $180,000. President Baird states that no securities have been hypothecated, all the mortgages and other securities remaining in the vault.

The company completed 24 years of existence last December and had had the fullest confidence of the public.

The last annual statement of the Elgin Loan Company showed profits for the year of $15,249, to which a balance brought forward from previous year of $6,365 was added, making total profits of $21,614. One thousand dollars was added to the reserve, and $11,917 was paid in dividends at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, paid half-yearly. The balance to credit of profit and loss was $7,-416.

The total assets of the company amount to $460,203. Liabilities on stock to $240,000, and the reserve is $20,000.

Mr. Rowley has been one of the leading citizens of this place and was looked upon as a wealthy man. He has been an official of the First Methodist Church for many years, and he and his family stand high in social circle. His integrity has never been doubted, and his friends cannot understand why he left the city.

It is said he transferred all his property to the company before leaving. A report is current that he was involved in Atlas Loan to the extent of $40,000, and this is the only rumor about which there are some unfavorable remarks. It is thought that he may have been personally speculating in stocks and overstepped the bounds of prudence. Mr. Baird states that in all probability the appointment of a liquidator will be asked for. Mr. Baird also said positively that the securities were intact and that depositors would certainly be paid dollar for dollar.

PETER I. OF SERVIA.

Elected According to Program—He Accepts the Position—Issues a Statement—Col. Maschin Popular.

Belgrade, June 16.—Prince Peter Karageorgevitch at 12.15 p. m. was unanimously elected King of Servia by the Senate and Skupatchina in joint session. He has accepted. He will take a special train from Genoa for Belgrade Thursday evening by way of Vienna.

King Peter has issued a statement from Genoa. In it he thanks the Servians who have shown a desire to return to the traditions of their ancestors. He promises to be faithful to those traditions, drawing special inspiration from the memories of his regretted father. The King promises to ignore all that has happened during the past forty years and not to bear ill will to those who opposed him.

PETER I. OF SERVIA.

He concludes with promising to respect the right of all employes of the state, whom he invites to retain the positions to which they are legally entitled, and to resume the normal condition of their duties.

King Peter will go to Belgrade, accompanied by his Swiss attendants. His residence at Genoa is watched by private detectives.

The day's proceedings on the whole were characterized by singular impressiveness. Only in the unreserved admiration shown for Col. Maschin and other conspirators could it be seen that the event was eminently popular. It was evident during the ceremony, where Col. Maschin stood conspicuously among the numerous brilliant uniforms and decorations, how proud he is of his work.

SAW THE STRUGGLE

Glory Whalen Had With Men Who Murdered Her.

MRS. WM. FINDLAY'S STORY.

Mrs. Johnston Heard Screams of the Child and Then a Pistol Shot—Never Mentioned the Facts to the Authorities—Evidence Strong Against Two Tramps—Finding of the Coroner's Jury.

Collingwood, June 16.—The inquest touching the death of Glory Whalen on the 27th May was opened last night by Mrs. Whalen telling of her murdered child's last preparations for and departure for school. She saw no strangers, nor had she nor her child an enemy that she knew of.

Mrs. William Findlay told how on the morning of the murder, between 8 and 9 o'clock, she saw two men near the stile that crosses into the bush where Glory was killed. Directly behind them she saw a little girl walking towards Collingwood. She saw one of the men, the taller of the two, dart back towards the approaching girl, who turned and ran across the track as if dodging. The girl ran across the track twice and turned back towards the Kendall residence. The girl gave a faint scream, and witness saw the man catch her and half-drag, half-walk her up the track to where the other man stood. They disappeared over the embankment, going toward the swamp where the girl was found dead next day. She did not raise a cry, and did not know why she did not suspect that murder was being done. She told the story three days later to two neighbors when they were going to see the place where the murder was committed. The next week she told her pastor, and the following day the authorities.

Mrs. Elizabeth Johnston, who lives less than a fourth of a mile from the scene, testified that she heard the child scream and heard one pistol shot. The screams continued so long that she noticed it, but thought they proceeded from children screaming at horses or cattle, and that the pistol shot was by some of the town boys. The pistol shot came about 15 minutes after the screams ceased. She did not connect these sounds until two or three days after the murder when she began to tell her neighbors.

The one man who saw and is able to identify the two tramps is Wm. Pelch, a young man of about twenty-three, who works in the shipyards. He was the last witness called. On the Sunday before the murder Pelch was passing through the swamp when he almost stumbled on the negro and the white man lying on the grass asleep. They woke up. He stopped and spoke to them for a couple of minutes. The colored man was the larger of the two, and had on dark striped pants and a long, light checked coat. His companion had black or dark clothes, with a heavy undershirt, and Pelch noticed particularly that he had tied around his neck a white handkerchief. On the following Tuesday, the day previous to the crime, Pelch again saw the negro near the station, and a few minutes later met the white tramp near the Globe Hotel. The two went and had a drink together, and Pelch noticed that the white man still had around his neck the white handkerchief.

Crown Attorney Cotter explained to the jury that the handkerchief found tied around the head of the girl had folds in it as if it had been worn around the neck.

"I believe those are the two men who committed the crime," remarked the Crown Attorney.

After the Crown Attorney's address to the jury, the following verdict was returned:

"We find that Glory Whalen was foully murdered at the town of Collingwood on or about May 27th, 1903, at the hands of some person or persons unknown, but the evidence points strongly towards two tramps, a white and colored one, who were seen in the neighborhood about that time. We strongly recommend that the authorities commit to the Central all tramps found in future who are unable to give a proper account of themselves, and that the Provincial authorities leave no stone unturned to discover the murderer or murderers, and that a liberal reward be offered by them as an extra inducement to such discovery, and, further, that the town of Collingwood offer a reward."

A STRAY BULLET.

Alex. Chambers of Islington Shot in the Head—Is Dead.

Toronto Junction, June 16.—Word has just been received here of a mysterious shooting accident which occurred at Islington yesterday morning. William Hawkins, who lives on the Appleby farm, and two hired men were repairing a fence, when one of the men, named Alex. Chambers, was struck on the head by a rifle bullet, which penetrated the skull, and it is thought will result fatally. The source from which the bullet came is unknown, although it is supposed to be from the gun of a man who was shooting meadow larks in the neighborhood yesterday morning. Chambers is a middle-aged Englishman who has labored on farms about Islington for some time.

Died in a Few Minutes.

Later.—The ball entered Chambers' left temple, passed through the brain, and was found in a flattened condition in the flesh of the right temple. He died a few minutes afterwards. Dr. Clendenan, coroner for the district, was notified, and opened an inquest at the farmhouse of Mr. Hawkins, where Mr. Chambers lived last evening.

SANK ON JUNE 10.

Captain, Mate and Six Men of the Steamer Rubens Drowned.

Christiansand, Norway, June 16.—The Belgian steamer Rubens, bound from Sunderland, England, for Pillau, East Prussia, capsized and sank June 10. The captain, mate and six men were drowned. Seven other members of the crew drifted in a small boat for twenty-four hours, during which time three of them died from exposure. The others were picked up.

Body of Clarence Baylis.

Port Colborne, June 16.—The body found Sunday in the lake has been identified as that of Clarence Baylis of Lockport, N.Y., one of the boys who went down with the yacht Emma Dietrich. It was taken to Lockport at noon yesterday.

Young women may avoid much sickness and pain, says Miss Alma Pratt, if they will only have faith in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I feel it my duty to tell all young women how much Lydia E. Pinkham's wonderful Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was completely run down, unable to attend school, and did not care for any kind of society, but now I feel like a new person, and have gained seven pounds of flesh in three months.

"I recommend it to all young women who suffer from female weakness."—Miss ALMA PRATT, Holly, Mich.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

FREE MEDICAL ADVICE TO YOUNG WOMEN.

All young girls at this period of life are earnestly invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham for advice; she has guided in a motherly way hundreds of young women; her advice is freely and cheerfully given; her address is Lynn, Mass.

Judging from the letters she is receiving from so many young girls Mrs. Pinkham is inclined to the belief that our girls are pushed altogether too near the limit of their endurance nowadays in our public schools and seminaries; less learning and more health needed.

A COMPARISON OF CONDITIONS.

Belgrade Atrocities Have Counterparts in American Cities.

So-called "Civilized" World is not Entitled to be Called Such—Tribute to Canadian Respect for law.

(Toronto Globe.)

A number of recent occurrences may well occasion doubts whether even that part of the world which we refer to as "civilized" is really entitled to that urbane appellation. The Kishineff horror, and the ghastly events which are recorded from Belgrade, would be decidely more appropriate if placed in Dahomey or Somaliland, than in that Europe which we regard as the birthplace of human modern life. The pity of it is that if we look nearer home the prospect is not much more reassuring. An appeal has been made to President Roosevelt to communicate to the Russian Court, something in the shape of a protest, expressing the feeling of abhorrence with which the news of the slaughter of the Jews at Kishineff had been received in America. More than one of the newspapers have reminded their readers, however, that the Czar might very properly request the President to turn his attention nearer home, to the burning of negroes in the south, and that when he had stopped that practice it would be time enough for him to concern himself about affairs in other countries.

During the very period that the proposals to memorialize the Russian Government were being made, more than one of these events occurred to justify such a reply on the part of the Czar. Only the other day a negro school teacher in Belleville, Illinois, shot a school inspector with whom he had a quarrel. Belleville is neither a southern nor a new, wild western town, but a quiet place in Illinois, which was the home of white men before Chicago was founded. The negro's crime was of course a most serious one. Fortunately his victim did not die, although the criminal is not entitled to any credit for that. It was a crime, however, which if committed by a white man, would have insured an arrest, a trial, and a term of imprisonment, with a possible pardon after a year or two. But as it was a negro it was altogether different. He was arrested and locked in jail. That night a mob surrounded the jail. While this disorganized multitude were outside clamoring for a production of the prisoner, a body of men with a semblance of discipline in their ranks rode up to the building. They carried with them sledge hammers, cold chisels and a railway rail to be used as a battering ram. With these implements they broke open doors and cut away bars that prevented them getting at the object of their wrath. At length, after prolonged efforts, during which no attempt was made by those in charge of the prisoner to oppose the mob, they arrived at the prisoner's cell. When the assault on the prison first began the wretch cowered in abject terror of the fate that awaited him, but when his executioners arrived at his door he assumed the courage of despair. A tall, powerful fellow, he rushed at his assailants when they broke down his door, and a fearful fight ensued. He was soon, however, beaten with the crowbars into partial insensibility and a rope passed round his neck. The report of an eye-witness, which appears in the Chicago Record-Herald, furnishes the shocking details:—

"The mob staggered toward the door, dragging his body behind. Down a flight of stairs with the black mass bouncing from step to step, its flight being accelerated by kicks from men who followed behind, the mob proceeded. Here the great crowd awaited for the coming of the party which had entered the jail. Scores of men jumped on the body, each kicking it as it passed. Through the cheering crowd the party passed, the procession continuing for two blocks to the square, which was black with people, awaiting the coming of the attacking party with the negro. Two men who appeared to be the leaders of the mob climbed a pole in the centre of the square. Willing hands below tossed the end of the rope over the arm, and the body of the unfortunate man was swung free. When the body was lifted from the ground a score of men attacked it with knives and slashed it repeatedly. Then the cry of 'Burn the body' went up, and volunteers went in search of bonsine and oil. Pickets were torn from fences, signs jerked from stores and dry goods boxes rolled to the scene to furnish fuel for the fire. All was thrown into a pile beneath the swaying, shapeless body, and after it had been saturated with oil, matches were applied. As the flames sprang up and attacked the clothing of the man the square was illumfnated and the faces of the crowd lighted up. In windows and balconies, on telegraph poles and dry goods boxes hundreds of men, women and children were perched. Trolley cars were stopped to give some of the crowd an opportunity to witness the appalling spectacle. For more than an hour the throng watched the scene, a strange fascination apparently holding it and keeping it from dispersing."

An apology is necessary to the reader for forcing so repulsive a scene on his attention, but it is sometimes necessary to look at social cancers, no matter how unpleasant the sight may be. It was Illinois where this feuds gala-day was held—a northern State, which contributed to the public life of the country the immortal backwoodsman who freed the blacks and saved the Union — a State which sent tens of thousands of its sons to the battlefields where the roar of mighty guns proclaimed that all men, black or white, within the borders of the United States, were free and equal.

Nor is this the only sign that among all the good things our neighbours have got they have not secured the thing that is primary in civilized society—that general respect for the law, and that determination to enforce it, without which, having everything else, you have nothing. A few items from the current press illustrate this. A murder trial is now going on in Kentucky over an incident in a blood feud which has been proceeding for years, and has claimed many victims with a minimum of legal punishment. The community does not trust the sheriff, and his duties are being performed by what is called an elisor or substitute. Those seeking admission to the court are searched for firearms so that the feud cannot be carried on, in the court house at least.

In Chicago the other day two men went into a bar-room where a number of people were seated. They held up everybody with their revolvers, and, encountering opposition, shot two persons. They got clear away. This is quite a frequent feature of life in the western metropolis, street cars being as likely to be held up on its streets as if they were out on the lonely prairies.

These events all flow from a certain lack of reverence for law and a slackness in enforcing it. If it be asked how matters could be improved, we prefer to answer by relating a story of facts. Three Chicago ruffians came to this country a year or more ago bent on any evil deed by which they could get money. They broke into a bank. Our police authorities got on the trail, followed them to Chicago, had them arrested, extradited, and put on trial here. In passing from the jail to the court house they made a desperate but ineffectual attempt to escape, using arms with that recklessness and freedom which is a feature of life among our neighbours. They did an officer to death. But full retribution followed. One was mortally wounded during his attempt to escape; a second committed suicide rather than face the inevitable, while the third, after a calm but relentless trial, died on the scaffold. Canadian law was vindicated, and the lesson enforced that in this country, at least, those who undertake to war with society have a foe that eventually exacts the strictest retribution. Justice, with a long arm and a relentless grip would do wonders for our neighbours.

DIABETES.

A Long, Slow and Suffering Decay of the Kidneys.

Dr. Pettingill's Kidney-Wort Tablets.

A Non-Alcoholic Medicine Rapidly Cures the Disease.

Diabetes is a wasting and terrible form of kidney disease. In its advanced stage it is marked by the passage of a large amount of urine containing an excess of sugar. The pronounced signs of Diabetes are, great thirst, loss of flesh, loss of strength, constipation, harsh, dry skin, dropsical tendencies and great physical weakness.

Dr. Pettingill's Kidney-Wort Tablets will almost immediately stop the wasting away of strength and rebuild the whole system. The Tablets begin their good work by revitalising the kidneys, bringing them back to activity and strength.

Kidney-Wort Tablets have performed miracles for sufferers from Diabetes. They have restored thousands to robust health.

As soon as you note any of the threatening symptoms mentioned above, do not fail to use Kidney-Wort Tablets; they will do their work so well that you will experience cheering results in a few days. Kidney-Wort Tablets are recommended by the medical profession because they contain no alcohol. All druggists sell them.

GAMEY BOSOM FRIEND OF CONSERVATIVES

In Spite of Judge's Declaration That he is a Perjurer.

The Sentinel Review:—It is noteworthy that during the past week, Mr. Gamey has taken quite an active and prominent part in the business of the house, and he is being treated differently by members of the Opposition than was clearly the case some weeks ago. He is applauded when he speaks, and seems to be on terms of personal intimacy with all his colleagues of the Opposition. Yesterday he was seen walking from the buildings to the city with Mr. Whitney and another colleague as if he were a special favourite of the Opposition leader. So it may be taken for granted now that Dr. Beattie Nesbitt's declaration some weeks since that he proposed to stand by Gamey, is to be the watchword of the party in which the member for North Toronto is evidently determined to exercise a controlling influence.

It is certainly an extraordinary spectacle to see a man whom two judges have declared to be a perjurer sit in a representative assembly with the approval and the applause of the representatives of one of the great political parties of the country—and a party which professes to believe that it will be in a position in the near future to administer the affairs of the province — in other words, to appoint the advisers of the representative of His Majesty who is the official head of the governmental machinery of Ontario.

THE JUDICIAL BEAR GARDEN.

(Toronto Globe.)

Now that the Public Accounts Committee has risen we can see what we have missed by not submitting the Gamey charges, to the investigation of a Parliamentary committee. What the Public Accounts Committee had to investigate was simple and limited in extent. But few witnesses were required to be examined. The members enjoyed all that gay irresponsibility which we have been told is so favourable to the establishment of truth and justice. We have been likewise told that order and decorum are the very parents of error and subterfuge, and that if at any time it is desired to get at the bottom of some intricate case of wrongdoing your hit-or-miss committee, with plenty of noise, bluster and bellicosity, is the true divining-rod of justice.

If anyone will just transfer the methods and manners of the committee to the special commission on the Gamey case he will see at once how the latter could have been improved. During the whole of Mr. Blake's examination of Mr. Gamey, for example, Mr. Johnston, Mr. Riddell and Mr. McEvoy should have been constantly interrupting and breaking in, a course to be imitated by Mr. Blake, Mr. Ritchie and Mr. Macpherson when it came to Mr. Johnston's turn to cross-question witnesses. It would also have added piquancy to the affair if the Chancellor had at convenient intervals invited his learned brother the Chief Justice into the yard to discuss knotty points under the Marquis of Queensberry rules. An interchange of opinions among the counsel questioning the title of each and all of them to the appellation of gentlemen, with occasional assertions that the other learned gentleman was a coward or a blackguard, would have enabled the court to add a finish to the inquiry which would have made it long remembered. Indeed, whatever would have made it most resemble a riot would have been favourable to the proving of guilt or the establishment of innocence.

There is just one circumstance that seems to militate against the argument for the committee as compared with the commission, namely that those who for the past few weeks have been extolling its efficiency as an investigation medium now tell us that it has utterly failed in the very simple duty it was charged with in getting at the bottom of the Shannon Timber Limit Case. Col. Matheson tells the Legislature that he was prevented from proving his case by reason of the obstruction of the other side. They wasted time, he said, and prevented him from saying all the facts before it. Whether this be a correct account of matters or not, who can doubt that it typifies what would have occurred if the Gamey charges had been referred to a committee? We can only faintly conceive the scene that would have been enacted. If grave and reverent seniors hurled charges of ungentlemanlike and blackguardly conduct at each other, if they were sufficiently incensed to cry coward, and invite each other "outside" over so small a case as the Shannon matter, what would have ensued on an investigation of the graver charges?

A DAN RICE INCIDENT.

The great clown, Dan Rice, was especially proud of two states in the union—Pennsylvania and Kentucky. This was because he was born in the the former, and his blind horse, "Excelsior," came from the latter. Dan would exploit these facts in the ring nightly in his own inimitable way, said Landlord J. C. Palmer, of the Palmer House, Toronto, who knew the Colonel well.

"On one occasion while playing in a southern town Rice made his usual speech, and gave the peroration: 'And now, ladies and gentlemen, I have but to announce that this wonderful mare, whose like man never saw before since the morning stars sang together, was foaled in Kentucky.'

"Here the audience went wild with delight and applause, especially the colonels and the judges from the charmed state. Then a tall, lank countryman, arose, and shouted hublantly:

"'So was I, B'gosh, Colonel!'

"'Ah!' said Rice, as soon as he could make himself heard. 'Glad to hear it, sir; if you will kindly step down here I will take pleasure in announcing your pedigree!'"

With the colossal three-ring space used by the Walter L. Main shows such an incident is difficult; but the 41 clowns do their duty in making the people laugh just the same. The magnificent circus and stupendous menagerie also contribute to the gaiety as well as the entertainment of the visitor.

This circus will be in Peterborough on Tuesday, June 16th, on the driving Park grounds. Big parade at 10 of the morning. Free daylight fireworks on the grounds afterwards.

WILL MINERS STRIKE?

President Mitchell Says Mine-Owners Refusal to Live Up to Award.

Scranton, Pa., June 16.—The United Mine Workers' convention, called to take action on the refusal of the operators to recognize District Presidents Fahey, Nicholls and Dettrey as the miners' representatives on the Conciliation Board was called to order at 10.20 o'clock yesterday morning. President Mitchell was unanimously chosen chairman. There were 450 delegates present.

At the opening of the afternoon session, President Mitchell addressed the convention. He said in part:

"Gentlemen,—It is needless to say that the refusal of the mine owners to live up to the award of the strike commission is a decided disappointment to me. I was hopeful, after our long strike and after the commission had made its award, that each side would accept it. I desire to say that if the United Mine Workers should refuse to comply with every letter of the award I would be first to condemn them. We must do nothing we cannot defend. I might say for myself that I am hopeful we may find an honorable way out of the calamity. The Commission's award was not a great financial victory for us, but it was a great moral victory. We can afford to bear our disappointment and live up to the award."

After the transaction of some routine business, the convention at 3.30 adjourned to give the Resolutions Committee an opportunity to frame its report.

To Prison For Long Terms.

Montreal, June 16.—Mr. and Mrs. Barber, found guilty of working "the badger game," were sentenced to seven and three years imprisonment respectively yesterday morning. Motion for a reserved case was denied. Before sentence was pronounced Mrs. Barber addressed the court admitting her own guilt, but claiming her husband was innocent and that the charges of wrong-doing preferred by him against her were true.

Dr. Horace Duval, for committing an abortion, was sentenced to three years.

Canadian Abbe Arrested.

THE RAILWAY BILL.

Objections to Clause Concerning Building on Highways.

LIMIT OF AWARD APPEALS.

Mr. Blair Goes Half-Way and Fixes It at $600—Clause Concerning Rights of Municipalities in Highways Stands For Consideration — Crossing Levels and Railway Bridge Heights Fixed.

Ottawa, June 16. — Substantial progress was made yesterday with Government business after the private bills had been disposed of. The order for the House to go into committee upon the bill to incorporate the Toronto & Hamilton Railway Company stood over at the suggestion of the Minister of Railways, and will probably be the first business on the order paper for Wednesday evening. Mr. Paterson's bill to amend the customs act was given its final stage, and a number of clauses in Mr. Blair's railway bill were passed in committee.

Compensation to Cattle Men.

Hon. Sydney Fisher moved an amendment to the bill respecting infectious and contagious diseases of animals. The amendment provides that in the case of the slaughter of infected animals, the owner shall be entitled to one-third of the value of the animal, which compensation must not exceed $20 for a grade, or $60 for a pure bred animal. For non-infected animals in contact with diseased animals, the owner shall be entitled to three-fourths of the value of the animal which, in the case of a grade, must not exceed $50, or, for a pure bred, $150. If the animal be slaughtered on insufficient grounds the owner shall be entitled to full compensation, the value to be determined by the Minister. The amendment carried.

Special Records Building.

The Commissioners who enquired into the Martineau defalcation point out in their report that there was danger of fire in the Eastern block. As there are valuable records in this building, the Commissioners recommended that precautions be taken at once. The question was brought to the attention of the House yesterday by Mr. Holmes of West Huron. The reply of the Minister discouraged the theory that there is danger of fire. There was, the Minister stated, no authentic instance known of a steam pipe setting fire to wood. It was announced that the Government propose to erect a special building for the storage of records.

The bill increasing the Government's subsidy to dry docks to a maximum of $30,000 per annum met with some opposition in Committee of the House. Mr. Fielding promised that on the third reading of the bill he would have full information for the House.

Mr. Blair's Bill.

Mr. Blair's Railway Commission bill was again taken up in committee of the House. The Minister went half way in meeting an amendment proposed the other day by Mr. Lancaster of Lincoln. Mr. Lancaster contended that there should be no appeal from awards for land damages where the award did not exceed $1,000. This proposal, which was embodied in an amendment, Mr. Blair refused to accept. He consented, however, to a limit of $600, and with this amendment the clause passed.

Mr. Lancaster protested against the provision in the act enabling the Commission to empower a railway company to take a highway for a right of way. He said that it was not fair that a company should be enabled in defiance of the wishes of the municipality to take possession of a highway merely by furnishing another highway instead of purchasing buildings on other property for a right of way adjacent to the highway.

Mr. Clarke said that every year Parliament was chartering railways as works for the general advantage of Canada, but which were in reality one horse tramways, enabling them to set municipal rights at defiance. He doubted if such legislation was not ultra vires of this Parliament.

Must Be of Some Authority.

Mr. Blair said he doubted if any court would rule that Parliament did not have power to legislate along those lines. There must be some authority to determine if a highway cannot be used for railway purposes for the public convenience; that is, to decide whether the charter powers granted by Parliament shall be exercised or not. So long as this deciding authority is in competent outside hands there will be no trouble, he said. There had been no trouble with the municipalities; the Railway Committee of the Privy Council had always found them reasonable.

"If," said Mr. Clarke, "the hon. Minister will allow this clause to stand, I'll try and get a lawyer to draft a sub-section to meet the objections to this clause."

The clause was then allowed to stand.

On the next section, which allows a railway to maintain its rails an inch above, or an inch below the road crossing without their being held to be an obstruction was also allowed to stand.

Next was taken up the clause providing that railway bridges over highways shall not be less than 20 feet wide and not less than 12 feet high. After protests the height was increased to 14 feet.

The question of municipal rights came up again in connection with the clauses dealing with the construction of telegraph and telephone lines on railways, but before the subject was finally threshed out the committee rose and reported progress and the House adjourned at 11.15 p.m.

Redistribution Matters.

Ottawa, June 16.—The Redistribution Committee held a short session last night. It was officially announced that the first public meeting of the committee would be held on Thursday of next week.

One in Four Persons.

One person in every four suffers more or less from itching piles. Some do not know the nature of their ailment and others have not heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment as the only absolute and guaranteed cure for this distressing disease. If you are a sufferer ask your neighbours about this great preparatio. It has grown popular as a result of the news of its merits being passed from friend to friend.

500 PERSONS KILLED.

Heppner, a Town in Oregon State, Wiped Out by a Cloudburst—800 Bodies Recovered—Crushed to Death.

Spokane, Wash., June 16.—Telegraph and telephonic advices from Arlington, Oregon, state that the town of Heppner, Oregon, was destroyed by a flood that rushed down Williams Creek between 6 and 7 o'clock Sunday evening. Reports from Ione state that from 350 to 500 people are believed to have been drowned. Early yesterday it was reported that 105 bodies had been found, but only meagre reports of the disaster have been obtained. Heppner is a town of about 1,250 inhabitants.

A later despatch says: All the telegraph and telephone wires are down, and no accurate information can be obtained, but the estimate of the loss of life is based on the most reliable reports received up to last night. A report from Ione, seventeen miles from Heppner, is to the effect that 800 bodies have been recovered.

A messenger that arrived at Ione said that a wall of water 20 feet high rushed down into the gulch in which Heppner is situated, carrying everything before it.

Huge boulders, weighing a ton, were carried down by the current, and many people were killed by being crushed against the rocky bluff.

Early in the afternoon a thunderstorm occurred, covering a wide region of country; later a heavy rain storm set in, many of the small streams overflowing their banks in a short time. Bridges were swept away like straws.

Cloudburst Stops Traffic.

Butte, Montana, June 16.—Traffic throughout Eastern Montana on the Northern Pacific is almost at a standstill as a result of severe cloudbursts Sunday. Near Park City, a cloudburst sent a wall of water about 20 feet in height and about the same number of feet in width, crashing down the valley.

THE CONFESSION OF A WIFE.

"PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Was The Medicine That Saved My Life."

This is the closing sentance of a thankful and grateful letter of testimony written by Mrs. Fred M. Wetmore, of Windsor, Ont. She suffered from kidney disease and heart trouble, which resisted the best treatment of her physicians. When all seemed dark and gloomy for the suffering women, Paine's Celery Compound was brought to her attention. Mrs. Wetmore used the compound with faith and was happily cured. Mrs. Wetmore writes as follows:—

"A year ago I was in such a low condition of health that my life was despaired of. Medical treatment failed to do me good, and my friends were greatly alarmed. The doctors said I was suffering from kidney disease and heart trouble, and might drop off at any time. My aunt procured a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound for me and I used it. After taking the second bottle, I felt stronger, and had hopes of getting well again. Six bottles of Paine's Celery Compound made me a new woman. I am now strong and well, good appetite, splendid digestion and sleep like a child. Paine's Celery Compound was the medicine that saved my life."

Pope Leo Operated on.

Rome, June 16.—Pope Leo Sunday submitted to an operation for tumor under the arm. The Pope would not take any anaesthetic and watched the operation with interest. There was a slight bloodshed and surgical shock, but the Pope recovered immediately from the latter, and last evening is as well as ever.

An Odd Superstition.

On the eastern shore of Maryland biliousness is cured by boring three holes in a carefully selected tree and walking three times around it, saying, "Go away, bilious." It is a matter of utmost importance whether the one who performs the spell walks with the sun or against the sun, but no one knows which is the approved direction.

THE TREATING HABIT.

It Costs Its Victims Many a Dollar and Many a Pang.

Is it not a fact that men really spend in treating amounts that they would hesitate to give away no matter how deserving the charity? It is a trait of human character that comes through this all absorbing disposition to "hold your end up" when with a friend. Hundreds of men take thousands of drinks that they do not want, and other hundreds pay for thousands that are not desired.

Two men meet, and one says: "Mighty glad to see you. Let's have something." Neither generally needs or even wants a drink. But the man who offers it wants to show that he is generous. He takes this method of proving that he is glad to meet his friend. The friend after he has taken the drink that he did not want, to prove that he, too, is a good fellow, insists upon a second round.

The German custom of entering a saloon, taking a drink and paying for it and for no others if adopted in America would prove a blessing. The American custom of treating is decidedly a curse. What we do for friendship's sake costs us many a dollar and many a pang.

How Oysters Grow.

A man who has devoted much time to the study of the oyster says that this bivalve is born with his shell on and that he grows only in the summer time. The beard of an oyster is not only his breathing organ—that is, his lungs—but it also serves to convey food to his mouth. When the warm, calm days of June come the oyster opens his shell and by means of his beard begins building an additional story to his house. This he does by depositing very, very fine particles of carbonate of lime till at last they form a substance as thin as silver paper and exceedingly fragile. Then he adds more and more till at last the new shell is as hard as the old shell.

Secret For Secret.

In the days of Louis XIV. even warriors bandied epigrams with one another.

The Marechal de Grammont had taken a fortress by siege.

"I will tell you a secret," said its military governor after surrendering. "The reason of my capitulation was that I had no more powder."

"And, secret for secret," returned the marechal suavely, "the reason of my accepting it on such easy terms was that I had no more balls."

Drainage

Sweat is the sewerage of the system.

The foot soles are among its chief outlets, and shoe soles should be its scavenger.

Accumulated sweat is an irritant poison—a sort of caustic which gnaws the foot, and burns the leather.

The RESILIA is the only shoe having a drainage system to carry off foot moisture as created.

In it the perspiration passes down through the porous leather insole, to the cross channels or sewers beneath, where it is carried off and dried up by contact with the air.

This prevents the concentration of sweat, and with the ventilating device keeps the feet dry, clean, hardy and healthy.

Observe cross channels in centre-sole.

The "beautiful blonde" carried a kodak with her and and took snap shots of the ladies on the pavement. "Billy's" mask was well done, and few knew that it was Bow-man. He did his stilt work like an old hand at the business.

—Mr. David Ross, who appears at the Opera House to-morrow evening is the same David Ross who created such a sensation with his beautiful voice in Winnipeg. Mr. Ross is a teacher of the celebrated "North Method" and as Mrs. Morrow uses the same method in her teaching, all who are interested in vocal music will appreciate its advantage.

Lecture by Mr. Fife.

The regular literary meeting of George street Epworth League, was held last evening, when a most interesting talk was given on the subject, "The Migration of Birds," by Mr. J. A. Fife of the Collegiate Institute. A large number availed themselves of the opportunity of hearing Mr. Fife and of learning something of a subject to which generally little study is given. At the close of the lecture a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Fife for his instructive and interesting address. During the evening Mr. Jas. Browne favoured those present with a couple of songs which were very much enjoyed.

VERY SUCCESSFUL MUSICAL RECITAL

Given by Mr. Gliddon's Intermediate Pupils

Held in St. John's Sunday School Last Evening—A Delightful Programme.

The recital given last night in St. John's School room by the intermediate pupils of Mr. Gliddon's instrumental classes was undeniably a complete success. There was a select and appreciative audience which left highly delighted with the interesting and instructive recital.

Mr. Gliddon had arranged an excellent programme which was cleverly given by his really talented pupils.

The recital was opened by a piano duet, "Overture Zampa," by Herold, excellently played by the Misses Maud and Gertie Grandy.

The violin trio, Dancla's "Fantasia" by the Misses Marguerite Burnett, Kathleen Wallis and Julia Choate, evoked considerable applause. Miss Molly Moldrum's piano solo, Sapellinkoff's "Mazurka," was very well rendered.

Miss Marguerite Burnett's violin solo "Blue Bells of Scotland," by Farmer, was excellently played and received its merited applause. This young violiniste showed decided talent in the execution of her piece. Miss Florence Butcher scored a marked success in the rendering of one of Grieg's pieces, "Norwegian Bridal Procession," a very pretty piano solo. Miss Kathleen Wallis' violin solo, "La Dernier Rose," opus 22, No. 4, by J. Daubit, was well received. She has a very graceful action. One of Wollenthaupt's etudes played by Miss Mildred Brightman, received noticeable applause. This instrumental solo was literally short, but sweet. The next number on the programme was a violin trio by the three little violinistes who played in the previous trio. This selection was Bethovon's "Minuette." The little musicians played with noticeable accuracy.

Miss Ida Sanderson played two piano solos with remarkable success. These were (a) Nocturne, and (b) Etude, two pieces of opposite characters. Both were by Chopin. The second which is in only the black keys was encored. Miss Ethel Best and Miss Anderson brought the delightful recital to a close with a piano duet "Mazurka," by Ganne.

The recital, at which a Heintzman piano was used was in aid of the Rectory Fund.

AN ANNIVERSARY AT CAVANVILLE.

Interesting Services in Connection With Event—Peterborough Talent in Attendance.

The anniversary services of the Cavanville Methodist church concluded last evening by a tea and concert. A large number partook of tea, which was served on the church grounds, and filled the church to its utmost capacity, at the evening entertainment.

The pastor, Rev. Mr. Mounteer, and his energetic assistants, are to be congratulated on the success of the evening. The receipts amounted to some eighty dollars. The programme, which consisted largely of town talent, was as follows:

COUNTY COUNCIL NOW IN SESSION.

The Sugar Beet Factory to be Visited—House of Refuge Matter Comes Up.

Tuesday, June 16.

The midsummer session of the county council opened this afternoon, with Warden Richard Crows in the chair, and the following Councillors present — Messrs. William T. Buck, W. T. Curtis, G. W. Fitzgerald, T. M. Hunter, T. J. Johnston, Denis Moloney, John Monogue, E. A. Peck Robert Shaw.

After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting Warden Crowe addressed the members.

The Warden's address will appear to-morrow.

Councillor Fitzgerald moved, seconded by Councillor Hunter, that the Warden's address be referred to a Committee of the Whole Council.

On motion, Dr. Jeffs, representing the Peterborough Sugar Beet Co., was allowed to address the council.

Dr. Jeffs said he took this early opportunity to extend an invitation to the council to visit the new sugar beet factory now in course of erection. He hoped that they would be able to make arrangements to see what was being done, and said that he would arrange to have conveyances to take the members to the premises.

Moved by Councillors Peck and Johnston, that the invitation of Dr. Jeffs be accepted by this council, and that the Warden be requested to make the necessary arrangements for the visit.—Carried.

Moved by Councillors Shaw and Monogue, that Roland J. McWilliams be appointed Sessional Clerk.

Councillor Hunter said he thought that as Mr. W. A. Stratton, their present Sessional Clerk, was incapacitated by sickness, and had been a long servant of the council, and his resignation had not been received, that the council might get along during this session without appointing a permanent clerk. He moved in amendment, that Mr. Watt, be appointed Sessional Clerk, pro tem. Councillor Fitzgerald seconded the amendment.

After some explanations, Mr. Shaw withdrew his motion and Mr. Hunter's amendment was carried.

A communication was received from the County Council of Northumberland and Durham, asking the council to arrange for a meeting at Wallace Point Bridge on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Moved by Councillors Fitzgerald and Hunter, that this council proceed to inspect the bridges on the Otonabee River to-morrow afternoon. —Carried.

The Council then went into Committee of the Whole on the Warden's address. Councillor Peck in the chair.

WORKMEN HOLD AN ENTERTAINMENT.

Mr. Jas. Gibson Gives an Address on Benefit of Fraternalism.

Successful Social Function in Foresters' Hall—Music Supplied by Local Talent.

The local lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, the pioneer fraternal society in Canada, held an entertainment in their hall last night which was a credit to those under whose auspices it was given. The occasion was the visit of two of the Grand Officers, Mr. Jas. Gibson, of Ingersoll, Grand Master Workman, and Mr. M. D. Carder, of St. Thomas, Grand Recorder, whose presence added greatly to the interest of the evening.

Mr. J. J. Turner, sr., occupied the chair, and announced a pleasing programme of music, in addition to that part provided by the visiting distinguished gentlemen.

Mr. A. Turner opened with a piano solo, very cleverly rendered, which was followed by a comic song, by Mr. Jos. Halpany.

Miss Belleghem delighted her hearers with a very sweet solo; her singing has great magnetic power, and her voice showed consistent training. The Grand Master Workman, Mr. Gibson, was then introduced, and for half an hour spoke very interestingly, and at times with considerable eloquence, upon the Order of which he is the chief executive officer. Mr. Gibson has the happy faculty of presenting facts in a way which commands attention, and the Workmen have great reason for self congratulation that they have a man at the head of their Order who fills the office so efficiently. As he elucidated on the benefits of fraternalism in general and upon the special benefits of it as incorporated into the A.O.U.W. plan, his words were so pleasingly uttered that he was listened to with enjoyment.

While the speech given by Mr. Gibson was primarily to advance the claims and advantages of the A.O.U.W. as a fraternal society, he wrought into it much good advice, particularly to young men, which showed that he possessed a keen intellect and an adequate sense of humour. Speaking particularly of the Order he represented, he said that it had been in existence in Canada about 34 years and during that time had paid out to the beneficiaries of its policy holders over eight million dollars in benefits. In this connection he paid a high tribute to the Grand Recorder, Mr. M. D. Carder, who has held the same office ever since the founding of the society, and who, though he had administered all the funds of the Order, had not misappropriated a dollar of it. He considered Mr. Carder the most valuable asset of the Order to-day. He was proud to be associated with an organization which had been the means of accomplishing so much good. In comparing the relative merits of fraternal societies, and old-line companies, he said that while the average cost of management in the companies amounted to 33 per cent of the premiums paid, that of the fraternal societies was but 5 1-2 per cent. In saying this he did not wish to place discredit upon any of the companies. He placed special emphasis upon the Brotherhood idea as exemplified in the fraternal society, and said that this feature alone was worth all that membership in it costs. He closed by saying that— every young man should marry, and should marry young, not waiting until he had acquired a competence.

Following Mr. Gibson's address, Miss Moloney rendered a piano solo very effectively, and Mr. Jas. Dawson sang a solo, which was much appreciated.

Mr. M. D. Carder followed with a short address in which he enumerated the benefits of the society.

Mr. Chayter also spoke briefly as to the aims and objects of the Workmen, after which Miss Belleghem, Mr. Halpany and Mr. Dawson each sang.

WEDDED IN ROCHESTER.

Moore-Veals Nuptials—Formerly Residents of Peterborough.

Mr. Leslie S. Moore, and Miss Gertrude A. Veals of Rochester, N. Y., formerly of Peterborough and Fraserville, were united in wedlock, on Wednesday evening, June 10th, by Rev. Charles Albert Hamilton, pastor of the First Methodist church.

The bride looked charming in a gown of cream grenadine, with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Delia Grace, also wore a very becoming dress of white silk. Mr. Wilfred H. Moore, brother of the groom, was best man. After the ceremony a reception was given by Mrs. Albert Darling, sister of the bride, where a very pleasant evening was spent. The young happy couple will reside at No. 37 Madison street.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT AT CHEMONG VILLAGE.

Automobile Frightens Team Which Bolts and Injures Mr. and Mrs. Hawkey.

An accident which might easily have been attended with serious consequences occurred last evening about 6 o'clock at Chemong village. An automobile driven by Mr. Frank McPherson was passing through the town, and a team owned by Mr. William Hawkey, of Emily, became frightened and bolted. Mr. and Mrs. Hawkey were in the rig at the time and the only thing that saved their lives was the fact that they jumped. As it was Mrs. Hawkey was badly hurt and her husband received some painful injuries. The rig in which they were riding was completely demolished, and had they not extricated themselves from it the result would have been fatal.

The team ran some distance after having succeeded in smashing the wagon to kindling wood, and were captured uninjured.

Mrs. Hawkey's injuries were attended to by a physician and it is hoped that no serious results will follow the accident.

THE ELEPHANT IS NOW IN CONTROL.

He Draws a Crowd From City and Country Side Alike.

Streets Were Lined for the Parade—Many New Features Marked the Performance in the Big Tent.

The elephant is in town, the small boy is in his glory, and the peanut is in a state of dissolution.

The first feature of interest on the programme was the arrival, and early as was the hour—before 5 o'clock—it wasn't long until Young Canada was playing Lord High Inspector of the paraphernalia, which he announced, with his thumbs in his vest armholes and expanded chest, was "all right." The removal of tents, animals, and other fixtures to the grounds began promptly and was carried on so energetically that for once in history a circus parade in Peterborough started promptly on time, at 10 o'clock. Long before that hour the roads leading into town were filled with people in rigs, the objective point of all being Peterborough for the circus. The streets through which the parade passed were lined with humanity. The route was up George to Charlotte, Charlotte to Water, up Water to London, to George and thence to the grounds.

The din of the bands, tooting of the calliope, antics of the clown, snorting of the elephants, and all those incidental noises of the circus parade have a charm for old and young alike, and those who witnessed the parade were made up of all ages. A feature of the parade was the cleanliness and brightness of the wagons and other paraphernalia, as the show has not been on the road long enough to have its effects soiled.

The performance in the big tent down at the Driving Park began at 2 o'clock with the appearance of Miss Olga Reed, the first performer. Miss Blanche Hilliard favoured the audience with two acts and both of them are fine. She drives one horse and keeps adding until she has six horses at one time. Then she comes in again driving two large gray horses. She picks up Miss Reed, and together they go through a series of classic poses while the horses gallop around the ring. The act is timely costumed and is the only one of its kind that has ever been done by two women.

Miss Fay also puts on a new trick which pleases as much as any of the features of the show. There is a pyramid built of stands, upon which the horse she is riding mounts the apex, and on each step there are from four to six horses being driven around in opposite directions. Then in the ring there are more horses and the ponies are on top of the boxes which form the ring, the whole forming a beautiful figure in contrary motion.

There are about twenty clowns, and each one of them does his part toward keeping the audience in an uproar of merriment.

There is a burlesque roller skating act done by Messrs. Delmont, Jarvis, and Rose that would make a wooden man laugh. A very funny prize fight by all the clowns, ending in a general "pinch," brought down the house.

One of the most remarkable aerial acts ever seen in the place was done by the Ellet troupe on the high horizontal bars. This act was full of difficult flyovers, cutaways, twisters, and somersaults. The Dutch comedy work of Frank Ellet was screamingly funny and the straight work by the other members was excellent.

The big spectacular feature of the performance, "Savage South Africa," was admirably carried out and of unusual interest, especially to those who had read the history of the terrible Matabele war. Capt. V. J. Visser, a magnificent specimen of manhood, 6 feet, 9 inches in height, is responsible for this spectacle, which he brought direct from London. Capt. Visser is a Boer born but was educated in England, and has served for many years a scout with the British army in Africa. He has designed an entertainment which is novel, interesting and educational. Several of the scenes are historically correct, notably the scene representing Major Alan Wilson's last stand. He introduces into the spectacle detachments of Boer troops, Italians, Canadians, British and native South African savages. In one scene the herd of performing elephants is introduced, showing how valuable are the services of these intelligent animals in war. Another feature of educational interest is the introduction of a Gatling gun, that terrible instrument of modern warfare. The workings of this deadly weapon is clearling exhibited. Altogether, "South Africa," is a decidedly interesting spectacle and well worth witnessing.

Mr. Main has evidently made a point this season by breaking away from the oft beaten track, for in many ways his show is different from all others. He has an admirably managed show, and one which granted good luck and fair weather, should considerably increase his bank account by the end of the season—and his success would be well deserved.

OBITUARY.

Mr. W. Edwards, of Carleton Place, Passes Away.

Many relatives and a very large circle of intimate friends will regret to hear of the death of Mr. Wellington Edwards, which sad event occurred at his home, Carleton Place, on Sunday morning, after a lingering illness.

The deceased was a young man of high character, and was greatly respected by all who knew him.

Two years ago the late Mr. Edwards was married to Miss Eva Carlisle, daughter of the late David Carlisle.

The remains will be brought to Peterborough to-day and the funeral will take place from the residence of Mr. W. H. Anthony, 32 Union street, on Wednesday, and will proceed to the Little Lake Cemetery.

ENNISMORE PICNIC IN TARA GROVE.

St. Martin's T.A.S. Score a Big Success.

Delightful Weather and a Large Crowd, With Fine List of Sports a Feature of the Day.

St. Martin's T.A.S., Ennismore, is a live organization, and is exercising a wonderful power for good not only in the parish in which it is organized, but also in the surrounding country. It is hardly two years since the organization was instituted in the parish by the popular parish priest Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, but its growth has been remarkable and to-day it can lay claim to a membership of nearly 300 members.

It was certainly a wise move on the part of the good parish priest of Ennismore in holding the parish picnic under the auspices of this estimable organization. That the picnic was a success it is hardly necessary to state, but the fact that the T.A.S. had the affair in their hands assisted in a very great degree in adding to that success, and also in increasing the membership of the society, which is to be congratulated on the successful outcome of the day's proceedings.

The day was an ideal one for a picnic, and the management must certainly have been coquetting with the weather clerk for that important personage favoured them with the choicest picnic weather.

The crowd that gathered in Tara Grove was a large one and included large delegations from all the surrounding parishes, who by their presence assisted in making the picnic one of the most, if not the most successful of the many held in this delightful spot. The crowd was a jolly one, too, and every one seemed to be prompted by the one motive of desire—to turn in and enjoy the day, and their intentions were carried out to the letter. Of course the centre of attraction for the younger element, and in fact many of the older heads, was the dancing platform. The musicians were kept busy catering to the lovers of the light fantastic, who danced to their heart's content. The shooting gallery, too, attracted its share of the crowd, and the different booths on the grounds did a land office business dispensing sweetmeats and beverages.

The good ladies of the parish who had charge of the meals, added to the excellent reputation they have already earned for supplying appetizing spreads and Tuesday they certainly excelled themselves in this regard. The ladies were divided off into wards as follows: No. 1 and 2, No. 3 and Emily, No. 4 and Bridgenorth.

Two much praise cannot be bestowed upon the lady workers, as it required no small amount of work and preparation in supplying the demands of the hundreds who took their meals yesterday.

Speeches by prominent gentlemen was an advertised feature of the day, but that part of the proceedings was dispensed. Hon. J. R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary, who was billed to be present sent a letter of regret on account of his inability to be in attendance. The other gentlemen who were to give addresses, were on the grounds, but they considered that the people were enjoying themselves in such a manner that the introduction of speech-making into the day's proceedings, had better be cancelled.

Rev. Father Fitzpatrick was a busy man, and certainly did all in his power to add to the pleasure and comfort of the gathering. The other clergymen on the grounds were Rev. Father McColl, Rev. Dr. O'Brien and Rev. Father O'Connell, of the Cathedral; Rev. Father Bretherton, Downeyville, Rev. Father O'Leary, Bobcaygeon; Rev. Father Phelan, Young's Point; Rev. Father Crowley, North Bay. Amongst the prominent laymen on the grounds were noticed, Messrs. H. LeBrun, W. Ruddins, Dr. McGrath, J. C. Sullivan, William Snowden, Jas. Lynch, Alderman Best, Dr. Coughlin, G. E. Whitton and others.

The members of St. Martin's T.A.S. who were conspicuous by their handsome badges, did excellent work during the day in looking after every detail in connection with the picnic. Mr. Peter Flood, the president of the T. A.S., was an indefatigable worker, as was also Mr. P. Scollard, the popular secretary.

NON-JURY SESSIONS HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.

Held Yesterday Afternoon in the Court House.

Five Cases Before Chancellor Boyd—Were Concluded This Morning.

The non-jury sittings of the High Court of Justice opened yesterday afternoon before Chancellor Boyd. There were five cases, viz., Revell vs. Swanston; Hughes vs. Metcalfe; Hughes vs. Metcalfe; Walsh vs. Ontario Bank and Attorney General vs. City of Toronto. The substance of these several cases was as follows:—

REVELL vs. SWANSTON.

The plaintiffs in this case were Amelia Revell, Zaccheus Burnham, George Burnham and Maria M. Burnham while the defendant was John Swanston. Action was taken to obtain possession of lands described as lots 93 to 96, inclusive, east of Mark street, Ashburnham, except part of lot 96 described in statement. On the 20th day of May, 1903, defendant wrongfully and without leave of plaintiffs, entered upon same land and caused same to be plowed and defendant was in possession and denied title of plaintiffs. The latter claimed a declaration that they are owners of lands as against defendant.

Dennistoun, Peck, Kerr and Stevenson, plaintiffs' solicitors. D. O'Connell, defendant's solicitor.

The case still stands over to the next Court on the agreement of both parties.

HUGHES vs. METCALFE.

Plaintiff in this action was Isabella Hughes of Dummer, administratrix of Estate of Mary Metcalfe, deceased, and defendants were James Metcalfe, son of late Mary Metcalfe and Joseph Metcalfe, his son. Both live in Asphodel. Plaintiff stated that some time subsequent to a report of the Master at Peterborough, defendants fraudulently and by conspiracy to defraud induced and prevailed upon Mary Metcalfe, then living, to assigne to defendant, Joseph Metcalfe, the sum of $1,000, part of the moneys so found due to the said Mary Metcalfe by the Master and to extend the time for payment of said sum. Plaintiff asked that the indenture of assignment be set aside and that defendants be ordered to account for and pay plaintiff the $1,000. D. O'Connell, plaintiff's solicitor. W. A. F. Campbell, Ridgetown, defendant's solicitor.

A second case was also brought in which plaintiff was the same and defendants were Jas. Metcalfe, Wm. Metcalfe, Philip Metcalfe, Ann Moore and Mary Elmhirst. Plaintiff claimed that deeds of certain lands alleged to have been fraudulently obtained from the late Mary Metcalfe are void and should be set aside, and their registration cancelled, and that a certain assignment and discharge of mortgage were fraudulent and void and that defendants be ordered to account for and pay over to plaintiff all moneys, mortages and securities coming into their hands, belonging to the estate, and that the said estate be administered. O'Connell, solicitor for plaintiffs; G. J. Sherry, Norwood, solicitor for defendant Wm. Metcalfe; Hoskin, Ogden and Hoskin, for defendant Ann Moore.

Both of these two cases were dismissed without costs.

WALSH vs. ONTARIO BANK.

Plaintiff was John Walsh, of Asphodel, who claimed from defendant payment of the sum of $1800, being the difference between the amount which he owed the Ontario Bank, and the sum which should have been realized by the bank from the firm of W. Morgan & Sons, of Montreal, which became insolvent. Walsh is a cattle drover and had extensive dealings with the Montreal firm, his banking business being done through the Ontario Bank. He also claimed the sum of $65, expenses to and from Montreal. Dennistoun, Peck, Kerr & Stevenson, for plaintiff; A. P. Poussette for defendant.

This case was referred to Judge Weller to dispose of.

ATTORNEY GENERAL vs. TORONTO.

The plaintiffs in this case were the Attorney General of Ontario at and by the relation of R. A. Donald, President of the Island Association; Jean Harvie Donald, and Mary T. Smith, wife of George Smith, as well as on behalf of themselves as of all other lessees, except those of lots specifically mentioned, of Toronto, of lots upon the Island, sometimes known as "Hiawatha," and of all other ratepayers of the city of Toronto and the said Mary T. Smith, and the defendants were the Corporation of the City of Toronto, and W. E. Lemon. Plaintiffs claimed an injunction to restrain defendants from granting Lemon a lease of lands proposed to be leased to him; an injunction to restrain defendant Lemon from executing, receiving or taking such lease, a declaration that bylaw No. 4,168, in reference thereto, is illegal and invalid and ought to be quashed, and a declaration that the corporation cannot revoke the dedication of the said park lands, or make the proposed lease.

James Henderson, plaintiff's solicitor; Denton, Dunn & Boultbee for defendants.

This case will come up before Chancellor Boyd at Toronto, on a date to be fixed.

WOMAN'S WORLD

MISS ENID YANDELL.

First Woman Member of the National Sculptors' Society of America.

Miss Enid Yandell, the brilliant young sculptor of Louisville, Ky., was the first woman to become a member of the National Sculptors' Society of America. Miss Yandell has done some notable work. At the Chicago World's fair she created the Caryatides which furnished the support for the entablature of the four roof gardens constructed in connection with the woman's building, and under a commission from the United States government she assisted Philip Martiny in the decoration of the beautiful art building at the same exposition. For the Louisiana Purchase exposition the statue of Victory surmounting the two restaurant pavilions is her creation.

Miss Yandell had on exhibition at the last Paris exposition a duplicate of the great bronze Bajnotti memorial fountain, erected at Providence, R. I. This work was one that called forth the very highest praise for Miss Yandell not only as a sculptor and designer, but as a creator of a new idea in art.

MISS ENID YANDELL.

Miss Yandell is a native of Louisville, and she is the daughter of the late Dr. Lunsford P. Yandell of that city. Her ancestry is noted for intellectual attainments and fine physical parts. She is a niece of the famous surgeon of the same name—indeed is born of generations of surgeons.

Doubtless the inherited faculty was tempered in her gentler blood, the surgeon becoming the student of anatomy and the admirer of the perfect human form in ideal pose expressing truthful sentiments or noble acts. Miss Yandell is of striking appearance.

As a tiny child Miss Yandell delighted in the mobile clay and yielding wax. Her hands coveted them. She early used the wood carvers' tools and when still very young entered the art academy at Cincinnati, where she studied under Rebisso, accomplishing the four years' course in two years and carrying off first honors. She then went for study to the art centers of the old world. Her prize piece, a statue of Hermes, approved by artists of exacting judgment, secured for her at once position among professional workers.

The Attractive Room.

The one way of making a room attractive is by the judicious use of color. The ordinary dining room or sitting room of our houses in city or country is not susceptible of decoration by means of form. The furniture, the movable objects in the room, will be so much more in the range of vision, they will assert themselves so much more positively than will the moldings of the dado or the door trims or even than any plaster ribs and scrolls upon the ceiling, that those attempts at decorating the room by such simple devices as we use for the exterior will be of no account, says the Architectural Record.

The moldings may as well be very simple. Nothing will be gained by notching and gouging, nothing by dog teeth or zigzag, nothing by carving, unless of richness and elaboration beyond our present assumption. Even the mantelpiece, even the decorative treatment of the whole chimney breast, cannot take you far. Beware of the mantelpiece. Nothing is more dangerous than that feature when the architect feels that his only chance to show what he can do is there.

The thing to strive for is color, beauty of color, and this may be rich and deep, brilliant and wrought through many gradations or pale and cool, in two or three divergent tints rather than hues, varieties of gray rather than approaches to the primary colors. One is asked for permission to photograph his room because it has struck the eye of the kindly visitor as exceptionally attractive, but one refuses, if he is wise, on the express ground that what has pleased has been the harmony of coloring in wall and ceiling, in rugs and draperies, in water colors on the walls and vases on the shelves.

Harmony of color, refinement of color, richness of color even, are within the reach of those who have the gift, but there is no possible way of opening the eyes of those who have it not or of persuading them that they must ask some one else to arrange their room for them. That is one thing which cannot be taught to any lady in the land—that she has not if she has not an eye for color or at least that she has not the gift at working in color.

Don't Be Superstitious.

Of all the vagaries of women the worse are those little superstitions about opals and new moons or the belief in fortunes, which leads them to spend money that an ill looking old lady may tell their fortune from cards or to worry themselves sick because a girl who has been reading a book on palmistry has told them that some great trouble is about to befall. And yet to allow oneself to believe in signs may have a very definite effect. We are, all of us, very susceptible to suggestion. To suggest an illness or a trouble is often to bring it about or at least to make somebody miserable through worrying over it. We are that which we think we are, and to look for ills is to find them. We have troubles enough without adding to them imaginary ones. I have no patience with those who simply court these ills by constantly looking for signs. Ill fortunes come fast enough. Make an honest use of the present, and the future will take care of itself. Let the new moon look at you as it likes; if somebody gives you an opal, just be glad that you are that much ahead; walk under a ladder if that is the dry part of the pavement, and as for the lines in your hand, spend the money you would give to a fortune teller for chocolate creams—it is a better investment.—Woman's Home Companion.

"Just Like a Woman!"

"Just like a woman!" Over and over again, every day, we hear this said, with a laugh of good natured contempt, in a tone of irritation or impatience or scorn, as it may be, but always disparaging, always uttered "de haut en bas." Is there a blunder in the drawing of a check, an erroneous account, a letter misdirected, a stamp forgotten, no matter what, it is always the same cry, "Just like a woman!" "To err is human," says the poet, but surely he is mistaken; it must be womanlike. And what have you to say, O ungrateful man, to cruel rents neatly mended, stockings darned, drawers put in order (and, oh, what chaos was there!), linen daintily marked, a well ordered table and all the judicious arrangements of the home? May not these acts of neatness, order, patience and good judgment be also "just like a woman?"—A Lover of Justice in New York Post.

A Sewing Room Closet.

In the room in which you sew have a closet made about the height of a table, with a top about forty-eight inches in length by twenty-four inches in width. Have this closet divided into three drawers, the first about five inches deep. Divide this drawer into two parts by running a partition in the center. In one of these divisions you may keep patterns, tracing wheel and tape measure, and in the other part have two rows of nails driven in from the bottom on which to place spools of thread. In this drawer may also be scissors, buttons, needles, paper of pins, books, thimbles, etc. In one of the remaining drawers may be kept the materials ready to be made up, and in the other the unfinished garments and materials that have been left over from previous work.

Sick Headache—Lack of Appetite.

Its glorious to feel right in the morning—ready for work. But how seldom one does. Sick headache, lack of appetite, disagreeable taste in the mouth—these are the usual morning feelings of most people—even of careful livers. This morning illness shows that the organs of digestion are not working properly. They need a tonic. Take a teaspoonful of in half a glass of water as soon as you rise—you'll be ready to do justice to a good breakfast.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt

Abbey's Effervescent Salt cleanses the bowels and intestines, invigorates the fagged out stomach and energises the torpid liver.

Malt Breakfast Food
The Proper Summer Health Food.

The Cereal That Affords Ease, Comfort and Health.

Malt Breakfast Food, rich in Malt, Gluten and Phosphates, and predigested, has no equal in the world for the summer breakfast. It is a health nourisher in the most concentrated form securing ease, comfort and health when these blessings are most needed. Malt Breakfast Food is delicious to the taste and easily digested. It is the only sensible food for the young and old in summer time. All grocers heartily recommend it.

Dining Room Appointment.

Colonial cut glass candlesticks are the most sought for table use at the present time.

Very attractive decorative pieces in Bohemian glass are mounted in silver, one effective one being in a daisy design.

Among the blue and white chinas, so much sought at present on account of the colonial craze, Staffordshire is perhaps the most desirable. The glorious color of this deep blue puts to flight the lesser blues and more delicate tones of old Wedgwood or Canton. An old Staffordshire platter of the Lafayette series is a great treasure and gives dignity and beauty to any plate rail or china closet.

Lever's Y-Z (Wise Head) Disinfectant Soap Powder is better than other powders, as it is both soap and disinfectant. 34

THE SINGING BULLET.

If You Hear It Whiz, You May Be Sure It Won't Hit You.

"Don't be afraid of a bullet that you've heard whistle," said an old soldier. "If it sings in your ear rest assured that it will never harm you. It is a fact, as any old soldier will tell you, that you never hear the bullet which hits you. It is a problem of 'windage,' as the boys in the army called it. In other words, the bullet which you hear sing has already sped past you and the bullet which hits you has hissed in the ear of some other fellow in passing before it got to you. It is a simple proposition, after all. The singing of the bullet is the atmospheric vibration which is created and the resistance which the air offers to the progress of the bullet. This cannot be detected by the ear until the bullet has crossed a parallel line with the ear. It may sail over your head or whiz close to the ground, but if it passes you at all the ear will catch the sound of its flight. To the soldier of many battles the voice of the bullet is music. He knows that he need have no dread of the bullet that sings in his ears. It is the bullet that he does not hear that must be feared, and it is this bullet which always brings harm to him. No soldier ever heard the bullet which inflicted a wound on him."

Nerves and the Breakfast Table.

The longer I live the more convinced I am that breakfast is the real cause of more domestic friction than can be accounted for by mere incompatibility of temper. It is not in human nature to be amiable in the early morning. The patriarchal system by which four or five different branches of a family live under one roof could not possibly continue abroad were the various families obliged to submit to the breakfast test. Your father-in-law, your mother-in-law, your brother-in-law and his wife, your sister-in-law and her husband contemplated over a dish of poached eggs in the early morning would be impossible, but by midday we have buried our savage instincts, assumed once more the Christian virtues and are prepared to face the world of relations-in-law with resignation and perhaps even the semblance of appreciation.—A Countess on English Customs.

Little Faults In Social Life.

A fault in the young is to form some feverish admiration for one or two particular friends, often of a so called superior social standing. These are referred to constantly. They are held up as patterns, oracles and patrons. In private circles and public places their names are loudly mentioned in the hope and desire of impressing bystanders. At bazaars, in the lobbies of theaters, at railway stations, in railway carriages and, indeed, wherever the company may be described as mixed this distressing form of what is known as brag is very much in evidence. The shouting of nicknames and Christian names at moments when in ordinary intercourse one would not be addressing anybody is also done in order to advertise some small degrees of intimacy with the well known.—Success.

Forrest's Great Power.

An effeminate young man, an intense admirer of Forrest, enlisted among the supers so as to be nearer his idol. At the end of Forrest's most effective speech, then on, the new actor was so overcome that he fainted. The incident so pleased the "old man" that he called him to his dressing room, where, after a few remarks, he presented him with a dollar as a memento of the occasion. On rejoining his fellow supers, five in number, the happy recipient spoke of his good fortune, dilating upon the cause thereof. At the next performance Forrest kept his eye on him to see if he could again so overcome him as to cause him to faint. When he reached the scene and climax his astonishment can be imagined when six of the supers fell over in a dead faint.

Pain Is a Relative Term.

"Pain" even in the human subject is purely a relative term. It expresses a very real sensation, but it does not express its degree. And so far as mankind is concerned the sense of pain, in the intensity in which it can be felt, depends very largely indeed upon two great factors. The first of these is civilization, and the second factor is that of education.—London Magazine.

Styles of Architecture.

In their architecture the Moresque strove for the negation of the weight altogether; the Egyptian placed the weight firmly on the ground; the Greek lifted it up in the air with an assertion of graceful power; the Roman confused weight and support; the Byzantine represented weight without support; the Moor suggested that there was no weight at all.

Pickled Statues.

The marbles in Westminster palace are treated to a bath once a year. They are first sponged off with water and then "pickled." This pickle consists of a solution of soft soap and sulphur, which removes the incrustations due to the smoke laden atmosphere and is said to do the marble no harm.

No Familiarities.

"I suppose you are familiar with John Ruskin, Miss Tootles?"

"Indeed I am not! I never allow myself to become familiar with men, Mr. Pearson. I have not even met the person you refer to!"

The Self Made Woman.

In an address on "Man and Woman" delivered before the Society For Ethical Culture in Chicago Professor Charles Zueblin of the University of Chicago said: "The type of woman who has never had justice done her is the self made woman. We daily hear of the self made man who writes letters to his son relating his early achievements, but very little of the women who, despite great odds, such odds as the negro encounters in his efforts to climb the ladder of success, have reached the top and stand there above their sisters."

TEACHING OF CHILDREN.

To teach a child with success requires only common sense, good judgment and gentleness. There are, however, three other important points that must ever be foremost in the mind of the teacher.

First of all she must remember that to teach is to impart instruction—not to find fault with ignorance, with lack of comprehension, with listlessness or with forgetfulness. Often, indeed, for these last named faults poor teaching is to blame. Second, there is the inflexible rule that requires a teacher to prepare every lesson carefully before giving it, in order to present it in an interesting and intelligible way. Third, there is the ever present danger of overdoing, against which the teacher must always be on guard.

In the beginning short lessons frequently varied give the best results. Ten or fifteen minutes for each study is enough, and this time limit must not be overstepped so long as tomorrow represents another day.—Isabel R. Wallach in Household.

Good Taste In Dressing.

It isn't always the woman in the most expensive gown who looks the most beautiful. Women of good taste show their artistic sense in everything that is around them—their clothes, books, pictures, music and little fripperies of the house.

It is well to have high ideals in all things and to climb as close to them as you can without going bankrupt. One good, well tailored gown is worth forty ordinary and frumpy ones.

Most women who have money at all have too many gowns, and these are usually fussy ones without particular individuality. It is the same way with jewels. One fine brooch that looks like no other brooch in the world is vastly better than a ton of tin rubbish.

Dull Children.

What the schoolteacher calls stupidity is often a condition of dullness resulting from disease. If such children are carefully examined it will be found that quite a large number of them are suffering from defects of eyesight, from deafness or from some obstructive disease of the nasal passages, of which adenoids is perhaps the most common, resulting in making them what is known as mouth breathers. Moreover, certain children classed as stupid possess decided talents in certain directions which the school instruction is not well calculated to develop.

Two Cases of Eczema

That Caused the Greatest Suffering—More Evidence to Prove the Efficiency of

Dr. Chase's Ointment.

It is truly marvelous the results that have been accomplished by Dr. Chase's Ointment. There are, we believe, few preparations that have relieved as much suffering and none that have been more heartily endorsed by persons who have used it.

Mrs. Knight, 17 Hanover Place, Toronto, states: —"My mother, Mrs. Wright, of Norval, suffered for a summer and winter with eczema on her foot. She could neither walk nor sleep, and it became so bad that she was perfectly raw from her toes to her knees. After trying every available remedy without success and almost hopeless of relief, she began using Dr. Chase's Ointment. She has altogether used eight or nine boxes, with the result that she is now completely cured. Anyone wishing further particulars can communicate with Mrs. Wright, Norval, Ont."

Mrs. James Bradley, Amberly, Huron County, Ont., states: "I was afflicted with eczema for over six months, and it was so bad that my head was a solid mass of scabs, and would ulcerate when scratched. The itching was intense, I could not stand it. I had doctored for four months, and it did not do me any good. I had to give up housework and go home to my mother. I tried nearly everything, but could get no relief. Seeing your advertisement in one of the Toronto papers, I decided to try Dr. Chase's Ointment.

"I got relief from the first application, and it only required one box and part of another to cure me. I am sure that Dr. Chase's Ointment is worth its weight in gold."

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates and Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box. 8

BOTH CURED OF

KIDNEY TROUBLE

BY

Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mr. Benjamin Brooks, a well-known farmer of West Cape, P.E.I., tells of how his son was cured of Kidney Disease, and how he was cured of Backache.

The First Sign of Kidney Trouble.

He says: "Our little boy was troubled with kidney disease. We had tried many kinds of kidney pills but they only helped for a time. We got Doan's Kidney Pills and one box effected a perfect cure. About six weeks after this I caught a very bad cold that settled in my kidneys. My back was so sore I could hardly walk. I went to the drug store and got a box, took them according to directions and the result was that my back was completely cured. I believe they are the best kidney pill on the market to-day."

There is not a kidney trouble from Backache to Bright's Disease that Doan's Kidney Pills will not relieve or cure. The price is 50 cts. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25 and may be procured at all dealers or from

SPIDER M'GANN'S REPUTATION

By RICHARD BARKER SHELTON

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

The Rev. Charles Aloysius Hall would scarcely have been taken for a minister of the gospel as he sat in the corner of a downtown hotel that morning, intent on the columns of a time table. There was no "Prince Albert," no high hat, no clerical collar, no high buttoned vest. His clothes, of not the latest cut, yet carefully brushed and pressed, would have stamped him a young business man, and after a glance at his face—a firm, clean shaven face, with the brows at that moment knit in a frown—one would have said that business was not all the gentleman in question could have wished it.

It was a favorite remark of the Rev. Mr. Hall that if his daily life and deeds gave no inkling to his profession the symbols of the cloth never would. For the first time in the long fight the Rev. Charles Hall was discouraged. He realized that now indeed the church at Cedarville, his church, was in the last ditch. The roof leaked and that cracked the plastering, the carpet was in tatters, the paint was losing faith in the clapboards and the spire was so badly out of plumb that the town board had threatened to take it down unless it was given prompt attention.

Some subscription papers, circulated through the town, had netted returns pitifully small. The envelope weekly offering system had been woefully inadequate to cover the pastor's salary, and the Ladies' Aid society, with three suppers and a fair, had raised just $68.37. He smiled grimly as he remembered that last year his salary had been $200 short and this year bade fair to be another hundred shorter.

There had remained yet one hope. Cedarville was quite a summer resort, and during the hot months numerous well to do men from the neighboring city stayed there with their families. Some of these attended the church. As a last resort Rev. Mr. Hall had come to the city to make personal appeal to these men. But Brother Jones and Brother Hayes and Brother Benton had other channels for their currency, and when Hall, weary and heartsick, sat down in the corridor of the hotel, he had raised but $20 in cash, with pledges of perhaps $38 more.

He had opened his time table again when some one touched his shoulder.

"Oh, I say, Spider," said a voice in deprecation, "this isn't just square, you know. We've been hunting high and low for you. Why didn't you send us word?"

Hall looked up. Two young fellows, evidently college men, stood before him.

"Were you addressing me?" said Hall.

"That's pretty good," said the other young man. "You're funny when you have a try at dignity, old boy."

"There's no use mincing matters," said No. 1. "If you're going to back down, we want the deposit back; that's all."

"Gentlemen," said Hall curtly, "I'll give your seeming impertinence the benefit of the doubt. There is evidently some mistake here."

"Oh, ring off; ring off!" said the first speaker wearily. "You've led us enough of a chase already."

"See here," said Hall, rising angrily; "I've no intention"—

"Have you the nerve to say you're not Spider McGann?" said No. 2 while he favored his companion with a ponderous wink.

"Most certainly I'm not," said Hall.

"Would you mind letting us see your left forearm?" said No. 1, with the air of a man who has trumped the trick.

"Certainly not," said Hall, with some asperity, "if it will be a means of convincing you."

He bared his left forearm, and the two bent over it critically.

"By George! There aren't any tattoo marks here," said the shorter of the pair. "We owe you every apology, sir, for a very stupid blunder. Will you join us?" He nodded toward a pair of swinging doors from behind which the clink of glasses was plainly audible.

"No, thank you," said Hall shortly and turned again to his time table.

Again he felt the touch on his shoulder.

"We don't mean to intrude," said a respectful voice.

Hall looked up and found the young fellows again before him.

"Well?" he said.

"You see," began the taller chap, "we're in the deuce of a fix, and we thought perhaps—bare chance, you know—you might care to help us out and incidentally make a neat bit out of it. There's several hundred in it for some one."

Hall thought of the church and his morning's work for the $38.

"I'm certainly open to suggestions," he said, smiling grimly.

"Can you box?" said his interlocutor.

Hall's face wore a puzzled expression at the inquiry. "I have in years past," he admitted.

"Good!" said the other. "If we can come to terms, you are the very man we need just at present. This gentleman is Mr. Burns. I am Robert Dix.

"You see," Dix continued, "at the gym there is a trainer called Hefty Burke. He's put out every man in college who has had the courage to give him a go, by virtue of which Mr. Burke has begun to think himself the whole thing, and it therefore becomes our bounden duty to relieve this superfluous pomposity.

"This was our plan: Some years ago there came to the gym a little fellow named Spider McGann. Spider was a coming lightweight, which truth didn't strike Hefty until Hefty struck the floor. But the affair blew over, and now he is growing again. So we hunted up McGann, who is a lightweight champion now, and offered him $800 to go up against Burke. The mill comes off tonight at the Macedonian club, and poor old Hefty thinks he's up against the Macedonian club's trainer. It 'll be rare to see his face when he finds it's Spider McGann. Spider will lay down in the ninth, and Hefty will simply swell. He'll continue to swell until the Annual comes out. This will be in it."

He handed Hall a slip of paper. In a scrawling hand was written:

This is to certify that I, Spider McGann, laid down in my fight with Hefty Burke. I could have punched him full of holes as a sieve if I'd had a mind to, same's as I done once before.

SPIDER M'GANN,
Lightweight Champion of the World.

"Now, the point is, Spider's gone back on us."

"That's it," said Burns. "We've got to pull it off somehow. We've sold over 1,000 tickets at anywhere from $2 up. All the old grads Hefty has floored will be there ready to back him—you see, no one knows it's fixed but Dix and I and the board of editors of the Annual."

"And you're the image of Spider McGann," said Dix. "Our proposition is to give you the $800 to meet Hefty tonight. If we couldn't tell you from Spider McCann, he couldn't. You're due to go out anyway, so it won't make very much difference when you do, only we'd want you to stay as many rounds as you could for the sake of appearances."

Hall was thinking deeply. "For the church! For the church!" ran through his head.

"Gentlemen," said he, "Spider McGann pro tem. is at your service."

"You're a brick!" said Dix, wringing Hall's hand. "Meet us here at 5, and we can talk it over at dinner. And"—fishing in his pocket—"here's fifty to clinch it. We'll give you the rest after the mill."

At 5 Hall was pacing the corridor, when Burns and Dix came in. After dinner, at which Hall was given many valuable points as to Hefty's style of boxing, the three entered a cab and were driven rapidly to the Macedonian club.

It was precisely 8 o'clock when the Rev. Charles Aloysius Hall, clad in green trunks, faced Hefty Burke. That gentleman's face was a study. Beyond a doubt he was suffering from the shock of recognition.

"Not quite so easy as last time," Burke muttered between clinched teeth, and Hall could not restrain a chuckle.

"Time!" The referee's voice sounded in almost absolute stillness. Then at it they went. Hefty was nervous and Hall was cool. He could imagine himself back at the gym in his university days. He side stepped Hefty's sledge-hammer blows; he dodged and ducked in a manner that brought the crowd to its feet. He would do his utmost to stay those nine rounds.

In one of the boxes Burns and Dix were hugging each other.

"It's great, great!" said Dix. "Hefty will surely think it was Spider."

And there was even more cause for Hefty to think so when the end came rather suddenly early in the eighth. Hall ducked a vicious jab and at the same time swung with his right. The blow landed with terrific force on Hefty's neck, and he went down blowing like a grampus. Then the referee counted off ten seconds. The crowd howled. It was some minutes before Hall realized what had happened, and when he did he vaulted the ropes and broke for his dressing room, while behind him the cheering redoubled.

At Cedarville two days later Hall received the following letter:

Rev. Charles Aloysius Hall:

Dear Sir—You will probably wonder how we know your name and address. A card fell from your pocket in your dressing room, and we have guarded it jealously. Your secret is safe with us.

It was because we had the card that we let you depart that night without saying more about the money after you had refused it because you claimed you had broken your contract by flooring Hefty. You earned it; ye gods, you richly earned it. The first thing Hefty said when they got him to his corner was, "Well, I ain't so much, am I?"

Inclosed please find check on Third National for $800.

We have secured from Spider a sworn statement that he did not fight Hefty Burke on the evening of April 7. This will appear in the Annual, with a poem on Hefty's fall before the great unknown.

Great unknown! You shall remain such, but permit us to express our gratitude to you. Sincerely yours,

ROBERT DIX.

Anxious thoughts sometimes perplex the wife who sees maternity before her. If she is treading an untried path, she sometimes frets herself into a nervous condition which is injurious and prostrating. If motherhood has already been a painful experience she is apt to shrink from the coming trial and by her very mental anxiety increase the possibility of her suffering.

There is no cause for anxiety for those prospective mothers who use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite, induces refreshing sleep and produces mental cheerfulness as well as physical vigor. It gives strength and muscular elasticity so that the baby's advent is practically painless. It is the best tonic for nursing mothers.

"I am so thankful for what Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has done for me," writes Mrs. John T. Smith, of Blocsa, Brit. Col., Box 50. "It helped me through the long months before baby came and I have a big, strong baby girl, the most healthy of the three, and it cured me of a disease which was taking away all my strength."

The dealer who offers a substitute for "Favorite Prescription" does so to gain the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines. His profit is your loss, therefore accept no substitute.

Burdock Blood Bitters

BUILT UP THE SYSTEM AND ADDED TEN POUNDS IN WEIGHT.

Mr. Ed. J. Harris, Newbridge, Ont., was in poor health, but has now been restored to full health and vigor. Here is what he writes us: "Last spring I was in a very critical condition, my system was all run down. I felt drowsy and miserable, and thought I would surely die if I did not get something to build me up. After reading one of your almanacs I decided to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and before I had taken two bottles I had gained ten pounds in weight, and am now in perfect health, and I can certainly recommend Burdock Blood Bitters to build up the system."

This Dog Can Spell.

There is a south side lady who owns a Gordon setter which she believes is endowed with almost human intelligence, says the Chicago News. This is not a hastily formed nor unfounded opinion, but has been developed by years of experience. Here is one of the many incidents from which has sprung her faith in her dog:

One Sunday, having finished her dinner, the lady went into the drawing room to read the paper. On a rug near the window the setter was basking drowsily in the sunshine. The lady's two sons were still in the dining room finishing the repast, and the mother overheard something said about bones. Now, the good lady has a mortal dread that her beautiful dog will choke to death on a bone some day, so, raising her voice, she called out, "Boys, don't give Dan any c-h-i-c-k-e-n b-o-n-e-s," spelling these two words so the dog's attention would not be attracted. "I'm afraid he will choke."

As she spelled "chicken" the dog raised his head; at "bones" he got up, walked into the dining room and looked at the bones the boys were picking.

Be young! It is only necessary to take Miller's Compound Iron Pills to retain youthful vigour and appearance. Sold by all druggists.

Women Florists.

Women as florists? Why not? Could there be a business more adapted to the tastes and faculties of woman? In London there are several young women who are acquiring wealth as florists, having wonderfully good taste and originality in arranging floral gifts and decorations for social functions. In this business the hours are uncertain and long, but one can't have every advantage, and the work of managing such an establishment is decidedly congenial to woman.

Cleaning Knives.

When knives have steel blades they should be cleaned and polished after each using. This is best accomplished if a small basket is kept near at hand which contains a potato, a bath brick and a polishing cloth. Scrape a little of the brick upon a board, dip the cut end of the potato into it and use this to rub the blade of the knife free of all stains. Then polish with the cloth and wash the handle in warm but not hot water.

Jewels.

Women who have jewels should remember that if turquoises are wetted they are apt to lose color. Pearls should be exposed to light and air as much as possible, but not to damp. Opals must never be exposed to great heat or they may crack and fall from their setting.

CULINARY CONCEITS.

Fried sweet apples are a delicious accompaniment to liver and kidneys.

Two pounds of melted suet added to five pounds of lard makes a frying fat superior to the lard alone.

Cooks who understand the proper way of flavoring with garlic and onion parboil both vegetables before using them.

Rice boiled with currants and served with a hard sauce made with one well beaten egg, sugar, butter and flavoring makes a good luncheon dessert.

Pieplant takes all flavors and, like the common potato, imparts none. Therefore it can be used with strawberries or cherries for pies, and no one will suspect that the filling is one-third pieplant.

A pretty fancy for decorating soup is to cut crisp lettuce leaves or celery stalks with a vegetable cutter, then scatter the tiny circles over the soup, where they look like pale green and white confetti.

In making a cheese omelet try mixing the cheese, finely grated, of course, with the eggs before the latter are beaten. The lightness of the omelet will not be interfered with, while the flavor will be greatly improved.

A Severe Case of Lumbago.

Mr. Jas. A. Searls, Norwich, Ont., Quickly and Permanently Cured by

Dr. Pitcher's Backache-Kidney Tablets.

Know what lumbago is? Pain catches you right in the small of the back—makes stooping over or rising up excruciating agony.

Wrong kidney action is the cause of the trouble, and if you let Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablet set the kidneys working right, you'll be quickly and permanently cured.

Mr. Jas. A. Searls, the well and favourably known boot and shoe merchant of Norwich, Ont., made this statement:—"During a recent sharp attack of lumbago, in which the pain was extremely severe, I took a bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets. They took the pain out of my back so quickly, and so far as I can see made a cure so permanent, that I consider them unequalled for that most prevalent and painful affliction. I am only too pleased to recommend them to other people who may be suffering as I was."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists or by mail. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont. 5

WHY The Standard Mines and Milling Company

Capital $1,000,000 Ten Cent Shares

Is the Best Mining Investment on the Market To-day.

It's mines are in three great mining camps in Idaho, Thunder Mountain and Trinity County, California. It has vast bodies of ore already above ground and extensive workings under ground, thus enough insight for its three plants for years. It has one-third of the stock in another company that has the biggest and richest reef of ore (all above ground) in the world. All it has to do is to wait for dividends on this stock. It has a capable honest and reliable Management. The price of stock is very low for the present, virtually ground floor.

QUOTATIONS ON THE WALL STREET MARKET

The Market Rallied at the Close.

The Quotations of the Leading Stocks —Market Letters.

The Wall street market opened rather weak this morning. C.P.R., which closed last night at 122 1-2, sold at the opening at 120 3-4, and during the morning went as low as 120 1-4. By noon it had recovered to 122. Reading was one of the features of the board. It opened this morning at 45, touched as low as 44 5-8, but took a quick run up to 48. Mop. was as low as 100 1-2, but recovered to 102 7-8. In the afternoon the market had still a further rally, and C.P.R. closed at 123 1-4.

Messrs. McMillan & Maguire, stock brokers, Hunter street, have received the following:—

New York, June 16th, 1.20 p. m. — London selling was said to be for Liverpool and Amsterdam. Thus the liquidation spreads over new territory. Pretended fears of a coal strike depressed the coalers. Wormers suit against Metropolitan depressed that stock. Western interests sold B. & O. and R. G. The Well people covered shorts on the break. Savan taking 10,000 shares. Morgans early return from London was turned into a bear argument it being said his return was hastened because he was needed. A bull market is out of the question at this time. At the same time the stocks have had such a decline that they should be sold on the rallies only. The banks are slowly fortifying their position, but they are not expected to be able to do more than hold their own and will not permit much speculation for an advance. Sell stocks on all good rallies.

DICKINSON.

Messrs. W. F. Dever & Co., Stock Brokers, Simcoe street, have received the following:

New York, June 15th.—Early transactions to-day were a repitition of Saturday's last half hour. Our opening was heavy with losses ranging a point, in the active list. Downward tendency continued up to mid-day with hardly a semblance of a rally; further realizing during the noon-day session which carried prices still lower. The buying power which was so plainly in evidence the latter part of last week was conspicuous, by its absence and with considerable of the small fry shorts out of the market it did not receive any encouragement from that source. The bulls are not so rampant as they were on Thursday and Friday of last week having had some of the wind taken out of their sails. But still on the other hand bears are not so aggressive as formerly. There was no important news and reaction was considered only perfectly healthy. If there is a further break would make moderate purchases of the good stock for a turn but do not hold for too large profits; put out additional short lines on the rallies.

Chicago.—The general tone of wheat showed improvement to-day, although business was a little quiet. We are firm believers in higher prices in this market. Close— wheat, July, 75 7-8 @ 76; corn, July, 48 5-8; oats, July, 33 3-4; pork, Sept., 16.35; lard, Sept., 895.

LACROSSE.

The Athletics are working consistently and are in good trim for their game with Belleville on Thursday. The visitors are preparing for a hard game.

* * * *

Belleville Intelligencer. — "Peterborough papers are predicting a hard game next Thursday, when the local club goes up against the Peterborough Athletics. The Athletics are practising hard, and it is to be hoped the Red and White boys will do the same. They won't find any easy proposition like Hastings next Thursday." You bet they won't.

This is the Guide's impression of the Lindsay-Port Hope game: — "A junior team from Port Hope went out to Lindsay yesterday and were defeated by a score of 7—1. The boys did not expect to win but soon after the game started they began to realize that they could hold their own with the Lindsayites. The first twenty minutes was fast lacrosse and ended 1—0 in favour of Port Hope. The second quarter was something similar, but this time Lindsay secured the goal and at half time it stood 1—1.

"Lindsay didn't like the look of it at all and went in the third quarter determined to win. According to all the players it was a rough-house time and Lindsay scored five in this twenty. Several times the Port Hopers threatened to leave the field, but as it was a case of "play or no money," they were obliged to bear the treatment. The last quarter was cut short to allow some of the Beaverton importations to catch the train, and in this quarter Lindsay scored 1 more.

"It is doubtful whether the Referee ever witnessed a lacrosse match before, but there is one thing certain that he will never act for a Port Hope team again."

FOOTBALL.

The Quakers and the Auburns will play a game at the oval on Wednesday night at 6.45.

BASEBALL.

On Saturday in the City League the Auburns and Pullmans play a game in the Murray street grounds.

The Auburns go to Lindsay on Thursday to play the Clippers of that town.

In the Guild League two games were finished last night; those between George and Charlotte streets, and St. Andrew's and St. Paul's. In the first, which was played on the Patterson street grounds, the Charlotte street heavy batters were easy winners. Commencing the three innings play with a score of 10—9 in their favour they brought in 11 runs, while the players from the up-town church only added 4 runs to those already to their credit, the score at the close being 21—13 with George street behind. Their failure was due chiefly to their inability to hit the balls served up by Squires, who had speed to burn, coupled with some ragged playing in the infield. Skitch made a sensational catch of a difficult fly, which won applause from the bleachers. Wood and Gray also figured in some good play. The teams lined up as follows:

Charlotte street — Squires, Harmer, Galbraith, Sorsolail. Dormer, Bradburn, Pringle, Carr, Hartley.

George street — Dredge, Hutchinson, Lord, Gray, Skitch, Wood Warne Boomer, Dobbin.

* * * *

The Presbyetrian Guilds played on the McDonel street diamond, the game resulting in a win for St. Andrew's by a score of 20—15. The line up was as follows:—

St. Andrews — Henderson, Garrow, Kelly, Thornton, Wilkie, Cox, Elliott, Anderson.

St. Paul's — Rosenberg, Watt, Duncan, Laing, Wightman, Lee, Thompson, Stacey, Craig.

* * * *

Last night the Auburns played a practice game with the Y.M.C.A., the score at the close being 9—3 in favour of the senior team.

CHEERING REPORTS.

All Over Central Canada Crops Are in Splendid Condition.

Toronto, June 16.—Reports from all over Central Ontario are to be effect that the crops are in splendid condition. East and west there are two extremes—two little rain and too much rain. Between Woodstock and Cobourg there is nothing the farmers can complain of, and the happy mean between drought and deluge seems to have been struck.

Throughout this portion of the province and in the Niagara district there promises to be an abundant yield of fruit, nearly everything that grows on tree or vine being in an advance state.

CURED HIS BRIGHT'S DISEASE

Former President of Bricklayer's Union Used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Andrew McCormick, of Toronto, Tells of a Cure for the Most Dreaded of all Diseases.

Toronto, June 15th, (Special.)—In these days when the dreaded Bright's Disease seems to be selcting its victims at will, the report of an authenticated cure is received with relief by all classes of the community. And such a report comes from Andrew McCormack, of 243 Spadina avenue, this city.

That Mr. McCormack is well known and highly respected is evidenced by the fact that he has held several high offices in a number of fraternal societies, and was for several years President of the Bricklayers' Union. Interviewed regarding the cure, Mr. McCormack says:

"I sufferred with an attack of Bright's Disease and naturally was much troubled concerning it. I heard of the wonderful cures effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills and concluded to try them. The result was so satisfactory that it gives me pleasure to recommend them."

Make and keep the kidneys sound using Dodd's Kidney Pills and there can be no Bright's Disease.

IN MEMORY

Of Alexander Wood.

Bright angels were hovering from heaven above
As we stood by his couch in deep sorrow,
For we knew we should part with a friend's sweet love
Ere that day would give place to the morrow.

In silence we watched him with bated breath,
For his spirit seemed near heaven's portal:
And ofttimes we knew not if life or pale death
Held sway over that which was mortal.

It is good to behold how the pure and the meek
In the swellings of Jordan have peace;
Their deeds never die, and to us they yet speak,
Though their souls from earth's bonds have release.

We miss our dear friend his image will still
Be deeply impressed on our hearts,
And the tablet so faithful in death must be chill
Ere a line of that image departs.

In humble seclusion his days passed away
His duty his only ambition;
No pride, nor yet vain, ostentatious display
Had charms for a change of condition.

His hand ever open to charity's call
And a heart which could feel for another,
He was known, nay, loved, and looked on by all
To the fatherless as the real father.

The archives of fame never chronicled worth
More fitted to fill his vocation;
His light could illumine some lights of the earth
That shone from a loftier station.

As one in a thousand he crossed o'er life's bar,
For a century spanned his life's story;
He entered his rest through the gate that's ajar
To join the redeemed ones in glory.

Murdered in the Court.

New York, June 16.—Charles McFarlane, President of the Anti-Policy Society, was shot and killed yesterday on the General Session floor of the Criminal Court Building by William Spencer, a negro, who was to have been placed on trial yesterday on the charge of violating the Anti-Policy Law. McFarlane was shot just as he left the elevator. Four shots in all were fired. In less than two hours, Spencer was indicted for murder in the first degree by the grand jury. He will plead to-day.

THE ACCIDENT PROVED FATAL.

Young Assyrian Shot Himself in the Stomach.

Was Cleaning a Revolver When it Exploded—An Operation Was Unsuccessful.

Lindsay Post. — A youth named Shawmy, about 15 years of age, who belongs to a family of Assyrians, residing in a rough cast house on York street, next to Workman's livery stable, met with a very serious accident yesterday about ten o'clock in the morning, which proved fatal. The unfortunate young man was cleaning a six chambered revolver, with the barrel pressing against his stomach, unaware that it was loaded, when the weapon discharged, the ball entering at the navel. The sound of the explosion aroused his parents, and when they entered the bedroom, the son was lying across the bed suffering great agony but conscious. Drs Gillespie and Allen were sent for, and after examining the wound Shawmy was driven in Workman's cab to the Ross Hospital where an operation was performed, but without success, as the bullet could not be located. The poor fellow slowly sank until relieved by death at 10.30 last night. We understand that the remains will be buried in Lindsay.

Too Great a Risk.

In almost every neighbourhood someone has died from an attack of colic or cholera morbus, often before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. A reliable remedy for these diseases should be kept at hand. The risk is too great for anyone to take. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has undoubtedly saved the lives of more people and relieved more pain and suffering than any other medicine in use. It can always be depended upon. For sale by all druggists.

Lifebuoy Soap—disinfectant—is strongly recommended by the medical profession as a safeguard against infectious diseases.

Awful Disaster That Befel the Town of Heppner, Oregon.

CANADIANS AMONG DROWNED

Wall of Water Overwhelmed the Town—The Inhabitants Were at Dinner, and Had No Intimation of Danger Until It Was Upon Them—Mr. Hugh Clark, M.P.P., Fears For His Brother.

Toronto, June 17.—It is feared that a brother of Hugh Clark, M. P. P., may have been one of the victims of the water-spout horror in the west. Mr. Clark was in the general store business of Miner & Co., and has been in Heppner for seven or eight years. The home of Oscar Miner, one of the firm, is mentioned as having been demolished by the flood, and Mrs. Miner drowned.

London People Lost.

London, June 17.—Among the hundreds of people who lost their lives in the cloudburst at Heppner, Oregon, may be a former resident of this city, Mr. A. M. Gunn, and son of Mrs. Catharine Gunn, Oxford street. He lived in the town of Heppner, and it is feared he and his family, consisting of his wife and four children, may have been lost. Reports say that Mr. Boyd and family, who lived next door to the Gunns', are lost. Later reports state that Mr. and Mrs. Gunn were both drowned.

Five Hundred Dead.

The Dalles, Ore., June 17.—A telephone message from Ione states that the latest find in the ruins of Heppner indicates that the loss of life will be much greater than at first supposed. The casualty list will foot up 500, and many of the bodies will never be recovered. One hundred and fifty of the best residences were swept from the earth.

Among the incidents of the catastrophe was the saving of three lives by Julius Keitley, 70 years old, who rode a mile and a half and saved three people. James Kernan, the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company agent, met his death at the telegraph key trying to call Portland, to inform the outside world of the impending calamity.

All Taken Suddenly.

Portland, Oregon, June 17.—N. I. Tooker of Portland, a survivor of the Heppner disaster, says the cloudburst struck the town at 5.30 p.m., when everyone was at supper.

"All were taken so suddenly," says Mr. Tooker, "that nothing could be done to save them. Homes, stores and buildings in the main portion of the town were torn loose and driven onward. Those who were on the streets shouted warnings as they rushed madly to the hills for their lives."

David McAtee, an eye-witness of the disaster, says: "Oscar Miner's house was demolished, and Mrs. Miner drowned, the rest of the family succeeded in saving their lives by clinging to the roof. The house of Mr. Boyd, and Mrs. Walton were also destroyed, and both families lost.

"The house of Benjamin Patterson, Mr. Gunn and Mr. Noble were entirely demolished, and all persons in the three families drowned, as were the families of James Jones and Henry Blair."

Land Under Water.

Vancouver, B. C., June 17.—The water in the Fraser is now higher than it has been since 1894. Pitt Modow dyke has broken down, and as a result over a thousand acres of land is under water. At Upper Sumas, William Melbourne, not thinking the current so swift, waded in and was swept away and drowned. Fifty families are deserting their farms on Niceman Island.

THE MARKET GARDENERS.

Motion to Increase Their Protection Rejected by the House—Proposed as Want of Confidence Motion.

Ottawa, June 17.—It was announced by Sir Richard Cartwright in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon that neither of the tenders received for the fast Atlantic service would be accepted by the Government. Although neither of the offers is satisfactory, they may, however, form the basis of negotiations for better tenders.

The Drainage Question.

The vexed question of drainage across right of way of railway companies and the interesting subject of affording increased protection for the market gardeners were the subjects of debate. In the afternoon Mr. M. K. Cowan offered as an amendment to Mr. Blair's railway bill the provisions of the bill which he introduced earlier in the session, giving property-owners the same rights respecting drainage over railway companies' lands as they enjoy under the Provincial laws against private property-owners. Hon. Mr. Blair pointed out that simple machinery for remedying grievances of this class had been provided, but promised to consider the amendment, which was allowed to stand over.

Majority Against 49.

Last evening an amendment to the motion to go into supply by Dr. Leonard, demanding an increased duty on vegetables, provoked an animated debate. By a strict party vote the House rejected the amendment, the Government's majority being 49.

SOMETHING VERY SHORTLY.

Manager Hays of Grand Trunk Pacific After Meeting Government.

Ottawa, June 17.—Mr. C. M. Hays and Mr. Wainwright of the G.T.R. last night met Sir Richard Cartwright, Sir Wm. Mulock, Hon. A. G. Blair, Hon. Jas. Sutherland and Hon. Chas. Fitzpatrick in the Prime Minister's room, when the whole question of aid to the proposed new transcontinental line was discussed. Sir Wilfrid Laurier was not present. The result of the conference will be reported to a Cabinet meeting, when the Government will consider and decide upon the policy to be recommended to Parliament. Mr. Hays was asked if he had any announcement to make, and replied, "Not tonight, but I think there will be something very shortly."

"Are you satisfied with the progress which the bill is making?" queried the correspondent.

"I have no complaint to make," said the Manager of the Grand Trunk, who appeared to be in very good spirits.

THE THIRTY MILE LIMIT.

Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Amendment Endorsed by Railway Committee.

Ottawa, Ont., June 17.—At the meeting of the Railway Committee yesterday the Grand Trunk bill was again up for consideration.

The Railway Committee passed an order that before the construction of the prairie section was commenced, the location should be approved by the Governor-in-Council and no part of such location shall be nearer than 30 miles to any constructed or located main line of railway unless for special reasons to be named by the Governor-in-Council.

In lieu of this the Grand Trunk Company proposed the following:—Provided always that before the construction of any portion of the "Prairie section" in the Northwest Territories is commenced, the location thereof shall be subject to the approval of the Governor-in-Council, having regard to the principle that except for the purpose of reaching proposed common points, or for other satisfactory reasons, such location shall, as far as practicable, be so made that such main line of railway shall be constructed at such distance generally, not less than thirty miles from any other main line of railway running in the same direction already constructed, or located by plans sanctioned by the Minister of Railways and Canals prior to the passing of this act, as the Governor-in-Council may deem reasonable."

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company propose, instead, as follows:— "Provided always that before the construction of any portion of the "prairie section" is commenced the location thereof shall be subject to the approval of the Governor-in-Council, having regard to the principle that except for the purpose of approaching Winnipeg, Battleford and Edmonton, or for other satisfactory reasons, such locations shall, as far as practicable, be so made that such main line of railway shall be constructed at such distance generally not less than 30 miles from any line of railway running in the same general direction constructed, under construction, or located by plans sanctioned by the Minister of Railways and Canals, prior to the application for such approval, as the Governor-in-Council may deem reasonable."

The original proposition was moved at the Railway Committee by Mr. D. C. Fraser. Mr. McCarthy moved the amendment of the Grand Trunk Company, which was adopted, and the bill was reported.

REJECTED BY 276 TO 217.

Mr Wyndham Declines to Accept Amendments of Mr. Redmond.

London, June 17.—In the House of Commons yesterday John Redmond's amendment to the Irish Land Bill asking for the abolition of the minimum price at which the landlord may sell, even though the landlord and tenant might agree on a lower price, was discussed. Mr. Wyndham was unable to accept the amendment to raise the minimum reduction to 15 per cent. in the case of second term rents and to 25 per cent. in the case of term rents. John Redmond, T. Healy, and John Muley complained of Mr. Wyndham's attitude.

Mr. Wyndham said he realized the gravity of the situation, but the minimum reductions must remain 10 and 20 per cent. respectively.

Mr. Redmond's amendment was rejected by a vote of 217 to 276.

James Smith Shoots Himself.

London, June 17.—About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon James Smith, a commercial traveler, shot himself in the forehead with suicidal intent. He was visiting the military camp at Carling's Heights with a couple of friends. Without any warning he walked into a tent and placed a revolver to his forehead and fired. He was taken to Victoria Hospital and the bullet extracted by Dr. Piper. Up till 11 o'clock last evening he was still unconscious. The doctor in attendance stated that his chances of recovery were very good.

First Spike Driven.

KINGDOM OF PETER I.

Servia Practically Ruled by a Military Despotism.

THE CZAR AND THE NEW KING.

Nicholas Has Sent King Peter Sincere Wishes For the Prosperity of His Enterprise, Which He Hopes Will Result in Happiness For the People—Assassins Paid For Their Job.

Belgrade, June 17.—The position of King Peter I, promises to be little more than that of a royal captive. The real head of the country will be a military dictatorship, under the leaders of the revolution, Col. Maschin and Col. Mitschitsch. The new King is almost without any personal adherents, and the ruling spirits of the army, it is thought probable, would just as readily murder him as they did his predecessor, should he oppose their aims.

At the present moment, the whole country is under military rule, and although no prefectos in the country districts have been removed, each is accompanied by an army officer who attends the prefect wherever he goes, There has been no disorder, however. Extremely forcible arguments were found necessary to suppress the Radical aspirations for a republic.

The foremost advocate of a republican form of Government was Ljubonir Schiokovics, editor of The Belgrade Odjek. Finding him impervious to arguments, the conspirators invited him to a dinner at the Officers' Club. His hosts told him that unless he agreed to support King Peter there would be one head less in Belgrade. The editor yielded to the force of this reasoning, and accepted the situation. He is now Minister of Justice in the new Government.

Conspirators Were Paid.

Berlin, June 17.—The Berliner Tageblatt's correspondent at Rome asserts that Colonel Maschin and his fellow conspirators received a large sum of money for their deed.

Czar Congratulates Him.

Geneva, June 17.—The Czar has telegraphed to King Peter as follows: "Learning that the Senate and Skupschtina had formally proclaimed you King of Servia, I venture to express to Your Majesty sincere wishes for the prosperity of your country, and the hope that God may come to your assistance in the enterprise you have undertaken for the happiness of your people. (Signed) "Nicholas."

Toronto Man Drowned.

Orangeville, June 17.—J. B. Crane of Toronto, a traveler for E. Leadlay & Co., wholesale dealers in hides and leather, was drowned in Caledon Lake, a popular pleasure resort about two miles from here, shortly before 6 o'clock last evening. With two others he was fishing near the head of what is known as the second lake, when their boat capsized, throwing them all into the lake. All three succeeded in gaining the bottom of the overturned boat, but Crane slipped off and was drowned.

Shirt waists and dainty linen are made delightfully clean and fresh with Sunlight Soap. 53

NERVOUS PROSTRATION
CURED BY PE-RU-NA.

HAL. P. DENTON.

Mr. Hal. P. Denton, Chief Department Publicity and Promotion of National Export Exposition, writes:

Philadelphia, Dec. 20, 1899.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

Gentlemen:—"Toward the latter part of August I found myself in a very much run-down condition. I suffered particularly from catarrh of the stomach, aggravated no doubt by the responsibilities and worriment incident to the exploitation of a great international exposition. What I ate distressed me and I would lie awake at night 'threshing over,' if I may use that expression, the affairs of the previous day.

"My family physician said I had nervous prostration and recommended a sea voyage. I gradually grew worse. A kind friend whom I had known in Ohio recommended Peruna. Though skeptical, I finally yielded to his advice. After using one bottle I was much improved and with the fifth bottle came complete recovery. I am in perfect health to-day and owe everything to Peruna."

Very truly yours,
HAL. P. DENTON.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice free.

MR. GAMEY AS SEEN BY AMERICAN PRESS.

High Tribute to Courage and Integrity of Mr. Ross and His Colleagues.

Speaking of the Gamey case, the British American, Chicago, says:—

To the unprejudiced observer it appears plainly evident that this unblushing assailant of the Ministry deliberately put himself up for sale, with the intention of getting everything in the shape of mineral grants and timber limits he could lay his hands on, but failing in his purpose, and seeing no means of getting his greedy desires gratified by the Government, he conceived the idea of overthrowing the Ministers by the tale of corruption he so glibly unfolded in the Legislature. Mr. Gamey, during the course of the trial, made such an exhibition of himself that even his own lawyers could not defend him. . . The courage and integrity of Premier Ross have stood out clearly, and the attempt to fasten all the crimes of the political calendar upon him have signally failed. He has had the misfortune to stand in the way of men who are desperately bent upon unseating a Government which has been in power for many years, in order that they might have an opportunity to obtain office, and for this reason he has been bitterly and unfairly attacked.

A SPECIES OF SLAVERY.

(Toronto Globe.)

The investigation of Federal secret service officers has made it abundantly clear that in some of the southern States the operation of the law is so perverted that many negroes are kept for certain periods in a virtual state of slavery. It is worked in this way: Coloured men or women are accused of some offence, often quite trumpery, and on being fined are unable to pay. A white man is on hand who pays the fine, and the court directs that the alternative period in jail shall be spent in the service of the payer of the fine. The prisoners are usually taken to a farm, a phosphate quarry, or into the pine woods, where they are employed gathering resin. Wherever their lot may be cast they are treated like slaves. Moreover, excuses of any kind are seized, towards the termination of their sentences, to get them brought again before a Magistrate and re-sentenced. Sometimes a prisoner will put in two years, or even more, in this way for some trivial offence. Travellers in the south will frequently see gangs of negro prisoners working on public buildings, trolley construction works, etc., but seldom or never will be seen a white man amongst them. As the black man form the "masses" in the southern States it is not remarkable that they should greatly outnumber the whites in any group of prisoners. But that the latter should scarcely ever be seen among those prisoners suggests that even the law and its administrators draw a colour line. A northern traveller did on one occasion see a white man among a lot of negro prisoners who were engaged in erecting a court house at Decatur, Georgia. People came miles to see him, and felt that this white man was now so far degraded that nothing remained for him but suicide. Although he was a prisoner, the guards (armed with rifles) did not demand any work of him, but allowed him to seat himself a little apart. No sight could have brought home so forcibly to the understanding the fixity of the belief in the south that white man and black man are of a different order of being.

A Washington despatch to the Chicago Chronicle based upon information obtained at secret service headquarters, says that a regular business has developed among a class of men to supply help to convict farms, these men having as confederates witnesses who are ready to swear to anything, and Justices of the Peace who will impose heavy fines in order to lengthen the sentence or prevent possibility of escape by the payment of a fine. What follows is thus described:

"In cases where escape was attempted blood hounds have been set on the trail of the refugees, who have been hunted through forest and swamp like wild beasts. Generally the hunt has been successful and the fugitive brought back to the convict camp. The practice under these circumstances has been to go through a form of trial, with the contractor as judge and the negro as the accused. For having attempted to escape, even though frequently the attempt has been after the contract has expired, the prisoner has been sentenced to labour for another period, varying from one to three years, and, perhaps, to receive in addition a severe whipping. Indeed the whipping has not been confined to punishment for attempted escape, but the negroes have been lashed with severity on the slightest pretext, and other forms of bodily punishment have been practised. They have been herded into hovels or stockades in crowds, and guards armed with shot guns and other weapons have patrolled around these inclosures. These guards have not hesitated to shoot hastily if there were signs of discontent and incipient rebellion."

More than one case establishing these facts is ready to be proved by the secret service officers, and steps will be taken, it is understood, to break up the system.

MONEY IN POULTRY.

Bulletin of Poultry Farming Issued by Agriculture Department.

"Profitable Poultry Farming" (Revised Edition) has been received at this office from the chief of the poultry division, department of agriculture, Ottawa. It is a bulletin of 48 pages describing the construction of poultry houses, the feeding of poultry, the hatching, rearing, fattening and marketing of chickens, and also the diseases and parasites of poultry. The bulletin is a complete poultry guide; it is filled with practical information and is well illustrated. "Profitable Poultry Farming" will be mailed free to any address on application to Ottawa. Postage is not required when writing for the bulletin.

On farms throughout Canada there are nondescript fowls that are a small source of income. They receive little care. In the spring of the year they produce eggs that are sold at a low price. Their chickens are marketed with difficulty.

"Profitable Poultry Farming" is written to show how an increased profit can be realized from utility-bred, well-cared-for farm poultry. Poultry farming on a farm can be developed in Canada with much profit. The fowls should receive the attention afforded the larger stock; they should be as well housed; from 200 to 1,000 chickens should be reared annually.

There is a great demand in Canada for fatted chickens and fresh table eggs. The market requirements show a pronounced advancement within the last few years; the consumption of chickens and eggs has increased; the prices paid by the trade have improved.

A most striking development has been the crate-fatted chicken trade—a business introduced in 1898 by the Commissioner of Agriculture and aDirying. In that year crate-fatted chickens were first forwarded to Great Britain. The reports received state that the chickens arrived in fine condition; pleased the trade well in every respect, and were sold at good prices. Canadian fatted chickens have been received favourably in Great Britain. The value of the poultry shipped to Great Britain has increased from $18,902 in 1898 to $238,047 in 1902. The latter sum represents only 2 per cent. of the value of the poultry imported into the United Kingdom from other countries.

This Department of Agriculture was asked by one dealer in Manchester to supply the names of Canadian exporting firms who could ship him 3,000 cases of chickens (36,000 chickens) a week. There is an almost unlimited market in Great Britain for Canadian fatted chickens.

When home consumers realized the improved quality of fatted chickens, a home demand was created. This demand has increased rapidly. There is every indication of a substantial yearly increase in the home consumption of fatted chickens.

An important trade is the new-laid egg trade. This is most profitable during the winter months. December 1st, 1902, this Department was offered for strictly new-laid eggs 40 cents a dozen until the end of last month.

Poultry farming on a farm will be found a profitable branch of agriculture. The business should be managed by those who have direct control of the farm. Poultry farming can also be conducted in connection with any of the minor branches of agriculture. There will be a greater profit realised from the business when the utility type of breeding fowl is kept; when the pullets are fed for winter egg-production; when the cockerels are specially fatted for market.

A WOMAN'S ADVICE

To Those who Suffer From Headaches, Backaches and Ailments Peculiar to the Sex.

Every woman needs plenty of pure, rich, red blood and sound nerves to carry her safely through her times of pain and sickness. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are good in a special way for women. They actually make new health-giving blood. They give ease, strength and vigour. They stimulate all the organs to perform their functions regularly and well. They banish all pains and depression, all headaches and backaches, and all the secret distress that only a woman knows.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills bring the sparkle to dull eyes and the rosy glow of health to cheeks once pale and pinched with silent suffering. They bring health and strength when all else fails. Here is a bit of strong proof from Mrs. John McKerr, Chickney, N.W.T., who says: "For some years I was greatly afflicted with the ailments that make the lives of so many of my sex miserable. I tried many medicines, but found nothing to relieve me until I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills have made me feel like a new person; the almost continuous suffering I endured has passed away, and life no longer seems the burden it once did. I know other women who have been similarly benefitted, and I think the pills are worth their weight in gold to all who suffer from female complaints or general prostration."

All over the land are suffering women who can obtain new health and strength through the use of these pills. Only the genuine should be taken and these bear the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" on the wrapper around every box. Sold by all dealers at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, or sent by mail by writing to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

News too Good to Keep.

Persons who have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are usually so well pleased with the benefits derived that they tell the good news to their neighbours. There is no medicine which so promptly awakens the action of the liver, invigorates the kidneys and regulates the bowels as Dr. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and for this reason they are unapproched as a family medicine. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers.

OMEMEE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Rev. Father Brotherton's church picnic at Downeyville, on Thursday the 11th, was largely attended, being favoured with good weather, taking in between three and four hundred dollars. The prizes for the different games were keenly contested for, and the whole proceedings very orderly.

The farmers' root crops are showing up well, and many are sorry they did not sow more sugar beets. There will be larger acreage taken here another year if there will only be room.

KILLING MUSTARD WITH BLUE-STONE.

The Minister of Agriculture has again authorized the Ontario Agricultural College to give demonstrations in Mustard spraying.

The demonstrations given in many parts of the Province in 1901 and 1902 were uniformly successful in the destruction of growing wild mustard plants in growing cereal crops; and it is believed that the blue-stone treatment of mustard will be welcomed by hundreds of farmers throughout Ontario.

1. How the blue-stone is applied:—Place an ordinary spray pump, such as is used for the spraying of fruit trees, on a cart or light wagon; drive along slowly through the field applying the solution to the mustard plants in the form of a fine spray. When the field is badly infested, it is advisable to spay the crop in strips in order that no mustard plants escape the spray.

2. How the blue-stone solution is made—Put nine (9) pounds of blue-stone (Copper Sulphate) in a coarse sack or bag, and suspend it in a vessel containing (3) gallons of very hot or boiling water. The blue-stone will usually dissolve in 15 or 20 minutes. Strain the solution into the barrel of the spray-pump, and fill up with cold water to make 40 or 45 gallons. This is known as the 2 per cent. solution. (1 pound of blue-stone in 5 gallons of water.)

3. When to spray the mustard plants:—Spray the mustard on a calm, bright day, just as the plants are coming into bloom. At this time most of the young plants have made their appearance, and all will be killed. Should a heavy rain come immediately after spraying, it will be necessary to spray again.

4. The cost of the solution:—Commercial blue-stone or blue vitriol costs at the drug store about nine or ten cents per pound. A barrel of the solution will therefore cost about eighty or ninety cents.

5. How much is required to spray an acre thoroughly? A barrel of the solution is sufficient for an acre. Successful results are obtained when the spraying is done thoroughly.

6. Are the crops in which mustard is growing hurt by the spray? Experience shows that the young wheat, barley oats or young clover plants are not injured beyond a slight browning for a few days by the blue-stone spray.

7. Where further information may be obtained:—Sould you desire further information regarding the treatment of mustard with blue-stone solution write to the Biological Department of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

FROM MT. PLEASANT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

In the absence of the pastor of the Methodist church, Rev. Mr. Kilgour of Peterborough, occupied his pulpit, and delivered a practical discourse. His early training comes to the surface, and gives him power to explain the word of God, and to hold a congregation that many ministers lack. His earnest and impressive manner of addressing his audience shows that he has the work at heart.

We are glad to hear that Mr. J. Sutcliffe, under the care of Dr. Carmichael of Peterborough, is improving rapidly.

Farmers are now rejoicing at the downfall of rain.

Crops are looking well and give promise of an abundant harvest.

John Sadler paid a flying visit to our town a few days ago.

The pulpit of the Presbyterian church was occupied on Sunday by Rev. Mr. Harvey of Toronto. His subject was "Peter's statement to Jesus, "Thou hast the words of eternal life."

We are waiting patiently to hear a Minister that will be acceptable to such a large field. The men of today are not very willing to continue long in such a large territory as we have in the three divisions of the congregations.

BRIDGENORTH NEWS NOTES.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The steamer Ogemah has again started her trips.

The crops in this vicinity are looking fine.

Mr. W. B. Kelly is busy erecting a new planing mill.

Quite a number of families have already moved up to the park.

Mr. Hickey, of Peterborough, spent Saturday night in the village.

Mr. O'Leary's boat, which was lost a few weeks ago, has been found.

Miss M. Morrison of Lakefield, is spending a few days with her friend, Miss Ida Mann.

Mr. J. N. Telford passed through the village on Thursday last, taking in the Guelph excursion.

Mr. Thomas Mann was in Young's Point on Sunday.

The Methodist Sunday school held their annual excursion to Sturgeon Point on Tuesday. A large crowd was in attendance. Many sports were run off during the day, and everyone thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

Miss Mabel Morrison and Miss Ida Mann were the guests of Miss Allie Telford on Thursday afternoon.

LAKEHURST.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Mr. and Mrs. William Anderson, of Keene, paid a flying visit to their friends in Harvey on Sunday last. They both look well and hearty.

Mr. Shaw went to Peterborough on Tuesday last to attend the county council.

Mr. Arthur Nelson and Mrs. Fred McIntyre of Otonabee, are visiting relatives in the settlement.

Mr. Harry Elliott has improved the outward appearance of his store very much by covering it with a coat of paint.

Messrs. Ed. and Sam Hunt spent last Sunday at Sandy Point.

Mr. Milford Dever came up to Lakehurst on Saturday on a business trip but the attractions were such that he stayed over till Sunday, thereby combining pleasure with business.

Mrs. Joe Irwin received word a few days ago that her mother, who lives in British Columbia, was seriously ill. We hope to hear of her recovery again.

Some of the boys were down to town last Tuesday to take in the circus.

Miss Sharpe of Otonabee, is staying with her brother, Mr. W. Sharpe, at the factory now.

There is to be a picnic at the Presbyterian church next Friday afternoon. The ladies are to serve tea and clean out the church and at the same time to oversee the building of a new fence which is to be the work of the gentlemen.

The Presbyterian church choir was reinforced last Sunday by two new and valued members. They were Miss Maggie Thompson and Mr. Wm. Smith.

ONTARIO'S PROTEST.

Against Dominion Interference in Provincial Affairs.

MR. PATTULLO'S MOTION.

Encroachment Upon Provincial Jurisdiction—Involves an Invasion of the Rights of the Municipalities—Mover Gives Many Instances of the Practice, and His Motion Was Carried Unanimously.

Toronto, June 17.—In the Legislature yesterday, Mr. Pattullo moved the following resolution:

"That this House protests against the tendency, of late years, on the part of the Dominion Parliament, in the matter of legislation, whereby companies are being incorporated by special acts, though such companies have purely Provincial objects, and come within the purview of Sub-sections 11 and 16 of Section 92 of the British North America Act.

"That the expedient which it has become customary to adopt, of inserting in bills the mere assertion that the works of the company, being incorporated, are declared to be "for the general advantage of Canada," affords no reasonable protection against the encroachment upon Provincial jurisdiction, the bills being entertained and passed, apparently, in ordinary routine, and without reference to any serious consideration of the question of jurisdiction.

"That there is involved in this growing tendency towards encroachment on the Provincial field of legislation, an invasion of the rights of municipalities which this House regards as of serious importance.

"That the Provincial laws relating to electric railways have been designed to safeguard, in many respects, the rights and interests of the municipalities through which these railways run, or are chartered to be constructed, and the protection to municipalities thus afforded will be prejudicially affected, if not entirely removed, by the assumption and exercise of the right to legislate regarding these local railways on the part of the Dominion Parliament.

"This House, therefore, respectfully urges the Dominion Parliament not to pass legislation of this nature pertaining to matters heretofore generally understood to be within Provincial jurisdiction, and which, in their nature, are matters of purely local concern."

Mr. Pattullo's Speech.

Mr. Pattullo, in speaking to his motion, said the Province of Ontario generally got the worst of it, and he instanced the coal duties where the people of Ontario paid two or three million dollars to the Dominion because one of the eastern provinces wanted the duty kept on coal. In several respects the Dominion Government was invading the field of the province, and he mentioned that the Atlas Loan Company, one of the defunct St. Thomas companies, had gone to Ottawa and secured legislation allowing it to go into stock speculation after the province had refused it such legislation. This was a case of invading the legislative sphere of the province and the danger of it had been shown recently.

There should be no Dominion legislation in matters of purely local interest, but there had been an inclination in the Dominion Parliament to invade the sphere of the provinces. In the matter of electric railway charters there had been a disposition to ignore the province. These were purely local affairs.

Speaking of the Toronto and Hamilton Electric Railway Bill, Mr. Pattullo said he was not surprised that the city of Toronto was taking strong opposition to it. If the bill was allowed to go through when the present street railway charter runs out the people of Toronto would be at the mercy of the combination that is now seeking wide powers.

He protested against the granting of a Dominion charter to the Mackenzie-Pellatt syndicate, and instanced several electric railways that had received Dominion charters, though they were entirely local affairs.

Hon. Mr. Gibson.

The Attorney-General said the Ontario Government had protested time and again against the practice of the Dominion in infringing the rights of the province. Companies applying for Dominion charters had but to make a declaration that the proposed work was for the general advantage of Canada, and it would be hard to find an undertaking that would not come under that declaration. A number of electric railway companies were seeking incorporation by the Dominion year by year, and he protested against any assumption of jurisdiction on the part of the Dominion.

Mr. Foy said it was quite clear the proposed electric railway between Toronto and Hamilton was a work of purely a local character, and the Attorney-General was right in protesting against the assumption of jurisdiction by the Dominion. The greatest care should be made by the Dominion in making a declaration that the work for which a charter is being applied for was for the general advantage of the Dominion. There ought to be home rule in the provinces. He thought that if the Dominion incorporated the Toronto and Hamilton Company or any similar companies the Legislature should go a little further and have them vetoed by the Governor-General or by the Imperial authorities.

"It is a clear invasion of municipal rights," said Mr. St. John, referring to the Toronto and Hamilton bill. It gave the company the power to use the highways in defiance of the rights of municipalities.

Messrs. Preston (Brant), Whitney, Nesbitt, Crawford, and Henderson added their approval of the resolution.

The Premier said the Dominion Government had been encroaching upon the jurisdiction of the province, and it had cost the province a good deal of money to fight them. The Toronto and Hamilton Company could not get the powers they wanted from this province, and so they went to Ottawa. He thought the protest of this House would do some good.

Order For Papers.

An order for the correspondence relating to the resignation of Sheriff Dana of Leeds and Grenville was made by the House on Mr. Whitney's motion.

Several resolutions relating to the Crown Lands Department were allowed to stand over, owing to the absence of the Minister.

Answers to Mr. Whitney.

Premier Ross, in reply to questions put by Mr. Whitney, said the Government had not yet decided on the remuneration of the Gamey Commission; he could not say yet whether there would be any railway legislation brought down before the end of the session; nothing would be shut out of the discussions of the Legislature during the progress of the Gamey debate.

Mr. Stratton, in reply to Mr. Whitney, said he would enquire if an official of his department had furnished one of the speakers on the anti-vaccination bill with his brief and if alleged offensive language to an opposition member came from such official.

The House will meet this morning at 11 o'clock. The Gamey report will be the feature of the debates for the rest of the week.

NOTICES OF MOTION.

The following notice of motion by Mr. Whitney has been given:

"That this House disapproves of the action of the Government in entering into the agreement with William Mackenzie, Henry Mill Pellatt and Frederick Nicholls, bearing date of the 29th of January, 1903, empowering them to take water from the Niagara River for the generation of electrical or pneumatic horsepower for commercial use under the terms contained in the said agreement, and declares that all such agreements should have been submitted to this House for ratification."

Just and Impartial.

The Premier's motion to adopt the Judges' report in the Gamey case, which will be moved this morning when the House meets at 11 o'clock, reads as follows:

"That His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, having appointed a Commission, on the address of the Legislative Assembly, to enquire into and investigate the charges of bribery set forth in the statement made to the Assembly on the 11th day of March last by Robert R. Gamey, member-elect of the District of Manitoulin, and the further statement made by him in the House on the 27th day of March last, and the report of the Commissioners so appointed, having been presented to the Legislative Assembly on the 4th day of June, instant, this House adopts the said report and thanks the Commissioners for their just and impartial conduct in the matters referred to them."

MITCHELL PREVAILED.

All Talk of Strike Among Hard Coal Miners Silenced.

Scranton, Pa., June 17.—President Mitchell's advice has prevailed and all talk of strike in the anthracite coal fields has been silenced. The convention of mine workers yesterday unanimously adopted resolutions providing that each district should vote separately on the election of the representatives on the Conciliation Board. The three district presidents were named as the miner's representatives on the board. Another resolution was adopted providing that all grievances, instead of being thrashed out in debate, should be given to the Conciliation Board for consideration.

WINNIPEG'S LATEST FIRE.

Premier Balfour's Block in the Canadian City in Ashes.

Winnipeg, June 17.—The old Balfour block at the corner of McDermott avenue and Rorie street was gutted by fire at an early hour yesterday morning. The business concerns located in the block were: Read & Clark, manufacturing jewellers; H. Jacobs, cigar manufacturer; Ford Stationery Co., printers; McAllister & Watt, smallware and notions; Toms & Davidson, and the Ross tea agency. The block was a three-storey brick structure, and was owned by Right Hon. Arthur James Balfour, leader of the British House of Commons. The total loss will be $80,000.

Ontario Medical Men.

Toronto, June 17.—The press representatives were not admitted to the 23rd annual meeting of the Ontario Medical Association yesterday. Dr. J. C. Mitchell, the President, delivered a long annual address. On the question of vaccination the address said they must "continue to protect the public from themselves" in this matter, and in a concluding paragraph on this subject said: "It would be safe to pay no attention to these anti-vaccinationists and class them in with the followers of Christian Science, the Dowieites, Vitosophists, Osteopathists, etc., were they not such a menace by reason of their position as guardians of the public health." There were not many doctors present at the opening session. In the evening a smoking concert was held.

Most of those discovered open were fruit stores, which their proprietors claimed were restaurants. They will be prosecuted, however, for doing business, as many of them sold articles that are not intended for food.

Major Mason Dead.

Hamilton, June 16.—Major J. J. Mason, for many years a prominent citizen of this city, and Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge, A.F. & A.M., died yesterday morning at 4 o'clock. He was 61 years of age. Major John James Mason, V. M., was the son of the late J. J. Mason, M.D., and was born at Kilby; Northamptonshire, England, on Feb. 4, 1842.

The Solar Plexus.

Is the largest nerve centre in the sympathetic nervous system, is situated just back of the stomach, and supplies nervous energy, the vital force of the human body, to the stomach, heart, lungs, kidneys, liver, etc. By creating nerve force Dr. Chase's Nerve Food directly aids the solar plexus in supplying the power which runs the machinery of digestion and so cures nervous dyspepsia, headache, dizzy spells and bodily weakness.

The Norwegian Costume.

It is at church in Norway that the national costume is best seen. In the north the women wear short, dark gowns, with fringed handkerchiefs tied becomingly over their curly fair hair, black ones for the matrons and white ones for maidens.

In the south the old Norwegian dress is often worn. It consists of a short dark petticoat, with a stripe of bright colors, a full white blouse, and a red bodice heavily embroidered, while on Sundays a quantity of silver pins and chains are added.

The headdress varies according to the occasion and the wearer's social condition. The girls wear jaunty red caps, the married women a coif made of many folds of starched white linen, plaited over a wooden frame, and a bride wears a high metal crown, curiously chased and set with jewels.

NIGHT BLINDNESS.

A Condition In Which the Vision Fails as Daylight Fades.

Night blindness is a condition in which vision is perfect, or fairly so, in daylight, but fails with the setting of the sun and is not restored under ordinary conditions of artificial illumination. The sufferer from night blindness can usually see the light of a candle or lamp when he looks directly at it, but be cannot read even when the light is thrown directly upon the page. Usually, however, he sees well in a room lighted brilliantly with electricity, the degree of illumination then approaching that of sunlight.

The cause of night blindness is believed to be an exhausting of the power of vision by too great light, for it occurs mainly among soldiers and sailors in the tropics, who are exposed for many hours to the glare of the sun, and among arctic explorers, whose eyes are dazzled by reflection from the snow. On shipboard it is often associated with scurvy, and persons who are depressed physically or mentally or in any other way "run down" are more likely to suffer than the strong.

Sailors have a superstition that the trouble is due to imprudence in sleeping on deck in the moonlight, and this belief is embodied in the term "moon blink," by which they call it. The tropical moon is probably as guiltless in this respect as it is in the production of insanity.

The only treatment for night blindness is keeping away from bright light or protecting the eyes with goggles or a bandage until the exhausted retina has recovered its tone.—Youth's Companion.

An Arab Tea Party.

A lady traveling in Morocco gives the following account of an Arab tea party: "Our host dispensed sherrub de minat, the wine of the country, made from grapes; the little dome shaped pewter teapot was there with its fond associations of Morocco, together with the copper tray and circle of diminutive painted glasses. A gorgeous indolent sun poured down beyond the patch of shade. The hum and hover of insects vibrated in the air, and presently musicians were summoned—girls wearing pale green jellabs and silver ornaments, with yellow handkerchiefs twisted around their heads and men in bright colors. Sitting down between us, each was given a glass of sherrub de minat and by and by they began to play. Weird and wild music it was, that of the tareegas, the gimbi and the tahr, quaint native instruments of the roughest construction and yet, as music, possessing fascination not a little."

For Financial Purposes.

Before the collection was taken up at a negro place of worship the minister announced that he regretted to state a certain brother had retired to rest the night before without locking the door of his fowl house to find in the morning that all his chickens had vanished.

"I don't want to be personal," he continued, "but I hab my suspicions as to who stole dem chickens. If I'm right in dose suspicions dat man won't put any money in de box which will now be passed round."

There was a grand collection, not a single member of the congregation feigning sleep.

"Now, brederen," announced the minister, "I don't want all yoah dinners spoilt by wondering where dat brother lives who don't lock his chickens up at night. Dat brother don't exist, nah friends. He was a parable foh purposes ob finance."

Cause of Yawning.

Yawning is commonly caused by a temporary deficiency of the air supply in the lungs. When the body is weary with hard and continuous work or mental study, lassitude from the effects of close, heavy air or intense heat, or perhaps from the peculiar state of the health, the respiratory process is sometimes involuntarily stayed for a few moments. To compensate for this stoppage of breathing nature steps in to the rescue and sets up a spasmodic action in the muscles of the mouth, throat and chest, which produces a deep inspiration which takes the form of a yawn.

MISSION CIRCLES PRESENT REPORTS.

Morning Session of Baptist Association Devoted to Them.

Money Raised for Home and Foreign Missions—Boxes Sent to Missionaries.

The 101st Annual Session of the Baptist Association of Peterborough opened this morning in Murray street Baptist church, with the following delegates in attendance:—

Rev. W. A. Whitman and Mrs. Whitman, Cramahe; M. H. Campbell, Cramahe; Rev. T. C. Robinson, Stirling; Miss Elsie Johns, Miss Emma Sinclair, Mrs. Rich. Weston, Campbellford; Mrs. H. A. Zarfass, Toronto; Miss Metta McLaughlin, Miss Ella Tapscott, Cobourg; Mrs. H. Gorman, Haldimand; Mrs. Barton, Colborne; C. A. Baker, Brighton; Miss Annie Walton, Peterborough; Miss Alice Hitchen, Miss Alma Pilsworth, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Rundall, Port Hope; Mr. Rinard Post, Brighton; Mr. W. A. Leavitt, Picton; Rev. O. C. Elliott, Mrs. Elliott, Mr. E. A. Ford, Belleville; Rev. J. E. Trotter, Mrs. Trotter, Port Hope; Rev. J. T. Marshall, Mrs. Marshall, Mr. W. J. Huston, Cobourg; Miss E. Yelland, Miss E. Crossley, Peterborough; Mr. W. H. Cooke, Havelock; Mrs. J. H. Mann, Rev. and Mrs. McKinnon, Gilmour Memorial; Mrs. C. J. Burgess, Lakefield; Mrs. Mowrey, Mrs. G. Rossel, Peterborough.

This list will be added to considerably at this evening's session.

The meeting this morning was devoted entirely to discussion on the work of the Woman's Mission Circles. The reports from the different Circles and Bands were received. It showed that there were 13 Circles with a membership of 792. Those who contributed to Home Missions were 171, while the number who supported Foreign Missions was 156.

There was contributed for the support of Home Missions, $274.98, for Foreign Missions, $232.22, and for Indian Missions, $15, making a total of $522.20, which is less than that of last year by $140.57. Last year was a particularly good one, and it was hardly hoped that the report presented at this meeting would equal that of last year. There were nine bands with a membership of 240, who contributed to Home Missions $54.50, and to Foreign Missions $95.95, making a total of $150.45, which is an increase of $13.46 over last year.

The total amount given by Circles and Bands is $672.65, a decrease of $127.11. At the meetings last year there were 278 visitors.

The Port Hope Branch sent two boxes of literature to Indian missions and one box to New Ontario field, at New Liskeard. Peterborough Circle sent one barrel, valued at $25, to New Liskeard, and Belleville sent a box, the value of which was $10. Cobourg donated a box, the value of which was $35.40. The Bewdley Band sent a box to the French Mission at Quebec. Belleville Band this year did a quantity of sewing, which was donated to deserving persons, but did not contribute any money.

The election of officers was then proceeded with and resulted as follows:

President — Mrs. (Rev.) J. Bastow, Peterborough.

Vice-President — Mrs. (Dr.) Tracy Belleville.

Director, Miss A. Walton, Peterborough.

At this afternoon's session, which opened at two o'clock, a paper was read on Mission Band work and four addresses were given.

Home Missions was discussed by Mrs. Watson, Colborne; Mrs. Marshall of Cobourg, gave a very fine talk on Grande-Ligne Missions; and Mrs. T. J. Matthews, Peterborough, spoke on Indian Missions.

Miss S. J. Hatch, of India, gave an interesting address on Foreign Missions.

Mrs. W. D. Scott sang a solo which was much enjoyed.

At the mass meeting to-night two addresses will be given. Miss Hatch will again speak on Foreign Missions and Rev. L. McKinnon will speak on Missions in our North West.

A PRETTY WEDDING.

Miss Lillie Johnston was Married This Afternoon.

A very pretty home wedding took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of Mr. John Johnston, 12 Cambridge street, when his daughter, Lillie May, was married to Mr. Andrew Sommerville, of Hamilton, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. G. Potter in the presence of about 30 guests.

The bride was dressed very becomingly in white organdie trimmed with white duchesse satin ribbon and carried a beautiful bouquet of roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Catheline Ross, was prettily attired in a dress of blue muslin over white, the maid of honour being Miss Elsie Clinkscale, who was dressed in white and carried a large bouquet of white roses.

The groom was attended by Mr. Angold, of Hamilton.

The ceremony took place in the drawing room, proceeded by the playing of the wedding march by Mrs. Lloyd.

The bride, who is a very popular young lady, and a member of St. Andrew's church, was the recipient of many most valuable and handsome presents.

After the service the party partook of the usual wedding dejeuner, the bride and groom leaving immediately afterwards at 5 o'clock for Hamilton, where they will make their future home, the bride's going away gown being a tailor-made suit of blue lady cloth, trimmed with white and hand-made collar on the coat.

Miss Lizzie Sommerville, of Hamilton, sister of the groom, was one of the out of town guests.

The bride goes to her new home followed by the good wishes of her large circle of friends for a happy future.

GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stiner Celebrate Their Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary.

On Monday evening a most enjoyable evening was spent at the residence of Mrs. Jas. Booth, Stewart street, it being the celebration of the golden wedding of her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stiner.

A large number of relatives and friends were present and participated in the pleasing event. Mr. and Mrs. Stiner were the recipients of a number of presents in gold. Supper was served to about 40 guests among whom were four generations of the Stiner family.

Those from a distance were: Mr. and Mrs. Ira Stiner, and two sons, James and Forest, of Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. John Stiner with their son, Corbett, of Uxbridge.

Those present congratulated Mr. and Mrs. Stiner upon their long and happy married life, coupled with the hope that they might long live to enjoy many more anniversaries of the pleasing event.

—An excursion party was in town yesterday from Lorneville, run by the Knights of the Macabees. About 100 were on the train. They all apparently attended the circus.

—A parasol which was left in the market hall on Saturday, and a pocketbook which was picked up on street, yesterday, are awaiting their respective owners at the police station.

The recital to be given by Mrs. Morrow's pupils assisted by Mr. Ross, will be held to-night in the Opera House. Mr. Ross is well spoken of wherever he has appeared, and a programme of especial merit will be given. The seats are being taken up rapidly, and a good attendance is anticipated.

—A Gospel service will be held in St. Andrew's Sunday school hall to-night at eight o'clock. The subject of an address by Rev. Mr. Potter will be "The Recompense of the Christian Life." All are invited. Next Sunday morning there will be a special address to the young people of the congregation by the pastor.

—Almost 200 children made their first communion at St. Mary's church, Lindsay, Sunday morning, and were confirmed by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, of Peterborough. The church was crowded at each of the three masses. In the evening His Lordship met the members of the C.M.B.A. at their hall, and was presented with an address.

—Yesterday a young man of a very skeptical nature, resolved not to be taken in by the glare and glamour of the circus. While walking near the C.P.R. station he was, however, taken in by something of a more "attractive" nature than Wild Rose or any other magnetic personality of the side show. He accidentally stepped off the bridge near the station, into the mucky morass that lurks beneath, and slowly plodded homeward, accompanied by a large quantity of mud. It is rumoured that the railway company will sue the unfortunate being for abducting their real estate. Moral—If you are to be taken in by anything let it be the "main" show.—Com.

THE PETERBOROUGH COUNTY CHEESE BOARD

Held its Fortnightly Meeting This Morning.

6680 Boxes Were Boarded—The Highest Price Paid was 10 7-16 Cents.

A meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board was held this morning in the Town Council Chamber at 10.30 o'clock. There was a large representation of cheese makers present and the following were the buyers:—Messrs. Gillespie, Kerr, Fitzgerald, Cook, Whitton, Rollins and Wrighton.

In all 6,680 boxes were boarded, that being two week's cheese. The following factories were represented:

Keene	244
Warminster	180
Shearer	120
Central Smith	260
North Smith	170
Villiers	160
Warsaw	195
Westwood	280
Oakdale	190

Melrose Abbey	130
Lakefield	175
Pine Grove	150
Peterborough	120
Otonabee Union	102
Maple Leaf	180
Myrtle	220
Ormonde	250
Young's Point	—
Laing	220
Fraserville	230
Indian River	175
North Dummer	85
Ballyduff	62
East Emily	160
Trewern	189
Bonsfort	220
Cedardale	95
Stony Lake	72
Cavanville	285
Mount Pleasant	123
Norwood	175
Fleetwood	290
Oak Leaf	65
Darlington	—
Buckhorn	193
Brickley	90
Shamrock	160
Apsley	90
Percy	—
South Burleigh	60
Dartford	115
Total	6,680

The bidding was opened by Mr. Whitton at 10 cents. Mr. Wrighton followed with 1-16 higher. The price then rose to 10 3-8, which was offered by Mr. Fitzgerald. He called Keene, Westwood, Villiers, Fraserville. These accepted.

Mr. Whitton then also offered 10 3-8 cents. He chose Ormonde, Melrose Abbey, Dartford, Brickley, Shamrock, Norwood, Oak Leaf, none of which refused.

Mr. Rollins was the third bidder to offer 10 3-8 cents. He called Warminster, North Smith, Pine Grove, Maple Leaf, Young's Point, North Dummer, Cedardale, Stony Lake, South Burleigh, Apsley. All of which accepted Mr. Rollins' offer.

Three bidders then called 10 3-8 at the same time. While these were arguing as to which was first Mr. Wrighton called 7-16. He chose Bonsfort, Mount Pleasant, Peterborough. At 10 3-8 Mr. Wrighton called Indian River, East Emily, Warsaw, Sheazer, Otonabee Union. These factories accepted.

Mr. Fitzgerald offered 10 3-8, but Mr. Cook succeeded with 7-16. He called Central Smith and Oakdale. At 10 3-8 he chose Lakefield, Lang, Buckhorn, Daisy D, Fleetwood, Myrtle, Trewern, Cavanville, Missing Link. Of these Lakefield, Fleetwood, Buckhorn, Myrtle, Trewern and Cavanville refused.

Mr. Kerr then offered 3-8 and called Fleetwood, Cavanville, Lakefield, Trewern, Myrtle, Buckhorn and Ballyduff, which concluded the sale.

The treasurer of the Board, Mr. Galvin, of Lakefield, then arose and made an explanation for refusing to sell his cheese for 7-16 and then accepting an offer of 3-8. He said that Mr. Cook called 3-8 but Mr. Kerr offered 7-16, and called two factories and then lowered the price to 3-8. Lakefield was one of the two factories Mr. Kerr offered to buy at 7-16. Mr. Galvin said he did not think it quite fair of Mr. Cook to call 7-16, and then shortly lower his price to 3-8, and it was for that reason that he refused, and no personal grievance.

In answer Mr. Kerr said he was surprised at Mr. Galvin's action at the time, as he had always thought that he had treated Lakefield fairly, but that he perfectly understood why he refused to buy.

The President then called upon Inspector Ward to address the meeting.

Mr. Ward said he did not intend to make a speech but would like to make a few remarks. He dwelt upon the necessity of the co-operation of the cheesemakers with him for the purpose of increasing the quality and quantity of the cheese, and the reputation of the factories. In conclusion he said he would be pleased to be present at any meetings which buyers might hold.

After a short discussion the Board adjourned for two weeks, until July 1st.

Jordan Bros., florists, will have on hand for Decoration Day 200 bouquets. 416 George street.

FIRE IN DOURO.

Barns of Mr. Jas. Barrie Destroyed by Lightning.

During the electrical storm of yesterday afternoon, a serious fire occurred in Douro Township. As a result of being struck by lightning the barns and outbuildings of Mr. Jas. Barrie were completely destroyed by fire, together with a quantity of farm implements and grain. Mr. Godfrey Coughlin, of town, who happened to be near the scene, with the assistance of a number of farmers, succeeded in saving all the live stock from the burning buildings, and, after a hard fight, the house, which was close by, and which it was feared would also become a prey to the flames, was saved.

REPORT OF THE GAMEY COMMISSION.

Premier Moves Adoption of the Report in Legislature.

Defends Character and Impartiality of Judges and Pays High Tribute to the Ability of Hon. J. R. Stratton.

Special to the Examiner.

Toronto, June 17.—There were not more than 50 members of the Legislature present this morning when Premier Ross moved the adoption of the report of the Commissioners on the Gamey charges. The Premier reviewed the discussion in the House and again defended the reference to a Royal Commission rather than a Committee of the House.

The Premier also defended the character and impartiality of the Judges and their conduct of the investigation. The character of the counsel, Messrs. Blake and Ritchie, who were retained by the Province to prosecute Gamey's charges, was sufficient, he declared, to establish that his case had been well presented. The Premier then reviewed the evidence taken before the Royal Commission and concluded with an eloquent peroration in which he defended the integrity and honour of the Government; paid tribute to the ability and worth of Hon. J. R. Stratton, and appealed to the Opposition to adopt the report and close this chapter in Ontario's political history. At the conclusion of the Premier's speech the House adjourned till 3 p.m.

Don't forget the excursion to Jubilee Point, Wednesday afternoon, June 24th, per steamer North Star, under the auspices of the Woman's Missionary Societies of George and Charlotte street churches. Tickets limited. Return fare, adults 40c., children 20c. Boat leaves 1.30 sharp.

JUNE SESSION OF COUNTY COUNCIL.

Report Presented on the Warden's Address.

DEPUTATIONS ASK GRANTS.

Council Take Trip This Afternoon to Inspect Bridges.

Account in Connection With Governor-General's Visit—Permanent Sidewalk Leading to Court House Discussed.

Wednesday, June 17th.

Council met pursuant to adjournment, the Warden, Mr. Crowe, in the chair, all the members being present except Councillor Fitzgerald.

WARDEN'S ADDRESS.

The Warden's address, which was submitted to the council yesterday afternoon, was as follows:

Gentlemen,—I am prepared to meet you in session for the transaction of coming business and I am glad to be able to congratulate you on the prosperous condition of the county as well as of the whole Province of Ontario and on the favourable prospects of another bountiful harvest.

I have also to congratulate you on having been honoured, since our last session, with a visit by His Excellency the Governor-General and Lady Minto, an honour which very few counties have been favoured with.

I have also to congratulate you on the fact that while a few cases of infectious and contagious diseases have occurred in the county, the prompt action and means taken and adopted by our health officers and medical men, proved successful in preventing them from spreading and in stamping them out, which reflects very great credit upon the various organizations throughout the county appointed to look after sanitary matters and protect the health of the people.

During the present session you will require to take such action as you may deem advisable with reference to the construction of a bridge at Gannon's Narrows. I am informed that a grant of $1,000 from the Dominion Government has been promised. I have good reason to hope that a similar grant will be made by the Provincial Government towards the expenses of constructing said bridge, but the balance required will have to be provided by the county and other municipalities interested.

I have also to call your attention to an Act passed, or likely to be passed, by Provincial Legislature during the present session in regard to the establishment of Houses of Refuge in every county, so as to provide suitable accommodations for the indigent poor of the county, instead of having them cared for in the county gaols, as they are at present.

I am pleased to hear that our county bridges have not been damaged to any great extent by the breaking up of the ice or by the spring weather or high water. Your Engineer, however, will be able to report more fully in regard to what repairs may be required and I feel quite sure you will deal with the matters which may be bought before you with the same intelligence and ability as you have dealt with the affairs of the county in the past.

Yours Truly,
RICHARD CROWE.

The clerk read the minutes of yesterday's meetings, which were approved.

Mr. Peck, on behalf of the Committee on the Warden's Address, reported as follows:

1. That Mr. E. A. Peck be Chairman of this Committee.

2. Your committee is pleased to note that there are in this section of the country most favourable prospects for a bountiful harvest.

3. Your committee agrees with the Warden that this community has been highly favoured in being visited by the Governor General and Lady Minto.

4. Your committee also concurs with the Warden in his statement in reference to the efficient manner in which the health officers of this county stamped out the several cases of infectious and contagious diseases which recently broke out in the county.

5. Your committee is pleased to learn that the Dominion and Ontario Governments are appropriating sums of money to assist in the construction of a bridge at Gannon's Narrows.

6. Your committee is of the opinion that the poor of this county are at present as a rule well cared for by the local municipalities and that in view of the fact that there are now two worthy institutions providing homes for the indigent poor, it remains an open question whether the council should incur the considerable expense of erecting and maintaining a House of Refuge, and that the question of the building of such an institution should be left as at present at the discretion of the counties.

7. Your committee recommends that the matters in reference to the county bridges be refered to the committee on roads and bridges.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

E. A. PECK,
Chairman.

County Council Chamber, Peterborough, June, 1903.

Councillor Shaw, seconded by Councillor Menogue, moved the adoption of the report,—Carried.

DEPUTATION FROM BURLEIGH.

Mr. C. R. D. Booth, Reeve, addressed the Council, requesting a grant to assist in building a bridge over Eel's Creek on the Burleigh Road. The bridge was estimated to cost $700.

Councillor Shaw moved, seconded by Councillor Menogue, that the matter be referred to the Roads and Bridges Committee.—Carried.

DEPUTATION FROM OTONABEE.

Mr. Joshua Smithson addressed the Council on behalf of the Otonabee Agricultural Society, asking for a special grant to assist in the purchase of additional land for increasing their show grounds at Keene. Mr. Smithson stated that the association had been in existence for 40 years and this was the first time they had ever applied for financial assistance. This was a special circumstance. They were compelled either to make a purchase of six acres of extra land for show purposes, or go out of business altogether; $1200 was asked for the land they required, and the association was very anxious to secure it. He thought that a small grant from the council of $200 was not too much to ask, and he expected that the members would deal liberally with their request.

Councillor Hunter pointed out that the township associations in South Monaghan, Lakefield and Harvey would feel that they had an equal right to ask for special grants for similar reasons, and it was doubtful whether the council could commence to recognize such claims.

Moved by Councillors Shaw and Hunter, that the matter be referred to the Finance Committee. — Carried.

HIAWATHA SCHOOL.

Mr. Thos. Thompson, of S. S. No. 11, Otonabee, appeared before the Council on behalf of the Hiawatha School.

Councillor Peck stated that as the matter had been up for consideration before, the council could not do anything more than appoint arbitrators who could arrange for a settlement of the question.

The matter was referred to the Committee on Schools.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S VISIT.

Alderman Rush, from the Town Council, was present and presented an itemized account of the expenses incurred in connection with the Governor-General's visit to Peterborough. The total amount was $250, which he asked the council to consider.

Moved by Councillors Hunter and Curtis, that the account submitted be referred to the Finance Committee.

Ald. Rush also mentioned the desirability of a permanent sidewalk leading up to the Court House. Enquiries had been made which had favoured a brick walk as most lasting and convenient, and which would likely cost about $500. He hoped the council would take some action in the matter as the present wooden sidewalk was in a very poor condition.

On motion the Council adjourned until to-morrow morning.

The members of the council go down the river this afternoon as far as Wallace Point Bridge to inspect the bridges on the Otonabee River.

JUNE 21ST SET APART AS SUNDAY SCHOOL SUNDAY.

Letter From Rev. J. G. Potter, President of the County Sunday School Council.

Rev. Mr. Potter has addressed a letter to all the clergymen throughout the county requesting them on behalf of the council to take advantage of the Sunday preceding the series of Township Conventions, beginning on June 22nd, to emphasize the good work that is being done in the Sunday schools of our lands, and to unite in invoking the Divine blessing upon the conventions to be held. It is learned that many ministers have already arranged for June 21 for special addresses to parents and children.

A mass meeting has been arranged for June 29th, at 3 p.m., in the George street Methodist church, Peterborough, when all the town schools will unite.

NORWOOD BUDGET OF CURRENT TOPICS.

Some Personal Mention From the Village to the East—Other Notes.

Norwood, June 16th.

Miss Maude Dunegan, of Warkworth, is the guest of Mrs. H. G. Buck, Peterborough street.

The choir of the Presbyterian church furnished the music at a social at Cotesloe on Friday evening.

At the High Court of Justice held before Chancellor Boyd on Monday in Peterborough, the suit, Isabella Hughes and Wm. Metcalfe, James Metcalfe, et al, came up for hearing. Mr. G. J. Sherry for Wm. Metcalfe. Mr. W. A. F. Campbell, Ridgetown, for Joseph and James Metcalfe. Mr. D. O'Connell, Peterborough, for Isabella Hughes. Mr. Hoskins, of Toronto for Mrs. D. Moore. Messrs. Dr. Ford, J. B. Pearce, Thos. Fraser, D. Mahoney, G. J. Keefer, went up to Peterborough as witnesses for the defence.

Special service was held for the Norwood Masonic Lodge, A.F. and A. M., on Sunday afternoon at the English church. The Lodge marched in a body from their lodge room down Peterborough and Colborne streets and up Queen to the church, as follows:—

Tyler, with drawn sword.
Stewarts, with wands.
Apprentice Masons.
Fellow-craft.
Master Masons.
Secretary-Treasurer.
Sr. and Jr. Deacons, with wands.
Past Master.
Worshipful Master.

The church was decorated with Masonic emblem. Rev. McKee McLennan, Chaplain of the Lodge, preached a very instructive sermon from I. Corinthians; 3 chap., 10th verse,—"According to the grace of God which is given unto me as a wise master builder, I have laid the foundation—another builder buildeth thereon, but let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon." The procession was honoured by the attendance of two brethren who have reached the highest degree in Masonry, Bro. Shaw, of Keene, and Bro. Wesley, of Campbellford. There were also Masons from Keene, Campbellford, Hastings and Havelock.

The death of Mr. James Patterson, lot 19, con. 8, of Asphodel, took place on Monday, June 15th. He is to be buried at 2.30, June 16th, in Norwood cemetery. The deceased was 52 years, 5 months, 6 days. He has been a resident of Asphodel all his life.

On Friday evening the Masons banquetted Mr. W. H. Walker, of Peterborough, Acting D.D.G.M. for this district.

POLICE COURT.

At the Police Court this morning before Police Magistrate Dumble the case in which Edith Cooper claims $14.50 wages from James Caniff was enlarged until Friday next.

The case against a hotel proprietor for not filling up a well when ordered to do so, was enlarged until June 24th.

A case in which an Italian was charged with pointing a revolver at a fellow-countryman was not concluded at the time of going to press this afternoon. Details will appear in to-morrow's Examiner.

THE GREAT KIRALFY'S BEST.

Possibly no other city in the world so well lends itself to spectacular effect as Venice. Its history is full of romance while the city itself is set in a halo of picturesqueness. It is a city wherein the art of the poet and the art of the painter are the keenest rivals. Its palaces are magnificent and its public buildings renowned the world over for their beauty of construction and architecture. Mr. Kiralfy chose well, therefore, when he selected the Carnival of Venice for the subject of the great spectacle which he proposes to reproduce at Toronto Exhibition, to be held this year from August 27th to September 12th. Mr. Kiralfy, who is the acknowledged world's master of spectacular effects, says that he proposes to outdo any former efforts, and that he will introduce a number of effects which will startle the spectator both by their brilliancy and originality. One of these features will be a transformation scene on an immense scale, the like of which has never been attempted in the open air before.

COMPLIED WITH THE LAW.

The separation of the grocery and liquor departments of our store is now completed. Separate entrances have been made to each store, according to law. The grocery store has been fully stocked with fresh groceries of every kind, and the liquor store with the best brands of of liquor. Orders for liquor can only be taken and filled in our liquor store.—HENRY & CO.

ONE ARMED MAN'S SKILL.

How He Managed to Button His Cuff to His Shirt Sleeve.

"When and how did you lose your left arm?"

"Five years ago. I was working in a factory and got my arm caught in some belting."

"Has your right arm become more serviceable since you lost its mate?"

"Oh, yes. I can do almost anything with my one arm. I used to have a great deal of trouble in dressing myself, but it comes easy now. I can tie my shoes, put on a four-in-hand tie, put collar buttons in a new shirt; in fact, do everything required just as well as I could when I had two hands."

"It certainly is wonderful what one can do if he only has to."

"Yes; it is. There's only one thing, however, that I really pride myself on being able to do with my one hand, and that is to fasten my cuff. How do you suppose I do this?"

"I hadn't thought of this. For the life of me I don't see how you do it. Do you fasten your cuff with your teeth?"

"No." And the one armed fellow smiled.

"Have you some contrivance of your own that you use?"

"No."

"Well, I don't see how you do it. It's beyond me."

"Why, I put the cuff on the shirt before putting on the shirt."

And he smiled more broadly than ever.

Freaks of a Genius.

One day a bulky, tall, pale faced gentleman with bushy, restless eyebrows, entered a London tavern. The waiter did not ask him for his order, but immediately brought him a plate of bread and cheese and a glass of ale. Having consumed his lunch, the guest sat upright in his chair for awhile, leaning his hands on a heavy walking cane and staring blankly at the opposite wall, as if in a dream. Of a sudden he gave a start. He seized the empty glass and dashed it to the floor with all his might, smashing it to atoms. He then reflected for a moment, laid a coin on the table, got up and left the inn without a word to any one. After his departure another guest had the curiosity to ask the waiter whether the gentleman who had just gone out was not wrong in his head. Quoth the waiter:

"Oh, no, sir! That's nothink unusual with 'im, sir. 'E's broke maybe a 'undred glasses since 'e's been a comin' to this 'ouse. 'E don't seem to know it when 'e does it. 'E just gits a thinkin' and seems to git hangry at somethink 'e's thinkin' about. It's Lord Macaulay, sir."

Stimulated His Imagination.

The mother of the three boys had noticed that when they slept in the same room they were a long time going to sleep. A little investigation brought out the reason.

"John," she said, "what kept you boys awake so long last night?"

"Bob was telling us stories," he replied.

"But I heard him saying: 'Boys, I wish you wouldn't bother me. I want to go to sleep!'"

"Yes," admitted John. "When he'd told us one story we'd get out of bed and run round the room awhile. Then we would crawl in again and put our cold feet against his back, and keep them there till he told us another."

Years afterward "Bob" became a famous lecturer and story teller, and that, possibly, is the way he got his start.

A Titled Kleptomaniac.

A titled kleptomaniac of three quarters of a century ago was the Countess of Cork. She had a reputation for stealing anything she could lay her hands on, whether it was useful or valuable or not. Once, when leaving a country house where she had been staying, she saw and quietly picked up a hedgehog that was crossing a hall, a pet of the porter's, and took it away in her carriage. Finding it an uncomfortable foot warmer she decided to dispose of it at the first town where she changed horses and then offered it to a confectioner in return for a sponge cake.

What Meerschaum Really Is.

There is a very general impression in the minds of smokers that the meerschaum part of the pipe, which they treasure so carefully and take so much pride and satisfaction in "coloring," is compressed sea foam. Such, however, is not the case. The German word meerschaum means in English foam of the sea, but its formation has nothing to do with the sea. It is a kind of clay, comes out of mines like coal and is found only in Turkey.

A Highland Stole.

The following little dialogue was overheard in a far north hamlet:

"Mac, I hear ye have fallen in love wi' bonnie Katie Stevens."

"Weel, Sandy, I was near—verra near—daein' it, but I found the lassie had nae siller, so I said to mysel', 'Mac, be a man.' And I was a man, and noo I pass her by wi' silent contempt."—London Telegraph.

Poor Human Nature.

Jaggles—What was it he should have remembered?

Waggles—To come home early.

Beating Off a Dog.

If a dog springs for a man, the latter should guard his face with his arm and try to meet the animal with his forearm. With the right hand he should attempt to catch one of the animal's front paws. The paw of a bulldog is ultra sensitive. If it can be caught a vigorous squeeze will make the animal howl for mercy and retire discomfited.

Wisdom, Maybe.

"Isn't it funny?"

"What?"

"She's the head of a matrimonial agency, and an old maid."—Detroit Free Press.

JUDGED BY HER BOOK.

The Way Girls in the Big Department Stores Are Watched.

The girls in a large department store, says Frank Leslie's, are, as a rule, carefully watched not only in the store, but out of it. The buyer of each department knows pretty well the habits of his sales ladies; knows how much it costs them to live and how they spend their evenings. It is easy for him to get the information not merely through the store detective, but in many other ways.

The buyer is, as a rule, a tolerant person, who cares only for two things—namely, that the girls "deliver the goods"—i. e., that they make big "books"—and that they appear respectable. If they stay out so late at night that they do not reach the store promptly in the morning they may be discharged, transferred from one department to another or merely not rise in the way of salary, depending on the degree of their misdemeanor. If the girl's book is unsatisfactory she is simply discharged or transferred, and no reason is given, but if she is wise she knows the reason why.

If, on the other hand, the girl is a good seller the buyer will excuse a great deal in the way of irregularity of habits. As long as a girl sticks closely to business she is allowed a great deal of freedom, but when her "book" begins to suffer it is time for her to "look out."

CURED HIS BRIGHT'S DISEASE

Former President of Bricklayer's Union Used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Andrew McCormick, of Toronto, Tells of a Cure for the Most Dreaded of all Diseases.

Toronto, June 15th, (Special.)—In these days when the dreaded Bright's Disease seems to be selecting its victims at will, the report of an authenticated cure is received with relief by all classes of the community. And such a report comes from Andrew McCormack, of 243 Spadina avenue, this city.

That Mr. McCormack is well known and highly respected is evidenced by the fact that he has held several high offices in a number of fraternal societies, and was for several years President of the Bricklayers' Union. Interviewed regarding the cure, Mr. McCormack says:

"I suffered with an attack of Bright's Disease and naturally was much troubled concerning it. I heard of the wonderful cures effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills and concluded to try them. The result was so satisfactory that it gives me pleasure to recommend them."

Make and keep the kidneys sound using Dodd's Kidney Pills and there can be no Bright's Disease.

Moral Law.

The moral law lies at the center of nature and radiates to the circumference. It is the pith and marrow of every substance, every relation and every process. All things with which we deal preach to us. What is a farm but a mute gospel? The sailor, the shepherd, the miner, the merchant, in their several resorts have each an experience precisely parallel.

Her Opportunity.

They had started for a stroll.

"There is our minister," he said. "I'm going to ask him to join us."

"To join us? Oh, George, this is so sudden! But hadn't you better speak to papa before engaging the minister, dear?"

Adam and the Tailor.

"This," said the guide, "is the grave of Adam."

Historic spot! With reverential awe—nay, with a feeling of deep thankfulness—the wealthy merchant tailor on his first trip to the orient drew near and cast a flower on the tomb. "Erring ancestor," he murmured, "I should be the last man on earth to revile your memory. To your I owe my prosperity."

Medicine For Him.

"His wife has treasured all the letters he wrote her when he was courting her; keeps them by her all the time."

"Gracious! She doesn't read them ever, does she?"

"No, but she threatens to read them to him whenever he gets obstreperous."—Philadelphia Press.

Flattered.

"Young man," said her father kindly, "you look a little bit nervous. How do you feel?"

"I feel flattered," replied the girl's lover, who had asked for the interview. "I was afraid I looked scared to death."—Exchange.

A QUESTION OF BATHS.

How an Army Officer Evened Up Matters With an Auditor.

"Auditors and comptrollers are the natural enemies of mankind," remarked an army officer, "but more particularly are they the enemies of an army officer. They take great delight in finding reasons why they should not pass an officer's accounts and take advantage of the least little technicality or any possible way of refusing to do so. Some time ago an officer to get a just claim that had been turned down by the auditor or comptroller was compelled to go to congress, and the printing bill for the account was four times as large as the amount in the first instance."

General Weston got the best of an auditor when he was in the Seventh cavalry, and this is the way he tells the story:

"I was on a horse board at Kansas City, and before a horse could be accepted he was sent a mile at a very fast clip to test his endurance. I observed that the men who were selling the horses had a rider who would take them behind a clump of trees where I could not see and shortened the distance. I decided to ride the horses myself, and I tried about twenty a day. I would get pretty well warmed up with that kind of work, and I would afterward and took a bath. I charged up the bath each day in my expense. But the account came back from the auditor with the indorsement:

"'One bath a day is a luxury and not a necessity. One bath a week is enough.'

"And I indorsed right under that, 'It may be enough for an auditor, but not for a cavalryman.'"

The First Diamond at Kimberley.

It was not until the autumn of 1870 that the first diamond was found on the present site of Kimberley. There was a shallow, circular depression, known as Dutoitspan, on the edge of which a farmer named Van Wyk lived in a cabin plastered with mud. This but had no architectural pretensions, but, in its way, it went beyond the luxury of Fifth avenue, for the mud with which it was daubed was sprinkled with diamonds. One day Van Wyk's children prospected the plastering of their home and extracted several gems. The farmer and his friends began digging at the spot from which the mud had been taken, and found more diamonds.

Miners swarmed in, and a new camp, called Dorstfontein, sprang up. In June of the next year the Kimberley mine proper—one of the four great deposits that form the present Kimberley group—yielded its first diamond.—Cosmopolitan.

When Reptiles Inhabited the Earth.

At different epochs during the time known as the secondary period the surface of the earth seems to have been so predominantly peopled with reptile life that it has been called "the age of reptiles." The huge iguanodons stalked or leaped about in the wealds of Sussex and Hampshire. Of these iguanodons marvelously complete skeletons are to be seen (mounted in attitudes of life) in the Royal museum of Brussels—a sight in itself sufficient to induce a visit to that capital. Other smaller reptiles browsed on the foliage of the then existing plains and were pursued and preyed upon by fell reptilian monsters of various kinds. The sea also swarmed with reptiles (ichthyosauri) as aquatic as the whales and dolphins of our own day. And not only were the earth and seas thus peopled, but there were flying reptiles of different kinds and sizes, known as pterodactyls.

Blunderbuss.

In using the word "blunderbuss" we unconsciously imply a sense of disparagement for the shooting powers of our forefathers contracted with the precision of the modern rifle. The word itself has, however, a terrible enough meaning and disdains all connection with "blunder." "Blunderbuss," in fact, as we have it, is a strange corruption—perhaps not altogether untinged with the sense and sound of "blunder"—of the old Dutch word "donderbuss," which can be literally translated into the English "thunder box" or "thunder barrel."

The Age of the Harp.

The harp, which was suggested by the lute, is ascribed to Jubal, 3875 B. C., and was King David's favorite instrument. The harp was used by the Welsh and Saxons, and also by the ancient peoples of Ireland. One of the oldest harps in existence is in the Dublin College museum, and originally belonged to Brian Boroihme, king of Ireland.

Alfalfa Meal.

Notwithstanding the high place which alfalfa already holds as a stock food, a Kansan claims to have discovered a method of greatly increasing its value. He has invented a mill to grind alfalfa hay into meal, effecting a saving, it is claimed, of 25 per cent of its value as a food product.

AN AIR TIGHT FIT.

Mrs. Jennings and her city cousin were exchanging news of their old school friends. "How about Lucy Morse?" asked the cousin. "Has she kept on growing fatter and fatter?"

"Well, all I'll say is this," said Mrs. Jennings: "Annie Fall told me last year that when Lucy sent home from Nashua, where she was nursing her uncle, to have a silk waist made, Annie realized she hadn't got any measures, and then she remembered that the last time Lucy was there she stood up by the big air tight stove, and Annie remarked—to herself—the resemblance between 'em. And she took the measure of that air tight and cut in a mite for the waist line—'bout as much as a knife marks warm molasses candy—and made the waist accordingly, sent it on, and Lucy wrote back it was an elegant fit."—Youth's Companion.

Wall Street and Clothes.

The best dressed men in New York are the Wall streeters. There is one young member of the Stock Exchange who is famous for his clothes. He has a wardrobe in his private office and changes his suit three times a day—at 10, at noon and at 3 o'clock. A busy session on the floor will wreck any suit. Most of the brokers wear an old office coat in the shuffle and turmoil, and there is scarcely an active member but has an extra pair of trousers to put on after the close of business. Scores of little tailors in the financial district make a good living pressing trousers at 50 cents a pair.

The Spectroscope.

Originally the spectroscope was applied only to chemistry and in that limited field proved itself an invaluable aid in accurate analysis. By holding in a bunsen flame a platinum wire moistened by contact with the skin the presence of a few grains of salt swallowed a few minutes previously can be detected with the spectroscope. Indeed, so wonderfully refined is the work of the spectroscopic chemist that he can discover in a substance the presence of one three-millionth of a grain of metal.

His Artistic Sense.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "you shouldn't let your artistic sense worry you so much."

"What do you mean?"

"I overheard you talking to that friend with whom you play cards. I know how much you appreciate harmony in form and color, but it is wrong to be so much annoyed because one heart got in with a few spades."

For Six Months He did no Work

Was a Victim of Nervous Collapse—Weak, Helpless, Suffered An Extraordinary Cure by

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

That Dr. Chase's Nerve Food possesses unusual control over the nerves and rekindles nervous energy when all other means fail, is well illustrated in the case described below. Mr. Brown was forced to give up his ministerial work, and so far exhausted that for a time he was positively helpless. Doctors were consulted and many remedies were restored to in vain. Every effort to build up the system seemed in vain, and it is little wonder that the sufferer was losing hope of recovery when he began to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Rev. T. Brown, Methodist minister of Omemee, and late of Bethany, Ont., writes: "A year ago last November I was overtaken with nervous exhaustion. For six months I did no work, and during that time I had to be waited on, not being able to help myself. Nervous collapse was complete and though I was in the physician's hands for months, I did not seem to improve. At any little exertion my strength would leave me, and I would tremble with nervousness.

"From the first I used a great many nerve remedies, but they seemed to have no effect in my case. I had almost lost hope of recovery when I heard of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and began to use it. As my system became stronger I began to do a little work and have gradually increased in nerve force and vigour until now I am about in my normal condition again. I consider Dr. Chase's Nerve Food the best medicine I ever used. Not only has it proved its wonderful restorative powers in my own case, but also in several others where I have recommended it."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, six boxes for $2.50. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates and Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box. 9

HER CANINE CHAUFFEUR

By Bennet Masson

Copyright, 1902, by T. C. McClure

It was a dull day for bulldogs. Puffs, whose bull baiting ancestors had bequeathed him a love of adventure, sat on the veranda of the villa and yawned.

A green automobile rolled along the driveway of the house. When it stopped at the veranda, a pretty, brown haired girl of twenty laughingly greeted her enthusiastic friend, who leaped upon her, regardless of the damage which dirty paws inflicted on a white serge dress.

"One would think I had been away a year instead of a week," the girl said gayly.

"Is it only a week since I first met you?" replied her companion. "I seem to have known you always."

Florence Hastings' face became serious as she patted the wriggling Puffs. "I am afraid your imagination is overpowerful, Mr. Oakley," she said. "Anyway, you've saved me a dismal railway journey from the Newtong'. I was glad to let my trunks take it alone. So, whatever your condition of mind, you must come in and meet papa."

"Is he at home?"

"He comes on the 5 o'clock 'relief express.' That's what he calls any train which takes him away from Wall street."

"He leaves his office at 4?"

"Yes. Do you hesitate at the ordeal of passing the interval with me?" Florence was smiling again.

Porter Oakley laughed protestingly. "I was hesitating because of an important business affair," he said finally. "Is there a telegraph office in the village?"

"There is, and I will send a groom with your message."

Oakley looked at his watch. "Quarter of 3," he murmured. "Will you pardon me if I go to the office in the automobile?" he asked. "It will save fifteen valuable minutes."

As the machine puffed along the driveway Florence watched it musingly and inwardly resented her feeling of relief—it seemed like weakness. When she first met Oakley at the Newtons' country house, she vaguely disliked him. As she watched the automobile speeding toward the village she thought of Trilby and smiled. Then she grew serious and felt sorry that she had asked Oakley to stay, but she knew that if the little scene near the veranda were to be reacted she would ask him again.

"Do you believe in hypnotic influence, Puffs?" she said softly, putting an arm around the bulldog's muscular neck.

Puffs did not. Every line in his sturdy figure expressed disbelief. Then he conveyed sympathy and encouragement by extending a few inches of damp pink tongue toward his mistress' cheek.

That evening Florence sat on the veranda with Porter Oakley. Her father did not arrive on the "relief express," nor had word come from him. Oakley had waited for the older man, had accepted an invitation to dine, and now he sat with Florence and watched the moon creep toward the Orange mountains.

"There is still an hour or so of moonlight, and I shall have a bright road to New York," he said.

"I thought father would surely be here on the 8 o'clock train," said Florence.

Oakley held the face of his watch to his cigar tip. "Half past 8 now," he answered. "When does the next train arrive?"

"At 9."

"Your father may be on that. Why don't you run down to the station with me and meet him?" Oakley said.

Florence looked up at him quickly. "Why, I—I"— she began, but Oakley was leaning toward her, the moonlight shining on his face and lighting his gray eyes, which were fixed on hers.

Five minutes later the automobile was running along the country road, containing one uneasy and one triumphant person and followed by a white, four legged creature whose under jaw protruded at the angle of determination and who patiently blinked away the dust aroused by the flying monster in front.

The hands of the little red faced clock in the tower of the station pointed to a quarter of the hour, and they passed on, Oakley saying that they would have five minutes of speeding before returning to wait for the train.

The lights of the village disappeared, and the moon was hidden by the overhanging trees of the road along which they flew. Puffs stretched his legs and galloped his hardest. The machine drew rapidly away from him, but he followed, with the perseverance of his kind.

"We had better turn back," said Florence as they reached an open stretch of road.

Oakley consulted his watch. "After 9," he said, in apparent surprise. "We can't meet your father now. Shan't we keep on?"

"I prefer to go home," Florence replied coldly.

Oakley leaned over the steering lever as the machine sped on its way. Then he turned and his eyes met Florence's. "I am the chauffeur," he said quietly.

Florence looked steadily at him. Porter Oakley returned her gaze, but the trifling power that had made her forget conventionalities was dissipated by the honest wrath which glowed in the girl's eyes.

"Mr. Oakley, will you turn back?" she said sharply.

"Miss Hastings, we are not going back," Oakley replied mockingly.

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that I have known and wanted you for a week. It usually takes less than a week for me to get anything I want. You will go home, but it will be tomorrow—and it will be as Mrs. Oakley."

Florence rose from her seat. "If you do not stop, I shall jump out," she said.

Oakley seized her arm, but she struggled. His grasp on the steering lever became unsteady, the machine swerved violently, and he gradually brought it to a standstill at the side of the road. Florence jumped to the ground and started toward home, but Oakley placed himself in her way.

"You shall not go back," he said. "If you won't go on, we can stay in this lonely place, and in the morning, when it is known that you have passed the night with me, you may be more willing to accept my proposals."

Florence stopped and faced Oakley. Her hands were clinched, but she was trembling pitiably. He smiled and came toward her.

"Come, now. Marriage is easy in New Jersey," he said. "We can go"—

A white, panting form shot from the road and came between them. Florence threw herself on the ground, clasped her arms around a muscular neck and sobbed: "Thank God, you have come, Puffs! Thank God, you have come!"

Oakley drew back. He was not smiling. "You don't think I shall let a dog interfere with my plans, do you?" he asked.

He stepped to the automobile, placed his hand under the seat, and when he withdrew it it held a glittering object. Florence gave a low cry, and a white streak flew from the road. The next instant Oakley was kneeling on the ground, Puffs' teeth were firmly holding his wrist, and the useless weapon was lying in the dust.

Florence looked at him helplessly; then her eyes brightened. "Come, Puffs, we shall go home," she said, "and he will take us."

Half an hour later a green automobile drew slowly up the driveway of the Hastings country house. Seated in it were a young woman and a sullen looking man. Between them, with his back to the girl and his eyes fixed on the man, was a stolid and dusty bulldog.

When Mr. Hastings arrived on the 11 o'clock train, he found his daughter in a subdued mood.

"What is the meaning of this?" he asked, waving a telegram before her.

Florence took the paper and read:

Meet me at the uptown ferry, 10 o'clock tonight. FLORENCE.

"This is why you stayed in the city," she said slowly. Then, as she realized the meaning of the message, "It must have been Mr. Oakley's important business."

When Mr. Hastings had recovered a degree of equanimity after the story of the automobile, he looked fondly at Puffs.

"I'll buy one of those machines some day," he said, gravely extending his hand, into which a responsive paw was placed, "and when I do I shan't have to look far for a chauffeur."

To Avoid Telling Secrets.

A New York theatrical manager was advising a friend to be cautious in an undertaking he had in view.

"You can't take too many precautions," he asserted. 'An ounce of prevention,' as the copy book used to say, 'is better than seven pounds of allopathic, homeopathic or hydropathic cure.' One of the most contented men I ever knew was the most cautious. He was deaf and dumb, and he never went to bed without putting on boxing gloves."

"Boxing gloves? What for?"

"So that he wouldn't talk in his sleep."

RUN DOWN.

When a phrase is coined out of world wide human experience it is apt to be brief and expressive. We are "run-down" we say in the endeavor to describe a relaxed physical condition, and all the terminology of medicine could not more expressively describe the actual condition than that every day phrase. It suggests the clock, perfect mechanically, but failing to record the passage of time because it is run-down.

People who have that tired out, run-down feeling will find new life in the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This great medicine is far more than a tonic. It cures diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition, and enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food of which alone all physical strength is made.

"The reason I delayed writing was because I wanted to wait one year after I had taken the medicine before giving my statement, and now I can send a good, conscientious testimonial," writes Mr. Chas. H. Sergeant, of Plain City, Madison Co., Ohio. "During the summer and fall of 1896 I became all 'run-down,' nerves were out of order and stomach out of order. I wrote to Dr. Pierce for advice. He said I had general debility, and advised Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and, thanks to you for your advice, I used six bottles; and since I stopped taking it about one year ago, I have not taken any medicine of any kind, and have been able to work every day. My appetite is good, I can eat three square meals a day, and I do not feel that miserable burning in the stomach after eating. My blood and nerves are in good shape, and, well—in fact, I think I am in pretty good running order."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets keep the bowels active and healthy.

A FAIR WARNING.

Mark Twain's Interview With His Future Father-in-law.

Mrs. Samuel Clemens was Miss Olivia Langdon. For some years before she met Mr. Clemens she had been confined to her bed with what was believed to be an incurable disease, but she was at length miraculously restored to health. The cure was the sensation of Elmira, N. Y., and young Clemens, then a newspaper reporter, was sent there to interview Miss Langdon on her recovery.

He obtained the interview for his newspaper and brought back impressions of more value to himself.

Miss Langdon's parents were at first strongly opposed to the young newspaper man, and, for his part, his timidity, so it is solemnly said, stood in the way of the progress of his suit. But finally he screwed up courage to speak to Mr. Langdon and one morning timidly entered his future father-in-law's private office, where that man was seated at work.

"Mr. Langdon—have you—noticed anything—between—your daughter—and—me?"

"No!" shouted the objecting parent, wheeling sharply around so as to get a full view of his visitor.

"Well," said the young man as he turned to the door, ready for instant flight, "if you—keep a—sharp—lookout—you—will!"

A Marvelous Infant.

The most marvelous child of history was surely little Christian Heinecken of Lubeck, who died crowned with honor and glutted with fame when he was only a few months over four years old and whose biography will be read centuries hence side by side with those of Shakespeare and Goethe.

When he was but twelve months old Christian had mastered the Pentateuch so thoroughly that he could pass the most searching examination in it. A year later, when other infants were absorbed by bottle and rattles, he had made the whole world of sacred history his own. At three years old he could converse fluently in French and Latin and was familiar with the history and geography of the entire world, ancient as well as modern, while in his fourth year he mastered the study of the world's religious and church history. Thousands flocked to Lubeck to see and test this miraculous child, and he was summoned to the Danish court to receive the homage of the king. But his career was doomed to be as short as it was brilliant, for he died when he was but four years and four months old.

Get on the Earth.

You never heard of a wild animal that had rheumatism until it reached captivity and was kept off the earth. You never heard of a horse that had rheumatism until it was shod with iron and kept off the earth. You never heard of a dog that had rheumatism until it became a household pet and was pampered—kept off the earth. The heathen of Africa and the Pacific islands never had rheumatism, so far as we know, until they got to wearing sandals or shoes. I once knew a fool man who, whenever he got sick, would dig a trench in his garden, lie down in it and have his wife cover him with fresh earth as far up as his chin. He would remain there for an hour or two, then get up in fine spirits. Mother earth! The contact! It looked like the resurrection—and it was.

VERY OLD CHURCH.

The Church of San Miguel, at Santa Fe, is claimed by New Mexicans to be the oldest in the United States. There is much dispute over the exact date of its erection, but it was certainly built between 200 and 300 years ago by the first Indian converts under the direction of the Spanish padres—some say as long ago as 1545. Inside it is like a vault, black and crumbling, with cracked adobe walls and roof, and a gallery whose woodwork still shows traces of the figures painted there by the Indians, designs like those they put upon their pottery today.

But the most interesting thing in San Miguel is the old bell, St. Joseph. Black with age, it looks like a mass of old iron in its dim recesses. But strike it, and it gives forth a mellow note of silvery clearness, echoing with marvelous sweetness through the vaultlike old church. The quality of the bell metal makes the richness of the note, and there is a tradition that it was made of the gold and silver ornaments of the Spanish as a thank offering for a victory over the Moors.

At any rate, the old Spanish padres brought the bell, already ancient, across the seas from Spain and over mountains and plateaus from Mexico. The Moors are gone, Spain's great empire of the west has vanished, and still the old bell stands there, older than American civilization.

Weak and Exhausted.

"Though weak and exhausted I was often unable to eat. After taking Angier's Petroleum Emulsion for two weeks I was able to eat and enjoy three hearty meals a day, and and the nervousness has left me entirely." — M. E. Nesbitt, Toronto, Canada. 6a

Household Economy.

A bit of household economy that the daughter may well look after relates to the odds and ends of soap that accumulate on all toilet stands. These may be collected and put on a clean tin to be thoroughly dried out in the warming oven. Afterward they are pounded to a powder and mixed with a little bran or oatmeal to fill small cheese cloth bags for bath use. In pounding the soap it is well to gather the pieces in a stout muslin cloth, as otherwise the soap dust will escape.

Exercise Brings Beauty.

Every woman who wishes to retain her health and beauty should walk at least two miles a day. As soon as breakfast is finished the woman who knows the proper way to care for her health rests for half an hour and then starts out for a long walk, the longer the better. She chooses the sunny side of the street and starts off at a smart trot. If she is seeking for slimness she covers five miles without resting.

Washing Gloves.

Washable kid gloves would be more popular if the proper way of washing them were more generally known. According to Harper's Bazar, the whole secret lies in using cold water instead of warm and castile soap. Stretch them on the hands. Black washable gloves have long been worn in Paris.

A large manila envelope pasted inside the cover at the back of a cookbook is a handy receptacle for clippings and copies of recipes which one intends to try.

QUOTATIONS ON THE WALL STREET MARKET

The Quotations of the Leading Stocks —Market Letters.

The Wall Street market was featureless this morning with the exception of a sudden drop of five points in C.F.I. This stock opened at 61 and fell in a very short time to 59 1-4. Reading was again strong and advanced from 47 3-4 to 48 2-4 during the morning. Pa. showed considerable strength.

In the afternoon the market continued rather slow. Pa., however, touched 127 but closed at 126 1-8. Rg went up as high as 49 but reacted to 48. C.P.R. closed at 121 1-2, a point and a quarter lower than its opening quotation.

McMillan & Maguire this morning received the following:—

New York, June 17th.—The suicide of a local banker was magnified into a serious defalcation and precarious condition of the bank. The non-payment of 600,000 owed by B.F.&I. was construed as showing the company to be in difficulties. These facts, together with a sharp advance in cotton and grain gave the list a bad slump and good buying rallied the list however, and the close was at fractional gains. There are bull tips out on A.C.P., but the metal has declined in price. The Wall crowd is reported as saying they will put the list down 10 points before July 1st. They may want to cover some shorts. The contending forces in the market are so confident of their position that sharp fluctuations are recorded giving fine chances to scalp.

We advise taking profits on all buldgee.

MAIN CIRCUS IN PETERBOROUGH.

Big Tent was Crowded for Both Performances Yesterday.

Savage South Africa a Feature Much Enjoyed - Clever Horsemanship.

Yesterday was circus day, and, if the weather was not just ideal, it remained pleasant long enough to allow the town to become filled with people on pleasure bent from far and near.

The justly celebrated Walter L. Main shows were here, not only to entertain about ten thousand people during the afternoon and evening performances, but to show a marked distinction between the old over-played "hippodrome exhibitions" and the real high-class tent exhibition of the present day.

Everything from the street parade at 10 o'clock in the forenoon to the close of the evening performance was evidenced by practical business management and good discipline.

The well arranged street parade, covering many blocks, brought crowds from all parts of the city, as well as from towns, to the main thoroughfares, and as the several bands of music in chariots, on horseback and otherwise played popular selections, the enthusiasm broadened. Many who were not in reality inclined to attend were induced to from the exceptionally fine and inviting appearance of the parade in general. The steam piano merrily tooted a series of familiar roundelays in the rear of the procession, and its strains echoed over many blocks.

The afternoon exhibition opened at the Driving Park precisely at ½ o'clock, and notwithstanding the enormous crowd ready in waiting, there was not the mad rush for tickets, for this feature had been practically overcome by systematically restraining the on-moving crowd. time was saved, and everybody from the "man with all the family" to those who were only there with themselves were comfortably seated in the large and conveniently arranged tents, where the bands furnished sweet and welcoming music. A number of persons within the hearing of the Examiner reporter were heard to express themselves as being highly pleased in this respect at the opening of the exhibition, and their pleasures were materially added to during the course of the entertainment.

Every arrangement was like clockwork from the first performance to the last, and never has a show visited this town with such a pleasing grist of side-splitting comedy features as was witnessed in the Main shows. Here were the Alphonse and Gaston characters, Billy Bounce and the pieman, and a dozen or more funny clowns—not foolish ones—all of which delighted the little ones hugely, and in turn delighted the parents because of it.

The exhibition was so arranged that all could see all that was going on. The trained animals adhered to even the smallest details of their respective programmes. The five mastodonic elephants were especially on their good behaviour in this respect, and the feats performed by them were truly remarkable, exhibiting as it were a kindly feeling for their master as he directed them with the utmost precision.

Miss Essie Fay with a score or more of trained horses, was prominent among the large class of attractions. A pyramid was formed in the west ring, followed by a beautiful rally, in which the Shetlands, the broncbes, the Norman. French, and others, contrasted in a pleasing way.

Capt. P. J. Visser, the giant commander—6 feet and 9 inches high—a genuine Boer—commanded the Boer forces in a realistic sham battle with a well organized band of South Africans. The battle lasted about 40 minutes, and the military training on both sides was commendable. Two elegant and genuine Gatling guns were used in the battle, which, with the other parts of the fray were equally interesting and instructive.

The audience was not allowed to become fatigued with the show at any time, and when they had been circussed enough an entire change of programme was speedily put on and renewed interest was seen on evry countenance.

The afternoon performance of the general exhibition concluded with thrilling hippodrome races, after which a select concert was at the disposal of all who wished to remain. The evening performance was a little different from that of the afternoon, and was attended by fully as many people.

A few of the leading attractions of the Main shows have been referred to but after witnessing the performance one can hardly imagine how such a varied, extensive, and pleasing programme could be crowded in a little more than two hours' time.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

The Peterborough County Sunday School Council with the ready assistance of the different Township Associations, has been enabled to arrange for a very interesting, and what ought to be, very profitable series of conventions.

General Secretary A. J. Jackson, B.A., and Rev. W. E. Hazzard, B.D., of Toronto, will speak, at all sessions of the conventions.

Both men are experienced in every phase of Sabbath school work, and with the help of local men, also well qualified, the county work should receive a great impetus.

The following is the arrangement of conventions and meetings:

Peterborough, (town), Monday, June 22nd, in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, Peterborough, at 8 p.m.

Asphodel, Tuesday, June 23rd, at South Dummer, 2 p.m., and 7.30 p.m.

Belmont, Wednesday, June 24th, at Havelock (Grove,) 2 p.m., and 7.30 p.m.

Otonabee, Thursday, June 25th, at Methodist church, Keene, 2 p.m., and 7.30 p.m.

Smith, Friday, June 26th, at the Methodist church, Bridgenorth, at 8 p.m.

Dummer, Monday, June 29th, at Warsaw, June 29th, 2 and 7.30 p.m.

On Sunday, June 28th, mass meetings have been arranged:

At 3 p.m., in Peterborough, all the schools will march to the George street Methodist church, where they will be addressed by Rev. W. E. Hazzard, B.D., of Toronto. For this service special music will be provided.

At 8 p.m., in Lakefield, a second mass meeting will be held in the Methodist church and will be addressed by Secretary Jackson and Rev. Mr. Hazzard. At all meetings an offering will be taken up for the work of the association.

It is earnestly hoped that all parents and teachers will do what they can to make these gatherings a success.

LATEST FASHION NOTES.

STREET COSTUME OF BLUE VOILE.

A charming street costume is developed in the fashionable royal blue voile. It shows handsome front facings of Alsatian broderie, giving it a rich and elegant finish. The long-shouldered effect, now so rapidly gaining in popularity, is admirably carried out, and fringes, which are likewise coming to the front, help to carry out this effect. Fringes are also seen on the skirt, which has a slight sweep and on which a front panel is introduced. Corticelli spool silk is used throughout on this very jaunty street gown.

For fashionable materials there are voile, etamines, hopsack, canvas cloth, veiling, crepes galore, and rough, natty heavily tufted Kinnockburn suitings. This latter material is considered very smart for the trim walking suit in the Norfolk or "corset" coat style, and the main decoration lies in stitchings, and motifs of plain fabrics, introduced to match one of the flecks in the materials. Equally delightful are the looser makes of hopsacks and coarser voiles, which adapt themselves so well to the gauged style, both in yoke and hip piece, and it must be here remembered that those fabrics and strappings are giving way to looser gaugings and textures.

The Fan In History.

As in a mirror, the fan, the origin of which is lost in the twilight of oriental legend, reflects the habits, customs, art and taste of every country which has made a friend of an article so useful and ornamental. Greece was the first European country to adopt the fan—two birds' wings—one of its uses being by acolytes in the temples to drive away the flies from the sacrifice. It served the early Christians in the catacombs a similar purpose when the bread and wine were spread for the sacrament, a custom which lasted in the Roman Catholic church to the fourteenth century.

In this same century the fan made an almost simultaneous appearance throughout Italy and France, in England and Spain. Its most artistic flights have been achieved in France, but not even to France will Spain yield in its use of the fan as "an important weapon in the mimic warfare of coquetry and flirtation." Whether the Spanish lady is in church or a place of amusement, whether visiting or walking, it is always in her hands, frequently portraying the horrors of the bullfight. Corresponding with these, certain French revolution fans represent Charlotte Corday carrying a dagger in one hand and a fan in the other!

AWAITING DEVELOPMENTS.

No Startling News From St. Thomas—Liquidators For Elgin Appointed.

St. Thomas, June 17.—The panic here has subsided, and the people whose money is tied up in the Atlas and Elgin Loan Companies are simply awaiting the developments of the liquidators. The affairs of the Atlas Co., it is feared, are hopelessly involved.

The London & Western Co., which was appointed liquidators of the Elgin Co., has sent Ernest Weldon to take temporary charge of the office. The impression is still that its depositors will be paid in full, and that the shareholders will be returned 75 or 80 per cent. of their money. The other loan companies have had a few withdrawals of deposits this morning, and the postoffice received about $10,000 on deposit from this source yesterday.

Rowley, the defaulting and absconding manager of the Elgin Loan Co., has not been heard from.

REPORTED MISSING.

The MacDuff and Her Crew of Thirty Men Lost.

New York, June 17.—The British barque MacDuff, which left here on April 28, in ballast, for Pensacola, Fla., was reported yesterday as missing by her agents. She had a crew of about 30 men.

Socialists Lead in Germany.

Berlin, June 17. — The leading feature in the Reichstag elections, which were held yesterday, was the success of the Social Democrats, who have probably increased their representation by 15 seats and their total vote to 2,500,000, or 400,000 more than in 1898. All the parties concede the success of the Socialists, which has been at the expense of them all.

Fenton stole $8,500.

Montreal, June 16.—Before Justice Lacoste yesterday, Robert Fenton, who stole $8,500 from the pocket of Robert Hall of Outremont, was tried. Fenton goes to the penitentiary for three years.

Pilot Is Blamed.

Quebec, June 16.—Pilot Hand is blamed by the court of inquiry for the grounding of the steamer Iberian near Sorel a few days ago. He has been a pilot for 33 years.

Took Paris Green.

Ottawa, June 16.—Mrs. Duncan McLeod, Ottawa East, died yesterday as a result of a dose of Paris green, taken Sunday night.

Absent Since May 24.

London, June 16.—Alfred Martin has been absent from Walkerville since May 24 and his parents are anxious.

Suicide Used Hammer.

Windsor, June 17.—Mrs. Gregory Langlois, about 45 years old, living on the Maisonville road, near Walkerville, made a desperate attempt to kill herself yesterday morning by smashing her skull with a hammer. She will die.

Machines That Seem to Think.

The home of the dipper dredge is on the great lakes. There it flourishes and in the smaller sizes and in nontidal fresh water at twenty feet depth was marvelously efficient. A good wooden dredge of ten years ago which cost, say, $30,000 would do 1,500 or 2,000 cubic yards per ten hours with a crew of six men on three tons of coal.

It could lift its spuds, move up and reset again in ninety seconds. It stands alone like a table on its legs, with no moorings to obstruct navigation. By means of its dipper on the bottom it can move itself about crab fashion in any direction and by the same means can push the barges about which it is loading. It can maneuver itself in any direction, load scows, dig foundations, pull piles, lay concrete blocks, deposit black filling, lift bowlders, raise wrecks, dredge hard or soft material and do nearly everything but vote. Its great simplicity made it light in repairs.

The M. P. Gets No Pay.

Members of the English parliament, unlike the members of the American congress and all the other parliaments of the world, serve without salaries. The labor party's representatives in parliament and the Irish party's members are the only ones who are paid to serve in the house of commons. They draw their salaries not from the government, but from the funds of their parties. There are so many able men willing to serve their country and their party for the honor of it that all agitations to secure salaries for members of commons have failed. It costs the average member from $3,000 to $25,000 in election expenses to get into commons if his election is warmly contested by a candidate from the opposing party, so that, as a rule, the average member of the house of commons is a man of fortune.

Oils For Anointing the Body.

Butter is noticed by Pliny as used by the negro and lower classes of Arabs for anointing the bodies. The natives of India prefer strong perfumes for this purpose and use oil of santal and oil of patchouli. Savages also grease their bodies, but probably with the idea of being enabled to escape more easily from the grip of an enemy.

A Ridiculous Wish.

King James I. of England was once presented with an address by his subjects in Shrewsbury, who expressed the hope that he would reign over them as long as sun, moon and stars should endure. "I suppose, then," said the king, "that you wish my successor to reign by candlelight."

An Ugly Branch.

"Wordley tells me he has been working on his family tree of late."

"Yes, it keeps him pretty busy."

"Rather complicated work, eh?"

"Well, I believe he found a noose on one of the branches, and he's having some trouble sawing it off."
